THE STARS SAY . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Saturday, April 3

AN EVENTFUL and memorable day is presaged from the conspicuous position of the orb representing the radical, unorthodox, adventurous and the romantic, a planet which operates with whirlwind force. This is supported by an abetting position of the star of the affections; so possibly unique experiences and dramatic events may affect the private life with abrupt and revolutionary force.

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for a year of outstanding if not sensational or spectacular adventures, with the possibility of romance, innovation, change or dramatic experiences, either in the affectional, social, domestic, scientific or artistic lives.

A child born on this day may be versatile and highly endowed in a very conspicuous and probably sensational way, with romance, adventure, drama, novelty and revolutionary ideas and spectacular experiences dominating the life, bringing fame, travel, happiness and personal romantic gratification, too.

MAGISTRATE'S COURT.

Vincent Curtain, 20, of 274 Westcott street, pleaded guilty before Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., this (Friday) morning to a charge of supplying liquor to a minor and was fined $15 and $4.50 costs with 10 days imprisonment in default. The accused and a 17-year-old companion were apprehended by police on Thursday night for creating a disturbance on Simcoe street, and the younger of the pair was found in possession of a bottle of wine which he claimed to have obtained from Curtain.

SHE LOST HER HAT.

Those new Easter creations are catchy, unusual in shape and very attractive. They are also a bit difficult to keep on the head, as a Driscoll Terrace woman discovered to her sorrow Thursday. She was tripping blithely over the Hunter Street bridge, secure in the knowledge that her millinery was the last word in feminine headgear when a vagrant breeze whipped the thing off her head and it sailed in a beautiful curve over the railing and made a perfect three-point landing in the Otonabee. When last seen it was nestling for Little Lake at a rapid rate.

Eight Children Provide Program Received Inspiration From Radio

The large number of local and district children, many of them mere babies, who are taking instruction in tap dancing and in the singing of popular songs, would seem to belie the old theory that the growing popularity of the radio would lead to a gumelination on the part of the rising generation to take musical instruction.

Indeed the opposite would seem to be the case. It can be said without any fear of contradiction that many of the children who are now learning to tap dance and sing have received their inspiration from the radio broadcasts.

As a case in point, eight clever little performers ranging in ages from 7 to 12 years recently entertained a local gathering with Dick Lush as the able master of ceremonies.

One of the children who presented a clever character sketch attired as an old lady of the gay nineties, was introduced as Joan Read aged 11 years.

Introduced by Mr. Lush as "a much travelled child," the little girl told her audience she had been in Singapore, the Phillipines, China, Japan, France, "and several other countries I just can't think of at present."

She might be leaving her aunt with whom she is living on Water street and journey to far away Shanghai this summer to rejoin her daddy, she said.

Asked if she would take her baby brother, the little girl was not quite sure. "He is not so keen about going," she falsely stated.

Three other children, Sylvia Dugnan, 13, Irwin Pearsall, 12, both of this city and Jean Miller, 11, of Lakefield earned hearty applause for step dances and songs. Each of the trio has recently broadcast over radio station CFRB on "The Weston Bread Company's hour."

Stated to have been playing since she was 3½ years old little Marion Downer, 14, proved to be an accomplished little pianist. She completed one of her own music, it was announced.

Little 7-year-old Shirley Garner, a sweet fair-haired child teamed up with 8-year-old Kenneth Simmons in another tap dance and song number. The little couple after received a great hand were unable to take an encore, and nobody pressed them to do so because it was long past their regular bedtime and both were feeling sleepy.

Although he plays the concertina, an instrument on which he has been taking instruction for almost four years, Rose Cribble, 7, told his audience he had a preference for the violin. He made a good impression albeit he was a little bit stage struck.

The Rambling REPORTERS

A SPECIFIC ORDER

The manager of a well-known local bakery tells the story of an order for a cake that was recently received by his firm, which he describes as one of the most novel orders in his long experience in the trade. The prospective customer, evidently a woman of very decided opinions, desiring a cake in connection with the celebration of a birthday or wedding anniversary, painstakingly made a cardboard scale model of the cake she had in mind. The model was complete even to the forty odd candles which were to be placed on the finished product. In view of the fact that all the cakes retailed by the firm in question are baked in Toronto, the manager was not taking any chances with such an obviously particular customer. He referred her order to another firm of confectioners who bake cakes locally.—H.S.

T. J. McMurray Is Awarded King Edward Park Contract

Committees Of City Council Open Tenders For Several Jobs

BUY FACTORY FENCE

Committees of the council Thursday night accepted tenders for the construction of a public rest room at King Edward Park and for steel fence for the city's property on Townsend street, 1,000 feet of fire hose, firemen's uniforms, street oil and cement.

Bids for the southend park building which is to be similar in design and accommodation to the one that was erected in Inverlea Park last year total $2,522.75.

The successful contractors are: Thomas J. McMurray $1,695 for the general contract; P. O. Wallace, plumbing, $660; Adamson and Bobbin, hot air heating, $129; and W. Gordon Hall, electric wiring, $38.75. They were all the lowest bids.

Four tenders were received for the building from Mr. McMurray, C. H. Huffman $1960, George Sloan $1823, and Frank Barrett $1900. Seven plumbers and steamfitters submitted bids for the heating and plumbing, and three electricians submitted prices for the wiring.

Alderman Sloan, chairman of the Board of Works, said the work should be completed by June 15, or six weeks after the completion of the concrete work which is to be done by the Board's own employees. City Engineer Parsons is to supervise the building operations.

Buy Factory Fence

Prices from three manufacturers for approximately 1190 feet of standard steel wire factory fence to enclose the municipal yard on Townsend street were inentical $1977.20 subject to an advance of 15 per cent Monday, April 5. These bids were received from Frost Steel and Wire Company, Hamilton; Lunny Fence Company, Toronto; and the Steel Company of Canada.

The contract, including construction, was let to the Frost Steel and Wire Company, because their agent lives in Peterborough. M. R. Harrison who has built fences of this type for a number of industries. Their tender was $1462.70 for the material, including the wire fencing which is eight feet high, with posts, footings and gates. Alderman Sloan was advised to notify the company that their offer was accepted subject to confirmation by the council next Monday night. The Board's appropriation for this work was $1700.

Buy Street Oil

Prices for a supply of street oil, estimated at 35,000 gallons, were received from six companies. On Alderman Cotton's motion, seconded by Alderman Stocker, the tender of the Imperial Oil Company of 13 cents a gallon was accepted. The price of the British-American Company was also 13 cents; and the Texas Company, with an agency in Niagara Falls 11.20 cents.

Alderman Wilson estimated that the Texas company's price would save the city $600, but this oil is refined in the United States, whereas the Imperial Oil Company's product is refined in Canada.

Referring to the Imperial tender Alderman Hamilton said: "We have had their road oil before and we know how to put it on the streets with the poor apparatus we have. I think you would save a lot of trouble by buying from them again."

Cement Up Five Cents

The Scott Coal and Lumber Company's price for cement, $2.45 a barrel in paper sacks, f.o.b. Peterborough, was one cent a barrel under the T. A. Rehill Company's price of $2.46, and was accepted on Alderman Cotton's motion, seconded by Alderman Glover. The city paid $2.40 a barrel last year.

Four local dealers, agents for manufacturers of rubber companies, tendered for the contract of supplying 1,000 feet of fire hose. The price for the desired quality was exactly the same in each bid, $1.30 a foot.

The Fire, Water and Light Committee decided to let the contract to two dealers for 500 feet each, the Kingan Hardware Company, representing the Bilateral Fire Hose Company of Kitchener, and F. H. Johnston, McDonnel and George streets, agent for the Dunlop Tire and Rubber Company. Alderman Glover moved the recommendation for this purchase, seconded by Alderman McIntyre.

Firemen's Uniforms

The contract for making blue uniforms for the city's firemen was let to Grafton & Company at $29.50 each, only 25 cents less than Tip Top Tailors' bid of $29.75. Incidentally it was stated that Tip Top Tailors received this business last year.

TRUCKER CHARGED

LONDON, Ont., April 2 (CP) — Charged with leaving the scene of an accident and driving without an operator's permit, Paul J. Smith, 31, truck driver, appeared in court today and was remanded until Tuesday with his bail set at $300 cash.

Smith was arrested late night after police searched for several hours for the driver of a truck that knocked a boy and a girl from a bicycle they were riding. The truck struck the cyclists, continued and hit a car, and then was abandoned, according to police reports. The driver is alleged to have left on foot.

CREAM SEPARATOR HEARING IS SHORT

W. R. Breyfogle And G. H. Cutmore Appear Before Ottawa Committee

OTTAWA, April 2 (CP)—Testimony relating to cream separators was presented to the House special committee studying prices of farm implements today by W. R. Breyfogle, vice-president and general manager, and G. H. Cutmore, auditor, of the De Laval Company of Peterborough, Ont. Proceedings were brief.

Mr. Breyfogle explained the company's business, its importations from the parent company in the United States, and from a Swedish firm. On United States importations the Canadian subsidiary had to pay 25 per cent. excess price, he declared. While this improved the financial shewing of the parent company, it had the opposite effect on that of the Peterborough firm.

On this point, J. A. V. Hooper, national revenue official, questioned by R. T. Graham, committee counsel, said if the Canadian company had taken the trouble to communicate with the department for information relating to what parts of cream separaters were of a class or kind made in Canada, it was possible this 25 per cent might not have to be paid to the U.S. company on all the parts.

ENTRY LIST HEAVY AT HOBBY SHOW

Manual Training And Art Department Are Largest In The Show

Mayor George A. Macdonald is to officiate in the opening of the annual Peterborough Boys' Hobby Show at the Y.M.C.A. at 7.45 o'clock this evening. The public will be welcomed to view one of the finest ranges of exhibits in the history of the show.

As show officials went about the placing of exhibits this morning it seemed that the manual training and art departments would be among the feature sections this year. The display of model airplanes will be unusually good and other departments such as stamps, miscellaneous collections, mechanical models and leathercraft have attracted fine selections of exhibits. An interesting new department is being devoted to the craft of wood burning.

Following the opening ceremonies at 7.45 o'clock, a swimming meet at which Y.M.C.A. junior championships will be decided, will be held in the pool. The annual matinee dog show will be staged at 10.30 o'clock Saturday morning and exhibits will again be opened to the general public in the afternoon.

Lobert Teaching Phillies Mysteries Of Base Sliding

Veteran Was Close Friend Of McGraw Though He Played On Rival Club

55 YEARS OF AGE

WINTER HAVEN, Fla., April 2—A man who for more than a quarter of a century was one of John McGraw's closest friends, though he played on a rival ball club, stood in the shade of the little scoreboard in Phils' park, teaching a group of recruits some of the niceties of sliding into a base.

The teacher was Hans Lobert, rugged individualist of baseball's more boisterous day, and though Hans is 55 years old, and the years have added to his weight and girth, there remains in his bearing a definite trace of the swashbuckling grace and speed that made him one of the National league's greatest players.

"They don't put so much emphasis on stealing bases nowadays," he said, "as when I was breaking into the game. A good baserunner in the old days was as valuable a man on the team as a .350 hitter is today. Fans used to get as much excitement out of a stolen base as they do now out of a home run.

Thirty Years Back

"But I like to teach these kids because there may be a time when they'll need to know how to grab that base right out from under an infielder who's waiting for 'em with the ball."

Baseball's pattern has changed since Lobert, son of a Wilmington, Del., cabinetmaker, broke in more than 30 years ago. Passing you a picture of it, the way Lobert gave it to me:

In the waning days of the season of 1906, Lobert, a 23-year-old third baseman came up from Des Moines for a tryout with the Cubs. Frank Chance was manager of the cubs then, and an important series with the Giants was coming up. Chance called the youngster aside and told him that if he expected to make good in the big league, he'd have to show McGraw's toughies he wouldn't take anything from them.

"The first time I got a chance to steal second," said Lobert, "I went into Bill Dahlen football style, gave him a straight arm that knocked the ball out of his hand and sailed on to third.

Sealed Friendship

"The Giants didn't like it, and next inning Mike Donlin came shooting into third and cut me on the leg. We nearly had a fist fight, but the umps stepped us. A minute later I got a signal for a throw to third and trapped Mike off the sack. As he came back in I not only tagged him but stepped on him.

"McGraw was coaching on third. After Donlin had gone to the bench, he knocked me off my pins by saying, 'Nice going, young fellow. Don't let 'em bluff you'."

That was the start of a friendship that lasted until McGraw's death three years ago. And though Lobert did not become a member of the Giants' club until late in his career, the two men were close pals off the diamond. They spent many vacations together in Havana where McGraw could usually be found at the race track during the winter months.

Fastest Man

Twenty-six years ago Lobert set a record by circling the bases in 13 4-5 seconds, from a standing start back of home plate. The record has been beaten, but under easier conditions.

When Jim Thorpe, Indian Olympic hero, broke in with the Giants, there was talk of his great speed. Hans Lobert didn't care to be known as the second fastest man in baseball, so he challenged the great Sac and Fox to a 100-yard dash.

"We had the race at the Polo Grounds 24 years ago," said Lobert. "And I bet 50 bucks on myself to win. I beat Thorpe by three yards. Fifty bucks was a lot of money then. I'd have beaten the Twentieth Century from New York to Chicago for $50 in those days."

KILREA PLAYING HIS 12TH SEASON

His Winning Tally In Overtime Gives Team The League Title

DETROIT, April 2—(CP)—Hec Kilrea, the blonde Ottawa bomber who reserved his scoring ability for the playoffs, has been in major league competition longer than any other member of the Detroit Red Wings, crowned National Hockey League champions last night for the second successive year and for the third time in the last four years. This is Hec's 12th winter in the "Big Time."

Playing in his ninth post-season play-off, modest Hector is the boast of Detroit to-day, for his "million-dollar" counter in the third overtime period of last night's game with Canadiens in Montreal gave his team the league title and a chance to repeat their Stanley Cup triumph of last season.

But that's not all. Hec started Jolly Jack Adams' Wins on their way to the series' victory by counting two goals in the first game here, won by Detroit, 4-0.

Since last March, Hec has said the greatest thrill of his hockey career was Modere "Mud" Bruneteau's winning goal after 171 minutes of battling the Maroons in Montreal. Kilrea was credited with an assist on the play which gave the Wings the National League championship.

"Winning that game made winning the Stanley Cup an anti-climax," the veteran said only last week. He's probably changed his mind after last night's effort.

When it was pointed out last week that the number 12 which decorates the back of his crimson sweater was altogether fitting for a man who has been 12 years in the National League, Hec, elder brother of Wing Wally, said:

"I never thought of that before. It's a strange co-incidence. I hope they don't ask me to wear No. 13 next season."

WEDDING COLORS

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., April 2 (A.P.).—No Canadian bride planning her first wedding would think of wearing anything but purest white.

But solid black, bright green and red all have been perfectly acceptable wedding garb, Harvard University explained to-day, opening an exhibition of strange marriage rites of other times and lands.

The solid black dress originated in Bohemia, where marriage was regarded as an event of great religious solemnity, to be approached in grave spirit.

Gehrig Bites Dust

Lou Gehrig, recently-signed star of the New York Yankees, is the subject of this staggered strip, made as he took his first turn at bat during the 1937 spring training season. Lou was postured as he connected with a fast ball, dropped his bat, turned to first to run it out, and then slipped on the gravel.

SPORTS DAY by DAY

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

By CEC. PERDUE

SINCE THIS is April 2nd, it is no April Fool's Day joke when we advise you to look toward the Y.W. gym tonight if you want a lot of action for a thin dime. The occasion is the two opening play-offs in the Ladies Basketball League. First one is at eight o'clock between C.G.E. Juniors and St. John's, followed about nine by Westclox 'gainst C.G.E. Seniors. Both series are best two out of three games, these 'gainst C.G.E. Senior. Both series are best two out of three games. These damsels play good basketball and will battle it out on pretty even terms. Followers of the hoop game and of girlv athletics—fellows as well as girls—should turn out in goodly numbers to cheer the lasses along. Both tilts will be worth seeing.

* * * * * *

THERE WILL be three cage contests tomorrow e'en in the Y.M.C.A. gymnasium. First two are final playoffs in the Hobby Show tournaments, the juniors tangling at 7.30 and the intermediates at 8.15. Then at 9.00 o'clock the Senior City Basketball League finalists, St. Paul's and P.C.I., clash in their first playoff tussle and it ought to be a pip all the way. Ought to pack in the customers for this busy evening. Tomorrow afternoon at the "Y", these volleyball games are billed: Indians vs. Spartans at 2.30, Gunners vs. Bulldogs at 2.45, Hawks vs. Cardinals at 3.30, Wildcats vs. Terriers at 4.15 and Sharks vs. Rockets at 5.00. A fulltish sort of day up there, what?

* * * * * *

AN IMPORTANT lacrosse meeting for those interested in having an intermediate team from here in the O.A.L.A. this summer is called for eight o'clock Monday night in the Duffus Board Room. Officials, fans and players from city and district are invited. Not only is the possibility of a team from Peterborough being grouped maybe with Oshawa, Trenton and another squad, the main item of business but there is considerable talk of laying out a new enclosed playing field somewhere close to the centre of town. If anything is to come of these projects, a well-attended meeting is necessary.

* * * * * *

OUR LITTLE April Fool's Day joke yesterday insinuating that the Colts were back in the O.H.A. running caused a lot of backfire. A flock of fans apparently just read the first few lines and took it as gospel and the report spread rapidly. And we got called some names that would have made our great-grandpop, who was hanged for piracy, blush like a schoolgirl used to blush once upon a time. And, after we rather shamefacedly answered dozens of 'phone calls saying it was a joke, we wonder if the joke wasn't on us after all.

HOCKEY CLUB executive holds a business meeting tonight at eight in the Chamber of Commerce to wind up the season's business. 'Tis the general belief that the club piled up a pretty fair profit this year through junior playoffs. In fact, we understand that the locals' one-third share of that Barrie-Colts' game in Oshawa came to more than any one home game all winter! Since the amateur moguls frown heavily on any financial gifts, we imagine the junior puckists will receive presents in the way of a trip or maybe a suit of clothes—probably the latter. Despite poor groupings both local teams—but the Colts especially—got clear of the red ink quite comfortably this year. And not since some of those same juniors were wearing three-cornered pants has the club finished so well financially.

* * * * * *

A PACKED Forum in Montreal sat up for almost 53 minutes of overtime to see Detroit Wings squeeze Canadiens out of the N.H.L. title by a 2-1 score. The Flying Frenchmen, after a great comeback, went down fighting furiously and both teams rate all the credit in the world for their showing. One year ago in Montreal these same Wings battled Maroons 116½ minutes of overtime—a record—before winning by 1-0. Previous overtime record was 104⅝ minutes when Leafs beat Boston in '33. Last night saw Rangers take a 1-0 nod over Maroons in N'Yawk but we still like Maroons for the Stanley Cup finals. It wouldn't seem just right to have two American teams in the puck finals.

FRED (BLONDY) Jackson, who started as a "printer's devil" in the newsroom, has been named sports editor of the Toronto Star, succeeding the late Lou Marsh. He has been on the staff for some time and is reputed to know sports and to be a popular young man. After Lou's death, Andy Lytle and Gordon Sinclair shared duties as main sports writers on the Star, but neither was ever officially appointed as editor. Jackson's hurdle over the veteran Lolle of Vancouver may be something of a surprise, but the best wishes of a host of athletes and followers of athletics will go with him.

* * * * * *

HALF A dozen or more local baseball men will attend the O.B.A.A. annual convention in Oshawa tomorrow. Many will go down tonight and remain over. We believe the Peterborough City League will be represented but not the practically defunct E.P.I. A big crowd is expected from all over the east. We will be there with bells on. It wouldn't surprise us too much if Ernie Gibbard of Napanee withdrew his name as president of the Ontario body this year, Ernie being tied up with his business pretty closely. Joe Walsh has finally admitted coyly that he will not run for office again and the Toronto papers are boosting Jack Scott of Kitchener for the chair. It still looks like baseball politics to us, though Scott should be okay.

* * * * * *

PICKING 'EM off the grapevine: Oshawa Majors, who won the C.B.A. two years ago, will be here to bowl C.G.E. tomorrow eve at eight in Duffus' . . . . Charlie Elliott, local Packard and Studebaker dealer, has sold Ace Bailey a new Studebaker this spring; all the Leafs are buying one . . . . Oshawa Juveniles were ousted by Waterloo in O.H.A. playoffs last e'en . . . . Ernie: He has a similar job here to the one he had in your town . . . . Toey Ibey is back in Cobourg and may play ball there . . . . Roy Dodge of Cobourg is again prexy of the Lakeshore Baseball Loop . . . . Wembley Lions, with Jo-Jo Graboski aboard, won the English puck title and will be in Toronto, April 16th for the world's amateur tournament . . . . Junior "B" playoff teams go into action again tonight . . . . Frank Buckland 'phones to raise Cain with us 'cause a flock of folks have called him to ask if the Colts were back in the running! . . . . Maybe we'd better get out of here and head for Oshawa right pronto.

WEMBLEY LIONS CAPTURE TITLE

Repeat As Champs When Harringay Racers Are Held To Tie

BRIGHTON, Eng., April 2 (CP Cable) — Wembley Lions won the National Hockey League title for the second successive year last night when Brighton Tigers held Harringay Racers to a scoreless tie here. Racers needed a win to retain a chance of finishing in a tie with Lions. Wembley Monarchs defeated Richmond Hawks 7-6 in another game tonight.

Lions now have 69 points to Racers' 57 and as each team has one game to play, the best Racers can do is finish a point behind the champions.

Captained by Lov Bates of Ottawa, Lions have two other Ottawans and six Winnipeggers on their lineup. As National League champions they are invited to take part in an international series at Toronto this month. They would have to return to England for post-season games.

Fast and well-balanced, Lions are worthy champions. Roy Musgrove of Winnipeg, the only goalie in England who wears spectacles, has been a great asset to them, this season and has earned ranking as the top netminder of the league. They have a heavy defence, speedy wings and in Tony Lemay of Winnipeg a clever play-making centre.

Wembley Monarchs' win last night strengthened them in fifth position, but they won't better that spot before the closes on April 7th.

Stan King of Fort William scored three of their goals last night and Jimmy Haggerty and Alex. Sinclair of Fort Arthur, Jack Wilkinson of Ottawa and Jimmy Milford of Winnipeg got the others. Hawks' scorers were Ab Conick and Harry McArthur of Sudbury, Red Coward of Fort Frances, Ont., and Tom Forgie and Clarke Morrison of Port Colborne, Ont.

PREPARING FOR WAR

WASHINGTON, April 2 (A.P.).—Representative Fiesinger (R. O.) told the United States House of Representatives to-day Europe was sending its ace diplomats to the United States "for the purpose of preparing" for war.

He said some of the nations—"Britain, France, and others—have the audacity to hope that in the event of a conflagration which involves them, as it must, they will again be able to induce us to join in the brawl."

ENGLISH ELEVENS CLOSELY BUNCHED

Manchester City Now Looms As Real Contender For Title

LONDON, April 2 (CP Cable)—Easter holiday matches failed to solve the English Soccer Football League championship riddle, and it is likely that the bitter fight will not produce a winner until the last week of the campaign. Final games are scheduled for May 1.

Playing at the top of its form and unhampered by the injuries that kept the squad back earlier in the season, Manchester City is looked upon in many quarters as a formidable contender. The City share third place in the league table along with Portsmouth and Middlesbrough, three points behind the leaders, but they have two games in hand that may make all the difference in the end.

Stubbornly contesting every inch of the way, Arsenal and Charlton Athletic are bracketed in first place with 47 points, but the Gunners have a much superior goal average.

Arsenal entertains West Bromwich at Highbury Saturday, but will field a weakened team. The Londoners have a long list of casualties and their star centre-forward, Ted Drake, is out of the game for the rest of the season with cartilage trouble. They may capture maximum points at the week-end as the Throstles, practically safe from relegation worries, are now concentrating on winning English Cup battles.

Charlton is making only one change from the team that defeated Chelsea, Easter Monday. The squad makes the long journey to Sunderland, and, although the northerners have relinquished all hope of retaining the championship they won last year, they will put up a big scrap before the Roker Park crowd.

Marshall, Manchester City's centre-half, will return to the team for the match at Brentford, but it will be a hard battle as the home team is still a strong contender for first-place honors.

END OF OPTOMETRY ACT.

WINNIPEG, April 2 (C.P.)—A Bill to repeal the Manitoba Optometry Act, which would wipe out exclusive control over eye-testing and eyeglass business now exercised by the Manitoba Optometric Society, will be introduced in the Legislature to-day by H. F. Lawrence (C.C.F.-Lab., St. Boniface). He charges that the Act sets price-fixing combines which are unfair to people of small means.

MORE POLICEMEN

Only Way To Cut Road Toll Says Safety Head—Raps Horror Drive.

NEW YORK, April 2 (AP)—In the opinion of W. H. Cameron, managing director of the United States National Safety Council, it's going to take something more than "horror publicity" to cut the nation's traffic toll.

"A flash in the pan" and "not very effective" were some of the words he used in discussing such weapons as the much-discussed book "And Sudden Death" in driving home the lesson of safety to the motoring public. The book described in detail the horrors of road accidents.

Only Five Good Eggs In Five Dozen Bought

AN indignant local housewife on Union street reports to city police she was the victim of a mean trick. It was not an April fool trick either.

Around Eastertide, the woman complains, she bought five dozen eggs from a man who called at her back door. Presumably she does not know the egg salesman in question, and he would be well advised to stay away in the future.

Of the sixty eggs only five of them were fit for use. The rest of them were bad—fifty-five no less. And so bad that they had well-formed chickens inside of them.

MAROONS DROP INITIAL TILT TO RANGERS

Manager Gorman, Conacher Both Hint At Favoritism In Refereeing

SCORE IS 1-0

Pratt Teams Up With Veteran Ching Johnson For Winner—Two Penalties

NEW YORK, April 2 (C.P.). — Still confident of ultimate victory, but somewhat annoyed at the officiating in Madison Square Garden, Montreal Maroons sped homeward to-day one game down to New York Rangers in the best-of-three Stanley Cup semi-final series.

Although they surprised the Gotham bluestirts by feverish onslaughts from the opening face-off the big red team from the Canadian Metropolis finished 60 minutes of fast and bruising hockey on the short end of a 1-0 score.

Walter (Babe) Pratt, laughing defenceman Rangers continue to use sparingly in the playoff jousts, set the Montrealers down on the short end by scoring the lone goal late in the opening frame.

The lanky Winnipeg youngster was teamed up with the burly veteran Ching Johnson on the New York rearguard when his big mo-ment arrived. Ching baited a Maroon thrust, made a quick short pass to the graduate from Kenora Thistles, and the Babe was away, blockading visitors and crossed their blue-line. Checked at the defence, he veered sharply to the left, lost the puck for just a moment, then recovered and smashed the disk under the outstretched arm of goal-minder Bill Beveridge.

It was a spectacular play, accomplished in the style only the Babe can duplicate and the packed arena of more than 16,000 fans went wild. Horns tooted, whistles shrieked and papers littered the ice in tribute to the good-looking young Westerner who only a week previously had knocked Toronto Maple Leafs out of the first round by a brilliant "golden-goal" marker.

From then on Rangers played just as cautiously as they had expected Maroons to do from the opening whistle. Maroon strategy of opening up with a swift attack almost caught the blueshirts off guard, but Lady Davie Kerr, the Ranger net-minder sold down the river to New York by the same Maroons three years ago, prevented the Gorman gunners gaining an early lead in the first 10 minutes.

After the rugged encounter Maroons expressed displeasure at the officiating. Manager Tommy Gorman and Defenceman Lionel Conacher intimated they saw favoritism in the decision of Referee Mickey Ion when he skated out of his end of the rink to penalize Paul Runge, the Edmonton puck-juggler, in the second frame for tickling Ott Heller's ears with a stick butt-end.

They also pointed out that Johnny Mitchell, official from Hamilton, Ont., had skated out of his own zone to penalize Rangers Butch Keeling shortly afterward. However, neither sentence figured in any dramatic plays.

Sports Spice

By EDDIE BRIETZ

NEW YORK, April 2 (AP)—Don't be surprised if Boston Bees turn out to be the "hot" team in the National League for the first month or six weeks... The Bees are coming north splendidly conditioned, Bill McKechnie has his veteran pitchers ready and most of the team's early opposition will be furnished by the Dodgers and Phillies... Mickey Cochran is going great in left field for the Washington and Lou Generals... And out at Cleveland a pent named Mike Gron reached the 18th tee of the Lake Shore golf course needing an ace to crack 100 for the first time in his career... No sooner said than done. Mike reached for a No. 7 iron and canned a 128-yarder... (P.S.: Last two items positively are not April Fool gags)...

Joe Louis' tour of Texas was just so-so from a gate gathering standpoint... Houston contributed the biggest gate—$1,200—and there wasn't much of that left when they took out the rental for a special car, "cuts" for Joe's two managers and Mike Jacobs, salaries for the two stooges who got kayoed and other expenses... Bob Quinn has boat given up on Vince Di Maggio as a regular this season...

This corner just can't go for the Gulfpoint story saying Hank Leiber laid down the law to Bill Terry and told Bill he'd have to play Hank regularly in centre field or else... Mrs. Gene Kornelius is the woman's public links champion of Bufalo, but her husband, who experts on golf for The Evening News, never cracked 100 in his life.

Remember When—

Toronto Leafs hammered out a 3-2 win over Montreal Maroons to take the Stanley Cup finals five years ago tonight. The game, played at Toronto, was tied 2-2 after 60 minutes of play. Bob Gracie, now Maroon winger, poked the winning tally into the net after 17 minutes' overtime. The Leafs went on to defeat New York Rangers and win the cup.

WINGS RETAIN LEAGUE TITLE WITH 2-1 WIN

Kilrea Raps In Decider After 51 Minutes Of Overtime With Canadiens

SMITH IN THE NET

Gives Wings National League And Place In Stanley Cup Picture

FORUM, Montreal, April 2—(CP)—Hec Kilrea, the veteran speedster, who made Detroit Red Wings forget the loss of Larry Aurie, slashed home a goal early this morning to beat Montreal Canadiens 2-1 after 51 minutes of thrill-packed overtime in the fifth and deciding game of the National Hockey League championship playoff.

Thus the gallant Canadiens went out of the Stanley Cup fight after one of the greatest comebacks in the history of cup play. They went out after tying the game late in the third period when the Red Wings were less than six minutes away from victory in regulation time.

Kilrea's goal, his third of the series, came as the near exhausted teams skated toward the close of the third overtime period. It gave Detroit the series three games to two and a place in the Stanley Cup final against New York Rangers or Montreal Maroons.

The Winning Thrust.

The veterans Herb Lewis and Marty Barry, who drew Kilrea as a playing mate only because Aurie broke his leg before the close of the season, were the starters of the play leading to the winning goal. They carried the puck into Canadiens' defensive zone and Barry whipped a shot by the right side of Wilf Cude's net.

They went into overtime after Ebbie Goodfellow lashed a 25-foot shot past Cude early in the second period, and Bill MacKenzie, just a couple of minutes after he was sent on for the first time, sent a rising back-hand shot past Norman Smith at 14.56 of the third period.

It was the pudgy Smith, back in goal after missing half the third game and all the fourth, who shared the hero's role with Kilrea. Smith was in there with an injured left arm, but he couldn't have been better with two good ones.

Brilliant Is Smith.

He made 53 stops to 20 for Cude before the last overtime period started and he saved the game for Wings soon after that period opened with a thrilling leg stop on a close-in smash by Paul Haynes. He had been almost as brilliant on a half-dozen other Canadien rallies in the second overtime session.

With so much at stake the teams played surprisingly open hockey. The Canadiens, who would have made hockey history by winning a third straight, outshot the world-champion Wings in every period after the first, but they couldn't bust through Smith and his tight-checking front, save for the late-third-period goal by MacKenzie.

Twice Canadiens had the advantage of penalties, but couldn't do a thing with the man advantage. There were six in all, two majors to Johnny Gallagher and Johnny Gagnon for a brief fighting flurry.

But the teams stuck to hockey in the overtime and they skated through the 51 minutes and 49 seconds of extra play without a banishment.

It was the second game of the series that Kilrea had played a leading role. He shot two goals in the 4-0 victory Red Wings scored in the first game at Detroit.

GLOOM SETTLES OVER CANADIENS

Forget It Says President Savard—How Can We, Losing $500, Says Cude

FORUM, Montreal, April 2—(CP)—Silence of the tomb settled over the Forum early this morning as Detroit Red Wings retained the National Hockey League championship by charting off the challenge of Montreal Canadiens.

The Wings and their few supporters alone broke the quiet that gripped the crowd after tousled-haired Hec Kilrea snapped in the goal that settled the endurance duel that ended 3-1.

Kilrea was ganged by his own players as they rushed to pat and hug him. Those on the bench swarmed over the rinkside to the ice and in one big bunch they rolled off the ice.

They whooped it up in a merry group as they staggered into the dressing room and slammed the door, carrying with them the good luck wishes of Canadien players who went the handshaking rounds.

Once they returned to their own room Canadiens made no effort to conceal their disappointment. They paid little heed to the admonition of President Ernest Savard "to forget all about it."

"It was a swell game," Savard said. "Forget all about it. I'm satisfied. Remember next year we'll be back there again."

"Sure," said Goalie Wilf Cude. "It's just another game, another game, except that we lose 500 bucks." Johnny Gagnon limped across the showers, showing a foot battered by a crack across the instep. He stopped long enough to shake hands with Conny Smythe of Toronto Maple Leafs.

Smythe was free in his praise of Canadiens. To Manager Cecil Hart he said: "Cec, old boy, its sure tough to take a licking like this, after going so far. But you've got a great team, and you brought them from the bottom to the top."

INDIANS TUMBLE TO QUEBEC CITY

Springfield Squad Are Beaten 5-0 For Second In Row

NEW YORK, April 2.—(AP)—With all doubt gone as to their Eastern division supremacy, Philadelphia Ramblers waited today for settlement of the Pittsburgh-Syracuse fight to determine their opponents in the International-American hockey league's playoff finals.

After just about making a runaway of the regular season Eastern division race, the Ramblers followed it up by scalping Springfield Indians in two straight games of their sectional series playoff to decide the survivor for the final playoffs against the Western winner.

Opening the semi-final playoffs at home Tuesday, the Quaker City outfit romped to a 3-1 win over the Indians. They made it look even easier in the clincher last night, walloping the luckless Springfields 5-0.

Their final round playoff opponent will be decided Sunday night when Pittsburgh and Syracuse tangle on the latter's ice in the "crucial" game of the three-out-of-five sectional final competition. The Hornets and Stars are deadlocked at 2-all in games.

VANCOUVER—Edmonton Grads defended their Western Canada women's senior basketball title here last night when they turned back Vancouver Spencers 36-27 in the second game of the best-of-three series. Grads won the first game here Tuesday 43-15.

Kennedy Collegiate Win Cage Pennant

TORONTO, April 2 (C.P.). — The Ontario Secondary Schools Association basketball championship will remain in Windsor for another year. Kennedy Collegiate basketeers last night took over the pennant as they blasted out a 44-17 victory over the Central Collegiate of Hamilton. They follow the lead of their fellow-townsmen of Patterson Collegiate last year's champions.

In a consolation game played as a curtain-raiser to the final, Glebe Collegiate of Ottawa, last year's runners-up, took a 40-36 decision from Stamford Collegiate of Niagara Falls.

The fast-breaking plays of the Border City team held Hamilton to a standstill in the early stages of the game. Joe Krol, smooth-working centre, assisted most of Windsor's scoring plays as well as chalking up 14 points.

IN THE BAG NOW SAYS JACK ADAMS

Michigan "Birds" However Are Strangely Quiet After Their Victory

MONTREAL, April 2 (C.P.). — "It's in the bag, now," said Dick Adams as he hustled out of the Detroit Red Wings' dressing-room this morning.

And the Wings' manager had no need to comment on the contented scene he left behind him. The Birds from Michigan were strangely sober after their triple-overtime victory over the Habitants.

"Looks like good-bye to Montreal this year." That was Bucko Macdonald's observation as the manager sped away. "But we'd like to be back."

The furry-chested Sundridge phalanx dusted off his broad shoulders with a towel and answered the question that was flung from all quarters:

"Sure it was a tough game—but remember the one we played against Maroons last year, when Detroit slopped in a goal after 116 minutes of overtime. We really got acquainted with Montreal that time."

Bucko slipped on his coat and rushed out for a hamburger.

The jubilation was mostly from the fans that crowded past the doortender. The players, strangely restrained, seemed to be thinking of that other series they must play for the Stanley Cup.

Still—they are N.H.L. champions.

MONARCHS BEAT SASKATOON 5-2

Peg Juniors Take Two Periods Before Solving Wesley Defence

WINNIPEG, April 2—(CP)—Aiming to regain the Western Canada Junior hockey title they last won in 1933, Winnipeg Monarchs ruled favorites to-day in their best-of-three game series for the championship with Saskatoon Wesleys. The winner enters the Memorial Cup finals against the Eastern champion.

In a bang-up game here last night Monarchs took two periods to fathom the Wesley defence and then shattered it to score four goals and win 5-2.

Heralded as a team with an amazing defence, Wesleys, Western champions last year and holders of the Abbott Cup, displayed a rearguard that nearly jolted Monarchs out of their first win.

Pete Ettinger, captain and veteran of three seasons with the team, and Allen McFadyen, the other brilliant defenceman, hammered Monarch's flashy forwards for two periods and well into the third before the Winnipeg lads finally got their number.

Down 2-1 going into the final period, Monarchs tied the score on a penalty shot by Remi Vandaele that whipped past the starry Wesley goalie, Charlie Rayner.

Then with seven minutes to go the scoring splurge started. Pete Langelle, Monarch centre, put the Winnipeggers ahead on a lone effort and, in quick succession, Dick Kowcinak and Ted Dent banked in two more as the Wesley defence crumpled before the torrid speed.

IN MEMORIAM

BALL.—In loving memory of a dear husband and father James Ball, Sr., who died April 2, 1931.
Time may heal the broken hearted,
Years may make the wound less sore,
But it cannot fill the longing
For the loved one gone before.
Who shall say the grief is lessened
Though the smile may hide the tear
Memories keep the wound still open
Despite the passing of the years.
—Ever remembered by loving wife, sons and daughters.

KITCHEN SHOWER LAKEFIELD GIRL

LAKEFIELD, April 2—Miss Margaret Sanderson of Lakefield entertained in honor of Miss Edna Harrison, a bride of the week, on Tuesday evening, March 30, when about forty of Miss Harrison's friends and neighbors gathered at Miss Sanderson's home on Carolina street and showered the bride with gifts for her kitchen.
The house was decorated in red, in harmony with the color-scheme of many of the gifts, which were in red and ivory. Spring flowers throughout the house added a seasonal touch to the decorations.
The first part of the evening was devoted to games and contests. Then Mrs. Chas. Smith (nee Electa Preston), of Cavan, read the shower address. Mrs. Rufus Bullock of Smith and Mrs. Melville Moncrief (nee Bertha Preston) of Fowler's Corners, assisted by Miss Molly Thompson, Miss Mary Hampton and Mrs. Chas. Lake of Lakefield, then brought in a beautifully decorated basket, loaded with gifts. Mrs. Smith and Mrs. Bullock assisted the bride-to-be in unwrapping the gifts, after which Miss Harrison replied to the address expressing appreciation of the beautiful gifts she received and extending to those present an invitation to visit her at her new home.
At the close of the evening, dainty refreshments were served by the hostess.

A cable from America excites the interest of the stenographer in the dingy law office of Stuckey & Stuckey, London.

(NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY)

CHAPTER 2

IN SOME unexplained way lawyers and particularly solicitors, (usually carry in their faces the unmistakable stamp of their profession. You can recognize them a mile off.

Charles Oliver Stuckey, however, was a pronounced exception to this rule. He bore none of the generic markings of the legal profession. Of medium height, with a sturdily built frame faintly suggestive of approaching corpulence, his hair was fair, curly, and abundant, and, so far from there being anything hawklike in his appearance, his nose was short, fleshy, and with a distinctly unlegal tilt. The strength of the broad capacious forehead was largely offset by the smallness of his rounded indeterminate chin. For world success a physiognomist would have said, it would have gone better with him had his forehead been molded along less generous lines and his jaw made more pugnathous.

As he hung his hat and coat on a peg behind the door of his office and sank into the dingy leather chair in front of his desk, he gazed around him with an air of obvious distaste. Outside, the spring sunshine was brilliant and rejuvenating; such diluted rays as managed to seep through the murky window behind him served only to accentuate the dismal atmosphere of his official quarters.

With a shrug he turned his attention to the small pile of letters in front of him. As he read the cablegram his eyes widened and a look almost of benevolence came into his face.

He touched a bell-push on his desk and a moment later the door opened and Mr. Bells came in fussily, in his hand a sheaf of documents, behind his ear a pencil, and on his face a look of absorption.

The lawyer looked up as he entered.

"Morning, Bella."

"Good morning, sir. You saw the cablegram I put on your desk?"

"Yes, I say, what a bit of luck for Miss Smith!"

Bells inclined his head.

"Where are they now?" asked Stuckey.

"Miss Smith and her mother are at present staying in Vienna—the Hotel des Etrangers," the clerk said.

Stuckey smiled.

"You mean, I suppose, that they were there when last we heard from them?"

"Quite, sir. It is, of course, possible that by now Mrs. Smith has found it advisable to—er——"

"Oh, for Heaven's sake talk English!" snapped Stuckey irritably. "What you mean is that by now the woman has exhausted her credit in Vienna, issued a few rubber checks and passed on to Budapest or somewhere."

"Exactly, sir."

"What a life!" the solicitor muttered. "Lord knows how the girl stands it!" Aloud he said: "Well, they won't have to chisel their way through Europe any more. Miss Jacqueline is worth a million and a half dollars"—he fingered the cablegram—" and they can come back to England and settle down respectably and live in comfort."

"In some nice cathedral city, I would suggest, sir," put in Bells.

"I know you would! It's what I should have expected from you. But from what I have heard of Miss Jacqueline Smith, I scarcely think that nice cathedral cities are her proper setting."

"You have never met her, I believe sir?" the clerk queried.

"No. Mrs. Smith was an old friend of my mother's, and when I started to practice on my own she put her affairs into my hands." He laughed mirthlessly. "If she knew the type of business we specialise in, She's about the only respectable client I've got—and that's only by comparison! Well, I suppose I'd better see what I can do for the girl. Get me Captain Allwright's office, Bells."

"Yes, sir." The clerk had just inquiringly as, following a tap, the door opened and the pert features of Elsie Harringay appeared.

"Will you see Captain Allwright, sir?" the girl asked.

With a frown of recollection Stuckey nodded.

"Yes, show him in."

The short, red-faced man, dressed in seafaring clothes, who entered, beaming benevolence and breathing beer, strode up to the desk and, seizing the lawyer's hand, wrung it heartily.

"I came to thank you for what you did for me yesterday," he began.

"Oh, that's all right."

"All right?" echoed the caller. "I should say it was all right. Why, man you're a marvel!" He swung round to Bells. "What a masterpiece, your guv-nor, eh? You ought to have heard him talking to the old bubble-and-squeak. Did he talk to him? I'll say he did!"

Stuckey smiled faintly.

"Well, that's all over now," he said. "I hope you'll have a pleasant voyage, Captain."

The seaman, however, was not to be sidetracked.

"They'd have given me a month, they would," he went on. "And mind you, I was as sober as a newborn child!"

"You were a bit noisy, Captain."

"Well, so's a newborn child. I said to the copper quite civily: 'You go away and boil your face'."

The lawyer nodded.

"Yes, that was a bit unfortunate."

"And he says: 'You're drunk.' Drunk! And mind you, I hadn't had more than eight whiskeys—well, I mind me saying that? My name's John Blunt."

Stuckey smiled faintly.

"Thanks, Captain," he replied, "but I'm afraid there isn't anything you could do for me."

"Come over to Antwerp for a trip," persisted Allwright. "There's the old tub," jerking a thumb in the direction of the river, visible through the office windows. "Why, you could step on the after deck from your window."

The solicitor shook his head.

"Thanks, but I'm not going abroad," he said.

Gratitude was dominating Captain Allwright's emotional system just then, however, and had to find expression. He leaned toward Stuckey and spoke in a confidential tone.

"Well, if any of your clients ever want to go abroad—you know what I mean?—in a hurry—never mind about passports, eh? Just stand on me."

"Thanks again, but I leave my clients to bolt in their own way."

The captain winked prodigiously and nodded his head several times.

"I understand," he said. "Well, no offense, I hope? I wouldn't hurt your feelings for the world." Then, as a thought struck him: "Say, why not come yourself? I can always drop you off at Gravesend if you don't like the trip."

"No, thanks," Stuckey's tone was brusque. "And now, Captain, I'm very busy."

"That's all right, old man," said the seaman. "What about a quick one?"

"No, thank you."

Disappointed, the man turned to Bells.

"What about you?" he invited.

Bells shuddered.

"I have never drunk intoxicants in my life," he affirmed.

"Good morning," said the lawyer, and the next moment the captain had passed jauntily on his way.

"Open that window wide, Bells," said Stuckey. "Would you like a trip to Antwerp?"

"No, sir—not with that captain."

"He's a good seaman—when he's sober. What appointments have I this morning?"

"Only one, sir—Colonel Lutman. He is calling here at 10:15. In fact"—Bells consulted his watch—"he is due now."

"H'm!" said Stuckey, with a frown of distaste.

At that moment a heavy footstep was heard in the outer office.

Bedtime Story

By HOWARD R. GARIS

UNCLE WIGGILY'S APRIL SHOWER

Uncle Wiggily was counting one morning in his bedroom sunny bungalow.

"One, two, three, four," counted Mr. Longears.

"Oh, I know the end of it. Let me say it!" called Baby Bunty, the orphan rabbit, who was up early because she hadn't finished her home work from school the night before. "Listen, Uncle Wig," said Bunty, using all the baby talk she was permitted.

"Ha! Ha!" laughed Uncle Wiggily. "I'm not playing a game, Baby Bunty. I could say more of the verse if I wanted to, such as five, six, seven, eight, pick up sticks and lay them straight. But this isn't a game."

"What is it then?" asked the orphan rabbit, opening her book at the place where the Lady Mouse Teacher in the Hollow Tree School had told her to study.

Equipment

"I am just counting the things I must take when I go adventuring this morning," said Uncle Wiggily. "One is my umbrella, two is my rain coat, three is my rubber boots and four is a sponge."

"What are they all for?" asked Bunty.

"For the April shower I expect to get caught in as I hop along," answered Mr. Longears. "We have had the March winds, Bunty."

"I know we have," laughed Baby Bunty. "They took you up with your kite and you dropped down the chimney like Santa Claus and April fooled us."

"So I did!" laughed Mr. Longears. "Well, after the April Fool comes the April showers. So I am going out now to see if I can find one. For you know what April showers bring, don't you, Bunty?"

"Oh, yes, May flowers," said the little orphan rabbit. "But why do you take your umbrella, your rain coat and your rubber boots, Uncle Wig?"

"So I will not get wet in the April shower. I don't like being wet."

"What is the sponge for?" asked Bunty.

"Oh, that's to wipe the rain drops off my pink, twinkling nose," laughed Mr. Longears. "Well, here I go, Baby Bunty."

Uncle Wiggily hopped over the fields and through the woods. He was very anxious to meet an April shower for he wanted to see the May flowers blossoming.

Lovely Day

But the skies were blue, with little fleecy cloudlets in them. The sun was shining and April showers seemed far away.

"This is queer," said Uncle Wiggily. "There should be April showers now. I wonder if I could have made a mistake in the time?"

He stopped under a tree to look at his watch. All of a sudden down showered on him a lot of water.

"Ha, an April shower at last!" joyfully cried Mr. Longears. He quickly put on his rain coat, hoisted his umbrella, jumped into his rubber boots and wiped his pink, twinkling nose with the sponge. Then in the tree over his head he heard a voice ask:

"Why are you dressing like that, Mr. Longears? Are you going to a masquerade party?"

"No, but I am keeping dry from an April shower," he answered.

"Oh, that wasn't an April shower," laughed Mrs. Bushytail, the lady squirrel from her home in the tree. "I was just washing my front porch. I'm sorry I wet you."

"Never mind," laughed Uncle Wiggily. Then, all of a sudden, a real April shower came and he was glad he had on his rain things, so he didn't get very wet.

And if the milkman's horse doesn't try to come in the kitchen to take the coffee pot, I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily and Mrs. Ringtail.

"That wasn't an April shower."

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, April 2—On Easter Saturday, death removed from the village one of the most highly-respected citizens in the person of Mary Amelia Storey, widow of the late Byron German.

The late Mrs. German was well and favorably known throughout a wide section and her unexpected death after a very brief illness came as a stunning shock to her many acquaintances.

The deceased is mourned by a devoted family and by her many friends and neighbors who know her by her charming personality. A lifelong member of the former Methodist Church and now the United Church, her influence for good had always been a marked feature in her life. She was a living example of the spirit of eternal youth, for although her body grew frail, she at heart remained ever young. The deceased, who was in her 78th year, was born at Enterprise on October 28, 1858. After her marriage at Newburk to Byron German, they lived at Brickly, where they carried on as successful farmers. In 1913 they retired and moved to the village of Hastings, to the residence where both have passed away.

After Mr. German's death on May 29, 1926, deceased had made four visits to Western Canada and since then had resided with her two daughters. Surviving are her daughters, Mrs. Susie Parker of Hanna, Alberta, Florence and Katharine of Hastings; one step-daughter, Mrs. J. W. Burgess of Norwood; three sons: Roy of Calgary, Christopher of Hanna, Alberta, and Victor of Hastings; and two brothers, Mr. Peter Storey of Odessa, and Mr. Mr. Thomas Storey of Deseronto.

The funeral, which was held on Monday afternoon, March 29, was one of the largest ever seen in the village. After a brief service at the family residence, the cortege proceeded to Trinity United Church for the service. The church was filled with members of every denomination in the village. The service was conducted by her pastor, Rev. F. W. Newell, assisted by Rev. A. S. Cleland of Norwood. The pastor chose as his text Hebrews 11-15, "But now they desire a better country, that is heavenly."

"What a Friend We Have in Jesus," and "Nearer My God to Thee" were the hymns sung during the funeral service and Mr. Marvyn Preston rendered a beautiful solo, "Does Jesus Care."

The pall-bearers were Messrs. S. Beamish, J. F. Jones, James Fuller, John Doherty, H. G. Fairman, and A. B. Smith.

Messrs. Wesley Beavis, Alton Beavis, Stanley Pile, Willis Preston, Gordon Fairman, Martin Sissaw, Wallace Orr, Laverne Seabrooke, Everett Fairman, Everets Ress, Eric Fuller, John Cruikshank and Arthur Beamish were the flower-bearers for the following tributes: Misses Katharine and Florence German, spray; Mr. and Mrs. V. Never Held Grudge So Lives To Be 100

Detroit, April 2—(CP)—BECAUSE he has never held a grudge "agin' nobody," William Lee, former Maryland Negro slave, will be 100 years old April 7. At least, that's to what he attributes his longevity.

"I don't know as I ever held a real sure-enough grudge," he said, "not even when I was a slave. Ol' master was good to me. Pappy was good to me. Everybody been good to me since I was born on a plantation way down in Maryland.

"When de Civil wah come down I just crossed the Potomac and I wasn't a slave no mo'."

Ottawa Aims Take Profit Out Of War

Premier King States Distinction However Will Be Made For Peace-Time Work

PLANS UNDER WAY

Ilsley Agrees To Increase Penalty From $1,000 To $10,000 And Four Years Jail

OTTAWA, April 3 (CP)—Measures to take profits out of war are being considered by the Dominion Government with a view to rounding out a series of steps taken at the present session of parliament to improve the country's defences and keep it aloof from international strife.

In the House of Commons yesterday Prime Minister Mackenzie King disclosed an inter-departmental committee had been working on the profits question in conjunction with members of the cabinet.

His announcement came as the House approved an amendment to the customs act to give the government sweeping powers for the control, regulation, prohibition and licensing of export, import and manufacture of munitions and materials of war.

It followed an earlier measure to prohibit the enlistment of Canadians in foreign armies and the passing of increased estimates for the department of national defence which will permit modernization and augmentation of Canada's fighting forces on land and sea and in air.

The question of profits was a difficult one, Mr. King said, but the government accepted the general principle that Canadians should not be allowed to make gains out of war. The ministry was working along lines which involved a distinction between the manufacture of war materials in time of peace and materials necessary in war.

A Reasonable Profit

During a time of war special legislation would be necessary but for the supply of war materials in times of peace the theory being studied was one which would permit reasonable remuneration on the manufacture of war materials, the work to be subject to inspection and audit.

With three days of lengthened sittings the House this week made good progress in clearing the order, paving the way for prorogation towards the end of next week.

Recent decisions of the judicial committee of the Privy Council holding most of the social reform legislation of the Bennett regime ultra vires will be discussed in the Commons Monday. Several members hold strong views on the decisions and the discussion will take place on estimates for the Department of Justice.

Five bills received third and final readings in the House yesterday and were sent on to the Senate. They were the Trans-Canada Air Lines bill, the bill amending the customs

0 WOMEN BLOCK WAY TO FACTORY

ominine Kitchener Strikers astle So Effectively Would-Be Workers Retreat

KINGSVILLE, Ont., April 3 (CP). —Ten women strikers put up such strenuous resistance today while picketing the plant of the Consolidated Leaf Tobacco Company, approximately 25 strike-breakers were unable to gain admittance to the factory. It was the first sign of violence since the strike of piece-workers began 18 days ago.

The picket line also included 30 men but the women took the lead in making the blockade partially effective.

Approximately six women and four men workers did break through the line and enter the plant after considerable battling. The remaining 25 men, however, were forced to retreat amid boos and catcalls.

Most of those who attempted entrance deserted to automobiles lined up on the street and sat down to watch for a possible break-up of the picket line.

No blows were struck, but the women pickets did not hesitate to threaten violence as they shoved and jostled the would-be workers. Police Chief J. C. Babcock arrived on the scene and warned the pickets against violence. He made no arrests, however.

Strikers Weld Switch Gates At Ford Plant

Carloads Of Automobiles Tied Up In Ford's First Sit-Down Strike

REVIEW OF SITUATION

KANSAS CITY, April 3.—(AP).—Welded switch gates shut in freight carloads of automobiles to-day as the first sit-down strike directed at a Henry Ford unit moved into the second day.

A card-playing, gaily shouting band of men, claiming to number 1,400 and to be in a union backed by the committee for industrial organization, held possession of the Ford's assembly plant behind strike guarded doors. The plant, employing approximately 2,000 of Ford's 150,000 workers, was shut down yesterday. Strikers claimed seniority rights were ignored and union men discriminated against in the seasonal laying off of workers. Ford officials here and at Detroit did not comment.

There was no violence. The strikers let down a sign from the top floor of the three-storey building in Kansas city's north-east industrial sector reading:

Switchyard gates through which railroad trade spurs are run into the rear of the plant were welded shut last night.

At a mass meeting to organize the supply of bedding and food, speakers said all efforts would be made to prevent moving out any assembled cars.

Labor Troubles Spread

DETROIT, April 3 (AP)—Spreading labor troubles beset the United States' three largest motorcar producers today for the first time since the threat of a nationwide automotive strike in 1934, but conferences were arranged in two of the disputes.

Sit-down strikers marched out of the big Chevrolet motor assembly plant of General Motors at Flint last night after the management agreed to discuss their complaints with representatives of the United Automobile Workers of America today.

Premises Not Up To Rules Says Odette

Will Be Granted When Ontario Regulations Are Complied With

MAY BE 100 INVOLVED

Fifty-Seven Authorities Cancelled Earlier In The Week

TILBURY, Ont., April 3.—(CP).—Beer and wine licenses of between 80 and 100 establishments throughout Ontario have been withheld until they bring their premises withing regulations, Edmond G. Odette, Chief Commissioner of the Ontario Liquor Board said to-day. Mr. Odette explained this was in addition to cancellation of 57 beer and wine authorities made earlier in the week throughout the province.

Making it clear the places involved had not had their licenses cancelled, Mr. Odette, resting at his home here, made it equally clear they will not be able to take their authorities out until they have brought their premises into conformity with the requirements of the L.C.A.

Had Ample Time.

Notification has been sent out to the establishments with withheld licenses that they must live up to regulation 121 of the Act, which covers structural requirements of hotels or clubs licensed to sell beer and wine. They have been given ample time in which to do so, Mr. Odette added, and will not be able to sell until they met the requirements.

All breweries have been notified they are forbidden to sell to places in question and board inspectors have been instructed to see no beer or wine is retailed in the establishments.

Of the involved places eight are in Essex county Mr. Odette said, with others spread throughout the province, earlier in the week announcement was made of the cancellation of 57 authorities, 45 of which were hotels and 10 clubs. Of these, 13 hotels and one club were situated in Essex county.

KANSAS CITY, April 3.—(AP).—A "date" is a "date"—sit-down or no sit-down.

Her conversation with a worker through a window grew louder and louder until finally she was heard to shout as she kicked her high heels and walked away:

Survey Shows Fast-Changing Empire Scene

Newfoundland, Ireland, India Play Leading Part In Developments

REVIEW AT CONFERENCE

By George Hambleton (Canadian Press Staff Writer)

LONDON, April 3—(CP).—Empire statesmen, when they gather in conference on May 14, will survey a rapidly evolving Empire.

Their official agenda, in respect of constitutional relations, does not carry them far. It is limited to questions of nationality, treaty procedure, the international status of members of the British Commonwealth, and channels of communication between them—all questions which, in one form or another, have previously been under review.

Yet delegates will witness changing scenes. They will be brought face to face with changing problems. When the Imperial Conference of 1926 formally accepted the Balfour report recognising the Dominions as autonomous communities with

Second Disastrous Fire In Three Weeks Causes Much Damage

SAVINGS ARE LOST

Woman Fails To Find Small Bank Containing Tax Money

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, April 3.— The Kerr Block, forming part of the main business district on Front street was damaged to the extent of $25,000 this (Saturday) morning by a fire which broke out at 5 o'clock in a shed at the rear of the building.

This was the second bad fire in Campbellford in three weeks, the Bank of Montreal building having been visited by a blaze on March 18.

A spectacular feature of the blaze was that two women had to be carried to safety from the upper storey of the building when they were cut off by smoke and flames.

Lofchy's Ladies' Wear store suffered the most serious damage but the fire spread to the apartments above occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Herb Leonard and Mrs. P. A. Wallace.

Mr. Leonard who was reading in bed noticed the flames shooting up the frame shed outside the window and warned his wife of the fire. He then notified the fire department just after another alarm had been sent in by employees of the Campbellford Cloth Company who had seen the fire from the windows of their factory situated across the river.

It was necessary to carry both Mrs. Wallace and Mrs. Leonard from the burning building.

Tenants Escape

The fire brigade played three streams of water into the fire which was gaining headway through the building when they arrived. In the apartment next to Lofchy's Mr. and Mrs. George Pace and their three sons were sleeping above their fruit store but they were awakened by the smell of smoke in time to escape. Fortunately they were able to remove most of their furniture before the flames destroyed their furniture.

Damage to the extent of $2,000 was done to the furnishing of the Pace and Leonard apartments while water seeped through the floor into the Allin Hardware store doing considerable damage to the large stock there. A quantity of dynamite stored in a barn back of that store made the firemen doubly careful to prevent the blaze from spreading in that direction.

However another barn in which Mr. Pace kept a large transport truck used in connection with his wholesale fruit business caught fire, but the flames were extinguished before much damage was done.

Bank Is Lost.

Mrs. Leonard whose loss was not covered by insurance was unable to find a small bank in which she had been keeping $100 in cash with which to pay her taxes. The bank had been left on a buffet in the dining room at the rear of the building which was completely gutted.

Considerable damage was also done to the Pace Fruit Store by smoke which permeated the white block.

It is thought the fire originated at the back of the Lofchy Store where a large number of paste board boxes were kept in a shed attached to the main building. Constable Hardy who was on night duty had passed along the lane between Kerr and Irwin blocks a short time before without seeing any signs of fire. The greatest loss was suffered by Lofchy whose sewing equipment at the back of the store was completely destroyed, while smoke and water permeating through the whole store did damage to the stock. The loss is only partially covered by insurance.

As a matter of fact the blaze was probably the most expensive in Campbellford for many years for

The Irish Situation.

Here are a few of the more outstanding changes:

1—The Oireachtas (Parliament) consists of one House instead of the King and two Houses.

2—The Governor-General no longer summons and dissolves Parliament.

3—Recommendation for the appropriation of public money is made by the Executive Council (Cabinet) instead of by the Governor-General.

4—The Executive Council exercises the executive authority and power of the Free State instead of the King but for the purposes of the diplomatic and consular agents and the conclusion of international agreements, the Council may avail of "any organ used as a constitutional organ for the like purposes"

2 Ships Race Aid Steamer Mid-Atlantic

German Craft Reports Water Pouring Through Plates

STEERING GEAR GONE

NEW YORK, April 3.—(AP). — The City of Norfolk advised radio marine to-day that the German steamer Borkum was in distress in mid-Atlantic and that two steamers were speeding to her assistance.

The City of Norfolk, a coastwise steamer, wirelessed that the German steamer gave her position as 40.02 degrees longitude and 30.21 latitude, and reported her steering gear was out of commission.

Radio marine said the Steamer Colombie, about 200 miles away, and the British steamer Tamaroa, 90 miles away, had responded to the SOS of the distressed ship.

Messages from the City of Norfolk said apparently the radio aboard the German steamer was not working properly as she kept repeating distress signals.

The coast guard, which received the same information as radio marine, said it also was advised the ship was taking water through her plates.

Lloyds' register lists the Borkum as of 3,670 gross tons. She was built in 1922 at Emden and is owned by Norddeutscher Lloyd. Her home is Bremen, Germany. She is 360 feet long and has a beam of 50 feet.

Over 40,000 people were transferred from distressed areas of Britain in 1936.

Bride Of Five Days Flees To Stave Off Annulment

Heiress Takes Newsmen Along To Help Combat Mother-in-Law, Police And Hysterics

KEEPS GOING 400 MILES

SAN FRANCISCO, April 3.—(AP).—A beautiful runaway bride with neither money nor luggage, Mrs. Nan Pierson Brooks Macy Brill, New York heiress, made a wild, 400-mile flight from Hollywood to San Francisco to-day.

She ran away from her husband of five days, William H. Brill, Jr., millionaire sportsman, who had been hiding from her.

Yesterday there had been a stormy scene with her husband and mother-in-law. She was informed of plans for annulment of the marriage.

"They will have to catch me first," she said. Then the heiress jumped into the biggest and fastest of his four cars and roared away.

Newsmen Get a Trip

An Associated Press reporter and photographer were in the automobile with her. They expected her to stop at her hotel in Hollywood.

She stopped 100 miles later.

"We'll get gas here, and then go on to San Francisco," she gasped. "You'll have to come, too. I'm going to have hysterics now, and people always look at me when I'm under the police."

She said Brill's mother had told her if she took the car, officers would arrest here for having stolen it.

It was a wild day and a strange night.

Monday, the eastern social figure eloped to Yuma, Ariz., with Brill, her second husband. After a one-day honeymoon, they returned to Hollywood. He left her, she said, to

Mock Air Attack For London Tonight

London, April 3—(CP Cable) AS part of a general plan of preparedness, London tonight will undergo the first of a series of mock air raids.

The idea is to give practical instruction to a ground defence force of 6,000 territorials who will employ powerful searchlights and modern apparatus which indicates the location and course of invisible planes.

The machines are not likely to disturb the slumber of Londoners as they will fly upwards of 10,000 feet.

Raybestos Company Has Had Savings Club For 17 Years

Company Adds Bonus Of 10 Per Cent. To Yearly Savings Of Employees

GROUP INSURANCE

When some of the employees of the Canadian Raybestos Company laid off work for an hour the other day in a demand for increased wages they incidentally caused Robert Abbott, general manager, to change his mind about factory publicity.

Early this year a representative of The Examiner called on Mr. Abbott in the course of a round of interviews regarding the industrial outlook for 1937 in Peterborough. At that time it was suggested to him that he supplement his business survey with an outline of Raybestos enterprise in the field of employee welfare.

Mr. Abbott's answer then was to the effect that he did not think the public was interested in factory matters of that kind, and any way the company was reluctant about discussing its affairs.

"We are just like a lot of other people," he said. "We don't want to be considered as blowing our own horn. We have always taken a sympathetic interest in the welfare of our employees, and in many ways have done our part to cultivate cordial relations, but these are things we don't talk about."

The opportunity to mention the end of the year bonus was allowed to pass, but today Mr. Abbott told The Examiner that since some of the Thousands of defenders were said to have been rushed to the front from Bilbao. Durango lies about 13 miles from the Basque capital east and slightly south, in the centre of precipitous terrain.

Gordon Challenges Mayor Macdonald To Name Bootleggers In Peterboro'

ALDERMAN G. N. Gordon today questioned Mayor Macdonald's statement that there were more bootleggers in the city than ever before. Mr. Gordon stated that he inquired from ten business men this morning and everyone of them said there was far less illegal liquor selling now than under the O.T.A. If Mayor Macdonald will give the names of the bootleggers and the names of the witnesses with the information as to the offences, Mr. Gordon said, "I will prosecute every single one of them and swear out the information in my own name".

He further stated that he would take the matter up with the Chief of Police, Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry, K.C., and the license inspector and have a general clean-up if the Mayor will give him the information which would warrant prosecution.

"Mayor Macdonald has a very great responsibility in seeing that the law is carried out," he said, "because he is a police commissioner and any information he had should be given to the Police Department and he should instruct them to prosecute because being a police commissioner he has authority to give orders to have a clean-up, if he found conditions as he said."

15,000 Rebels Face Slaughter Loyalist Trap, Cordoba Front

Doomed Retreating Insurgents Are Mainly Italians Madrid Reports

ANOTHER TOWN FALLS

MADRID, April 3 (CP)—Fifteen thousand insurgent soldiers, described in government reports as mostly Italian, were reported today facing possibly the greatest mass slaughter of the Spanish civil war in a military trap on the Cordoba front.

The Insurgent force, already having retreated more than 15 miles after an unsuccessful siege of Pozoblanco, a stronghold of the Madrid-Valencia government, was said to have been caught more than 20 miles northwest of Cordoba City, its principal base of supplies.

Government capture of the town of Villaharta yesterday, in one of four drives south and southwestward from Pozoblanco, placed Miaja's militiamen in a position to dominate the only main road connecting Cordoba with the rear of General Gonzalo Queipo De Llano's men.

Another of the government columns was attacking the extreme northwest position of the insurgents, Penarroya, centre of the coal fields about 15 miles from Villaharta. Last night the advancing militiamen were within sight of Penarroya.

The extreme easterly column occupied Oveje, about 10 miles east of Villaberia, from which its intelligence continues on south to Cordoba over about 15 miles of open country to survey the miles southward toward the main Cordoba road.

All Comes Off Well In Strip Preview

Monday, Miss Haye, barred from a theatrical show because producers feared her stripping was "too strong stuff" for English eyes, will do her act in public for the Sun Mairo Restaurant.

CONGRESS MOVES TO GIVE FARMER BETTER BREAKS

Crop Insurance Bill Would Protect Grower Against Crop Failures

BACKED BY PRESIDENT

WASHINGTON, April 3—(CP).—Acting on recommendations of President Roosevelt, Congress has set about to apply the principle of insurance to agricultural production to save the United States farmer from disastrous effects of crop failures.

The $100,000,000 crop insurance bill has reached the Senate on the favorable report of the agricultural committee. It is expected the bill will pass with little or no opposition. The insurance would apply only to wheat at first, beginning with the crop planted for harvest in 1938. Extension to corn, cotton and other commodities is contemplated should experience with wheat prove successful.

Coupled with the insurance plan is a system of storage reserves operating so that price-depressing surpluses in good crop years might be carried for use in lean years. The full program, sponsors claim, is "practical and socially desirable." It should, they say, "level out" partially the undesirable economic effects of fluctuations in production and in prices, to the benefit of both grower and consumer.

In a message to Congress, President had this to say about the program: "Crop insurance and a system of storage reserves would help to protect the income of individual farmers against the hazards of crop failures; it would help to protect the consumer against shortages of food supplies and against extremes of prices; and finally, it would assist in providing a more nearly even flow of farm supplies, thus stabilizing farm purchasing power and contributing to the security of business and employment."

In addition to benefits to farmers, the President said the program should be of special interest to the government in that it would tend to reduce relief loads arising out of crop disasters.

The plan now before Congress would place administration under the Federal Crop Insurance Corporation directly responsible to the Department of Agriculture.

Insurance, which would not be mandatory, would cover losses up to 75 per cent of the individual farmer's normal crop caused by drought, flood, hail, wind, tornado, winter freeze, insect infestation and plant diseases.

Pay In Wheat

Premiums and losses would be payable either in wheat or a cash equivalent. In the event it was impractiable to pay premiums in wheat, the farmer would have the option of paying a cash equivalent which the corporation would invest in wheat for storage.

Wheat turned over to the corporation in bountiful years for premiums would be stored in government-licensed elevators where it would be held for payment to farmers or their assignees as defaulted loans. The government would pay the storage costs. The insurance would be written and losses adjusted by local farm committees.

The premium rate would be determined on the basis of two factors—the loss experience of the individual farm, and that of the county in which the farm is located.

It has been suggested the farmer be permitted to pay premiums for as much as five years in seasons of large crops. Sponsors said such a provision would provide an additional outlet for surplus wheat, thereby contributing to a greater stability of price in those years.

The program has the endorsement of the country's major farm organizations.

A FREAK DUCK

Has to Avoid Swimming as Its Feathers Absorb Water

KINSTON, N.C., April 3—(CP).—June Halstead has to keep his pet duck away from water. It has a rare malady, not affecting its general health, which causes a deficiency in its oil supply. Consequently, its feathers absorb water like a chicken's.

If it gets into water, explained Halstead sadly, it is likely to drown.

DOUKHOBOR MARRIAGES

MOOSE JAW, Sask., April 3 (C.P.). — Investigation of Doukhobor marriage customs because "the binding nature of the ceremony has not been realized" is urged in a memorial presented to the Women's Missionary Society, Saskatchewan Branch, in convention here.

"The result has been a breach of contract, influencing the parties to drift apart and lead a life of immorality," stated the memorial submitted yesterday by the Kamsack Branch. The text will be sent to W.M.S. headquarters in Toronto.

COMBINES ACT PROVING SNAG

Making Slow Progress Due To Opposition And Criticism Of Details

OTTAWA, April 3.—(CP).—Revision of the Combines Investigation Act is proving the most difficult piece of legislation the House of Commons has to deal with in the dying hours of the session.

Due to opposition and criticism of details of the new Act it makes slow progress through committee of the whole. It was before the committee for several hours yesterday but only two sessions were approved.

At one stage Hon. C. H. Cahan (Cons., St. Lawrence-St. George) described powers given the combines commissioner to enter premises, search and seize documents as comparable to Nazi Germany's legislation against the Jews. He said it was the negation of all authorities of civil liberty.

J. T. Thorson (Lib., Selkirk) spoke for an hour on the bill in support of a clause the House at two previous sessions sought to insert in the law, only to have it rejected in the Senate. It is one which would make documents produced at a preliminary investigation under the Combines Act, admissible in evidence in a subsequent prosecution. Mr. Thorson said it was necessary and the Senate had misunderstood its support.

The Manitoba Liberal also disagreed with Mr. Cahan as to the stage where complete and thorough investigation of combines was necessary. Industry had nothing to fear from the law if it conducted itself properly, he said.

PET SNAKE WAKES 3 MONTHS' SLEEP

Oscar Passes Winter In Seat Padding Of Leamington Man's Truck

LEAMINGTON, Ont., April 3 (CP)—Oscar the snake, who snoozed away the snowy season in Sam Wallace's truck, is suffering from spring fever. That's a sure sign winter has waned.

The two-foot garter snake has been riding about in the cab cushion padding of the Leamington man's truck for nigh onto three months. Only a few days ago Oscar emerged from his hideaway, yawned, stretched and wriggled with joy and restlessness on the floor boards. Then, having taken a few deep breaths of fresh air, he slid back to his lair.

Sam thinks it won't be long before his ophidian pal comes out for the summer—and, incidentally, a little breakfast. Oscar has been on a diet all these months and has turned up his nose at attempts to feed him.

Oscar probably won't come back when he does make up his mind to "get up," according to Sam, who found the pet in a Dover Township wheat field in January, curled up and nearly perished with cold.

Sam brought his find to Leamington and attempted to feed it juicy pieces of steak. But it was "no dice."

Next day Sam took the snake to work and placed it on a cushion in the cab of the truck. Oscar immediately wormed his way into the padding.

TRANSPORT DITCHED

Two Drivers Injured—Blame Passing Car That Did Not Stop.

BELLEVILLE, Ont., April 3 (CP).—Robert McKee and William L. Street, both of London, in charge of a Labatt transport, were admitted to hospital early today when their transport overturned in the ditch four miles west of the city, allegedly being sideswiped by a passing car. The men were not seriously injured. Traffic Officer J. Whitty investigated but the number of the passing car was not obtained.

PASS 101 ACTS

FREDERICTON, April 3—(CP)—New Brunswick's legislators turned homeward to-day after a six weeks' session that saw 101 acts placed on the statute books. Prorogation was made last night following a day of surprises which included the "killing" of the bill "to amend an act regulating arrests in civil actions," regarded as a modernization of New Brunswick's outmoded debtor laws.

WARSAW

ANGLICANS HOLD SOCIAL EVENING

Enjoyable Time Is Spent At Home Of Mrs. Robert Tighe

(Examiner Correspondence.)

WARSAW, April 3.—Mrs. Robert Tighe very kindly gave her home which she has had completely renovated for the Anglican social evening on Thursday. The house was well filled. After a little friendly visiting, progressive euchre was played at six tables. Milo Payne and John Brethour were winners, and the consolation prizes went to Mrs. Payne and Mrs. U. Payne (tied), and George Cooper. This was followed by dancing for which music was supplied by Miss Jean Munro at the piano, and Trevor Watts with a violin. After this was enjoyed for some time, supper was served. Partners were found by matching words. Prizes: dolls, were given, Mrs. John Brethour and Mr. Elmo Cooper being judged the best-looking couple at supper. After the sumptuous supper, dancing was resumed.

There was some step-dancing by several guests and especially pretty was the sword dance by Mrs. Brethour. A very hearty vote of thanks was given Mrs. Tighe, and a most delightful party broke up in "The wee sma' hours."

Easter Gathering

There was a good attendance at the Easter gathering of Warsaw United Church W.M.S.; Mrs. Wilkinson presided. After the opening devotions the president read a letter from Mrs. Morton, secretary of Christian Stewardship.

The study book lesson was on "Missionaries to Foreign Lands." Mr. Latta read a selection, "The Christ." Six junior girls gave short verses on mission work. Mrs. Harold Darling; Mrs. J. Hawthorne, Miss Alma McCracken, Mrs. Robert Moore, Mrs. William Darling gave readings bearing on the lesson subject; Mrs. Wilkinson took the study book lesson. Roll call, which was well answered, was selections bearing on Easter. The junior girls sang very sweetly, "A Springtime Chorus."

Sunday, April 4, is the Women's Missionary Sunday. Miss Coon, a returned missionary, it was announced, will speak at Cottesloe on Sunday afternoon.

Those who did not bring their Easter thank-offering are asked to do so on Sunday.

Take Part in Festival

McIlvena took their daughter Lenore, and Jean Payne; Mr. Robert Tedford took his sisters, Mrs. Clarence Watts, her two daughters, Jean and Mary, also Mrs. Ruby Payne and Milo and Meta and his daughter Alma to Toronto on Wednesday forenoon. The six girls sang in the choruses in Massey Hall in the evening. They and their parents were delighted with their reception. Busses conveyed the children to a theatre and a three-course lunch was served, after which the children and others walked to Massey Hall for the evening.

Mr. McIlvena brought his passengers home after the concert was over. Mr. Tedford returned to Warsaw with his on Thursday forenoon.

Hound Is Injured

A splendid hound was so badly injured by a truck on Thursday afternoon that it is likely to be killed. A truck was being driven down the hill going into Warsaw. The dog ran directly in front of the truck, the front wheel and double back wheel passed over it. The driver stopped and ran back, but could do nothing, nor could he have helped the accident. The dog was one Mr. Watts had bought for the hunt next Fall.

Cars have gone up and down the boundary. The Lakefield cream truck got through first on Tuesday. The ice is still unbroken just at the corner of Watts woods.

DUPLESSIS FLINGS THEFT CHARGES

Suspects Organization Behind Loss Of Documents In Government Offices

QUEBEC, April 3—(C.P.)—The Opposition is hampering the Government in pushing through important legislation by digressing from matters at hand with prolonged debates, Premier Duplessis charged in the Legislature last night.

The Opposition admitted certain pieces of social legislation were necessary, yet they held up their passage by useless political arguments, the Union Nationale Premier said.

Charges both the official and "unofficial" Opposition were connected with theft of documents from government offices in the Parliamentary buildings were tossed across the house by Mr. Duplessis last night. He revealed a government employee he did not name had pleaded guilty to theft of keys, and claimed there must be some sort of organization behind the man.

Friends of the Government would have no purpose in stealing documents, forcing desks and trying to break into safes, so it must have been adversaries of the administration, he said.

Liberal Leader Bouchard hotly protested the Premier's statement about complicity of the Opposition, and Dr. Philippe Hamel (U.N., Quebec Centre), leader of the dissident Nationalist group, rose to say the group he led certainly had had nothing to do with the thefts.

TORONTO HALTS BLUE LAW DRIVE

Mayor Disagrees With Chief Of Police Who Says Sunday Sales Will Be Stopped

TORONTO, April 3—(CP).—Mayor W. D. Robbins said today that the police campaign against selling of tobacco, cigarettes and candy on Sunday definitely is ended.

The mayor expressed disagreement to the statement of Chief Constable D. C. Draper, who declared there would be no loosening in the anti-selling campaign and that the police would continue to enforce the law in the future as in the past.

Mayor Robbins informed the board of control Wednesday police commissioners had agreed there would be no more drastic enforcement of the provisions of the Lord's Day act against druggists for Sunday selling of tobacco.

In view of this assurance, controllers did not press their campaign for either complete enforcement of the whole act or reasonable enforcement of the laws governing the transaction of business on the Sabbath.

Chief Draper said yesterday, without the mayor's approval, there had been no change in attitude of police regarding Sunday selling and they would continue to enforce the law. This resulted in further demand from board of control members for strict enforcement of the law.

"The Royal Road To The Coronation"

Prince Albert in the Air Force (RIGHT) and in the Army

TO-DAY we present his majesty as an officer in the Royal Air Force, as well as in the uniform of an active officer during the war years. Though the then Prince Albert entered the flying arm of the fighting forces only after ill-health forced him from the seas he had come to love, no more enthusiastic recruit ever sought his "wings."

In February of 1916, with the struggle in France still dragging on but with mighty strides taking place in the development of aviation, Prince Albert became a "birdman" recruit. Perhaps to rid themselves of the persistent seeker after war jobs, since the navy was barred to him after his serious operation of 1913, the high command assigned the prince to the royal naval air station at Cranwell where he was to learn something about the flying arm of the navy in which he once had served.

He welcomed the opportunity to again be working among men who knew the navy and its language, even if their interests were in different spheres, but with the exigencies of war the naval flying branch was soon amalgamated with the army wing, the royal flying corps, to become the Royal Air Force. Prince Albert moved into the R.A.F. with the rank of captain. The war was soon to end, but before the armistice was signed, the flying prince had managed to work his way into active service, as he had in the navy, serving with Sir Hugh Trenchard's staff in France with the high command, and with the Independent Air Force in Italy.

Then with characteristic thoroughness he plunged into post-war activity working at the air ministry in London, and amassing in the course of a few months an amazing knowledge of government departmental routine as well as added flying theory.

In July of 1919, he won his pilot's license; in August he was named a squadron leader of the R.A.F. and later in the same summer he bade a final farewell to active branches of both the navy and the R.A.F. The press of public duties which were making it increasingly necessary to devote his time to official work, forced the change. Then to him, as to hundreds of officers, came the necessity of leaving the service, and plunging into the post-war activities of commerce, and of rehabilitating a war-tired world.

CAHAN ATTACKS COMBINES ACT

Objects To Clause Giving Commissioners Power Of Judge—"Bad As Germany's Laws"

OTTAWA, April 3—(C.P.).—Nazi Germany's enactments directed against the Jews contained no more drastic provisions than were contained in the new Combines Act now before the House of Commons, Hon. C. H. Cahan (Cons., St. Lawrence-St. George) declared yesterday.

He joined with Conservative Leader Bennett in objecting to Clauses 30 and 31 of the measure which clothe the Commissioner of Combines with powers of a Judge of the Superior Court in sending witnesses to jail for refusal to give evidence and provide for the entering of premises and seizure of documents.

"It is a purely Nazi and Fascist attempt to invade civil liberty," said Mr. Cahan. "As a matter of fact, however, only those who cannot afford to fight the extravagant powers of the Commissioner will be affected by them. Large corporations with means to go to the courts will be able to have his orders set aside.

"If the Combines Commissioner or his agent came to my house or my office and demanded entry without showing there warrant than this statute and my servants inflicted injury upon them there is not a jury in the land that would convict them."

Labor Minister Rogers said the powers were not greater than those contained in the Inquiries Act and in the Combines Act as enacted in 1923 under the Conservative regime.

Mr. Cahan observed and claimed the Act conferred powers of seizure of private property that were new and were not contained in the older statutes.

"I think it is a desperate thing to clothe this man with this power," said Mr. Bennett. "It is the negation of all our theories of civil liberty."

THE TOUCH OF FAITH

"Jesus saith unto her, Touch me not; for I am not yet ascended unto My Father."—St. John 20, 17.

WHY NOT? In the same chapter Our Lord says to Thomas: "Reach hither thy hand and thrust it into my side." This is an apparent contradiction. Our Lord would have us think. Thinking is hard work and many do not think about the deep things of God. It is only by thinking out such a problem that we are able to understand the wisdom and love of Our Lord. "He knew what was in man." He understood Mary's nature. She had been possessed by evil spirits. She was naturally excitable, temperamental. To strengthen her will she is ordered to do something for others. "Go, tell My brethren." She is not to satisfy her emotions and feelings. Emotions and feelings have an unhappy faculty of evaporating. In obeying Mary's mind is turned from herself. She brings happiness to others which enables her to forget herself. This is an important lesson for excitable, emotional people.

But there is a higher reason for this refusal. Mary believe that the Lord Jesus had risen from the dead. He has returned from the grave, even as Lazarus came forth, to live the old life among his friends and one day to die again. This is her idea of His resurrection. She is to learn that His resurrection means that He is now living on a higher plane. "Death hath no more dominion over Him." He is raised from the dead as the Perfect Man, the obedient Son of the Father and His body is a spiritual Body fitted to live on a spiritual plane. This is why He could not show Himself to the High Priest or Pontius Pilate. They were blind spiritually when they condemned Him. They could only see the Carpenter of Nazareth, a helpless, poor man. There are men who have no musical ear. The wonderful music of the great Masters do not touch them. They are deaf to these notes. It is even so in spiritual things. They had no spiritual susceptibility. Spiritual things are spiritually discerned.

Furthermore Mary is to be taught that she must not touch Him because she lacked the spirit of reverence and awe. Her exclamation is: "Rabboni, my Master, my Teacher." He is still her Teacher and would teach her deeper and higher truth about Himself. There is a hint in the words: "I am not yet ascended unto My Father." She has no thought of worshipping Him as God. St. Thomas, on the other hand, falls down and worships Him with the words: "My Lord and my God"; the shortest and highest confession of faith in the Deity of the Lord Jesus. How many people touch Him irreverently with their lips and through their actions because they do not think of Him as the God-Man.

Our Lord was truly the Gardener of the soul. He is sowing in the heart of Mary a grain of mustard seed which some day will grow and develop and multitudes will follow her example to touch Him with the finger of faith.

Mary has to learn that when He ascends to His Father He will take with Him His glorified, risen Body to be united with the Father. It is the mystery of the Christian Faith that God has taken into His God-Head our Manhood. "The Word was made flesh and dwelt among us." This is true. Through His Ascension there is a new and wonderful idea of God as Man drawing near to us. Mary is later on to touch Him by Faith. She is to put forth the finger of faith and discover the power flowing into her, as the poor sick woman discovered in the days of His Ministry. It is the power to heal her of her spiritual sickness. Through His Ascension he is ever present with her, for He fills all things. Consequently there is no danger from the evil spirits. There will be no room in her heart for them because Christ is abiding in her heart by faith.

Have you discovered in the same way the power of the resurrection of Our Lord; that He is indeed the living Christ. Can you say: "I live, yet not I but Christ liveth in me." I AM THE WAY, THE TRUTH, AND THE LIFE: NO MAN COMETH UNTO THE FATHER BUT BY ME.

God the Creator

"BRASS TACKS" ON THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

(By DR. ALVIN E. BELL)

(The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for April 4 is the first two chapters of Genesis, especially 1: 1-5, 26-31, the Golden Text being Genesis 1:1: "In the beginning God created the heavens and the earth." Inasmuch as the lessons for the next three months deal with Genesis it may be well for us to get a "bird's-eye view" of this book by quoting here the chapter on Genesis from the author's book by book study, "The Gist of the Bible," published by Dr. Alvin E. Bell, Toledo, O.)

Genesis—The Book of Beginnings.

"The word 'Genesis' means 'beginnings,' and the Book of Genesis is a book of beginnings. Nothing is completed in Genesis. But here we have the beginning of everything except God. Who is eternal. Genesis records the beginnings of heaven and earth; of all life—plant, animal and human; of marriage and the family; of society and nations; of sin and crime; of sorrow and death; of sacrifice and salvation.

Outline of Genesis.

"Bible students have summed up the message of Genesis in three great words, viz., 'generation,' 'degeneration,' and 'regeneration.' In these words we have the beginning of the three worlds of nature, sin, and grace. They tell us what God did, in chapters 1 and 2; what Satan did, chapters 3 to 11; and what the God-man, Christ Jesus, would do, chapters 12 to 50. The first 12 chapters deal with Abraham's descent, the last 38 with his descendants. The outline and scope of Genesis may also be discovered by marking the recurrence of the phase 'these are the generations of' viz. 'The generations of the heavens and the earth,' 2:4; 'the generations of Adam,' 5:1; 'of Noah,' 6:9; 'of the sons of Noah,' 10:1; 'of Shem,' 11:10; 'of Terah,' 11:27; 'of Ishmael,' 25:12; 'of Isaac,' 25:19; 'of Esau,' 36:1; and 'of Jacob,' 37:2.

"Genesis was not written primarily to teach science, but to explain man's origin and his need of a Saviour because of his sin, and God's plan of salvation through a Saviour to be the seed of Abraham. Instead of contradicting true science Genesis goes beyond the furthest reaches of science, and bridges the three great gaps which science and evolution cannot bridge, viz., the origin of matter, the origin of animal life, and the origin of man. The significant words of 'God created' stand at each of these three bridges in Genesis the first chapter, verses 1, 21 and 27. There are the very places where the evolutionist is put to confusion in his vain search for a 'missing link.'

"A parable of the havoc and discord wrought by the entrance of sin into the world may be seen in placing together the first five and the last four words of this book, thus: "In the beginning God created — a coffin in Egypt." God's plan to make that coffin a symbol of faith and hope through the Saviour, who is the seed of the woman, and for whom the way is prepared in a chosen race descended from Abraham, and to spread the blessings of this faith and hope to all nations, this is the story of Genesis."

ISRAEL. His name is JEHOSHUA, JOSHUA or JESUS.

AS THE COMING KING OF DAVID'S LINE, "He hath on His vesture and on His thigh a name written KING OF KINGS AND LORD OF LORDS."

AS THE GOD OF ALL THE HUMAN FAMILY, His name is ELYON EL, "the most high God."

In connection with HIS NATIONAL ADMINISTRATION He has TEN JEHOVAH NAME COMBINATIONS, each combination indicating a department of national government, the "portfolio" of which department is in His own hands.

All this is very simple and straightforward. For further study see "The Names of God," a booklet by the writer.

CATHEDRAL MUSINGS

The deeper we delve into the constitution of matter the more truly do we see the diversity of things is but an illusion; that in essence, all things are based upon unity. For instance, we see that light, heat and radio-waves together with their associated magnetic phenomena, are but slightly different associations of electro-magnetic energies; that even "solid" matter is in reality a very sketchy tenuous affair of electrical energies, with more emptiness about it than solidity; that, in short, all our surroundings are but appearances, having their reality not in fact, but in the reaction of our consciousness in regard to them.

People think of their life as being their own, to do with as they please. But this is a misconception; a failure to realize the essential unity of things. There is but One Life, One Consciousness; we are in and of that Life and Consciousness and we cannot escape. In God we live and move and have our being. It is inconceivable that anything can exist outside of His Infinite Being; for if there were anything outside of God then He would not be infinite, which is absurd. Our apparent separateness is an illusion based upon our conditioned existence here on earth. Each of us, imprisoned in his house of clay thinks he is one apart from his fellows. He mistakes his ego for his true self. He builds his house upon the lower self and knows naught of the soul. This is the true fall of man, a fall into ignorance, into separate self-hood, from which springs all the evil of this world. But we are no more separate from each other than we are separate from God. God transcends us, but He is also immanent, within us and in the unity of God we have our life and true consciousness.

There are only two wills in all the universe, God's will and self-will. We must choose which we will make manifest, one or the other, we cannot choose both. To serve self leads to the degradation and death of the personality, to serve God means that he will manifest ever more clearly through us until our ever-evolving personalities enter into the fellowship of the Christ. There is nothing higher than truth but only God who is Truth knows all Truth. Therefore we should ever seek to know higher aspects of truth, for as we know and act upon our knowledge, so do we become closer to God.

Nothing stands still, every thing moves towards its appointed goal. Dare we sit down with folded hands?

GOD HAS REVEALED HIMSELF BY A DISTINCTIVE NAME FOR EVERY RELATIONSHIP BETWEEN HIMSELF AND HIS UNIVERSE.

As CREATOR and SUSTAINER of the material universe, His name is ELOHIM, sometimes abbreviated into El.; translated into our versions as God.

As the FATHER AND GOD OF THE ABRAHAMIC RACE, with whom He has entered into definite and specific covenant relationship for ever, His name is EL SHADDAI, "God Almighty." This is the name by which he signed the convenant; and this name is used exclusively in connection with that Abrahamic relationship and covenant forever.

IN HIS RELATIONSHIP TO HIS KINGDOM AND TO THE LAW, His name is JEHOVAH. By that name He is known as the administrator of the Kingdom which is vested in Israel and Judah. THAT NAME IS NOT USED FOR ANY OTHER PURPOSES.

God the Creator — ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Scripture—Genesis 1:1-2:25

By the Rev. Alvin E. Bell and Alfred J. Buescher

Whence came this universe of ours, including living creatures and man? The most satisfying answer is given in the first verse of the Bible: "In the beginning God created the heavens and the earth."

The words "God created" occur at the three points where science must look to religion for an explanation of origins, viz., the origin of matter, 1:1; of life, 1:21; and of man, 1:27. So Genesis supplements rather than contradicts science.

"God created great whales and every living creature." Thus life in the sea, in the air and on land began as a creative act of God in which his wise and beneficent will was carried into effect by his word.

God's crowning act of creation was man: "God created man in his own image, in the image of God created he him; male and female created he them." He made man spiritual as himself.

SATURDAY, APRIL 3, 1937

A Little Overdone

There was an odd case brought into court at London, Ont., where the inspector for the Humane Society took action against the manager of a chicken hatchery for keeping a growing chick in a large bottle in the window. The charge was that the bird did not have sufficient room, it had no perch and there was wire beneath its feet.

The defence urged the chick had plenty of air; it was fed and watered regularly; it had room to move about, and it had been the intention to remove it from the bottle on the 27th of March. The magistrate found it difficult to know just what a chicken might think about such treatment or how the thing might feel, so he dismissed the case. There were experts on hand to testify that the chicken was doing well indeed in the bottle, and was not any more cramped than baby chicks during transportation, nor during the time the birds spent in a brooder. A brooder tray full of chicks was brought into court as an exhibit, and they had not as much room per chick as the one which had been growing up in the bottle for exhibition purposes.

Looking through the report we found the magistrate was there; the inspector and the veterinary surgeon and counsel were present for the Humane Society, and the lawyer for the defence and a number of witnesses, also a tray filled with chickens from a brooder.

And all because one chick was being kept in a large bottle. It was admitted it was in good physical condition and was growing as it should. One cannot help thinking there have been a good many human beings in this country living in small places, cold places, unsanitary places, none-too-clean places, and they have not been fed and watered regularly, and yet it is difficult almost to the point of impossible to recall instances where any person has been called into court to answer for the condition.

No Surplus Wheat?

Wheat $2.10 per bushel before the end of July is one of the predictions made by a writer in London. There is no surplus of wheat in existence, and we learn now there never has been. Also that the vital factor in keeping prices down since 1929 was that overhanging surplus, a good deal of which was piled up right here in Canada.

All of which makes it rather difficult for the ordinary individual to know whom to believe or what to believe. During the years when there was so much wheat held in Canada that there were places in the west where farmers were paid as low as 28 cents per bushel for No. 1 Northern we were told there was so great a surplus in the world that our wheat could not be sold.

And now that a good deal of the surplus has been sold we find London writers saying there never was a surplus.

Wheat, it seems, can be a highly disturbing factor for those who have to buy it as well as for those who have it for sale. Italy and Germany have been putting all their money into vast war machines. If there were a crop failure in Germany that country would be hard pressed if it were forced to purchase wheat after it had gone to the $2 mark. Meanwhile Canadians will have to do some fast thinking to reconcile themselves to the new claim that there never was a surplus of wheat.

To Avoid Misunderstanding

In presenting a survey of facts regarding the gas department of the Peterborough Public Utilities Commission the Examiner came to the conclusion that the production of gas would become so difficult financially that eventually it might not be possible to continue the business.

That opinion was the view of this paper, and not of the Public Utilities Commission. It was not stated that discontinuance of gas service was something which would take place; it was stated it was something which might have to take place.

In order that there may be no misunderstanding the Examiner states there is no intention on the part of the Commission to close the gas plant, although the facts and figures quoted in this paper were all substantially correct as they revealed the stiff competition which the gas department was encountering from electric energy.

An Outstanding Edition

The Woodstock Sentinel-Review publishes each year an "Agricultural Edition," and we know of no other paper which does it so thoroughly. This year it is of 68 half-size pages, and there is not much left unsaid which can be said about Oxford County. There is no "easy-to-get" method followed to fill up the pages. The copy is written and prepared, and it deals with everything which can possibly take place on the farms of the district.

In this paper we read about turnips, cheese, cattle without horns, good seed, hogs and bacon, poultry, and so on without end. Oxford appears to be Holstein territory, a regular black and white district, and nothing but a Holstein seems able to get its picture in the Woodstock paper. We learn the Holstein-Friesian Association has over 343 members in Oxford County. Records of performance are documents which seem to be known off-by-heart as well as the tax bill. We read of hardly anything less than 900 pounds of butter fat during the period of lactation.

And such names: Dewdrop Fayne Johanna; Mount La Prairie Francy Abbekerk; Pontiac Dutchland DeVries; Dewdrop Johanna Changeling; Colantha Posch Wayne Echo 2nd. Whether the farmers, the herdsmen or the hired men call these cows by such names in the daily routine we do not know, nor is it stated in the Sentinel-Review. It would seem almost like impertinence to call such cows "Co-boss."

The Examiner is pleased that the Woodstock Sentinel-Review has again turned out such a substantial edition. Unless there is sufficient reason for a special edition then one should never be issued. This Oxford County edition is so well done that it is outstanding.

She Insisted On Paying

The treasurer of the Canadian National Exhibition at Toronto received a dollar bill from Alberta. The story is about like this: In 1934 two lads from a town in Alberta were in Toronto at Exhibition time. They managed to secure school children's tickets by using the names of two cousins in Toronto. When they returned home the mother finally found out how they had managed to get into the Exhibition grounds. She felt worried about it and admits she should have written some time ago, and concludes by hoping that the dollar bill will be sufficient to make up for the admission price.

It is only a small matter, and there are many miles placed between that Alberta town and the city of Toronto. We are quite certain no one would have gone to ask for the money because no official knew anything about it. Therefore the Alberta mother and the boys were safe from anything which might look like prosecution or a process of collection.

And there is more: We do not believe there are many people who would have done anything about it even after becoming acquainted with the facts. There are some who might even have regarded it as rather smart for the lads to use their cousins' names and secure tickets in that way. Might even have been regarded as a straw in the wind showing that the boys were rather smart on driving a bargain.

Nor is there any good purpose served in trying to preach a sermon on this one incident, but in this day when the idea seems to be to grab and reach for more, it is refreshing to find a mother in Alberta whose sense of right and wrong is well in tune.

Hours of Beverage Rooms

A resolution sponsored by Ald. Gordon and Ald. Cotton providing that beverage rooms in Peterborough shall be closed at 11 o'clock in the evening and the wine shop at the earliest hour the regulations permit will be presented from the Finance Committee to the City Council, and will probably be passed.

The claim was advanced that if the beverage rooms were closed at 10 o'clock during daylight saving time it would mean 9 o'clock for people of the district who might come to the city, and that would provide more hours for the bootlegger to operate. Mayor Macdonald was not much impressed by that argument, contending that when beer parlors were opened the claim had been made they would put the bootleggers out of business, whereas such had not been the case. He believed there were as many or even more of them today than previously.

We do not know of any person except the bootleggers themselves who have any sympathy for their vocation. We have heard it said a good many times they should all be cleaned out, and that is a splendid idea. The trouble is in securing convictions, because in order to do that it is necessary to have evidence which will stand up in court and prove the charge. In order to do that evidence is required showing that the accused person actually sold the liquor and received the money. Seeing a number of persons going in and out of a building is not sufficient; having suspicions that sales are being made there is not enough. Sworn testimony regarding proof of sale must be presented. We do not know just how the law should or could be changed, although at present the advantage seems to be in favor of the bootlegger.

We do not believe the people in this country are willing to observe closing hours as they do in England. There the people merely get up and go out when closing hours come and they do not return. For a long time the closing hour there was 10 o'clock in the evening, and the pubs were closed at certain hours during the day, but all those hours were carefully observed—because it was the law. The move to close at 11 o'clock is right and reasonable, and the shortening up by an added hour on Saturday should go with it. Time was in the days of open bars when they closed at 7 on Saturday.

NOTE AND COMMENT

Toronto Humane Society collected over $20,000 on its tag day, and that is a lot of money to go to the dogs, even in this year of returning prosperity.

A farmer driving a calf to market in his car at 43 miles an hour was fined for speeding. It was surely not the passenger who wanted to go so fast.

There are to be a number of changes made in the school system, and soon enough parents will have reason to consider the cost of the new school books.

According to Spanish loyalists Mussolini sent crack troops to Spain but the stories from there in recent weeks would seem to indicate that cracked is the proper adjective.

Notices from Ottawa that radio licenses are due again will not be very welcome among those folk who have only recently been fined because they had neglected to take out licenses last year.

Apparently the disorderly conduct of public affairs is not confined to the Ontario Legislature The Rhode Island House of Representatives has been staging a riot.

A Los Angeles sociologist contends that married men should be paid more than bachelors, and up to the present there has not been a solitary protest from the benedicts over the proposal.

Montreal was without rain for the whole of last month but the drought of Canadien goals in the last game with Detroit was the one that really hurt the folk in the metropolis.

Conductors and drivers of London buses threaten to strike during coronation week, and with its fleet of double deckers off the streets it would not seem like London at all.

Four Winnipeg bad men were given long penitentiary terms, with lashes added, all of which will make the quartette wonder if they are really as tough as they claimed to be.

Aberdeen University has conferred an honorary degree of Doctor of Laws and Literature upon Hon. Vincent Massey. That should help to refute the impression that nothing is ever given away in Aberdeen.

Anent the success of hockey teams from the Sudbury area it might be pointed out that Northern Ontario as a rule does not manufacture championship machines; it merely assembles them.

A number of clubs have lost their beer permits because the commissioner concluded they used them only to make money, and we cannot but wonder if he ever suspected they had any other motive in view.

The local citizen who is inclined to grumble because he thinks the letter carrier is a few minutes late is asked to note that the last mail the folk in the Arctic circle will get until next August has just left Churchill for the north.

It is claimed that the present upswing in industry is the result of the new reciprocal trade pact with Great Britain. However, that agreement merely held the benefits that Canada has enjoyed since the Ottawa trade agreements of 1932 so that the explanation is not quite logical.

A squirrel has been sent to a New York State psycopathic hospital for examination because it bit a woman. The individual who suggested that course would seem like more natural food for squirrels.

Premier Hepburn is being criticized because he is not going to represent Ontario at the coronation. However he can console himself with the thought that if he were going he would also be the subject of adverse comment.

WARNING

(By A. R. K.)

¶ When came the first bright day of spring, Dan Dougal laughed like everything, and he felt very gay; the winter days annoy him much, at times he leans upon a crutch, and hobbles on his way.

¶ The sun shone on Dan Dougal strong, 'twas then he hummed a little song, he'd soon see leaves and buds; new feelings seemed to stir in him, they touched him in his heart and limb, he shed his winter duds.

¶ His flannel shirt came off that day, nor would he wait for days of May, the scarf came off his neck; spring feeling was upon his frame, it drenched him like a summer rain, he gulped joy by the peck.

¶ Dan Dougal sauntered forth to walk, he'd take a turn around the block, his step was firm as steel; the friendly sun fell on him strong, although it did not last for long, and wind began to squeal.

¶ Dan Dougal felt a little wheeze, a little shaking at the knees, the wind was from the west; the sun had quit its little shine, the cold clamped there upon his spine, went through upon his chest.

¶ Dan Dougal is in bed today, and like as not that's where he'll stay, he doesn't seem the same; they hope to get him out in time, they have hot bottles on his spine—and mustard on his frame.

THE TEACHER FINDS GREAT MEN IN HISTORY

The Teacher Is Drawn to Certain of the Men About Whom He Reads and Gives Instruction.

PUTS DISRAELI ON TOP

Points to the Courage of Sir Robert Peel, Who Was Ready to Stake Political Life on a Principle.

L. J. PETTIT, B.A.,

Teacher of History at Vocational and Collegiate Institute in Peterborough, who says that in teaching it is possible to be strongly drawn to some of the characters of public life.

DOES the teaching of history result in the teacher becoming impressed by various personages who walk through the pages of history? Would the teacher find through constant study and the imparting of knowledge certain characters he would come to admire?

That was the general question which was discussed with L. J. Pettit, B.A., of the Peterborough Vocational and Collegiate Institute. Mr. Pettit admitted my surmise was correct; there were characters in history which one learned to admire, and with whom the teacher seemed to become better acquainted by reading more of them and having to talk to the students about them. It was even possible in some cases to come to the stage where a teacher actually felt he might have known some of these people.

"Whom would you select as outstanding, say, in British history, having in mind that feeling of having found some reason to admire them on account of something they had done?"

"In a general way we could make up a short list," replied Mr. Pettit, "starting back in 1154 with Henry II; then Sir Thomas More, Sir Robert Peel, Disraeli, and also Bismarck, the German chancellor."

The suggestion was made that the list might be ended there for the day as that seemed sufficiently long for one lesson.

"Why did you name those men?" I asked.

"Because there is a certain similarity of broad conception of ideas common to them all. It is possible to admire a man for his conception even if one does not agree entirely with what he does."

"Then what is there about Henry II which appeals to you?"

"Henry II reorganized English law. He came after Stephen and found a court cluttered up with favorites; he faced the task of trying to unify an island with three separate races, English, Welsh and Scots. In his day what we now call parliament was the Great Council which advised the king, but he could take the advice or leave it alone, and there was the church court and the king's court. He showed a great deal of definite action in dealing with the barons who were making themselves a nuisance. He ordered some thousands of castles to be torn down, and he was smart enough to bring the armies of the barons under his own control.

SERVED FOR FORTY DAYS

"At that time the barons had armies of their own, and they were required to serve the king as well for 40 days during the year. After that they went back to the service of the barons, and it turned out that they might then be called upon to fight against the king. Henry made a deal to pay these men to do his fighting, and after that he invoked the old Anglo-Saxon law of Fyrd which said every free man should come when called upon to serve the king. So he brought the fighting men under the control of the king, and for that reason I consider Henry II had a good deal of organizing ability. There was also a good trait in him and that was brought out when he agreed to accept and recognize what was called "the ancient customs and usages."

"The next on your list is Sir Thomas More. Why do you admire him?"

"I like Sir Thomas More because of his fidelity to an idea," was the reply. "I believe had he been living today he would have been a social reformer; he was actually a man who was running ahead of his time. He was a student and a scholar, and he was a man with a conscience who dared defy Henry VIII when the king claimed to be the one supreme head of the Church of England. He was willing to swear political fidelity to the king, but would go no further. He knew well enough he would have to face a charge of treason and that meant death, but he faced it as a man. I find much to admire about Sir Thomas More."

DISRAELI HIS FAVORITE

"And that brings us to Disraeli," I suggested, and inquired, "and where does he stand?"

"Just about at the top of the list," answered the teacher of history. "I realize there is room for differences of opinion, but I find much to admire in Disraeli."

"That's fine," I admitted, "but why?"

"In the first place because he was a statesman who seemed always to go about with a political telescope to his eye."

"Sounds nice, but just what does it mean?"

"Simply this," was the reply, "he could bring within his horizon the vision of world affairs and of empire, and when he took a course he was able to travel on it to its logical conclusion. Likewise I admire his power to couple decision and action."

"In what particular?"

"The Suez canal deal for instance. He was filled with the idea of securing control of Suez because it meant shortening the route to India and unifying the empire, that he reversed usual procedure. First he secured the stock in the canal held by the ruler of Egypt and then went back to parliament to get the money.

"In his day it was the custom of the Turks to massacre Christians when they found them. In 1875 they massacred the Bulgarians. Then Russia went to the aid of the Bulgarians and defeated the Turks and drove them out of Europe and this move would have given Russia control of the Dardanelles. Disraeli called the Congress of Berlin in 1878 and virtually scrapped the treaty of San Stefano by which the boundary of Bulgaria had been enlarged and Russia named as her protector. The great aim of Russia had been defily defeated and Disraeli was able to come home with peace with honor. That shows definitely the working out of a mind possessed of political acumen."

"And you regard him as sincere?"

"Yes."

"But would he not be called a showman?"

"Undoubtedly he was a showman, but the sincerity of his work is attested by the way in which it lasted."

THE SUPER-STATESMAN

"Disraeli made his mistakes and those are known and admitted. He was wrong in listening to the claim of those who asked for the annexation of the Transvaal and that caused the first Boer war, but as a rule I find myself more interested in a man's idea rather than in the exact method by which he carries it out."

"How would you compare Disraeli and Gladstone?"

"Entirely different," replied Mr. Pettit. "Gladstone went around with a microscope at home while Disraeli looked at the more distant picture with a telescope. Gladstone was primarily interested in what was going on at home and in Ireland. Of these he was master, but in the larger sphere he was not."

"That being so," I suggested, "a combination of these two men would produce the ideal statesman?"

"I would say the super-statesman," was the answer. "If you bring into a composite picture the egotism of Disraeli and the puritanism of Gladstone, and have them well blended, then you should have one of the world's great men, if not the greatest."

"In the same period there was Sir Robert Peel, and I confess to deep admiration for him," continued the teacher.

"For what cause?"

"For a good many. He had social and economic vision and he was a man of courage and conviction, and by the word courage I mean all that the word can mean. You see he was the leader of the Tory party and it was narrow and reactionary and yet Peel at once tackled the Six Acts of 1819 and had them repealed. They shut off freedom of the press and freedom of public gatherings. He then attacked the penal laws, and at that time there were 200 crimes punishable by death. A man could be hanged for picking a pocket of six pence; he could be hanged for injuring a tree belonging to another person, or for stealing 40 shillings worth of goods. There was one famous trial where a woman had pleaded guilty to theft and the jury in order to save her from death found her guilty of having stolen goods to the value of 39 shillings, 6 pence. Many of those who were being sent to the penal colonies were guilty of no graver offence than being what we refer to now as vagabonds.

HAD TO GET SUPPORT

"Peel exhibited great courage in tackling the repeal of the Corn Laws. These came following the Napoleonic wars when there had been high prices for supplies, and it was all to the advantage of the land-owners. There was a growing feeling against the Corn Laws because the high price of food was bearing down heavily on the mass of the people, but this section had little chance of moving parliament which was then in control of the land owners. And here is where the courage of Peel was exhibited. He had to secure enough support by the formation of a coalition in order to defeat his own party and he must have known it would also mean his own defeat. It was a case of a man committing political suicide and yet doing it because he was convinced he was right. It was a group of Whigs which aided him in repealing Corn Laws, but the following day his own party defeated him. He was killed in an accident before the repeal of the Corn Laws became actually effective to the maximum degree. There indeed was a courageous man whom it is easy to admire for the good which was in him."

HE SELECTS BISMARCK

Without any hesitation the reply came, and it was "Bismarck."

Mr. Pettit considers the former chancellor for Germany entitled to rank as with the great. "He had a definite conception of what Germany needed in order to become a great nation, and then there was his fidelity to the Hohenzollerns, and fidelity is something of which we see little enough today. In the parliamentary struggles in Prussia of 1848-62 the contest was always between Bismarck and his opponents rather than between the Liberals and the King. If the plan failed Bismarck took the blame and the crown was kept out of it. I admit there were many of his policies which I could never admire, but the fact remains that they worked. He had the ability to see what needed to be done and then proceed to accomplish it. In the German Union of 1815 following the defeat of Napoleon Austria had been included, and Bismarck considered that a mistake because Austria dominated the situation. Prussia was always up against the stone wall of Austria. He was diplomatic to the extent of making both Austria and France declare war against Germany, and when Germany defeated Austria and terms were made by the Treaty of Prague Bismarck insisted that the conquered people should be dealt with fairly. He was all against Prussia trying to crush the life out of Austria and to do that he was forced to fight Prussian pride. He showed himself to be a big man."

HIS TRAGIC DEPARTURE

"But there was tragedy in the latter days?" I asked.

"Yes, and a great deal of it. Bismarck really had all the lines in his own hand when he encountered the last kaiser of Germany. He was driven to the point of becoming an agitator and then it was that Wilhelm Hohenzollern caused word to be sent out 'Pay no attention to him.' That must have cut to the quick. Had a Bismarck been in control in 1914 world history might have been different. When the kaiser turned him out in 1890 it was tragedy of the profound variety. 'Dropping the Pilot,' the famous cartoon published shortly after probably tells as much history in a pointed way as anything which was ever presented."—K.

THE ONE SURE WAY

Editor Examiner:

Sir: One of the clearest evidences of the awakening of public opinion against the menace of subversive movements so active in Canada and throughout the world at the present time is given in the statement made by the Hon. Ernest Lapointe, Minister of Justice in the House of Commons on March 30. In his statement the Minister of Justice clearly indicated that one of the bulwarks of modern civilization is the form of justice administered in the British Commonwealth of Nations, and that same administration of that law is one of the best antidotes of the evils arising from subversive propaganda.

He stated further that the best way to combat evil propaganda is to spread propaganda based on principles of truth and righteousness, and he recommended a league should be formed by people who believe in peace, order and good government.

He also said outstanding representatives of the church, labor and industry should combine to preserve the religious heritage of Canada against atheism and communism and to preserve our modern social order against the attacks of subversive influences.

We are in complete sympathy with the sentiments expressed by the Minister of Justice, and would point out that the British-Israel-World Federation (Canada), with branches throughout the Dominion, is an institution which has been doing more than any other agency to promote the spread of such constructive propaganda as he suggests.

We go deeper into the matter than the Minister of Justice for, recognizing as he does the value of British institutions based on proper administration of British law and order, we state unequivocally that the only means by which the stability of our modern social order can be attained, and the evils so prevalent among us be eliminated, is by a return to the application and administration of the Divine Law.

The suggestion that the Minister of Justice makes regarding the combination of various organizations to form a league to oppose fascism and communism is liable to meet defeat before it starts, for the simple reason that a great many members of the very institutions to which he appeals no longer believe in the Divine Law and its application, and as a matter of fact are largely responsible for the spread of atheism as a result of the teaching of evolution and of modernistic doctrines with regard to the Bible, which is the Word of God written.

The British-Israel-World Federation is proclaiming, in season and out of season, the integrity of the Holy Scriptures in both the Old and the New Testaments, and affirms there is no other way out of the difficulties which confront us except by a return to an absolute faith in these same Scriptures.

This federation has circulated a petition throughout the Dominion of Canada, which has been signed by many thousands of people, requesting the government to appoint a period of national repentance and prayer and, following this, to make a determined effort to put into operation the Divine system of economic principles. The application of this system would immediately eliminate those conditions in our social order which are the feeding grounds for all the subversive influences among us.

RAYBESTOS HAS SAVINGS CLUB

men had discussed factory affairs he had decided to make a statement to offset "an entirely unfounded and erroneous impression of our attitude towards our employees and wages received by them."

Augment Men's Savings

"When we came to Peterborough in 1920 we established a Savings Club which has been uninterrupted during the 17 years we have been here," Mr. Abbott said. "The principle of this Club was to teach our employees to set aside something for a rainy day. Each employees is encouraged to save a reasonable amount out of each week's pay. This amount is deducted from his pay and is deposited to his credit in a bank savings account. At the end of the year the company pays the employee a 10 per cent bonus on the amount saved during the year. This bonus has been paid for seventeen consecutive years.

Group Insurance

We have also carried on a group insurance plan for 17 years whereby an employee who has been with us six months obtains an insurance policy for $500 without cost to him, and each year this is increased $100 until it reaches $1,000. This is entirely at the company's expense.

We have recently taken on another group insurance policy, a temporary disability insurance to take care of our employee when he is away from the factory. In other words, any sickness or disability which occurs to an employee after working hours is covered by this policy, and the premium is shared by the company and the employee. No physical examination is required and the premium paid by the employee is far lower than could be obtained by him personally due to the fact that it is a group insurance. This is not to be confused with the Workmen's Compensation which all companies have to pay to take care of an employee while he is at work on our premises.

Annual Bonus

We have also paid a bonus to our employees for fifteen years out of the seventeen we have been in Peterborough. This bonus is based on an average day's pay for each year of service with the company. A man with us seventeen years, for example, gets a bonus of seventeen days' pay.

In addition to the above, in December 1936, we paid a bonus of one week's pay to each employee. In January 1937 increases were given to deserving employees of approximately 10 per cent. To older employees we give vacations with pay.

"I wish to congratulate The Examiner for its desire to publish the truth and anything that is helpful to Peterborough. A Toronto paper recently made the statement that the Canadian Raybestos Company was one of three enjoying a fixed assessment. What the object was in giving this misinformation or implication, we do not know, but we feel the citizens of Peterborough should know that the following concerns still have fixed assessments: Canadian Johnson Motors Co., Canadian Raybestos Co. Ltd., Martin-Hewitt Containers Ltd., A. Wander & Co. Ltd., Quaker Oats Co., Ltd., Western Clock Co., Ltd.

We wish to express our appreciation of the support which we have always received from the Mayor and the City Council. We have endeavored to do our part in giving steady employment to a limited number of citizens and to do our share in making Peterborough a better city to live in. This statement is the only means we have of correcting false or erroneous reports which have circulated throughout the city to our detriment."

Mr. Abbott also said "7 per cent of our original employees are still with us." Since the company enlarged its plant during the last three years the number of employees has actually increased 260 per cent.

Bride Of 5 Days Flees Husband

go to his mother's apartment house and get his clothes, Tuesday. Until yesterday, that was the last time she saw him. "He didn't give me any explanation. He just left. So I reported him to the police as missing. They found him, all right."

Yesterday, her patience ended, she stormed the gates of the $60,000 penthouse, where her young husband, she said, had been hiding.

"He's my husband and I want him. I've been awake three nights wanting him, and now I'm going to find out what everything's about."

Brill was in the big, yellow automobile in the garage. She ran to him. They fell into each other's arms, and there was a long embrace. He told her, she said, he was on his way to her.

At that moment, Mrs. Mary Brill appeared and cried, "Nan, what is all this?"

A bitter, angry scene ensued. The heiress accused the mother of keeping Brill from her, and the mother replied Nan had engineered "all the publicity on this."

"You know I'm a wife in more than name only. I don't want your car. I can buy a dozen like it. And I don't want your mother, either. I can buy a dozen like her, too."

Then started the wild trip to Frisco.

Lakefield Citizens Lining Up With Home Improvement Plan

E. H. Northey Is Appointed Chairman Of Committee To Push Scheme

BENEFITS EXPECTED

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LAKEFIELD, April 3—Citizens of Lakefield held a meeting in the Council Chamber here on Monday evening for the purpose of appointing a local advisory committee to organize the Home Improvement Plan in Lakefield and district. E. H. Northey was appointed chairman of the committee with R. T. Hill, Village Clerk, as secretary. Messrs. S. J. Charlton, and N. A. Moore, along with a woman member to be appointed at the next meeting of the Board, completed the committee.

John E. Jones, from the Ontario Advisory Board of the National Employment Commission, who are fostering the Home Improvement Plan, addressed the meeting, outlining the purpose of the Plan. "The National Employment Commission's Home Improvement Plan is based on solid fact and sound finance reduced to their simplest and most workable terms," he said. The double purpose of the plan is improvement and employment for Canadian workers.

Through the Home Improvement Plan the Dominion Government has made it possible for the home owner to carry out needed repairs and improvements to his home, notwithstanding the fact that he might not have available the funds required. This is possible through the co-operation of the banks in providing the home owner who desires to improve his property, with the necessary funds at very reasonable rates of interest. No endorsement or other security is required by the bank other than the promissory note of the borrower, and the amount borrowed may be paid back in monthly installments covering a period of from one to three years.

The Committee's Purpose

The purpose of the local advisory committee is to put the plan into active operation in Lakefield and district," Mr. Jones concluded.

"The plan will help to get money into circulation," Mr. Northey, chairman of the local advisory committee told the Examiner today, and because the money is all spent locally, both merchants and workmen will benefit by it."

Mr. S. J. Charlton considers that Lakefield will not benefit as much as manufacturing centres where a majority of the people are on regular salaries, than it will be in Lakefield, but he sees no reason why Lakefield citizens will not benefit, if they get behind the plan. Young's Point, Buckhorn and Apsley are included in the Lakefield district, he said.

PATCHES ON ROOF MAY REACH LIMIT

Not Economical To Patch Leaks After Certain Point Is Reached

Does your roof leak?

There comes a time in the life of a house roof when patching is no longer economical, and when this stage in the life of a roof arrives the only thing to do is to put on a new covering, housing experts advise.

Assuming that the structure of the roof is sound, there are a number of ways it can be recovered. If the old roof is of wooden shingles, new wood shingles can be put on. They may be put over the old ones. Or the old shingles can be covered with various types of composition shingles.

Be sure, however, before beginning the recovering operation that the structure is strong enough to carry the added load. Check the size of the rafters and be sure they are adequately tied together fairly near their base.

They may have been all right for the old roof, but the new roof may be like the proverbial straw on the camel's back and the result may be a very sad-looking sway-backed roof, and the walls may take on a middle-aged bulge in the front.

So, after the owner has assured himself that the structure can carry the added load, he can go ahead and select the new roofing. Don't try to economize too much, for remember that in building, as in everything else, only a dollar's work is received for a dollar spent, the owner who puts on a cheap roof must not expect it to last as long as a more expensive one.

Eight Smart Little Performers Can Present Real Clever Show

Modernization of the living room of a home in a large city succeeded in not only making the room more attractive in appearance but made it brighter and added to the impression of space.

Like many homes in this city, the house was dark, massive and drab. Dark woodwork was found in great profusion and a dropped ceiling gave the appearance of making the room lower. An ornate mantel, complete with fluted columns and coloured tile occupied one corner. The wallpaper had a large rambling design. The owner decided there were real possibilities in his house. He started in.

The oak mantel, parking place for miscellaneous bric-a-brac, was the first thing removed. A modern fireplace in ivory and black marble took its place. All of the woodwork was painted ivory, and the walls were repapered, the small, neat-figured paper extending all of the way to the ceiling, giving the room an appearance of height.

A modern lighting fixture replaced the four glass shades which had hung on the end of long brass chains. Electric outlets provided for lamps and radio with a minimum of wires trailing the floor.

When the modernization work was completed the owner purchased new furniture with his own funds, in keeping with the transformed room. Modern and Chinese Chippendale combined to give a feeling of comfort without heaviness. Venetian blinds were hung at the window and gay drapes added colour.

The furniture was arranged in conversational groups, with tables and lamps placed conveniently.

Lower Taxes In Peterboro' Aid Building

PAYING AS WE GO

A factor in Peterborough taxation that is definitely encouraging to every citizen who is figuring the cost of building a house is the prospect of a steadily declining debenture debt.

Debentures maturing by 1940 amount to $337,300, and another old issue of $230,000 will be wiped out by 1945, bringing the total to $567,300. Translated into tax prospects this means that the demand on the city treasury for interest and sinking fund by the City Trust Commission will be substantially reduced within the next few years, and that progressive decrease will be reflected, or should be, in a lowered tax rate.

In the meantime Peterborough has no large capital expenditure in sight requiring new loans. The city council has been working on the policy of "pay-as-you-go," drawing on annual tax income for ordinary outlay avoiding deficits, and balancing the budget. The provincial government has been contributing its share during the last few years to the improving condition of property owners by assuming the entire cost of provincial highway construction and maintenance and also the social services of mothers' allowances and old age pensions. And this year it has made a direct gift of the equivalent of a mill on the dollar, partly offset, if it is true, by withholding local income taxes.

Looking at the present situation, therefore, it seems that the tide has turned in favor of real estate and its taxation, with the trend positively downward in this city.

The man who undertakes the building of a house for himself and a home for his family does not have to worry about the bogey of increasing municipal taxes, because in Peterborough there has been an actual reduction, and the promise of the future is for further improvement in that direction.

MADRID PLANES BOMB CORDOBA

Inflict Heavy Toll At General Franco's Southern Base Of Supplies

SEVILLE, Spain, April 3—(AP)—Government planes were reported today to have bombed Cordoba, chief supply base of General Franco's southern army, inflicting a heavy toll of death and injuries.

The bombing came simultaneously with a general air and land attack yesterday against insurgent positions. Dispatches from Cordoba said the general push was repulsed.

Cut Communication Line.

MADRID, April 2.—(AP)—A column of government militia battered its way forward today in heavy fighting on the southern front in a swiftly materializing threat to snip the line of communication between General Gonzalo Queipi de Llano's Cordoba headquarters and his insurgent army.

The town of Ovejo, flanked by mountainous country 16 miles north of Cordoba, was expected to fall any hour to the intersection of the government stronghold, Pozoblanco, about 14 miles further north.

Mushrooms 12 inches in diameter were found recently in South Africa.

SEWERS COMBED FOR DEATH TOOL

Plumbing In Model's Father's Apartment Torn Out In Search

NEW YORK, April 3—(A.P.)—New York City's sewers were explored to-day in an effort to find an answer to the five-day-old question: Who committed the Beekham Hill murders?

Confronted with blind alleys at every turn of their night-and-day investigation of the sly and methodical killing of Veronica Gedeon, artists' model, her mother and a roomer in their home, detectives sought a sharp instrument of vague description in the city's drainage system.

The 20-year-old habitues of night clubs, and her mother were strangled, but their roomer, Frank Byrnes, was stabbed repeatedly with a sharp, curved instrument.

A search of the sewer in the Beekman Hill area, a mid-town district near the East River, was ordered, and all the plumbing in the Gedeon five-room apartment was to be ripped out.

Joseph Gedeon, estranged husband and father of the slain woman, faced questioning in police lineup incident to his being charged with possession of a firearm without a permit, but the questions and answers in prospect were largely routine.

The harried little man who boasted of the strength in his fingers, badgered with questions day and night, lay on a jail cell cot with a special guard just beyond the barred door. Vague in his answer but quick to exasperation, he only exclaimed time and again: "I wouldn't kill my own family."

Oil is reported to have been struck near Florence, Padua, and Parma, Italy.

WILL PLANT TREES CORONATION DAY

Roseneath Women's Institute Plans Ceremony—Interesting Program Given

(Examiner Correspondence.)

ROSENEATH, April 3.—The regular meeting of the Women's Institute was held on Thursday afternoon in the town hall with Mrs. Beecher Hogg as hostess and Mrs. E. Braithwaite, president, presiding.

At a previous meeting it was decided to plant a red maple tree in honor of coronation year, and during the business session of Thursday's meeting an amendment was moved and carried that one tree be planted. The site of planting is uncertain until the consent of certain officers are obtained.

Mrs. J. W. Pacey presided over the program, which opened with community singing. There were five readings: Miss Ruth Bodgett read "Cheap Sweets"; Mrs. Kennard Harvie read, "Photographs"; Mrs. C. Sandercock read a humorous article, listing the various permits and licenses necessary before one can live or die; Mrs. A. Nill read "A Definition of a True Gentlewoman," and Mrs. A. Halstead read an educational article, dealing with child training. Mrs. B. Thackeray played a piano solo, "Blue Ridge Mountain Home." Mrs. E. Blodgett gave a most interesting address on "Kinds and characteristics of wool." She told how the quality of wool varies according to the breeding and shearing of sheep, how the best wool is produced in Australia, and of the effect of a dye solution on pure wool. This plan determines the amount of pure wool in a fabric. She spoke of different weaves of cloth, and told the proper way to wash woollens.

The singing of the National Anthem closed the meeting, and the hostess and her assistants served refreshments. The hostess presented the society with a large tray, which adds to the fine equipment owned by the society.

Toys made in Germany last year numbered 40 per cent. more than in 1935.

HAVING ROOM IN REAR

While homebuilders steer clear of some phases of modern afehilecture, the idea of placing the living-room at the rear of the house and the kitchen at the front, is increasing steadily in popularity, according to an architectural authority. This arrangement allows for the development of inexpensive terraces in the rear, giving seclusion from the street. Attractive gardens can be extended towards the rear making a pleasant view from all windows of the house facing the back.

BUILT-IN HAMPER

If the size and arrangement of the bathroom makes them possible, built-in clothes hampers and linen cabinets are great conveniences, which might be included in the list of improvements to be made under the Home Improvement Plan.

THE EXAMINER

Local Housing Shortage Is Becoming Acute

Improvement Plan Groups Organized

List Of District Chairmen Illustrates Healthy Community Spirit

CORDIAL RESPONSE

Organization of Home Improvement Plan committees throughout this district is virtually complete, John E. Jones, representative of the Ontario advisory committee, informed the Examiner this week.

"If there are any people in the cities, towns and villages who do not know by this time what the Home Improvement Plan means it must be their own fault," Mr. Jones said.

"Meetings have been held to explain the details of the Plan, and particularly to tell owners of houses how they can borrow money from the banks without security or endorsement for the purpose of making necessary repairs or improvements.

One of the pleasant features of this work has been the cordial response everywhere by public-spirited citizens who assumed in their respective towns the undertaking of making meetings and by other means to explain what the Plan means and how easily it operates. Men and women have given their time and interest in co-operation with the Ontario advisory committee and thereby with the Dominion Employment Commission. Nowhere has there been any note of politics, but simply a real desire to promote the building industry in all these places."

Local Chairmen

Mr. Jones gave the Examiner the following list of district chairmen: Belleville, J. O. Herity; Bowmanville, Fred H. Cryderman; Brighton, A. A. Martin; Campbellford, T. L. Diamond; Cobourg, Harold Staples; Colborne, F. M. Britnell; Lakefield, E. H. Norther; Peterborough, Reland Denne; Port Hope, Fred W. Wells; Trenton, O. M. Martin.

This is not a complete list because it necessarily omitted Picton and Wellington in Prince Edward county, Tweed, Madoc, Marmora, Havelock and Hastings where organization was proposed a little later than the municipalities of the above list.

Colborne Experience

Mr. Jones recalled his experience in Colborne as an example of how the Home Improvement Plan gospel was carried to a community which like most of the others had not realized that the Plan was designed as much for their benefit as the big cities like Toronto and Hamilton. He arrived in the village by bus early in the morning before even the hotel was astir. It was the beginning of a winter day, and a rather unpromising one for arousing Home Improvement interest. He moved on to the barber shop after awhile and in game one of the leading citizens for tonsorial attention. Mr. Jones explained his mission to him, and was given the names of other citizens to interview. As the morning wore on he had arranged for a meeting that afternoon, and when the appointed hour arrived fifteen men were present, and the meeting blossomed out with all the appearances of a lively success.

"After all it is up to the citizens themselves to make the most of the Home Improvement Plan," Mr. Jones remarked, "and they have done so well at the outset that I am hoping the summer's results throughout the district will prove that the effort of all those public-minded people has been well expended."

HIGHWAY MYSTERY

Police Find Charred Remains of Car Hit by Train, but Owner Missing

WOODSTOCK, Ont., April 3—Highway police are endeavoring to find out something about an accident at the Credlville crossing of the Canadian National Railway on No. 2 Highway east of Woodstock last night. Notified a car had been hit by a freight train, Highway Officer Logan visited the scene and found the charred remains of a car, and that was all. Settlement nearby told him nobody had been hurt and that the motorists had hurried on to Detroit in another car.

BACHELOR'S DEN ADDS TO COMFORT CONTENTED HUBBY

Easy Chairs And Plain Furnishings Lend Comfortable Tone To Room

AIM OF HOUSEWIFE

One comfortable room where a man can read, write or play cards should be the aim of every housewife who wants to see her husband happy and contented. This need not be a room where a wife fears to touch a pipe or paper, but it should be a distinct part of the house that need not be straightened up because guests are coming for dinner.

Neither should this room be a place where all the furniture not wanted in other parts of the house has been placed, partly to keep it out of the way and partly to fill up space in the room. It should be tastefully decorated and thorough comfortable. When providing a place for everything, they are very likely to be kept there by the room's occupants.

Maybe Small Room

One such room was created in a city home. It was small in size, but two large windows made it a cheerful place. A mirrored panel was placed between the two windows to give an illusion of space.

The walls were painted a soft gray. A modern wood in deep browns was used to build in bookcases across the entire side of the room, under the windows. The centre shelves were closed and provided storage space for untidy papers. The ceiling was painted a lighter shade of gray.

Plain furnishings included a desk and card table and chairs of a wood that matched the bookcases. An easy chair of leather and a divan were added. The floor covering was gray, a shade deeper than the walls.

Rooms may be redecorated with funds obtained under the Home Improvement Plan, sponsored by the Dominion Government.

MOUNT PLEASANT

The Anglican Easter day service here was taken by Rev. Mr. Springborne, of Toronto. The lovely Easter blooms appropriately decorated the church for the occasion, the pews being well filled. In the evening Holy Trinity Choir visited St. Aidan's Church at Young's Point for the 7 o'clock service there.

Canon Headly, of Toronto, will be in charge of the communion service in Holy Trinity Church at 3 p.m., Sunday, April the fourth.

Rev. McMullen held communion service in Eden United Church on Easter day, the church being appropriately decorated and a good attendance at the service.

Rev. S. Brenton of Toronto spent the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. Percy Thompson and other friends in this district.

Mrs. Bruce Reid is spending the week in Toronto.

Tenant Rues Money Spent Only As Rent

Story Of Westender And Landlord's Demand For Increase Of $5 a Month

Several weeks ago a west end tenant was greeted by his landlord with the smarting announcement, "Beginning next month I have to raise your rent five dollars."

And it seemed to carry the infection, "Take it or leave it," which might have been translated into the further remark: "I can rent it tomorrow if you don't want it at the higher figure."

Of course there was the alternative to paying the extra $60 a year, going out into the rising real estate market and scrambling around for another house at around the old monthly figure, one of the "joys" of a tenant when houses are scarce, and the landlords are sitting pretty again.

A young married couple moved into a cheap apartment some months ago beginning their adventure in matrimony, and before they had arranged the new furniture the husband said: "We won't be here any longer than we have to. Just as soon as we can find something better we are getting out."

If there was any general contentment during the depression it was merely on the surface, and as a new spirit of buoyancy returns with more general employment and broader feeling of security tenants are restless for brighter and more comfortable houses equipped with modern household conveniences that are not limited to running water and electric light.

And meanwhile the owners of houses who have been forced for years to accept low rentals are responding to the increase demand by revising their charges upward, like the landlord in the west end who suddenly discovered that he "had to increase the rent $5 a month", only because he had become aware that other people were willing to pay that figure.

In that situation the tenant may say to himself: "So what?" and his answer is likely to be a decision to stay in the house and part with the extra $60 a year.

This particular tenant, in relating the incident this week, supplemented his comment by saying, "I've been in the house five years, paid for quite a few repairs myself, and got nothing but a refusal when I pointed out that the roof needed fixing and other odd jobs should be done. I'd have been far better off if I had built a house for myself."

That's the tenant's lament, after paying rent for years, and having had nothing but shelter during all the time that passes so quickly. At the end of twenty years the situation of that man would be exactly the same as at the end of five, no actual possession; only years that are gone with their opportunity of acquiring a home and becoming his own landlord.

Depressions are surely not normal times. They never have been; nor will they be. Temporarily it seems they turn the scales of advantage in favor of the tenant and he persuades himself that the times are always going to be out of joint for the man who builds the house and rents it. Eventually comes the day when the landlord raises an eyebrow and also the rent, and there is no comforting answer to the usually monohalal: "So what?"

HINTS ON HOME IMPROVEMENT

Your Home is Your Castle

Whether you live in a cottage, a mansion or a little clapboard bungalow that house is your stronghold and yours to make beautiful, livable and enjoyable. Your little domicile may not be as modern as Mrs. So-and So's mansion across the way, but it can be just as attractive. There is always something to be said for simplicity, you know.

Just look at the clothes in the shops these days, look at the home furnishings—dishes, pots and pans, linen. The whole world seems one kitchen of color. We Canadians never have given the outside of our houses the color attention they need, as the Bermudians or the Cubans do. Their rural sections are full of blue, pink, yellow, green and white dwellings that blend in beautifully with the brilliance of their flora and fauna. And the Dutch — they're never squeamish about color. We needn't be, either, because there are fine paints on the market which our changeable seasons won't harm. They'll stay as true and unfaded as the day they were placed on the wood, or the brick or the stucco.

A fresh coat of paint means a new life for that home of yours. It will add immeasurably to its beauty and will protect it for years to come. It isn't just the coat of paint that counts however. You've got to think hard and seriously about your choice of color. A light color—ivory, cream, silver, pearl gray, yellow, soft green—is the thing for the small house. A light color, too, is good for the heavily landscaped house. The large house, however, can stand a dark color and is particularly delightful with white doorway and shutters.

Modern Kitchen Sink Great Advantage To The Housewife

No More Clogging And Germ-Ringed Dishpans To Make Housework Harder

STRAIN CATCHES DEBRIS

No wonder the family always hated doing dishes! Once upon a time the sink was merely a convenient place to set the dish pan, and where the drain was usually clogged once a week because the sink was also used for garbage disposal.

But now, thanks to modern design, the old fashioned sink and the weary housewife can be done with forever, says the Canadian Institute of Plumbing and Heating. And thanks to the Home Improvement Plan, the new magic sink is a possibility for every housewife.

The kitchen sink has now become a symbol of efficiency, sanitation, convenience and beauty. The germ ringed dishpan is now replaced by a sink deep enough that dishes may be washed in it, and afterwards rinsed and sterilized with a hot water hose spray.

Strain For Debris

It also contains a movable strain which catches all the debris. Underneath, attached to the sink is the garbage container conveniently located to swing out when needed. Hidden underneath also, and easy to swing out when anything is wanted, is a container for brushes and cleaning compounds, which formerly made very unattractive ornaments for the handiest windowsill.

The new sinks have bright chromium faucets and acid resisting enamel which cannot be harmed by fruit juices or acids, and that keeps its original lustre undimmed for years. Combined with the new cabiet units it transforms the old fashioned kitchen.

The new sink is an essential part in any plan for modernizing the kitchen and is a sound investment in thousands of homes where housewives are struggling along with obsolete sinks. Home economics experts, whose studies have shown that half the time the housewife spends in the kitchen is involved with tasks at the kitchen sink realize the need for modern equipment.

CAMPBELLFORD

Miss Lillian Davidson of Toronto has been visiting Mr. and Mrs. David Mitchell for the past week.

One of the gayest dances of the season was held in the High School auditorium on Friday night when a large number of out of town guests attended to enjoy the music of Bud Raines and his Commodores of Belleville. The dance which was arranged by two of Campbellford's prominent young business men was the second dance of this nature to be held during the winter season. Among those attending from out of town were Mr. and Mrs. F. Barry, Hastings; Miss Agnes Calnan, Mr. P. Calnan and Mr. Vesper Drumm of Grafton; Misses Veronica Fox, Dorothy Kerr, Vivian Kerr, Mary Colton, Harry Fowlds, and Gordon English of Hastings. Among the guests from town were Miss Jerene

GOOD FOUNDATIONS

If concrete or masonry steps are to be installed be sure the ground on which they are to be placed is solid and not recent fill. Filled ground settles over a long period and the steps will settle with it.

Closet doors should be hung so that light, both natural and artificial, shines in the closet when the door is open. At slight extra cost an automatic switch can be installed in the frame which closes the circuit when the door is opened turning on a light in the closet, similar to installation in certain makes of automobiles.

UNFINISHED ATTIC IS DUMPING GROUND BROKEN FURNITURE

But Can Be Converted Into Comfortable Room At Small Expense

MAY BE FIRE HAZARD

An unfinished attic sometimes means only a catch-all for broken furniture and equipment, discarded clothing which invites moths, and old magazines and books that serve merely as dust collectors.

A piece of this kind may present a fire hazard, and in any event it represents space which might with a little thought and small expense be converted into a room affording comfort and convenience to one or all members of the household.

By the clever use of well board the walls and ceiling of an unfinished attice can be attractively covered and a cosy fire place may be introduced with tile forming a base for the burning logs.

Floors can be varnished in a grained effect, although paint, linoleum, cork or any of the applied floor coverings might be used with equally good results. Bright cretonne curtains add a cheerful note to a window and colouring might be carried out very effectively in washable rugs. Chairs and tables not needed in other rooms in the house should be revarnished or painted to harmonize with the colouring.

Answer Many Purposes

Such a reconstructed room may answer many purposes. By the addition of a studio couch or day bed a pleasant occasional guest room may be acquired. It could meet the requirements for a sewing room. It can at all times be an attractive sitting room, or be used as a card room, study, work room or place of general recreation.

Best of all it represents the creation of a charming usuable apartment from an uninviting wasted space.

Funds for improvements are now obtainable from any Canadian bank under the Dominion Government's Home Improvement Plan.

PIPING ECONOMY

For economy in piping, the plumbing in the house should be grouped together if possible. In one-storey houses the kitchen sink should back against the bathroom wall. In two-storey houses the bathroom should be over the kitchen.

A flat piece of metal is remarkably helpful in painting window sash. Hold it tightly against the sash to prevent getting paint on the glass.

South Africa may pass overtime for all store clerks.

Bathroom Can Be Made As Attractive As Any Of The Other Rooms In House

The bathroom should not be neglected when the rest of the house is being redecorated. It can be made as attractive as any other room in the house and modern equipment that may be found on the market is not only a joy to the eye, but also a boon to the housekeeper, for it is easily cared for.

Like hats, the bathrooms of twenty years ago are out of style. A new bathmat or new curtains will not bring them up to date, any more than a smart bow would make grandmother's hat look like today's creation. Frills may now be obtained from any bath under the generous terms of the Home Improvement Plan. In this way the bathroom may be entirely done over.

One housewife attained exceptional results without too great an expenditure. A high wainscoting replaced the original bathroom. This was replaced by a washable tile. Above this, washable wall paper in a flowered pattern was used. The pink and blue and green of the larkspur formed a border.

New streamlined fixtures were installed, and a new floor laid. The radiator was moved to a more convenient position, and was covered. The new tub also had shower provisions, which the old room had not boasted.

Indirect lighting took the place of the old electric bulb that had thrown grotesque shadows on the face of Father when he tried to shave. The medicine chest had an unframed mirrored door.

The old rug, chairs window chairs and glass curtains were cleaned and looked like new in the renovated room.

Keen Demand For Houses With Scarcity Being Felt

Herb McCannon Reports Supply Reduced By Incoming Families

BUILDING LIVELINESS

The first week in April has produced a decided liveliness in the building industry in Peterborough as construction of some houses and repairs and improvements to others, together with enquiries for estimates of other jobs, have broadened the Spring movement.

Here J. McCannon told the Examiner today that the need of new houses in this city has been sharpened since the beginning of February. Nearly twenty families have come to Peterborough during the last few months, according to Mr. McCannon's real estate records, and have occupied all but a negligible few houses that may not be untenated.

"There may be an odd house here or there that is vacant, but they are very few" he said. "The city needs several distinct types of houses right now, the kind that will rent from $18 to $24 a month would probably be the most popular, and there is another class around $40 a month that shows a distinct scarcity.

Probably the main problem is to build a house to rent for $18 or $20 and make it worth while to the man who invests his money. There has been some talk of a modern apartment building being constructed here, and I think it would be fully occupied as soon as it was ready. At any rate more people are looking for homes this Spring than I have experienced in the last seven years. It is a healthy sign, and should be an inducement to any persons who are thinking of putting up houses to supply the present demand."

Pressure From Withia

From other sources it was learned that the need for new houses is not caused by pressure from without so much as from within. In other words newcomers may be able to find accomodation ready for them. Most of them coming to work here are prepared to pay the rents required, but the other group representing the "demand from within" may be illustrated by families who "have been doubling up" two living in one house which formerly was occupied by one family alone. And in those circumstances, one bath room has to serve both families. It is stated that there are more groupings of this kind than is generally known, and naturally as employment increases and incomes improve these families desire to separate, to get back to normal conditions of comfort and privacy.

If all these people could be accomodated with new houses within their means the building industry would be working overtime.

Seek Improvements

Other tenants are wondering whether they can better their own surroundings by locating houses equipped with some of the modern developments about which they hear and read so much. This disposition is probably sounding a warning to the landlord who is satisfied to let the old type of house continue to meet the competition of the steadily increasing number of new ones that are stamped with the improvements which are features of 1937 building designs.

LAUNDRY AID

Service, convenience and comfort are the primary factors in good laundry room equipment. Most equipment is installed too low, causing housewives many backaches from stooping. A built-in bench at proper height will be found convenient and an effective place to install washers, ironers, etc. Tubs should be at such a height that the housewife does not have to stoop from the shoulders.

FOR YOUR TELEPHONE

In almost every house there is some place under the stair or off the coat closet or beside a chimney where a telephone niche can be installed. Below this niche there may be a space with perpendicular divisions for telephone books. Somewhere in a convenient spot in the niche should be a pad and pencil for memoranda.

Club Plans Coronation Ball.

A Coronation Ball on the 7th of May was one of the interesting events planned by the Caledonian Club at the meeting held on Friday night in the Woodmen of the World Hall. Other social events include a Ladies' Night on April 23rd, with all arrangements in charge of the ladies, and the regular whist drive for next Friday evening.

At last night's meeting, President J. Miller occupied the chair, and the business session was followed by games and cards and carpenball, with the service of refreshments by the executive.

Included in the committee for this month are Mrs. J. Wylie and Mrs. S. Leith.

Successful Tennis Club Dance.

A feature of the Easter Dance of the Peterborough Tennis Club, held in the Canadian Legion Hall on Friday evening, was a Floor Show that proved to be a novel and interesting portion of the entertainment of the evening. Little Lenore Gordon danced and sang for the guests, and Wilfred Galvin presented a series of imitations.

Over two hundred people were present and danced to music played by Perce Atkinson's orchestra, with a number of gay novelty numbers. Max Swartz acted as Master of Ceremonies.

Patrons and patronesses included His Worship Mayor Macdonald and Mrs. Macdonald; F. D. Kerr, K.C., and Mrs. Kerr; Lt.-Col. and Mrs. J. A. Dewart; Dr. and Mrs. A. W. McPherson and Dr. and Mrs. R. K. Magee. The members of the executive committee presented the patronesses with pretty corsage bouquets of roses.

Members of the executive of the club, in charge of arrangements, were the present, Jack Kirkwood; the secretary, Howard Macdonald; the treasurer, Ben Swartz, Miss Violet Davidson was in charge of the decorations, assisted by Miss Mary McPherson and Jack Cowling.

The decorations were very effective and appropriate to the occasion. Black silhouettes decorated the walls, emblematic of tennis, in girls with tennis rackets and men taking part in the game, alternated by silhouettes of tennis rackets and balls. The orchestra stand was backed by a black drape centered by the design: "Tennis Club," picked out in white balls, with a tennis player in white as a large decorative motif.

Foremen's Ladies' Night.

A short minstrel show entitled "Judge Cotton's Court," with Alderman R. A. Cotton presiding, featured the entertainment of the Ladies' Night of the Foremen of the Canadian General Electric Company, held on Friday evening at the Empress Hotel, with an attendance of approximately one hundred and thirty.

"Judge" Cotton was assisted by three officers of the law: William Wheeler, Horace Steer and Tom Hooper Jr., while hangers-on at the court were four negroes: Horace Pickaninny," by George Mall, who also played a mouth-organ solo. S. O. Shields, president of the Foremen's Association, was in the chair. The toast to "The Ladies," proposed by C. A. Saimenson, was ably responded to by Mrs. J. Morley.

Each lady received a beautiful cup and saucer donated by the Canadian General Electric Company. Other prizes of the evening were donated by Canadian Industries, Ltd., James Weir Company, Imperial Oil Company, Sherwin Company and the Scarfe Company.

Just Between Us Women

SOME write their wrongs in marble; he more just Stooped down serene and wrote them in the dust.
Trod under foot, the sport of every wind,
Swept from the earth, and blotted from his mind.
Then, secret in the grave, he bade them lie.

Samuel Madden.

Dear Friends:

Sometimes life is very confusing. We like someone and invest them with the qualities we think they must have, then find out our judgment was all wrong, and wonder what we are going to do about it, and if there is any truth anywhere.

But, one thing we must learn, and that is that there is no perfection anywhere. Are you perfect and can you fill everyone's idea of the sort of person they thought you were to be? Am I perfect, and can I also fill the bill for everyone? No, absolutely not!!

The only thing we can do is to consider how that person is with us, and if they are alright, then let the weaknesses they may have shown to others be forgotten by us. We do not know what may have brought out these traits in that person, things may have occurred between them and others which may never occur in your dealings with them, so why should you condemn them for what they may have done to another.

There is too much of that in the world. Two people have some quarrel, or some difference of opinion, and immediately they try to turn their friends against each other. Generally when the thing is examined, they are both in the wrong more or less, and once their vision clears will become friends again.

But when you come up against a lot of that, you begin to wonder what it is all about. You cannot clear up everyone's troubles, you cannot see with their eyes, you must take people as you find them more or less, and if you do not like what you find, then all you can do is leave them alone.

But if they are alright with you, if they have always treated you right, then do not be influenced too much by other people's opinions. Some of us bring out the best in others, and some bring out the worst, so think that over when someone warns you about some friend. They might never treat you as they have done the other, because you would never give them cause.

We have all met at sometime in our lives, people who irritated us beyond endurance, yet they may be mighty nice to others, and they in turn cannot understand why their people rub us the wrong way.

Again we might love someone, and our other friend cannot bear to be in the same room with them. "One man's meat is another man's poison," so we should look at it like that, and give the person the benefit of the doubt until they prove themselves undeserving of our friendship, which may never happen.

Sometimes we hear a friend say of another, "oh, I don't know how you can bear to be friendly with her or him." Yet never has the one under discussion let you down, always they have been considerate and kind, so why should you let them go out of your life because someone else does not like them? It's downright foolish.

We all set up an ideal of what a friend should be and do, but we forget to think if we ourselves are a friend like that. We want consideration for ourselves, we want our faults overlooked, but seldom do we overlook the faults of our friends, and then we tell someone that if they did not live up to our specifications, they won't live up to theirs. Truly we are funny folk.

So have a little give and take, and think if your friend is not perfect, neither are you, and if you expect them to love you with all your faults, love them with theirs, for none are perfect.

Your Friend,
ROBERTA.

Park Street Congregation Honors Rev. and Mrs. Tyler

PRESENTATIONS MADE

The measure of respect and esteem in which the Rev. O. K. Tyler and Mrs. Tyler are held by the congregation of Park Street Baptist Church was amply demonstrated at a congregational gathering on Friday night.

Held in honor of Mr. Tyler who is leaving on Monday next to accept the pastorate of First Baptist Church at Woodstock after a successful ministry of five years at the south end church here, the function which was attended by the Rev. J. H. Sutcliffe, pastor of Murray Street Baptist Church and the Rev. R. D. Wright, pastor of Gilmour Memorial Church, together with Adjutant Neil Warrender representing Peterborough Ministerial Association, was presided over by Maurice Dunkley, chairman of the Board of Deacons.

In acknowledging the gift of a typewriter from the officers and members of the church which was made to him, and after tendering thanks on behalf of Mrs. Tyler and their two children Lura and Broadus Tyler, the Rev. Mr. Tyler presented his congregation with a framed picture of himself which is to be hung in the vestry.

The presentation to the pastor was made by B. Smith and that to Mrs. Tyler by Mrs. O. Young, while gifts to their daughter and son were made respectively by Dorothy Taylor and Jim Sarvis.

The Address

Accompanying the presentations was an address, read by Newton Hamilton as follows:

"Our hearts are full with varied emotions. We have a feeling of joy and thankfulness that is tinged with thoughts of regret. Joy and thankfulness that God in his goodness opened the way for you to come to us as our pastor and for the many blessings that have been ours in fellowship together and regret that this occasion is in the nature of a farewell and that our relationship as pastor and people is at an end.

"Let us say that we have appreciated every hour of our association together, and thank God for it.

"As you are about to leave us, may we assure you that you will ever remain in our thoughts and in our prayers, that God may use you more abundantly in your new field of service for Him.

"We would ask you to accept these gifts as some slight token of our love and appreciation, trusting that they may be of real assistance to you in your new ministry of service."

As the first speaker on the program, which was freely interspersed with a varied number of musical selections, Adjutant Warrander spoke of the big loss to the Ministerial Association that would be occasioned by the removal from the city of the Rev. Mr. Tyler.

The Rev. Mr. Wright spoke of his association with Mr. Tyler and expressed the hope that both he and Mrs. Tyler would have God's richest blessing in the other charge to which they are going.

Splendid Relationship

Expressing on behalf of Murray Street Church appreciation of his colleague's ministry here, the Rev. Mr. Sutcliffe declared, "the relationship between Murray Street and Park Street churches has been of the highest order possible." While he regretted the removal from Peterborough of the Rev. Mr. Tyler and Mrs. Tyler he wished them both God speed.

He added, "Mr. Tyler's influence will continue to be felt here even after he has left because he put into his ministry those things of the heart and soul which are enduring."

In response the Rev. Mr. Tyler declared that his five years as pastor at Park Street Church had been extremely happy years. He acknowledged the gracious words spoken by Adjutant Warrender on behalf of the Ministerial Association and said that his relationship with his brother ministers of all religious denominations in the city were deeply appreciated.

Presents Photograph

On behalf of Mrs. Tyler and himself, he asked Mr. Dunkley to accept for the officers and congregation of the church a framed photograph of himself to be hung in the church vestry as a token of "my love and appreciation of this congregation."

At the conclusion of the program of speeches and entertainment refreshments were served by the ladies of the church. Those who contributed to an enjoyable program of entertainment included:

The misses I. Pilling, M. Sands, N. Lane and A. Sands, a quartette of outstanding merit who were accompanied at the piano by Stanley Northrop; Messrs. Ashton Fife and Harold Fife, piano and harmonica selections; Jim Sands, unaccompanied vocal solos; Stanley Northrop, violin solo; J. Newble, concertina solo with violin accompaniment.

700 EXHIBITS ARE ENTERED AT HOBBY SHOW

Industry And Ingenuity Of Younger Peterborough Is Well Demonstrated

MANY FINE MODELS

The industry and ingenuity of Peterborough's younger generation was demonstrated in full measure as the doors of the Boys' Hobby Show were thrown open to the public last evening. Several hundred persons inspected the 700 hobby exhibits on display.

Importance of hobbies in the life of the boy and the young man was stressed by Mayor George A. Macgonald as he officiated in opening the exhibition. Introduced by Charles Shaw, Y.M.C.A. director who served as chairman for the occasion, he commended the part the Y.M.C.A. has played in sponsoring the shows.

Hobbies ranging widely in nature were indicated. Exhibits were segregated in a dozen different departments and were the work of 36 different exhibitors, juniors 10 years and under and seniors over 10 years of age. They were displayed in attractive layouts in the second-floor auditorium of the building.

Art Department

Again the art department drew an outstanding range of exhibits. Work of all types was on view — pencil, charcoal, water colours, oils, crayon and inks and the ribbon winners in each section were, on the whole, highly creditable pieces. Warren Gamble had two hundred varied submissions in competition. Other big contributors were Sam Rogow, Irvin Fraser and Frank Adams.

Commendable was the exhibit of wood work handicraft. The section included many such ambitious woodworking efforts as jardinier stands, book racks and tables and also a diverse selection of smaller pieces. Tom McMillan and Bill Hall had some fine contributions in the furniture class. Fred Craig's ship models attracted attention and the fretwork contributed by Warren Gamble was of note. With a variety of exhibits in this department, Harvey Allison won several ribbons. R. Titterington, 8 years of age, had some interesting specimens of wood burning.

Entrees in the coin and stamp department were well up to past years, Len Thomas and Sam Rogow being the chief exhibitors. In the radio department, Bob Graham, Louis Cherney, T. MacDonald and Don McPherson took the honors with a number of clever home-made receivers. The soap sculpture department boasted but a small exhibit but the quality of the work was high. Jim Hawthorne and Irwin Fraser were the feature contributors.

Fine Models

Perhaps the greatest hobby ingenuity was demonstrated in the fine exhibit of model aircraft. Several fine models capable of actual flight were the work of Art Geraghty. Tom Hooper showed a fine selection of smaller non-working models and Mac Powell was a star contributor.

Interesting always is the department of miscellaneous collections and the strange assortment of collections this year is up to anything of past years—anything from collections of door keys to label collections. Mac Powell, Bob Ferguson and Chalmer Gillespie were the department leaders. Bill Scott, Stuart Cauley and Fred Hooper were leading ribbon winners in the fine photography exhibit. Particular attention was won by the leathercraft show of carefully and artistically worked gun cases, portfolios, book covers and other leather goods. Don Plett and Frank Patterson had the big part in this section. A model trolley and bridge by Joe Chantigny and a lathe by Ray Borland were features of the mechanical models department but many others had fine entries. Principal entries in the mechanical drawing section were by Don Perks and Ed. Downing.

Non-Competitive Exhibits

Several fine non-competitive exhibits brightened the show. Hundreds viewed the fine display of art loaned by the Peterborough Art Club. A fine exhibit was provided by the manual training department of the public schools and an unusual exhibit of metal and wood handicraft was provided by N. C. Munro. Again a fine display of oils by Kaj Dunesen was to be seen. A layout of re-built toys supplied by the Fire Department served to convey a concrete idea of just what is being done along this line each year in supplying the needy children of the city with Christmas toys. A special prize offered by Ross Dobbin, Utilities Commission manager, for the best scale model of a hydro line set-up attracted fine entries.

Judges

Judges were as follows: Art, Miss Mamie McCarthy; radio, P. H. Smedmor; photography, Fred Cripps; model airplanes, Gerald Moffat; mechanical models, E. J. Davies; mechanical drawing, F. E. Johnston; manual training, A. Hope and N. C. Munro; leathercraft, Elmer Tretheway; stamps and coins, Rand Houston; and, miscellaneous collections, A. Hope and N. C. Munro.

With The Girl Guides

The Peterborough Girl Guides held a Mothers' Night, Friday evening, in the parish hall of St. John's Church. The entertainment of the evening took the form of an ordinary Guide meeting. The companies went into horseshoe formation, and after a few remarks made by the senior captain of Peterborough, the Mothers and Guides joined in the singing of "O Canada." Mrs. Rogers, District Commissioner, in a few words extended a welcome to the mothers.

Following this, Guides Iris Whalen, Mary Stewart and Peggy Houghton signalled "Welcome, Mothers" each letter, a Brownie carrying that letter, stepped forward until the whole phrase was translated for the audience. The next item on the program was a poem entitled "When Mother's on the Job," given by Moira Whalon, followed by a demonstration of knee exercises. Camp fire singing came next, including rounds and action songs, and then a solo by Jane Turner, "Smiling Through." To finish this part of the program a tap-dancing display and a skipping display were given by a number of the girls of 1st and 2nd Companies.

Mrs. A. W. Turner, the president of the local Association, spoke of prospects for holding a Guide camp this summer, and asked the co-operation of the mothers. She announced the promotion of Mrs. Whalon, captain of 1st Company, and senior captain of Peterborough, to the rank of district captain.

During the evening, Mrs. Whalon, 1st Company, and Miss Shaughnessy, 2nd Company, presented second class and needlewoman's badges and also service stars. Those receiving badges were Moira Whalon, Iris Whalon, Helen Mathias, Catherine White, Hazel Bradley, Jane Turner, Margaret Hooper, Mary Stewart, Betty Dundas, Bernice Primeau, Louise Roche, Mary O'Brien, Zita Dunford, Norma Shaughnessy. Irene Houghton was presented with three badges: music lovers, minstrel and needlewoman's. Miss Marita Shaughnessy was presented with her music lover's badge.

Following the singing of Taps and God Save the King, refreshments were served, concluding a very enjoyable evening.

ICE STILL SOLID.

The ice is still solid in Stoney Lake. S. Murphy who has a mill near Jack's Creek was able on Friday to drive from the head of the lake to Crowe's Landing and reported the ice as firm as ever.

IT WILL NOT BE LONG

As an indication that the summer holiday season is not so very far off R. J. Lennox of Lakefield, proprietor of Bellevidere summer resort is leaving for Crowe's Landing next week to begin work preparing that well known holiday haven for the season. There are a great many preliminary tasks to be done and Mr. Lennox will remain at Crowe's Landing from now until closing-up time late next fall.

PETERBOROUGH WELL REPRESENTED

Peterborough educational circles are well represented in the officers elected by the various departments of the Ontario Educational Association at its annual meeting in Toronto this week. Miss M. R. Bannis of the Normal School staff was chosen as president of the Music Section of the O.E.A. while the honor of presiding over the Inspectors' Section for the next year has fallen to County School Inspector R. F. Downey, who was elected president of that department, this week.

KNOX W.M.S.

The Easter Thankoffering meeting of the W.M.S. of Knox United Church was held on Thursday in the church parlors, with the president, Mrs. A. E. Sanderson, in the chair. The devotional leaflet was read by Mrs. George Davis and a beautiful duet, "The Christ of the Cross" was sung by Mrs. H. Lewis and her daughter, Miss M. Lewis, with piano accompaniment by Miss G. Lancashire. The Easter service program was read by the ladies, with brief paragraphs given by Mesdames Sanderson, A. Long, W. Stevens.

Her hat of white satin had a shoulder-length veil, she wore white satin slippers and white lace mittens and carried an arm bouquet of red Premier Supreme roses.

Miss Madeline Peters was in aquamarine blue taffeta, the jacket having puffed sleeves. Her matching hat was trimmed with pink roses; she wore silver slippers and lace mittens and a corsage of pink roses.

After the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bridegroom on Lafayette avenue, where decorations were carried out in pink and white, and buffet refreshments were served from a table centered by the bride's cake and done with pink flowers and candles.

Mr. James and his bride left on the afternoon train for a honeymoon in Toronto and London, the latter travelling in a frock of brown taffeta trimmed with pink, with a corsage of pink roses. COCKER SPANIEL NAMED BEST DOG IN HOBBY SHOW

PLENTY OF NOISE

The aristocratic Doberman-Pinscher looked with aloof disdain upon the big, shaggy, friendly Newfoundland; cocky little terriers barked challenges at snooty Boston bulls, and good natured collies fraternized genially with tail-wagging water spaniels. It was the occasion of the annual Boys' Hobby Show dog matinee in the Y.M.C.A. gymnasium this morning.

The show was a barking, yapping, howling success, with bigger and better dogs and smaller and cuter dogs than ever before. Twenty-six big dogs and little dogs, thoroughbreds and mongrels, were led by proud little lads in the final grand parade around the judging stand in the gymnasium at the conclusion of the show.

Adjudged the best dog in the show was the little cocker spaniel shown by Arthur Turner. "Skippy" garnered three first ribbons as the best in his class and the best small dog in the show as well as the ribbon for the best of all dogs shown.

"Scruggy," a wire-haired terrier shown by George Shaw, took the ribbon in its own class and was chosen second best dog in the show. A first-prize pekinese, "Bunty," shown by Arthur Legros, was chosen third dog of the show. The fact that its ears had been cropped incurred the disapproval of the dog show officials and lost a fine Doberman-Pinscher a chance at a high award.

The Prize Winners.

The prize-winning showmen were as follows:

Bill Wade—Best cross breed.

Murray Metcalfe—First and second ribbons for two beagle hounds.

Alvin Boyd—First cocker spaniel.

H. Amys—Third cocker spaniel.

Larry Edwards — First cocker spaniel puppy.

Bus Drummond— First French poodle.

George Leeming— First Pomeranian.

Jack Hardill—Second fox terrier.

Don Ford—First police dog.

Dr. Thomas Johnston, Humane Society inspector served as judge.

Many Can Tell When Christopher Columbus Discovered America

FEW WHEN EDWARD QUIT

It is a curious fact that ancient historical dates are more readily called to memory by the average person, than the dates of quite recent events in national or world affairs.

For instance in a little practical experiment conducted by The Examiner, it was proved conclusively that nine out of ten people can tell you right off the bat when Christopher Columbus discovered America, but not one out of ten can recall with any certainty when King Edward VIII. (the present Duke of Windsor) abdicated his throne.

How long is it before outstanding dates in history become fixed in people's minds? That's a question on which one cannot generalize. But it is a pretty safe bet the only reason faraway dates can be recalled so readily is that they were definitely fixed in mind when dry passages from historical text books had to be remembered, under threat of staying in after school or being dubbed the school's prize dunce.

The ninety per cent. who can tell you when Columbus discovered America, will admit the date comes so readily to their lips because they memorized it at school by learning the old formulae, "Columbus sailed the ocean blue in 1492." But there was the odd one who said 1493 for they remembered "Columbus sailed the deep blue sea in 1493."

A local advertising representative said he remembered the date of Columbus' voyage of discovery because "it was publicized."

"You can't say that King Edward's abdication was not publicized," he was chided when he failed to recall the exact date of that recent event in British history.

"I knew the month, didn't I? That's all I remember about Columbus. I just didn't bother to remember the exact day and hour he first set foot on American soil," he argued.

A photographer who could probably give you a developing formulae without difficulty or provide the proper exposure to make under any given conditions, frankly admitted he didn't know when Columbus discovered America nor when King Edward VIII. abdicated. And what is more, he said, he didn't care.

We asked him on what date Britain declared war against Germany, feeling confident that this outstanding date in world history was known by everyone.

"It was in 1913," he suggested.

At the second guess he thought that perhaps it was in August, 1914.

"Yes. That's it," he affirmed. "August 17, 1914."

When told the correct date was August 4, he naively remarked, "Oh, I thought that was Guy Fawkes day."

Remembers Wife's Birthday.

"It isn't poor memory that accounts for my inability to recall the date of these events," an insurance agent declared. "But why should I remember them? I have other things to think about. I never fail to recall my wife's birthday or our wedding anniversaries, nor on what day of the month the rent falls due."

Store Clerk: "Why Columbus discovered America in 1492. King Edward's abdication? That was on the 10th of December, 1936."

Telegraph messenger: "It was in 1492 that Columbus crossed the Atlantic, but I can't just remember when King Edward gave up the throne."

Cigar Store Clerk: "Columbus discovered America in 1492. I am not sure of the date King Edward abdicated."

Cigar Store Customer: "He's right about the date American was discovered. I don't know just when the King gave up. It was not very long ago, however."

Stenographer: "That's easy. Columbus came to America in 1493 and the King abdicated in November of last year. I can't just remember the exact date."

County Employee: "Columbus discovered America in 1492. As to the King's abdication, it was in December of last year, and I am pretty sure it was on the 8th of that month."

Wrong on First One.

Drug Store Clerk: "Well, I think Columbus discovered America in 1620, for is not there something about him sailing the deep blue sea. As for Edward's abdication it was December 10, 1936."

School Teacher: "Columbus discovered America in 1942. Why, that is easy. Now ask me something difficult. When did Edward abdicate? then the protagonist was asked. "Well, now, that's a little more difficult, but I would say during the last few days in November or the first week in December, 1936."

An employee of The Examiner was asked the same question, and he got both right. "Columbus discovered America in 1492," he said. "That date has been fixed in my mind since I was a boy of 12 years. The inspector visited our school out in the country one day and asked us to stand up for the usual oral quiz. He asked a classmate when Columbus discovered America, and the chap halted. Well, said the inspector, always remember this line, 'Columbus sailed the ocean blue in 1492.' A few minutes later he asked the boy the same question, and he said 1493. 'What was that line I told you,' the inspector asked, and the boy replied, 'Columbus sailed the deep blue sea in 1493.' As for the date King Edward abdicated, it was too stirring a time in a newspaper office to easily forget."

SUDBURY FAVORED TO TAKE VOLANTS THEN HEAD WEST

Ottawa Rideaus And Saskatoon Wesleys Face Elimination Tonight

FINALS NEXT WEEK

TORONTO, April 3 (CP). — The Dominion 1936-37 amateur hockey cavalcade neared its climax today with the end of another week's fancy-making. Next week a senior team will head west and a junior band will move east for cup finals.

Six of seven survivors in the two classes will go back into action tonight. If precedent means much two will be eliminated. At any rate — barring long overtime ties—there will be no more than four games between tonight and the start of finals.

The fast North Battleford Beavers still stand and wait does not dim their impressiveness. Beavers gained recognition as the country's number one team when they rocketed to Saskatchewan and Western Union titles. They'll stay on their pedestal unless Sudbury Tigers or Hull Volants spring the unexpected in Allan Cup finals at Calgary.

Sudbury and Hull begin eastern finals tonight at Ottawa. Playing as Frood Mines, the Northern Ontario pucksters lost only one game over a heavy league schedule. Under the Tiger cognomen, they've lost only once in playdowns.

Although there's nothing in the winter's record on which to base comparisons, Sudbury has been made favorite to take the best-of-three round with Hull and go west.

Volants Uncertain.

But no one can aptly figure Volants' possibilities. In a winter of upsets they have registered some of the greatest. Their recent conquest of Quebec Aces was a classic. A magnificent defensive system and a courage that makes champions carried them past the favored aces in a frenzied series.

Volants will not be trailing in the wagering at Ottawa, for the whole district shares Hull's title hopes. Their chances should be boosted, too, by the extent of the Sudbury hospital list. A head injury will keep Tiger Defenceman Frankie Lavigne out for the season. Coach Bill Stuart said last night, and Wingman Don Grosso may not play tonight because of a charley-horse.

Second game of the set is scheduled for Toronto Monday, and if a third is necessary it will be played there Wednesday.

Ottawa Rideaus and Saskatoon Wesleys face elimination from junior semi-finals tonight. If they go out, their opponents, Winnipeg Monarchs and Copper Cliff Redmen, will contest Memorial Cup finals at Toronto.

Of the two undergos, Wesleys seem to have the better chance of surviving the night. They were beaten 3-2 in the opener of their best-of-three series at Winnipeg but Monarchs had to come from behind in the third period to win.

Dune Farmer, Saskatoon coach, plans a wide-open offensive in an effort to cope with Winnipeg's speedy attack and smooth-passing plays. Admittedly gambling on the success or failure of his plan, the Western mentor promised to make a spectacle of the second game. If it works there'll be a third battle on Monday. The entire round is being waged at Winnipeg.

Rideaus To Go Better

Cy Denneny said his Rideaus played their worst hockey of the winter when they lost 12-3 to Copper Cliff at Ottawa. He looks for something better tonight at Toronto, but Rideaus will have to show plenty to cope with a team that carries one of junior hockey's great all-time forward lines. The current campaign has uncovered no more remarkable unit than Red Hamill, Pat McReavy and Ayr Heximer, Copper Cliff front division.

The Copper Cliff-Ottawa set is also on a best-of-three basis.

Should Copper Cliff and Winnipeg both win tonight, Memorial Cup finals will start at Toronto Tuesday. If the Sudbury-Hull series lasts only two games, Allan Cup finals will begin Thursday at Calgary; if it goes the limit of three, finals cannot start until Saturday.

They were thumbing the record books today for a precedent to Red Hamill's scoring mark in his last two playoff games. In the first, against Montreal Victorias, he took part in eight goals. In the second he figured in nine counters as Copper Cliff set down Rideaus. This total of 17 points was gained on foreign ice.

Boston Bruins are said to have Hamill on their negotiation list. Other Redmen will likely get tryouts with professional clubs next fall.

Only Pete Ettinger, Eddie Martinson and Archie Wilder of Saskatchewan's good young junior team will not be eligible for junior hockey next year. Martinson and Wilder, both wingmen, have had senior experience.

A promised meeting of two brothers will not develop in tonight's Allan Cup semi-final. Albert Chiolette of Hull is out for the season with a leg injury. Jules Chiolette is a star of the Sudbury attack.

At The Baseball Training Camps

CLEARWATER, Fla., April 3 (A.P.)—Before Brooklyn Dodgers break camp next Wednesday, Manager Burleigh Grimes will cut down his squad by several players. A number of the youngsters to be cast off will go to the Louisville American Association Colonels, with whom Brooklyn has a working agreement.

MOBILE, Ala.—New York Yankees, from big shots to bat boy, breathed easier today. They learned that the ankle Lou Gehrig hurt in sliding into home plate at Tallahassee, Fla., yesterday was only bruised. The way the Iron Horse hobbled around when he got up caused fear that it might be more serious.

NEW ORLEANS—The easy part of New York Giants' training is over. From here on, beginning with today's game with Cleveland, they'll be bearing down in one of the most elaborate spring campaigning tours the club has ever tackled.

MAROONS MUST TRIUMPH TONIGHT

Victory For Rangers Will Give Them Series—In Montreal Arena

MONTREAL, April 3—(C.P.). — It's a case or "Do or Die" for Montreal Maroons to-night as they meet up again, and what may be the last time, with the fast-passing Rangers from New York.

Some 13,000 Montrealers will pack the Forum, convinced Maroons can "Do" and tie up their Stanley Cup semi-final at one game each. Victory for Rangers will give them the series two straight and bring an end to Montreal's professional hockey for the season.

While Rangers go out after their fourth straight playoff victory, Maroons go into the game with the knowledge that one mistake means the hockey sah-can.

And that's the kind of situation Maroons seem to relish.

Through the last half of the league schedule, they were at their best against the toughest teams and when the stakes were highest. Right now Rangers are as tough as anyone and the stakes as high as hockeymen can play for.

It still wasn't know definitely early to-day whether Jimmy Ward would be added to the Montreal line-up. Ward, recovered after a month's illness, would lend strength to both attacking and defending divisions with his speed and punch.

OTTAWA WOMEN IN "BIRD" FINALS

Windeler And Biette Of Toronto Bryson And Snell Meet Misses

TORONTO, April 3 (CP). — The strong Ottawa team of Miss I. Bryson and Miss Betty Snell today enter finals in the women's doubles of the annual invitation badminton tourney now in its third day at the Granite Club here. The Ottawa duo will meet Miss C. Windeler and Miss K. Biette, Toronto, the other team to survive last night's semi-finals.

The Ottawa team defeated Mrs. W. R. Walton and Mrs. J. Gilmour of Toronto, 15-6, 15-10, in last night's play, while the Toronto finalists knocked out Mrs. E. Wittington and Miss N. Crossley, Oakville, 17-14, 12-15, 15-12.

In men's doubles the highly-rated Montreal team of A. Astle and E. Hankin entered semi-finals, defeating F. Lowndsdrough and B. Geale, Toronto, 15-11, 15-10. P. and J. Snyder, brothers from Waterloo, Ont., also downed their opponents, T. Smith and G. Cook, Toronto, 15-13, 15-0; Today Astle and Hankin face D. Grant and E. Terry, Toronto, while the Snyders meet J. Sibbald and J. Zaharko of Toronto.

Outstanding upset of last night's play was the defeat of Rod Phelan, former Canadian champion, and P. Percival, Toronto, 15-11, 3-15, 15-9, by Grant and Terry in the men's doubles.

In mixed doubles, Miss Snell of Ottawa and J. Zaharko of Toronto, 15-11, 18-13.

COMPSTON'S BETS TO ESCAPE TAX

British Professional Is Haled Before Revenue Court And Wins

LONDON, April 3.— (CP).—The professional golfer may make a tidy sum each year on backing his own skill, but his betting revenue is not liable to income tax.

Archie Compston was the subject of a full dress debate in the Revenue Court of the King's Bench division and won when his counsel made a sharp drive out of the rough to accuse the revenue authorities of "looseness of thought."

Compston, professional of the Coombe Hill Golf Club, admitted winning £5,000 in bets during 1936. Years ago the revenue department went after him for additional income tax. The case has been heard by lesser bodies and now Mr. Justice Lawrence has dismissed with costs an appeal by the authorities against the decision of the General Commissioners that Compston was not keeping a full score sheet.

Compston argued that if an ordinary person had a bet his profit was not accounted to the income tax collector; that a ship's officer did not have to pay a part of any winnings he made betting on the day's run; that the bets had no relation to his job other than that his job made him a good man to back.

But the plaintiffs declared Compston's betting had been done on so regular a schedule, each year amounting to hundreds of pounds, that his activity in the betting line should be compared to that of a bookmaker who was accountable to the income tax department.

Mr. Justice Lawrence ruled the winnings did not arise from his employment or vocation and were in no way analogous to gratuities for services rendered.

Catching Rookie With The Leafs

In an effort to collect a winning baseball team for Toronto, Manager Dan Howley, of the International League club, is trying out many rookies. Here is Bernard Solick, young catcher from West Palm Beach, Fla., who played with Augusta in the South Atlantic League last season and later with Ozark in Alabama-Georgia circuit. Solick was recommended to Howley and he impressed the Leaf's manager in his first work-out.

SPORTS DAY by DAY

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

By CEC. PERDUE

THIS COLUMN was written yesterday on account of we wanted to leave last night for the O.B.A.A. convention in Oshawa last p.m. and today. So this pillar of—heh, heh—wisdom will be made up of time copy. We'd better explain that "time copy" is a newspaper term just the opposite to "spot news". The latter means something that is hot and if not shoved into print right away it becomes cool and stale. Whereas time copy is just some more or less interesting matter that can be run in the paper tomorrow or the day after as well as today—it is still timely. Thus we have to omit spot news comments, for instance, on the girls' basketball playoffs here yester e'en, since we were unfortunate enough to miss them. Dope on these tilts should be in somewhere tonight.

* * * * * *

AND THERE is a picture in this eve of the Omemee Black Hawks, this week-end has sort of finalized on this subject for the manner in which it hopped all over creation, playing all sorts of squads and copping one decision after another. It is pretty much the same outfit that played in our Senior City Hockey League—nee Blood and Thunder—two winters back. The unfortunate thing is the O's have no rink of their own. They hope to build one for next winter and they deserve plenty of support. Omemee has a good hockey team and should not have to play all games on foreign ice.

* * * * * *

TAKE THIS past winter. The Hawks won four cups out of six, the Hughes Cup, the Hall and Hall Trophy, the Hogg and Lytle silverware and the Stinson Cup. In a flock of tough tourneys here and there. They won 20 out of 22 games and most of 'em quite handily. As an example of the strength of these villagers, they were nosed out 4-3 by Sunderland All-Stars (picked from Whitby, Port Perry, Cannington and Sunderland) in 30 minutes of overtime during the Felt Cup playoffs. The same Sunderland team took a 4-3 win over the strong Oshawa General Motors' team, which was at full strength. In their Big Four group, the Omemee outfit won eight games without a reverse and then knocked off Little Britain two straight in playoffs. Pretty good for "riniklea wonders", what? Yeah, they rate an arena of their own.

* * * * * *

ALL CREDIT to the Belleville Redmen for winning the O.H.A. intermediate "B" championship. They defeated Thorold Mountaineers in the finals. The team, which played in our "A" and "B" group this winter, is well known to local puck fans. Especially Harry Ingram and Buster Whitton of Campbellford. And Ross Burley who once played junior here. Also Tompkins and the Jackson boys who played for Belleville juniors against our Colts this winter and then moved up to intermediate company. And Speedy St. Louis who is something of a baseballer, too. Yeah, we're glad they won and extend congrats. True we criticized 'em for not playing in "A" hockey, and we still think a town that size should sponsor better hockey. But with the material they had—and they showed they weren't in a class with the Fliers or Petes this winter—they did okay. Artificial ice there next winter might mean a return to strong hockey for Skipper Thomas and his Redmen.

* * * * * *

THREE BASKETBALL games at the "Y" gym tonight. First two are finals in the Boys' Hobby Show tournaments, run off through the week. Junior finals will be at 7.30 and the intermediate playoffs at 8.15. At 9.00, the Senior City Basketball League finalists clash in the first game of the playoffs. St. Paul's are slight favorites to win but P.C.I. has quite a following of fandom, too. Should be lots of action for the hoop customers this p.m. and a big crowd is expected.

* * * * * *

LOT OF ball fans have been inquiring: "Who is this Fred Collins that's gonna manage the Petes this summer?" We told all we knew the other day. He's a middle-aged gent who has managed teams in Western Canada. He is keenly interested in baseball, seems to understand it thoroughly, and has been following it closely here since he came to Peterborough early last summer. Most of the players have known him since last season and like him. In fact, some of them were the first to approach him and sound him out on taking over the managerial reins. He is big, friendly and ready to argue baseball with anyone at anytime. He was wounded overseas, we understand. The local officials have confidence in him and also have the idea—pretty sound one, too—that a comparative stranger to town who knows his stuff can get more out of the players than a local coach.

* * * * * *

SHINER JOHNSTON feels the same about it. Shiner has had a world of experience in senior baseball in Toronto and in the C.O.B.L. He was always a smart, scrappy player. He managed the Petes last year but was glad to pull out at the end of the season. "What can you do," he asked us afterward in disgust, "with makeshift material and when the players would sooner play softball than come out to baseball practises?" He was quite right. Give a coach a bunch of good players who will attend practises regularly and he can make something of that squad. Last year's local team wasn't so hot—and the players (some of 'em good seniors, too) will be the first to admit it. But we look for a big difference all around this coming summer.

* * * * * *

TWO IMPORTANT matters will have to be decided at the next senior ball meeting here. One is the admission charge at Riverside this year. Some of the officers already have suggested cutting the general admission down to two bits. They point out that the government tax will be off and that fans often squawk at a higher tariff than 25 cents. It's cheap enough but we agree that two bits is about right. If you get enough fans at that price you can't kick. Give 'em good ball and you'll get enough. The other important item is on the mixing of baseball with softball. Will the Petes be allowed to play softball—and if so, how often? What about baseball practises when there is a softball game also that night? Some out-and-out rule smack at the start of the season will have to be made and abided by. But more again.

* * * * * *

HITHER AND yawn: Maybe the men's City Softball League this spring will solve the problem by barring senior ball players . . . We honestly feel both sports would benefit by keeping players of one out of the other . . . Cobourg Alerts would still like to get into the Girls Softball Loop up this way; maybe Lindsay, too . . . Benjamin Orowarts will not operate a men's softball team this year and there is a scramble on for his players . . . But at least two will not play any more . . . Next C.O.B.L. meeting will be around the middle of April and likely in Peterborough . . . Local Hockey Club had a fine bank balance this winter; may get some dope on it Monday . . . No pro puck playoffs in Toronto tonight for the O.B.A.A. conventioners to adjourn to as in other years . . . Those interested in intermediate O.A.L.A. lacrosse are urged to attend the meeting Monday at eight p.m. in Dufferin.

WALLACE WINS WITH ONE HAND

Vancouver Ringster Takes Decision In Ten Rounds From Luftspring Of Toronto

TORONTO, April 3—(C.P.) — After brushing aside his ninth challenger with one good hand, Gordon Wallace, Vancouver's wily ringster, scanned a Canadian boxing horizon to-day for a few more welterweight title tussles.

Six days ago the bone was smashed in training for the title match. Wallace, after the fight, figured he used the sore left hand about six or seven times but he knew exactly what to do with his right. With his ring generalship and craft it was sufficient to keep the Toronto challenger off the throne.

Nearly 10,000 fans, reminiscent of pre-depression fight days in the Queen City, viewed the battle in Maple Leaf Gardens and left somewhat disappointed over the dull display. Only the first two of the ten rounds, Luftspring with two, and the fans from their seats.

Wallace was credited with five rounds, Luftspring with three, and three were called even. Luftspring, in his ninth professional fight, started with promise of unsetting the experts, catching the champion with a cracking left in the second and driving him with a two-fisted attack across the ring.

There was only a half pound difference in weight with Wallace at 143, and the challenger carrying the slight advantage.

Remember When—

All previous overtime records were shattered when Boston Bruins and Leafs clashed at Toronto four years ago tonight to decide the National Hockey League title. Ken Doraty gave Leafs the crown with the only goal of the game after 164 minutes, 46 seconds of play. This time was eclipsed as Montreal last year when Maroons and Detroit battled 176 minutes, 30 seconds, before the Red Wings won 1-0.

TIGHT CONTESTS SWIMMING EVENTS

Championship Water Sports Held In Conjunction With Boys' Hobby Show

The Y.M.C.A. natatorium was the scene of many thrilling events when the championship swims were held in conjunction with the Annual Boys' Hobby Show. The races were keenly contested and in several cases they were won and lost by inches.

Of particular interest was the 160 yard free style relay event which the Stoney Lake Sinkers won by a nose from the Rice Lake Ducklings. In the final of the 14 and under 20 yards free style, not more than a foot separated the winner Ken Rose from Chum Gillespie who was fourth.

Class champions were decided as follows: 12 and under, Gordon Matthews; 14 and under, Ken Rose; 16 and under, Dave Rogers; 19 and under, Jim Seymour; and senior, Bill Gerow. Special mention should also be made of the two youngest competitors, Roy Spencer and Peter Rhodes, who are doing remarkably well for their age.

Next Friday, the Y swimmers will engage in a dual meet with the Orillia Y.M.C.A. team and all swim enthusiasts will do well to be on hand to cheer the local lads on to a victory.

ELECTRIC GIRLS DEFEAT WESTCLOX CITY BASKETBALL

JUNIORS WIN 13-9

Sparkling basketball featured the first game of the two-out-of-three series for the championship of the Senior City Loop Friday night at the Y. gym when the classy C.G.E. girls completely outplayed the Westclox team for a 29 to 9 victory. The feud will be renewed next Friday night.

The Electrics dominated the play throughout, displaying a fast passing style that had the opposition baffled, and piled up the score when Audrey Craig clicked on perfect passes, as she stood unguarded under the Westclox basket. The winners led 14 to 2 at the end of half time, and Westclox failed to threaten in the second stanza, although the sub line played an effective checking game.

Play revolved around Margaret Wood, star centre for the Electrics who gave the most finished performance of the game, and with Marj. Hallihan and Jean Alexander forming an effective defence, the C.G.E. squad romped through repeatedly for baskets. Westclox on the other hand bunched and missed numerous chances when the players were not in scoring position to take passes. Their shooting was erratic, and only five different shots Gladys Mortimer smacked the ball against the iron ring.

Marg. Snowden, Goldie Hunter and the Blade sisters, Barbara and Madeline, were the pick of the Clockmakers, while Gladys Mortimer led the scoring with four points on foul shots. B. Blade scored a foul point and one basket, and C. Whatman tallied the other two points on a neat effort. Craig sunk five baskets for the winners, and M. Woods added eight points. E. Bradley and M. Hodson each clicked on two baskets.

The teams:

C.G.E. Seniors—A. Craig, M. Hodson, E. Hodson, M. Woods, K. Rogow, E. Bradley, D. Schultz, M. Hallihan and J. Alexander.

Westclox — A. Livingstone, G. Mortimer, B. Blade, M. Blade, C. Whatman, G. Hunter, D. Merrett, M. Snowden, and M. Ferguson.

Referee—Jack Cooper. Umpire—Ed Ascott.

C.G.E. Juniors eked out a 13 to 9 victory over the St. John's Juniors in the first game of the play-offs Friday night at "Y" gym, in a ding dong tussle that exhausted every player on both teams.

The Saints took the offensive with a beautiful passing game that gave them a big edge and were leading 9-4 when half time rolled around. Continual pressure and strenuous checking by the heavier C.G.E. quintet in the last half wore down the aggressive Saints who deserved a win on their showing. The game was the most hotly contested affair of the season, and indications are that the losers will force the series into three games.

Eddie Lynch, playing at centre for the winners was the star on that line-up scoring 7 of the 13 points. He used her weight to advantage and the light defence players for St. John's found it difficult to block her rushes.

Poor gunning lost the game for the Saints in the last half as Betty Castle, was wide of the basket in every shot and her team failed to score even a point in the last half. E. Clarke, G. Varty, and A. Bowler stood out as the most effective defensively while Snowden, (Cynare) and J. Coleman carried the fight to the Electrics.

The teams:

C.G.E.—P. Molash, M. Cunningsley, Elsie Foster, E. Birkhof, W. Hartley and E. Lynch.

St. John's Juniors—J. Coleman, J. McIlwain, I. Cynane, E. Craig, B. Castle, M. Snowden, A. Bowler, E. Clarke, G. Varty, I. Young, and E. Harte-Maxwell.

Referee—Gord McIntyre; Umpire—Ed Ascott.

PRESENTATIONS MADE

The measure of respect and esteem in which the Rev. O. K. Tyler and Mrs. Tyler are held by the congregation of Park Street Baptist Church was amply demonstrated at a congregational gathering on Friday night.

Held in honor of Mr. Tyler who is leaving on Monday next to accept the pastorate of First Baptist Church at Woodstock after a successful ministry of five years at the south end church here, the function which was attended by the Rev. J. H. Sutcliffe, pastor of Murray Street Baptist Church and the Rev. R. D. Wright, pastor of Gilmour Memorial Church, together with Adjutant Neil Warrender representing Peterborough Ministerial Association, was presided over by Maurice Dunkley, chairman of the Board of Deacons.

In acknowledging the gift of a typewriter from the officers and members of the church which was made to him, and after tendering thanks on behalf of Mrs. Tyler and their two children Lura and Broadus Tyler, the Rev. Mr. Tyler presented his congregation with a framed picture of himself which is to be hung in the vestry.

The presentation to the pastor was made by H. Smith and that to Mrs. Tyler by Mrs. G. Young, while gifts to their daughter and son were made respectively by Dorothy Taylor and Jim Sayle.

The Address

Accompanying the presentations was an address, read by Newton Hamilton as follows:

"Our hearts are full with varied emotions. We have a feeling of joy and thankfulness that is tinged with thoughts of regret. Joy and thankfulness that God in his goodness opened the way for you to come to us as our pastor and for the many blessings that have been ours in fellowship together and regret that this occasion is in the nature of a farewell and that our relationship as pastor and people is at an end.

"Let us say that we have appreciated every hour of our association together, and thank God for it.

"As you are about to leave us, may we assure you that you will ever remain in our thoughts and in our prayers, that God may use you more abundantly in your new field of service for Him.

"We would ask you to accept these gifts as some slight token of our love and appreciation, trusting that they may be of real assistance to you in your new sphere of endeavour."

As the first speaker on the program, which was freely interspersed with a varied number of musical selections, Adjutant Warrander spoke of the big loss to the Ministerial Association that would be occasioned by the removal from the city of the Rev. Mr. Tyler.

The Rev. Mr. Wright spoke of his association with Mr. Tyler and expressed the hope that both he and Mrs. Tyler would have God's richest blessing in the other charge to which they are going.

Splendid Relationship

Expressing on behalf of Murray Street Church appreciation of his colleague's ministry here, the Rev. Mr. Sutcliffe declared, "the relationship between Murray Street and Park Street churches has been of the highest order possible." While he regretted the removal from Peterborough of the Rev. Mr. Tyler and Mrs. Tyler he wished them both God speed.

He added, "Mr. Tyler's influence will continue to be felt here even after he has left because he put into his ministry those things of the heart and soul which are enduring."

In response the Rev. Mr. Tyler declared that his five years as pastor at Park Street Church had been extremely happy years. He acknowledged the gracious words spoken by Adjutant Warrender on behalf of the Ministerial Association and said that his relationship with his brother ministers of all religious denominations in the city were deeply appreciated.

Presents Photograph

On behalf of Mrs. Tyler and himself, he asked Mr. Dunkley to accept for the officers and congregation of the church a framed photograph of himself to be hung in the church vestry as a token of "my love and appreciation of this congregation."

At the conclusion of the program of speeches and entertainment refreshments were served by the ladies of the church. Those who contributed to an enjoyable program of entertainment included:

The misses I. Pilling, M. Sands, N. Lane and A. Sands, a quartette of outstanding merit who were accompanied at the piano by Stanley Northrop; Messrs. Ashton Fife and Harold Fife, piano and harmonica selections; Jim Sands, unaccompanied, vocal solos; Stanley Northrop, violin solo; J. Newble, concertina solo with violin accompaniment.

700 EXHIBITS ARE ENTERED AT HOBBY SHOW

Industry And Ingenuity Of Younger Peterborough Is Well Demonstrated

MANY FINE MODELS

The industry and ingenuity of Peterborough's younger generation was demonstrated in full measure as the doors of the Boys' Hobby Show were thrown open to the public last evening. Several hundred persons inspected the 700 hobby exhibits on view.

Importance of hobbies in the life of the boy and the young man was stressed by Mayor George A. Macdonald as he officiated in opening the exhibition. Introduced by Charles Shaw, Y.M.C.A. director who served as chairman for the occasion, he commended the part the Y.M.C.A. has played in sponsoring the shows.

Hobbies ranging widely in nature were indicated. Exhibits were segregated in a dozen different departments and were the work of 66 different exhibitors, juniors 19 years and under and seniors over 19 years of age. They were displayed in attractive layouts in the second-floor auditorium of the building.

Art Department

Again the art department drew an outstanding range of exhibits. Work of all types was on view — pencil, charcoal, water colours, oils, crayon and inks and the ribbon winners in each section were, on the whole, highly creditable pieces. Wattie Gamble had two hundred varied submissions in competition. Other big contributors were Sam Rogow, Irvin Fraser and Frank Adams.

Commendable was the exhibit of wood work handicraft. The section included many such ambitious woodworking efforts as jardinier stands, book racks and tables and also a diverse selection of smaller pieces. Tom McMillan and Bill Hall had some fine contributions in the furniture class. Fred Craig's ship models attracted attention and the fretwork contributed by Warren Gamble was of note. With a variety of exhibits in this department, Harvey Allison won several ribbons. R. Titterington, 8 years of age, had some interesting specimens of wood burning.

Entrees in the coin and stamp department were well up to past years. Len Thomas and Sam Rogow being the chief exhibitors. In the radio department, Bob Graham, Louis Guerney, T. MacDonald and Don McPherson took the honors with a number of clever home-made receivers. The soap sculpturing department boasted but a small exhibit but the quality of the work was high. Jim Hawthorne and Irvin Fraser were the feature contributors.

Fine Models

Perhaps the greatest hobby ingenuity was demonstrated in the fine exhibit of model aircraft. Several fine models capable of actual flight were the work of Art Geraghty. Tom Hooper showed a fine selection of smaller non-working models and Mac Powell was a star contributor.

Interesting always is the department of miscellaneous collections and the strange assortment of collections this year is up to anything of past years—anything from collections of door keys to lapel buttons. Mac Powell, Bob Ferguson and Chalmer Gillespie were the department leaders. Bill Scott, Stuart Cauley and Fred Hooper were leading ribbon winners in the fine photography exhibit. Particular attention was won by the leathercraft show of carefully and artistically worked gun cases, portfolios, book covers and other leather goods. Don Pett and Frank Patterson had the big part in this section. A model trolley and bridge by Joe Chantigny and a lathe by Ray Borland were features of the mechanical models department but many others had fine entries. Principal entries in the mechanical drawing section were by Don Perks and Ed. Downing.

Non-Competitive Exhibits

Several fine non-competitive exhibits brightened the show. Hundreds viewed the fine display of art loaned by the Peterborough Art Club. A fine exhibit was provided by the manual training department of the public schools and an unusual exhibit of metal and wood handicraft was provided by N. C. Munro. Again a fine display of ells by Kaj Dunesen was to be seen. A layout of re-built toys supplied by the Fire Department served to convey a concrete idea of just what is being done along this line each year in supplying the needy children of the city with Christmas toys. A special prize offered by Ross Dobbin, Utilities Commission manager, for the best scale model of a hydro line set-up attracted fine entries.

Judges

Judges were as follows: Art, Miss Mamie McCarthy; radio, P. H. Smednor; photography, Fred Cripps; model airplanes, Gerald Moffat; mechanical models, E. J. Davies; mechanical drawing, P. E. Johnston; manual training, A. Hope and N. C. Munro; leathercraft, Elmer Tretheway; stamps and coins, Rand Houston; and miscellaneous collections, A. Hope and N. C. Munro.

With The Girl Guides

The Peterborough Girl Guides held a Mothers' Night, Friday evening, in the parish hall of St. John's Church. The entertainment of the evening took the form of an ordinary Guide meeting. The companies went into horseshoe formation, and after a few remarks made by the senior captain of Peterborough, the Mothers and Guides joined in the singing of "O, Canada." Mrs. Rogers, District Commissioner, in a few words extended a welcome to the mothers.

Following this, Guides Iris Whalen, Mary Stewart and Peggy Hough-ton signalled "Welcome, Mothers" each letter, a Brownie carrying that letter, stepped forward until the whole phrase was translated for the audience. The next item on the program was a poem entitled "When Mother's on the Job," given by Moira Whalon, followed by a demonstration of knot tying and bandaging. Campfire singing came next, including rounds and action songs, and then a solo by Jane Turner, "Smiling Through." To finish this part of the program a tap-dancing display and a skipping display were given by a number of the girls of 1st and 2nd Companies.

Mrs. A. W. Turner, the president of the local association, spoke of prospects for holding a Guide camp this summer, and asked the co-operation of the mothers. She announced the promotion of Mrs. Whalon, captain of 1st Company, and senior captain of Peterborough, to the rank of district captain.

During the evening, Mrs. Whalon, 1st Company, and Miss Shaughnessy, 2nd Company, presented second class and needlewoman's badges and also service stars. Those receiving badges were Moira Whalon, Iris Whalon, Helen Mathias, Catharine White, Hazel Bradley, Jane Turner, Margaret Hooper, Mary Stewart, Betty Dundas, Bernice Primeau, Louise Rocha, Mary O'Brien, Ella Dunford, Norma Shaughnessy. Irene Houghton was presented with three badges: music lovers, minstrel and needlewoman's. Miss Martha Shaughnessy was presented with her music lover's badge.

Following the singing of Taps and God Save the King, refreshments were served, concluding a very enjoyable evening.

WEDDINGS

HARRINGTON—HARRINGTON.

The wedding took place quietly at six o'clock this (Saturday) morning at St. Peter's Cathedral, of Violet F. Harrington, elder daughter of Daniel Harrington, of Elm street, and late Mrs. Harrington, and William Harrington, second son of Mr. and Mrs. H. Harrington of Emmermere. The Rev. P. J. Kelly solemnized the marriage and Nuptial Mass.

Attendants were Mr. and Mrs. Harry Miller.

The bride wore a two-piece tailored suit of navy, trimmed with a blouse of pink crepe, a flower-trimmed navy straw hat and navy accessories. Her corsage bouquet was of red Templar roses.

Mrs. Miller was in a suit of grey wool with navy blue hat and accessories, and corsage of Talisman roses.

Mr. and Mrs. Harrington left on the afternoon train for Windsor, the bride travelling in a grey tweed swagger coat. On their return they will live in Peterborough.

JAMES—PETERS.

At the rectory of the Sacred Heart Church, a pretty wedding was solemnized quietly at 1.45 this (Saturday) afternoon, by the Rev. C. J. Macnamee, when Kathleen Frances Peters, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Peters, of Murray street, was married to Frank Leonard James, second son of Mr. and Mrs. F. H. James of Lafayette avenue. Attendants were the bride's sister, Miss Madeline Peters, and Hamley James, brother of the bridegroom.

The bride wore a lovely long gown of white satin, made in princess fashion with a slight cowl neckline and lace trimming. The long sleeves were trimmed with self-covered buttons from wrist to elbow. Her hat of white satin had a shoulder-length veil, she wore white satin slippers and white lace mittens and carried an arm bouquet of red Premier Supreme roses.

Miss Madeline Peters was in aquamarine blue taffeta, the jacket having puffed sleeves. Her matching hat was trimmed with pink roses; she wore silver slippers and lace mittens and a corsage of pink roses.

After the ceremony, a reception was held at the home of the bridegroom on Lafayette avenue, where decorations were carried out in pink and white, and buffet refreshments were served from a table centered by the bride's cake and done with pink flowers and candles.

Mr. James and his bride left on the afternoon train for a honeymoon in Toronto and London, the latter travelling in a frock of brown taffeta trimmed with pink, with a corsage of pink roses. COCKER SPANIEL NAMED BEST DOG IN HOBBY SHOW

PLENTY OF NOISE

The aristocratic Doberman-Pinscher looked with aloof disdain upon the big, shaggy, friendly Newfoundland; cocky little terriers barked challenges at snooty Boston bulls, and good natured collies fraternized genially with tail-wagging white mongrels, as the annual dog show for the boys was the occasion of the annual Boys' Hobby Show dog matinee in the Y.M.C.A. gymnasium this morning.

The show was a barking, yapping, howling success, with bigger and better dogs and smaller and cuter dogs than ever before. Twenty-six big dogs and little dogs, thoroughbreds and mongrels, were led by proud little lads in the final grand parade around the judging stand in the gymnasium at the conclusion of the show.

Adjudged the best dog in the show was the little cocker spaniel shown by Arthur Turner. "Skippy" garnered three first ribbons as the best in his class and the best small dog in the show as well as the ribbon for the best of all dogs shown.

"Snuggy," a wire-haired terrier shown by George Shaw, took the ribbon in its own class and was chosen second best dog in the show. A first-prize pekinese, "Bunty," shown by Arthur Legros, was chosen third dog of the show. The fact that its ears had been cropped incurred the disapproval of the dog show officials and lost a fine Doberman-Pinscher a chance at a high award.

The Prize Winners.

The prize-winning showmen were as follows:

Bill Wade—Best scots breed.

Muray Metcalfe—First and second ribbons for two beagle hounds.

Faraway Dates Found Easy More Recent Ones Difficult

Many Can Tell When Christopher Columbus Discovered America

FEW WHEN EDWARD QUIT

It is a curious fact that ancient historical dates are more readily called to memory by the average person, than the dates of quite recent events in national or world affairs.

For instance in a little practical experiment conducted by The Examiner, it was proved conclusively that nine out of ten people can tell you right off the bat when Christopher Columbus discovered America, but not one out of ten can recall with any certainty when King Edward VIII, (the present Duke of Windsor) abdicated his throne.

How long is it before outstanding dates in history become fixed in people's minds? That's a question on which one cannot generalize. But it is a pretty safe bet the only reason faraway dates can be recalled so readily is that they were definitely fixed in mind when dry passages from historical text books had to be remembered, under threat of staying in after school or being dubbed the school's prize dunce.

The ninety per cent. who can tell you when Columbus discovered America, will admit the date comes so readily to their lips because they memorized it at school by learning the old formulae, 'Columbus sailed the ocean blue in 1492." But there was the odd one who said 1493 for they remembered "Columbus sailed the deep blue sea in 1492."

A local advertising representative said he remembered the date of Columbus' voyage of discovery because "it was publicized."

"You can't say that King Edward's abdication was not publicized," he was chided when he failed to recall the exact date of that recent event in British history.

"I knew the month, didn't I? That's all I remember about Columbus. I just didn't bother to remember the exact day and hour he first set foot on American soil," he argued.

A photographer who could probably give you a developing formulae without difficulty or provide the proper exposure to make under any given conditions, frankly admitted he didn't know when Columbus discovered America nor when King Edward VIII. abdicated. And what is more, he said, he didn't care.

We asked him on what date Britain declared war against Germany, feeling confident that this outstanding date in world history was known by everyone.

"It was in 1913," he suggested.

At the second guess he thought that perhaps it was in August, 1914.

"Yes. That's it," he affirmed, "August 17, 1914."

When told the correct date was August 4, he naively remarked, "Oh, I thought that was Guy Fawkes' day."

Remembers Wife's Birthday.

"It isn't poor memory that accounts for my inability to recall the date of these events," an insurance agent declared. "But why should I remember them? I have other things to think about. I never fail to recall my wife's birthday or our wedding anniversaries, nor on what day of the month the rent falls due."

Store Clerk: "Why Columbus discovered America in 1492. King Edward's abdication? That was on the 10th of December, 1936."

Telegraph messenger: "It was in 1492 that Columbus crossed the Atlantic, but I can't just remember when King Edward gave up the throne."

Cigar Store Clerk: "Columbus discovered America in 1493. I am not sure of the date King Edward abdicated."

Cigar Store Customer: "He's right about the date American was discovered. I don't know just when the King gave up. It was not very long ago, however."

Stenographer: "That's easy. Columbus came to America in 1492 and the King abdicated in November of last year. I can't just remember the exact date."

County Employee: "Columbus discovered America in 1492. As to the King's abdication, it was in December of last year, and I am pretty sure it was on the 5th of that month."

Wrong on First One.

Drug Store Clerk: "Well, I think Columbus discovered America in 1490, for I do not there something about him sailing the deep blue sea. As for Edward's abdication it was December 12, 1936."

School Teacher: "Columbus discovered America in 1942. Why, that is easy. Now ask me something difficult? When did Edward abdicate? then the pedagogue was asked. "Well, now, really that is more difficult, but I would say December 10th, 1936."

Each of the persons questioned asked the same question, and he got both right. "Columbus discovered America in 1492," he said. "That date has been fixed in my mind since I was a boy of 12 years. The inspector visited our school out in the country one day and asked us to stand up for the usual oral quiz. He asked a classmate when Columbus discovered America, and the chap halted. Well, said the inspector, always remember this line, 'Columbus sailed the ocean blue in 1492.' A few minutes later he asked the boy the same question, and he said 1493. 'What was that line I told you,' the inspector asked, and the boy replied, 'Columbus sailed the deep blue sea in 1492.' As for the date King Edward abdicated, it was too stirring a time in a newspaper office to easily forget."

Farmer Charged Destroying Mare

Herbert Foster, 30-year-old Smith Township farmer was remanded until Tuesday next without election or plea following his arraignment before Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., this (Saturday) morning on a charge of destroying a mare by maiming. Bail was opposed by Acting Crown Attorney F. D. Kerr, K.C., and was not granted by His Worship on that account. The charge alleges that Foster destroyed by maiming a mare owned by Clarence Ferguson a neighboring farmer. The accused was taken into custody late Friday by Provincial Constable David Silvester.

BARRIE JUNIORS CONQUER FALLS

Unbeaten Colts Have Easy Night Batting In 7-5 Victory

MIDLAND, Ont., April 2—Barrie Colts continued their undefeated record in the Round-Robin series of the O.H.A. Junior "B" championship tilt, by taking Niagara Falls for a 7 to 5 ride at Arena Gardens here last night in a listless 60 minutes of hockey.

The Colts had things pretty much their own way, and after taking a 3 to 1 lead in the first period were never in danger of relinquishing their margin. Although the Cataracts were outscored in the second period by 2 to 1, they were only kept from tying up the score by the brilliant work of Dyte and Jones on the Barrie defence.

Wilson and Hardison were the Falls' real live wires, while Jones, Dyte and Scott were outstanding performers for the winners.

Barrie Takes Early Lead

Barrie checked the Falls closely in their own defence zone, and Long had two close-in shots which Myles turned aside. Buck Jones raced the length of the ice and blazed a shot which almost glanced into the net. Pavone at the other end hit the post with a hard drive as Goring sprawled on the ice. Dyte and Jones went flying in on the Falls defence, and the latter opened the scoring as his shot slid past Myers. Bowen made it 2-0 for the Colts two minutes later as he took Scott's pass-out. Three minutes later Long tallied again on a pass from Bowen to give the Colts a 3-0 margin. Niagara Falls broke into the scoring as Hardison took Wilson's pass and rifled a terrific drive past Goring. The period ended, Barrie 3, Niagara Falls 1.

Mister Sporting Editor:

Well Mac, I said last week in this here column that the Stanley Cup finals might be a all-American affair and it might be yet for the Detroits has win the N.H.L. championship and is now waiting for the Cup serious and the New York Rangers is a game ahead of the Maulling Marcons in the semi-final round. Personally I think the Marcons will have power enough to crumple up the Rangers in the next 2 games but at that you can't over look the fact Lester Patrick's boys has win 3 games in a row ante the playoffs started and no team of gushovers can turn that trick.

It Was a Honey

The Canadien-Red Wing serious, Mac is what I would call a woo—likewise a honey. The Detroiters smothered the Flying Frenchmen the 1st 2 games in Detroit but back on their home ice the Hartmen was something else again, and they come closer than the next second to snatching the championship away from the Wings. It looked to be curtains for the Adams entry when Mister Normie Smith their crack goalie got hurt early in the 1st game in Montreal, for a team can't drop their ace scorer and the year's best goalie and then expect to go out and cop the pinware. Smith was outa the second game in Montreal and his team lost that 1 with Mister Cude breaking their hearts by sensational work between the pipes but the disabled net custodian managed to get out there for the final battle and it aint too much to say the championship was win for Detroit when he skated out there ready for the fray; Mister Smith mighta had a bum wing but they wasn't nothing wrong with his heart or his courage and he rose to the heights to hold off the Frenchmen which was really flying over most of the route.

It Was Hard to Take

I was 1 of the bugs which sat up in front of the loudspeaker until nearly 1 am Fri. morning listening to the story of that epick struggle and it was sure tough to hear seeing my 2 favorite teams was in action and I hated to see either of them get beat. However they both come outa that overtime tussle with plenty of glory even if the Wings will get the biggest slice of jack as a result of their win.

The Marcons—But

I'm calling the Marcons to win over the Rangers but at the same time the shock wouldn't be very great if them New Yorkers managed to grab a game on Montreal ice and take the serious. They have been air tight in three games, winning them all and allowing only one goal and that neighbors in the kinda hockey that wins Stanley Cup fixtures. This here Mister Pratt 1 of the Patrick rookies has been the hero of 2 of the wins planting the winning goal past Brods to take the 2nd game with Toronto and then making a rink-length rush to score the only counter of the first game with the Marcons. That, old timer is a double triumph for a kid not long outa the amateur ranks and which never got a vote when all star teams was being doped out.

Well that's enough on the pro. loop. Locally the only news is the ball club is organized for the season, a lotta enthusiasm is in the air and I'm going to be badly disappointed if we don't trot a pretty classy lineup come May.

That's about the works for now. Sportfully Yours,

A. Wise Cracker

READ THIS FIRST:

A cable from America excites the interest of the stenographer in the dingy law office of Stuckey & Stuckey, London. Upon his arrival Charles Stuckey learns that Miss Jacqueline Smith, daughter of one of his few respectable clients, now on the continent with her mother, has inherited $1,500,000 from an American uncle.

(NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY)

CHAPTER 3

THE MAN who entered the solicitor's office flung his hat unceremoniously on Stuckey's desk and sank heavily, without invitation, into the only chair which offered any degree of comfort. He glanced around at Bellis and jerked his head faintly but authoritatively in the direction of the door. The clerk turned on his heel and vanished into the outer office.

Charles Stuckey looked supremely uncomfortable, as he always did in the presence of this paunchy, overfed man with the florid countenance and the faintly mocking expression in the dark-brown eyes, which were a trifle too small and set a shade too closely together.

For some moments no word was spoken: the two men sat regarding each other. A man in the early fifties, Colonel Alec Lutman had once been a handsome and imposing figure. Those who knew him best and disliked him most said that Lutman's name could not be found in the Army List and that the prefix "Colonel" had, indeed, no more justification, when applied to Lutman, than the fact that women succumb more readily to a title, particularly a military title.

At last the solicitor, with an obvious effort as of a man shaking him self free from some dominating influence, broke the silence.

"What have you come for, Lutman?"

The smile on the other's face widened.

"My dear Charles!" he protested. "Scarcely the way to greet an old—er—friend! I do hope you don't employ the same effusive manner toward all you—er—clients."

"I'm sorry," he said, "but I'm in no mood this morning for badinage. Did you want to see me about anything in particular? Because, if not, I have several appointments."

"The one thing I admire most about you, Charles, is your stern sense of duty. It is that which makes rising young lawyers—er—rise," he finished rather lamely.

Stuckey made an impatient gesture and looked at his wrist watch.

"I hope," went on his visitor, "that you have not, under pressure of your professional duties, overlooked one very important appointment this morning."

Charles frowned.

"You mean...?"

"I see you have. Even promising young solicitors..."

"All right, I will," he said. "Jim Aason comes out of Dartmoor this morning and is by now"—he glanced up at the clock on the dusty mantelpiece—"well on his way to London and to this office."

Stuckey gave a violent start.

"Jim? Out! But I thought..."

"Quite. You thought he wasn't due for another six months. But Jim has been a very blue-eyed boy and has earned a special remission for something or other. He should be here in about an hour."

The solicitor's features registered his distaste.

"But what's he coming here for? I don't want to see him."

"Perhaps not." The Colonel's manner reverted to the grandiose. "But I deemed it advisable that the—er—reunion should take place here, under the aegis, as it were, of our legal representative. You see," he went on to explain, "when I heard from Jimmy the glad tidings of his early release, I gathered from his tone that he was feeling somewhat—er—sore with me concerning his incarceration."

"You mean he knows you shopped him?"

Lutman raised a hand in a gesture of protest.

"Dignity be hanged!" Stuckey interrupted. "I speak the language of my clients. And it's not so unfamiliar to you, either."

Lutman waved the point aside.

"Anyway," he continued, "Jimmy, as I say, is feeling a sense of grievance and is breathing vengeance and slaughter against me. I therefore wrote to him and arranged to meet him here. You see, Charles"—again his wordy pose dropped from him and he spoke simply and earnestly—"something's got to be done about Jimmy."

"I've often thought that," grunted the other. "He's a lousy—"

"Yes, yes, I agree: he's all that and more. But I mean that we've got to find a way of making it up to him. He's done an eighteen month stretch; the proceeds of the little affair which got him the sentence are practically all gone, and Jimmy will want considerable—er—smoothing down."

"What, exactly, do you mean?"

"I mean," said the Colonel, "that we've got to find a way of presenting Jimmy with some easy money. I'm nearly broke..."

The ringing of the telephone bell interrupted him. Charles lifted the receiver, listened, grunted a few monosyllables and then replaced the instrument.

"I'll have to slip out for a few minutes," he told Lutman. "Would you rather wait or...?"

"Oh, I'll wait here," was the reply. "Maybe the acute legal atmosphere with which you have permeated your surroundings will induce a bright idea."

Charles grunted.

"I'll not be long," he said, and passed through the outer office.

Left alone, the caller glanced around the dusty office with distaste. It was poorly, if adequately furnished. A shelf of law books stood affixed by brackets on the opposite wall of the room; a few black japanned deed-boxes, the names on which were quite illegible under the thick coating of dust, occupied the farther corner of the floor to his left. His gaze wandered to the large littered desk which occupied the center of the room and by the side of which stood the armchair in which he was now sitting. On the blotting pad was a small pile of letters, opened and unopened. Lutman reached out a hand and drew these casually toward him. It was with him not so much principle as a habit of mind to keep himself as well informed as possible on all affairs, his own or anybody else's.

The cablegram arrested his attention and he read its contents idly at first, then a second time with quickened interest. The message, came from a firm of New York lawyers, informed Messrs. Stuckey & Stuckey, as the legal accredited representatives of Mrs. Millicent Smith and her daughter Jacqueline, that the later had been bequeathed by her deceased uncle, Mr. Alan Redfern, the whole of his residual estate, amounting to some $1,500,000.

Lutman read and re-read the cablegram. His mind held no idea at the moment in what way the facts disclosed could be of any possible interest to him; but one of his most abiding principles was that money in the possession of other people was always absorbing interest to a man of his own sybaritic needs. He never heard or read stories of the accession of sudden wealth without his ingeniously fertile brain being set to work overtime on evolving schemes whereby the transference of that wealth to his own banking account could be effected with the minimum of risk to himself. That such schemes rarely attained to fruition was no deterrent to Colonel Lutman; he continued to indulge his habit of evolving them.

He sat for some minutes in concentrated thought, the cablegram dangling loosely from his fingers. When Stuckey re-entered his office some ten minutes later, it was to find his visitor sitting bolt upright in his chair, a sparkle in his small, acquisitive eyes, his whole expression that of a man who had solved a difficult problem.

Bedtime Story

By HOWARD R. GARIS

UNCLE WIGGILY AND MRS. RINGTAIL

Once upon a time after he had fun in the April shower, Uncle Wiggily was hopping through the woods one day wondering what adventure he would have. All of a sudden as he passed a hollow stump which reminded him of his own bungalow, he heard a voice saying:

"Hush, my dears. Don't cry! I'm sure he will soon come home."

Then Uncle Wiggily heard tiny whimpering noises he knew must be made by small animals.

"Ha!" he whispered. "I hope I haven't come past the home of any of the Bad Chaps. Maybe there are some baby Foxes or Bob Cats in this hollow stump. Their father or mother would ask nothing better than to get hold of me. I had best hop away quietly."

Uncle Wiggily started to hop quietly when he was surprised to hear a voice calling to him:

"Uncle Wiggily! Uncle Wiggily! Wait a moment!"

"Ha! Yes, it is all very well for you to ask me to wait," thought Uncle Wiggily, "but you sound like the Fox or the Bob Cat."

A Small Animal

To make sure he looked back over his shoulder as he started to hop. Then he saw a small animal, sort of a brownish gray and white in color, with rings of fur on the tail, come out of the stump.

"That is neither the Fox, the Wolf nor the Bob Cat," said Uncle Wiggily. "It is my friend, Mrs. Ringtail, the raccoon mother of Bobbie and Betty Ringtail. Hello, Mrs. Ringtail!" he called to the mother raccoon, for she it was. "What are you doing here?"

"This is where I am living with my four little baby raccoons," said

Mrs. Ringtail. "They are so tiny and little they haven't their eyes open yet, though they can talk a little," said the mother raccoon.

"Was that them I heard whimpering?" asked Uncle Wiggily.

"Yes," replied the mother. "They were asking for their father and for Bettie and Bobbie. They have been gone a long time now, and we are getting lonesome for them."

"Where did they go?" asked Uncle Wiggily.

"Down to the brook to get some fresh water clams and muscles," answered the mother raccoon. "Of course, my babies are too young yet for such food. I can only give them milk. But Bobbie and Bettie can crack open clam shells and eat the insides. My babies will do that around July, I think."

Like Kittens

"May I look at your baby raccoons?" asked Uncle Wiggily.

"Here they are," said Mrs. Ringtail proudly. Nestled in a bed of dried grass at the bottom of the hollow stump, Mr. Longears saw the four baby raccoons. They were like small kittens.

"Daddy! Daddy!" they whimpered, thinking Uncle Wiggily was their father. For not having their eyes open, they couldn't see him.

"I'll go get your daddy for you," said Uncle Wiggily.

Away he hopped to the brook. There he found Mr. Ringtail with Bobbie and Bettie fishing out clams and muscles. There were having a grand time. When Uncle Wiggily told Mr. Ringtail his wife and babies wanted him to come home, Mr. Ringtail said:

"I'll go at once. I didn't know it was so late." Then he and the raccoon girl and boy started. Uncle Wiggily hopped back with them and on the way the Bob Cat slunk out of the bushes. But Bobbie threw a hard clam shell at the Bad Chap, hitting him on the nose so he ran away. Mrs. Ringtail and her babies were happy their daddy had come home.

And if the faucet doesn't squirt water all over the sink when it hasn't a bathing suit on, I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily and Susie's ear.

STRIKERS WELD SWITCH GATES

of the paralyzing Chrysler Corporation's strike was to resume in the office of Governor Frank Murphy of Michigan at Lansing as soon as high executives of the corporation and the U.A.W.A. could get there.

Ford Motor Company officials professed to have no knowledge of the strike that closed its assembly plant at Kansas City yesterday. Ford became the third of the "big three" automobile producers to be affected by U.A.W.A. sit-downs.

Approximately 130,000 wage-earners of these and other automotive firms were idle, but strike settlements will return nearly 30,000 of them to work the first of next week. This figure is only 5,000 less than the highest number made idle during the 44-day General Motors strike at the start of the year.

Union leaders said the Flint Chevrolet strike was "spontaneous" and was prompted by the workers, because their representatives "were not getting anywhere" in negotiations with the plant management on grievances, provided for in the March 13 agreement between the U.A.W.A. and General Motors.

Arnold Lenz, Chevrolet operations manager at Flint, promised to meet with Robert C. Travis, union organizer there, and the committee of nine shop stewards set up under the agreement. Lenz said the company had made a sincere endeavor to fulfill its part of the agreement.

When this meeting was announced, the strikers voted to leave the large factory and evacuated in cheerful mood. Estimates of the number of workmen who had remained in the plant ranged from 500 to 3,000.

At St. Catharines

ST. CATHARINES, Ont., April 3 —(CP) — Efforts to have General Motors of Canada recognize the agreement reached by General Motors in Detroit will be continued, Hugh Thompson, organizer for the Committee for Industrial Organization, told a meeting here last night.

He spoke before employees of McKinnon Industries, subsidiary of General Motors of Canada.

While Thompson's meeting was in progress, attended by workers in favor of joining the United Automobile Workers of America, affiliated with the C.I.O., other employees of McKinnon Industries, opposed to the union, held a meeting in another hall, addressed by W. A. Wecker, general manager of the firm.

Thompson is acting in an advisory capacity to the workers of the General Motors plant at Oshawa who are conferring with the company regarding wages and working conditions. He claimed last night more than 4,000 Oshawa workers had joined the union and that "General Motors is not going to make any more autos in Canada until they sign an agreement with the United Auto Workers of America." He said workers in Oshawa would seek 75 cents an hour as a minimum, and urged St. Catharines workers to unite quickly.

Mr. Wecker told the meeting of non-union workers of an extension plan proposed for the St. Catharines plant. He said it depended on the workers co-operation.

The general manager referred to "sinister attempts of outside agitators to intimidate employees" and declared he was always ready to hear complaints.

OBITUARY

GERALD L. DAWSON.

BALLIEBORO, March 3.—Seldom has the sympathetic heart of a community been so deeply stirred as was this of Ballieboro and vicinity, when it was learned that, barely five weeks after the death of his father, and while his mother was seriously ill in the hospital, the earthly life of Gerald Lucas Dawson had ended and that a life of such great promise had been cut down, like a tree in full bloom.

Gerald was born on November 13th, 1900, on lot 9 of the second concession of South Monaghan township, and early in life, moved with his parents, T. Edgar Dawson and his wife, Eva C. Lucas, to Ballieboro, where wisely and carefully he was trained in the home, in the school, in the church and on the farm, to be an honorable, upright citizen and useful in all the activities of li fe.

On June 4th, 1927, he married Mildred Smythe, only daughter of the late David Smythe and his wife Isabella Harcourt of Fraserville, in Cavan township, and laid the foundation of a happy home life with its tender affection, loyal devotion and kind hospitality.

At the funeral, held in the home on Thursday afternoon, in the absence of the pastor, Rev. E. St. Cosh, who is quarantined in the parsonage because of his son's illness, three former pastors, viz., Rev. H. W. Foley of Springbrook, who read comforting Scripture passages, Rev. R. M. Patterson, of Sunderland, who, referring to the value of earthly comforts, commended the Divine Comforter as an unfailing source of strength, and one able to make death a means of blessing, and Rev. M. W. Leigh, of Kingston, during whose pastorate Gerald united with the Methodist church, who referred to his church relationship and true Christian life, and led in prayer.

The pallbearers were Dawson Rutherford, Aylmer Dawson, John Woods, Vernon Storey, Earl Fielding and Eustave Bonneville, while the flower-bearers were Kenneth Dawson, John Dew, Harold Coates, Alex Watt, Arthur Bickle and Arthur Bateman.

Interment was made in the Ballieboro cemetery, under the direction of F. Scott of Millbrook, and the three former pastors participated.

Those who survive to cherish the memory of his short useful, buter life are his wife, his son David Edgar, his daughter, Margaret Isabelle, his two sisters, Jean and Ruth, and a host of friends who had learned to respect and love him.

OTTAWA AIMING END WAR PROFIT

act dealing with control of arms and munitions traffic, the bill amending and revising the business profits war tax act, a bill to ratify the trade agreement with Uruguay and a bill to consolidate transport department stores.

The House also passed a few tariff items and spent the greater part of the day on the new combines act in committee stage. Little progress was made with the latter measure due to criticism from the opposition.

Hon. C. H. Cahan (Conn., St. Lawrence-St. George) described some of its provisions as a "Fascist and Nazi attempt to invade civil liberty." He referred to the powers given the commissioner to enter and search the premises of persons suspected of engaging in an illegal combine and to seize books and documents.

Conservative Leader Bennett said the same man was to be the police officer who made the search and the judge who passed upon the case. He regarded it as a "desperate provision."

Penalties Increased.

During the discussion on war profits J. S. Woodsworth (C.C.F., Winnipeg North Centre) and Conservative Leader Bennett, successfully argued for higher penalties upon violators of the proposed regulations. Revenue Minister Ilsley agreed to an amendment increasing the maximum fine from $1,000 to $10,000. With this is coupled a maximum of four years imprisonment and confiscation of goods.

Mr. Woodsworth declared the bill did not go far enough and he felt steps should be taken to prevent any private organization of persons making profit out of war. The wife of this speaker had been impressed upon the world in the last Great War.

Prime Minister Mackenzie King then made the following statement:

"For some months past an interdepartmental committee has been going very carefully into the whole question of the control of profits with respect to munitions of war. That committee has been working in conjunction with members of the cabinet. The line upon which we have been proceeding is to attempt to draw a distinction between war materials produced in times of peace and what may be necessary in times of war.

"Unquestionably special legislation would be required in times of war. At the present time, in a time of peace, the government is proceeding on the theory of permitting competition with reasonable remuneration, the work to be subject to inspection and audit.

"There are different forms of control which have been suggested by the different departments. The departments are working together with a view to effecting just what my honorable friend (Mr. Woodsworth) has in mind.

"I can assure him that the whole question is one to which the government is giving careful consideration and they will continue to do so. We agree with him in the main principle that there should be no profits made out of war."

ELK LAKE MOTHER OF 6 VANISHES AFTER DISPUTE

Wm. J. Green Passes Away In 90th Year

Was For Thirty-Three Years Tax Collector In Peterborough

LINK WITH PIONEERS

Attended First Service Of Charlotte Street Methodist Church

Thirty-two years tax collector for the City of Peterborough and one of the last remaining links with the city's earliest days, William Jeffrey Green died in his 90th year at his home, 303 Hunter street west, at 7 o'clock this morning.

The aged resident had been in fair health until he complained of a sore throat on returning from church attendance two weeks ago. He took to his bed with influenza and weakened quickly. His death this morning came, nevertheless, as an unexpected shock to a community which knew him as a most active citizen even in his advanced years.

Born at Springville.

Few local residents have been as widely known through the community as Mr. Green. He was born in Springvale in a log cabin home located on the exact site now occupied by the Springville United church. His parents were the late Mr. and Mrs. John Green, pioneer settlers at Springville from Devonshire, England.

He spent his boyhood days on a farm in North Monaghan, now occupied by George Hunter, to which he later moved shortly after his 21st. He attended the nearby rural public school and then walked daily to Peterborough to study at the Collegiate.

For several years Mr. Green worked as a clerk and salesman in different Peterborough stores before establishing himself in the merchant tailoring business. He followed this trade for more than thirty years.

In 1900 he took the post of city tax collector upon the death of the late Henry Denne, father of ex-Mayor Ronald Denne. It was not in 1933 that he retired from this service, known as one of the oldest posts in the municipal service.

Original Member.

Proud he was of the fact he assisted the first service in the old Charlotte street Methodist church here and attended the church's first congregational banquet. He was, of course, an original member of the newer Trinity United church. Few services did he miss in this life, not the 80-year Honorable Service.

With full ceremony he was awarded a Jewel for 50 years' membership in the Omuthee lodge of the Odd Fellows on May 18, 1933. He was the oldest local Odd Fellow.

As a younger man, Mr. Green took a keen interest in sport. He was a member of early Peterborough cricket teams and was a close follower of lacrosse, serving in various official capacities with early lacrosse teams which put Peterborough on the sporting map. His interest in baseball and hockey continued to the last.

Local Authority.

To the end of his life Mr. Green retained his faculties as well as his general health and was, of late, a recognized authority on local history. Frequently members of The Examiner staff have taken occasion to turn this excellent memory in seeking varied bits of information concerning early Peterborough. For such links with the past century now remain.

Mrs. Green, formerly Annie Green the daughter of pioneers from Ireland, the late Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Green of Springville, survived. On October 21, 1934, they celebrated the 60th anniversary of their wedding.

Mr. Green was the youngest of a family of eleven children and was the last of the family.

The funeral will be conducted under Odd Fellows' auspices. A service will be held at 2 o'clock Wednesday afternoon at Trinity United church. Rev. George H. Easton officiating. Interment will be made in Little Lake Cemetery.

$250,000 Fire Sweeps Two Montreal Factories

Flames Threaten Great Notre Dame Chapel Is Scorched

Six-Hour Struggle Brings Out Apparatus From Thirty Stations

EIGHT EXPLOSIONS

Five Factories Or Warehouses Are Damaged—Three Firemen Hurt

MONTREAL, April 5 (CP) — Flames ate a $250,000 bite out of Montreal's rich downtown factory and warehouse district early today, but firemen robbed them of millions more after hours of battle.

Working amid the choking fumes of a burning chemical plant, the firemen saved historic Notre Dame Church, valued with its precious art and religious contents at around $10,000,000; the $1,000,000 chapel attached to the 110-year-old church, and a 236-year-old seminary holding some of the city's most prized records.

Two buildings were wiped out as the conflagration raged more than six hours. The Merck Chemical Company's factory, where the fire started and the adjoining plant of Consolidated Glass Company were believed total losses. Several adjoining structures were damaged as the flames licked them and thick, nauseous smoke from the chemical plant rolled in.

Officials placed the Merck plant's damage at $130,000 and the glass company's loss at $900,000. Fire Director Christopher Carsen calculated the full loss at $250,000. The estimate was considered conservative.

Three-Alarm Blaze

The three-alarm fire started some time before last night. Long after darkness swept Montreal, the flames threw sheets of water into the night sky and the stately landmark and point it out proudly to his friends as his own.

Several weeks ago, highway workers who found the tree to be rotten at the core and a menace, had it down. Mr. Green felt very badly upon hearing of the tree's demise and demanded an explanation. He was driven to the spot and chosen the decay which forced removal.

Sadly he remarked: "It will not be long until I'm gone too, now that the tree is gone."

Basques Fall Back On Durango —Rebels Retreat In Cordoba Sector

MADRID LOSSES HEAVY

VITORIA, Spain, April 5 (A.P.)—The insurgent army on the Bilbao front was reported to-day to have smashed through the government lines, captured the Basque stronghold of Ochandiano and pressed forward toward Durango, key city of the defences of Bilbao itself.

Semi-official dispatches from General Emilio Mola's field headquarters described the action on Sunday as one of the greatest victories of the Spanish Civil War.

Vast quantities of equipment were abandoned by the government troops, including an entire battery of field artillery.

Durango Full of Refugees.

Refugees from Durango, battered by shells and bombs, were reported streaming into Bilbao, causing a serious food shortage.

The insurgent campaign, launched by Mola from Villarreal de Alava, cut the highroad connecting West Central Spain with the north-east and, by the October edge of the Bay of Biscay, has extended the insurgent territory more than 10 miles into the Basque country.

The battlefields around Ochandiano and Durango have been called the worst in Europe. The entire Mondragon-Arrasate area has been honeycombed with trenches and fortifications that took advantage

Stolen From Him, Man Buys $30,000 Spoons Back For $6

Goes To Buy Ring And Is Offered Antiques He Thought At Home In Safe

CAME FROM IRELAND

DETROIT, April 5 (CP)—Kelvin Coleman, Detroit, has retrieved six antique solid silver spoons, value of which no one knows. Nobody seems to know how they vanished in the first place, either.

The spoon were brought from Ireland by Coleman's grandfather shortly after the Revolutionary War. They have remained in the Coleman treasure chest for many years—except this one brief period.

Silver value of the spoons is $6, but their historical value far exceeds that amount. So much so Coleman has them insured for $30,000 and placed them back in the family safe.

The antiques, handed down from generation to generation, were, so far as Coleman knew, safely in the strong box when he walked into a Toledo, O., jewelry store to buy a ring.

He picked up his ears when the dealer told him of some fine silver antique spoons for sale because he's been interested in antiques for some time. The jeweler completed the solid silver spoons which appeared to be similar to those in the Coleman safe.

"I looked them over," Coleman said, "and you could imagine my surprise when I found some distinguishing markings I couldn't fail

Canada Should Have Right To Determine War Course

Capacity Open Forum Audience

PARTICIPATION IN WAR

A definite understanding between Canada and Great Britain that Canada should reserve the right to determine participation in any war Britain war was urged by J. S. Woodsworth, C.C.F. leader in the House of Commons, in an address to a capacity Open Forum audience here Sunday afternoon.

Canada may not be definitely committed at the present time to go to Britain's aid in the event of war but "there are pretty definite understandings," he said. "I think it must be conceded that if Great Britain is at war, automatically we too are at war," he stated. South Africa has taken definite action to clarify its right of independent determination in the matter of war and Canada should follow suit immediately, he declared.

Participation Discussed

The eloquent parliamentarian said a number of British emissaries have visited this city to Canada to discuss Canadian participation in British wars. "Our Prime Minister says we have no commitments. I suppose we have to take him at his word but I do not think we can think otherwise than there are understandings." He expressed a fear that a definite course of action for Canada in the event of war will be mapped out at the approaching Imperial Conference.

The increase in Canadian defence estimates was deplored by Mr. Woodsworth. He scoffed at a claim by the Minister of Defence that the increased defence estimates were for the twofold purpose of keeping domestic peace as well as protecting Canada's coasts.

"It won't require anything like that amount of money to keep peace and order if the people are treated decently," he declared. "A few thousand dollars and decent living would keep the unemployed in order. To keep the subversive elements of the community in order you need only social justice."

He said the automatic protection of Canada's shores by the United States navy eliminates any need for increased defences. The United States navy and thousands of miles of open ocean to the east and west guarantees Canada from aggression, he suggested.

He planted at that time by the roadside a little willow sprout and through his later years watched the sprout grow to a great tree. Even in recent months he would stop in passing to view

The Times, however, refers to the danger of the crowning being marred should major strikes occur, and adds: "The British public will bear a great deal of inconvenience and even loss in order to resist any attempt to take advantage of its needs and hold it to ransom. Ludendorff's Neopagan Cult Given Official Recognition

ENEMY OF R.C. AND JEW

BERLIN, April 5 (CP-Havas). — Posterity of an intensified anti-Christian campaign in Germany, with the aged General Erich Ludendorff at its head — arose today as Ludendorff announced his Neopagan cult had been founded on the principles of a religion by the Nazi regime.

The former quartermaster-general of the Imperial German armies, now 72, recently became Fuehrer and Chancellor Hitler after a reunion of several years.

In a statement issued as a supplement to today's issue of his magazine "An Heilgen Gastle Deutscher Kraft" (in the holy castle of German strength), Ludendorff announced his religion, "The German understanding of God," which he identified with the idea of a Nordic-Aryan racial faith, had been given eight years ago by Hitler.

At the same time he raised upon his followers a "militant fight against Christianity and the caste of priests, pastors and the jews, all of whom, he charged, are international forces bent on destroying Germany.

Founded In 1925

The movement was founded by Ludendorff and his wife, Dr. Mathilde Von Kemnitz in 1925, but has never had the official recognition of the German government.

Vacant Homes, Mine Shafts In Northern Ontario Area Combed In Vain

HUSBAND SOUGHT

Disappears Week After Wife And Two Days Before Friends Report Her Missing

ELK LAKE, Ont., April 5 (C.P.) —Mystery deepened today in this small northern village, 42 miles north-west of New Liskeard, as authorities sought to unearth some clue to the whereabouts of Mrs. Frank Dolan, 36, well-known resident of this community and mother of six small children, missing from her home since March 31 last after an alleged altercation with her estranged husband.

Organized posses of residents failed over the week-end to discover any trace of the missing woman after a thorough search of vacant homes and abandoned mine shafts.

Police said they would attempt to locate the husband, Frank Dolan, former miner and service station attendant, for questioning. Dolan left town for an unknown destination last Tuesday, seven days after his wife's disappearance and two days before she was reported missing by friends.

Snow Covers Any Tracks.

Authorities faced a stone wall barrier, owing to the fact seven days elapsed before they were notified and that within the period several heavy snowfalls had occurred in the district.

Members of the missing woman's small family, whose ages range from 5 to 17, had neglected to report their mother's absence because they thought she may be holidaying with friends or relatives in the district.

Enquiries at the home of Dolan failed to produce any clue, as did phone messages to other parts of the district.

Villagers ask a special investigator from the Ontario Provincial Police be brought in to assist with the case.

Saskatchewan Group Threaten Not To Plant An Acre Unless All Fully Supplied

SHAUNAVON, Sask., April 5. — (CP).—One hundred and fifty farmers in this Southwestern Saskatchewan district threatened to-day to refuse "to seed a single acre of crop until the government agrees to give sufficient seed to every farmer to put in his crop."

At a meeting called by the Farmers' Protective Association protest was made against recent reductions by the Provincial government in seed, feed, fuel and repairs for spring seeding. The government advanced certain seeding supplies to drought-area farmers in this district.

Information given at the meeting was that farmers were to be given only enough seed for 300 acres. Many farmers claim they will be unable to seed summer fallow which is now coming up weeds.

An official protest will be lent Federal and Provincial governments.

Doukhobor Area Heart Of Trouble

Worst Outbreak In Kootenay Area Since Invasion Of Religious Sect

ALL TIMED AT ONCE

Police On Way For Conference With 300 Members Of Colony

NELSON, B.C., April 5.—(CP)—Police investigation of a series of fires, believed incendiary, and a single bombing that destroyed four schools and three community halls and damaged four other buildings in West Kootenay Settlements yesterday was under way today.

Sergeant C. G. Barber and three British Columbia police constables left here last night for Castlegar, 18 miles west, where a delegation of 300 Doukhobors had asked the officers to meet them. Police said they did not know what the Doukhobors wanted but presumed it was in connection with the depredations.

Three police guards were added to those watching West Kootenay buildings since Doukhobors recently refused to send their children to school. The fires were the most widespread of any of the outrages occurring in the district since the Doukhobor sect migrated here just before the turn of the century.

Police said the fires, located in communities of mixed Canadian and Doukhobor population, broke out almost simultaneously as if by preconceived arrangement at points ranging from 15 to 20 miles from Nelson.

Early Morning Outbreaks

Nearly all the fires occurred between two and three a.m. yesterday except a blaze which destroyed a two-room government school about five a.m. at Ymir, 18 miles south of Nelson.

At Winlaw, 15 miles to the northwest, a government school and a Doukhobor hall used also for night school, were razed and another school was fired but the flames were extinguished without serious damage.

Nearby Appledale and Perry's siding were affected. The government school at Appledale was destroyed and the Progressive Association hall damaged slightly. The government school, also serving as a hall at Perry's Siding, was destroyed.

Two community halls at Castlegar, the community club and an old Doukhobor Hall used as a Russian school, were razed and a recently-built Doukhobor hall damaged.

Fear Second Bombing.

The lone bombing occurred at Dootohenia, where the school was damaged slightly by a crude bomb. Police feared a second attempt might be made to destroy the structure and a guard was stationed there.

Other guards were stationed at Crescent Valley and Tarry's. Ten other schools attacked in the past few years with fire and bombs, and at which guards have been stationed, were not affected this time.

Loss in the four government schools destroyed was estimated at $14,500. Loss in the Castlegar Community Hall fire was estimated at $8,000, but there was no estimate of damage in the other fires.

The fires followed a period of relative quiet since an outbreak last June when three schools, a sawmill and a community hall fell prey to bombs or fire. A month earlier a bridge near Nelson was fired without extensive damage. For this outbreak Paul Vatkin, Grand Forks, B.C. Doukhobor, was sentenced to life imprisonment.

STRIP TEASER WELL WATCHED

London County Council, Morality Officers All Waiting To Take Action

LONDON, April 5.—(AP). — The London county council is going to find out for itself whether Diane Raye's strip tease act is "too hot for England."

She is to perform at the Music Hall Monday night and the council's official observers will be there to see what they can see.

The secretary of the public morality council H. M. Tyrer, also is going "bit by bit," so he'll be there.

The council officially warned that unless the act comes up to all standards of propriety it will "not hesitate to institute proceedings."

Diane insists to go right ahead. The theatre says the act will be presented in a way "which would eliminate all possibility of offense while robbing it of none of its piquancy."

The producer who brought Diane from the United States to show London how the strip tease is done on Broadway got an eyeful. He decided it was "too hot for England."

The Royal Road To The Coronation

THE greatest war of all time was over, and England along with every nation which participated in the titanic struggle, found herself flooded by men—young men grown old before their time, grown grim with the memory of cruelty, death and destruction.

Like his fellow soldiers, Prince Albert, ex-navy man, ex-air force officer, saw before him the task of picking up the threads of a life that had been rudely interrupted by the war. Like them too he had stood side by side with death, and steeled his nerves to the cruelty and bitterness of sudden destruction or permanent maiming. But emerging from it all, un-scarred and un-embittered, he plunged into university life as the most fitting method of further schooling himself to the task ahead.

There could be no restrospection; a king's son has too many calls upon his time and energy to spend standing still or slipping backwards and in 1919 Prince Albert, along with his brother Prince Henry, became undergraduates of Trinity College, Cambridge.

No aura of royalty surrounded the princes there; they entered and were accepted into the full round of university life though both, and Prince Albert in particular, took up not the regular curriculum but those subjects that would best fit him to play the allotted part in life that was laid before him.

The princes leased a house in Cambridge under the guidance of Wing-Commander Louis Greig who had been guide and counsellor to Albert in earlier days. And one of today's pictures shows how the prince, who would one day be king, attended his classes, pedalling a bicycle along the ancient city's streets, wearing the gown and mortar-board of an undergraduate. That was the accepted mode of travel for Cambridge students then, and Prince Albert would be no exception.

He studied his subjects well did this prince. The other of today's pictures show another view of the King—and with him the Queen—in university robes. The happy couple, then Duke and Duchess of York, are pictures as they were honored with degrees of doctors of law by Queen's University, Belfast, in 1924. The Irish institution of learning too, had recognized the student abilities of the king-to-be.

SPLIT IN RANKS MEANS DISASTER SAYS ABERHART

Premier Visits Peterboro For Conference—Will Stay Social Credit Chief

MISS CORONATION

By George Finlay
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

EDMONTON, April 5 (CP) — A warning a split in the ranks of Alberta Social Crediters would spell disaster and bring "victory for the financiers," was given by Premier William Aberhart, speaking last night at the Edmonton Prophetic Bible Conference.

An insurgent group of Social Credit members in the legislature had attacked his leadership and proposals he represent Alberta at the Coronation of King George VI in London.

Premier Aberhart announced he would not go to the Coronation and that he would remain leader of the Social Credit government as long as it was the desire of the people of Alberta and the members of the legislature.

"We hope that the Social Credit vessel may be able to withstand the storm and maintain a steady keel," he said. "The present government is most anxious to make headway as fast as possible in the introduction of Social Credit."

He warned against lobbyists who, he said, were attempting to create dissatisfaction among Social Credit members of the legislature.

Enough Going From Canada

"I never said at any time that I was going to the Coronation," the premier declared. "I do not think it will be necessary for me to go to England when there are so many going from Canada."

He said it was the desire of the Government there be "a fair and equitable adjustment and settlement of the debt situation."

This meeting took the form of a church party. The program consisted of numbers contributed by all the different organizations of the church commencing with the Primer Sunday School Class and ending with the Session. The following is the program. The opening number was given by one of the youngest members, Nellie Fields, who sang very sweetly, "Love." This was followed by a recitation by Patricia Kelly entitled "The Little Old Grandmother," suitably dressed for the piece. The Sunday School sang the chorus "Happy Easter." The Junior Y.P.A. staged a very fine playet, entitled "Why we work for Missionaries." This play was given by seven young members under the leadership of Mrs. A. Smale, and was much enjoyed. At the conclusion of this little play Cameron Baker and Douglas Edgar sang "Oh, The Harvest is Ripe," the others joining in the chorus. Orval Kelly represented the Y.P.U. speaking on youth's place in the church.

The choir contributed an Easter anthem. Mrs. Joe Greenley gave a reading for the Women's Association entitled "You." The Bible Class was represented by Miss Maud Cooper, singing the beautiful solo, "Open the Gates of the Temple." Ross Moore who recently returned from Florida spoke for the Stewards of the church and gave an interesting account of his trip. Mrs. W. McLaren gave a very humorous recitation entitled "How she learned to Skate". Peter Ewing, one of the oldest members, concluded this part of the program for the Session by giving several selections on the violin.

Mrs. W. Harper moved a vote of thanks to all who contributed to the evening's entertainment especially Mrs. A. Smale, who was convenor.

The thank offering amounted to $50.00. The closing hymn and prayer by Dr. Cooper completed the evening's program.

The toast to the hosts was proposed by Stanley Robinson and elaborated by H. C. Howson, Alex Long and Harold Moncrief, with a response from Mr. and Mrs. Wood. Shortly after the commencement of dinner, a surprise bouquet arrived in a basket containing twenty-five lovely roses, the gift of twelve of the South Monaghan township guests. After dinner and a pleasant social hour, the party motored to the Capitol Theatre to hear Bobby Breen in "Rainbow on the River."

Mr. and Mrs. Wood received many friendly messages from many places, including Boston, Watertown and New York city, in the United States, and Commando, Mull and Chatham, in Ontario. SIX "PETTICOAT" TICKETS RUNNING IN KANSAS TOWNS

New Albany's 100 Per Cent. Women Government Finds No Opposition

ONLY JUDGES ARE MEN

TOPEKA, Kans., April 5 (AP)—Woman's place, some are saying in Kansas, is in the city hall.

Six complete "petticoat" tickets seek election today in five small towns.

Women gained from the legislature the right to share equally with men in political organization; and one woman has been elected a county central chairman for the first time.

Barring unforseen write-in campaigns, two Kansas towns are certain of being ruled the next two years by the hand that used to rock the cradle.

New Albany's 100 per cent petticoat government, elected two years ago, is without opposition in today's election in third class cities. In Nashville, two women's tickets seek the mayor and council offices. The only men candidates are those for police judge.

Ford, Hurlingame and Cherokee have women's tickets opposing the men. Two women vaut on the Cheney city council.

"I'm for them; let's give them a chance," said Frank Townsend whose wife is running for councilman.

"Looks like the women will run the town now," chimed in Harvey Haynes. His wife is running for mayor.

GIVES KIND WORD FOR CHORUS GIRL

It's Hard Life, Says Their Secretary, Don't Weaken For Baldheads

NEW YORK, April 5—(CP) — The average 1937 chorus girl is no flibbertigibbet headline hunter, but a young woman who works for her money and has scant interest in the plight of "stage-door Johnnys," according to Mrs. Dorothy Bryant, executive secretary of the Chorus Equity Association.

As guardian of the working conditions for those who are allegedly responsible for the presence of rows of nude pales in Broadway theatres, Mrs. Bryant in an interview destroyed some popular notions about her charges.

"I think that 80 per cent of what people think of chorus girls is the result of press agents," she said. "It's easy to believe. You can't make a very good story about Jennie Doakes working hard and living quietly.

"There are few orchid-toting girls who wear mink coats, have Park Avenue penthouses and have just been out with a pal of a garageer. As a class, I think the chorus girls have had unfair publicity because you can find exceptions among any group, stenographers, trained nurses, or office workers.

"Most of the girls take their work seriously and work hard. These huge salaries are something I never knew about. The minimum for a chorus girl in New York is $30 a week, and on the road, $35. For a first-rate musical show on Broadway a get gets $40."

Mrs. Bryant warned "forlorn little things" from small towns not to come to New York for jobs unless they had funds to keep themselves for at least six months.

"The requirements for a chorus girl are much harder now," she said. "Not more than 10 per cent of the chorus girls and boys take up the stage as a career. Of course, from that 10 per cent comes many principals. The majority get married. Generally speaking, to get on the stage a girl has to be better looking than the average."

SPRING HATS REACH FORWARD, UPWARD

Shapes Are Odd But They're Becoming

Black silk satin afternoon hat with toyo brim and butterfly bow.

By LISBETH

At first glance hats are wild this year. They may be tiny or wide brimmed; they may sit forward practically on your nose, or at the very back of your head. They may be plainly tailored or have fetching and colorful posies trimming them—but they all have unusual shapes and decorations oddly placed.

At second glance you will find, however, that they are not hard to wear, and there are types for each kind and age of women—really becoming shapes. The sweet young things look adorable in the off-the-face shapes that show their faces; and they can wear the cockiest of tiny hats with flat crowns that tilt forward on their dainty noses. The older woman must use caution, but she, too, can find veiled or trimmed hats that softly shade the face and add to its charm.

The striking chapeau that illustrates the story is made of lustrous black silk satin, with a toyo brim and a butterfly bow reaching otward the sky.

Most of the hats show considerable of the hair, so care must be taken to dress tresses to make the ensemble pleasing. You will notice the sleek roll of the model's hair in this picture, and how well it sets off the hoxburg brim of the hat.

WEDDINGS

DUNFORD—HARRISON

LAKEFIELD, April 5—A quiet but pretty wedding took place at the United Church parsonage Wednesday, March 31, when Elwood Dunford and Edna Harrison were united in holy matrimony, Rev. G. F. Kelly officiating.

The bride, attired in cream satin crepe gown, with a spray of pink roses and lilies of the valley at her waist, her veil being caught with a bandeau of orange blossom around her hair, was attended by Miss Pearl Walker, R.N., of Hamilton. Mr. Roy Dunford attended the groom.

After a short honeymoon the happy couple will live on the groom's farm at Lakefield.

TAKES PLACE OF HYMN

Youngster Substitutes 'Pennies From Heaven' For Church Hymn

KANSAS CITY, April 5—(CP). —Raymond E. Gould, Jr., seemed unusually quiet for his seven years.

"Did you enjoy yourself at church?" asked his mother.

"I guess so," he said indifferently.

"What was the main hymn?" she asked.

"It was one I didn't know," replied Raymond, "but I just sang 'Pennies From Heaven' as loud as I could and it worked out all right."

POTTERIES STILL CROWNING EDWARD

Demand Continues For Souvenirs Of Event Cancelled By Abdication

LONDON, April 5—(CP)—Three months ago British manufacturers caught by the abdication with huge stocks of Edward VIII Coronation souvenirs, were bemoaning their expected crippling losses.

Now most of them are smiling. The demand for Edward souvenirs from all parts of the world has been so persistent some have already assumed a scarcity value.

For example, one firm made a limited edition of 1,000 china loving-cups stamped with the head of King Edward and the legend, "crowned May 12." They were sold at approximately $12 each. All were disposed of a few days after the abdication and the firm has since been offered as much as $35 for one. In the potteries in Birmingham and London, there are factories still turning out orders for Edward VIII souvenirs.

The Birmingham Jewellers' and Silversmiths' Association, spokesmen for most of the firms which have been manufacturing millions of medals, cigarette cases, spoons and ashtrays for Coronation Day, have announced that Edward VIII stocks have been completely absorbed.

QUEEN MARY HOLDS PUBLIC AFFECTION

Receives Warm Greetings From People Whenever She Appears

LONDON, April 5.—(CP)—Since her move from Buckingham Palace to Marlborough House, Queen Mary has sought to return more and more to private life. But the people seem unwilling to let her go.

In deference to her wishes they did not gather outside her house during the December crises, nor was mention made of her comings and goings in the press. Yet crowds now collect whenever she goes shopping.

Though her Majesty is the first Queen Mother in recent history to attend the Coronation of a son, as she plans to do May 12, it is understood she wishes to efface herself as much as possible. She is deliberately placing herself in the background but spontaneous public demonstrations of affection make that difficult. Crowds waves handkerchiefs, and cheer when the King and Queen Elizabeth appear, but there is a particularly deep spontaneity to the greetings for Queen Mary.

"She has been with us so long and through so much," was the comment of one of the exhibiting manufacturers regarding a typical reception given Queen Mary at the British Industries Fair.

Fashion Service

A very quiet wedding with only members of the immediate families in attendance, was solemnized recently in Central United Church, Owen Sound, where the bride was christened and where her father was pastor at the time of her birth, when Miss Melba Morris, daughter of Rev. J. T. Morris and Mrs. Morris, at present of Meaford, became the bride of James Bertram Croft, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur A. Croft of Bobcaygeon. The ceremony was performed by the bride's father.

The bride looked very charming in her wedding costume, a gown of black marquisette, embroidered in red and yellow flower clusters and trimmed with a heavy crush satin sash and collar, and hat and other accessories all in black patent leather. Her flowers were red Templar roses and white sweet peas, arranged in a corsage bouquet. Later, for travelling she donned a black swagger coat. Mrs. J. R. Conley, sister of the bridegroom, and Dr. G. D. Morris, brother of the bride, were attendants.

The wedding dinner was served at the Sydenham Club and Mr. and Mrs. Croft left by motor immediately after for New York and Atlantic City. Upon return they will reside at 438 Ninth Street East, Owen Sound.

Just Between Us Women

A Daily Chat With Examiner Neighbors, Conducted by Roberta

GO, soul, the body's guest,
Upon a thankless errand;
Fear not to touch the best,
The truth shall be thy warrant:
Go, since I needs must die,
And give the world the lie.

Tell 'em, it lacks devotion;
Tell love, it is but lust;
Tell time it is but motion;
Tell flesh, it is but dust!
And wish them not reply,
For thou must give the lie.

—Sir Walter Raleigh.

Sometimes when things have gotten us down, we think everything in the world is rotten, but it all sets our thoughts that have colored our lives, so that we think there is no good thing left, everyone is crooked or out for something they can get from us, and worst of all, no one loves us for ourselves alone.

And it is the silliest thing in the world for someone to come along and urge you to cheer up. What is there for you to be cheerful about? You might as well sit down and gloom for awhile, and get it out of your system. You have been hurt, you have been disappointed, and the world looks mighty black to you, and so it would to those who are urging this cheerfulness on you, for they are no different to you, only they are not suffering as you are at the time.

But after awhile, your sound common sense asserts itself, and you know in your heart that all the world is not bad, that many times you have got here deeds done to you, that you have real true friends, and that this is only a mood which will pass, and you will give the lie to all these thoughts that are torturing you.

You know there is devotion, you know that all love is not lust, you know that time can heal all things, and that there is more than dust to life, that all your endeavours will not end in the grave, all your hopes end in naught, for "God's in His Heaven, all's right with the world" and it is you who have been thrown out of step for awhile.

There is not one of us who do not get pessimistic every so often, but we must not let it grow on us. Think back of all the times your prayers have been answered, and you know as I do, that you have not been as good as you might have been, all the time, you knew you could have been a lot better, and you also know that you are foolish to let things get you down as far as they do.

So, let your sense of humour come to the top, and laugh some of your troubles away. Realize that you may have been too close to your worries too long to get a clear view of them, and let your thoughts wander to all things you are going to do once this fit of gloom has passed.

You are going to fix the garden, or make over a new dress, or try a new recipe, or visit with some old friends, maybe even get to know some new ones. What about that new neighbor you keep saying you must go to see, or that sick person who has been laid up so long.

Do something to rouse yourself. I grant you it is no always easy, but you can let your sense of humour come to the surface at taking life so seriously, and laugh some of it off.

After all, aren't we fools to let trifles get us down as we do? Something someone has said or done which didn't please us, and presto our life is blue and sad, while the ones who did or said these things go merrily on their way.

Let us try to go merrily on our way, not taking quite so much notice of other people's moods and words. It could be, you know, that someone annoyed them, and they took it out on us, but not if we don't let them.

When you look back, you realize how many trivial things have got you down to the verge of despair, and how foolish and senseless it seems. Rise above these irritations, even do it once or twice, and you are free of them forever. Feeling more cheerful and as if the world was a better place than you thought? That's good. Let me hear of it.

Your Friend,
ROBERTA.

CROWNING RITES WILL BE FILMED

Ceremony Within Historic Abbey May 12 To Issue In News Reels

LONDON, April 5—(CP) — The Coronation ceremony inside Westminster Abbey, May 12, is to be photographed for the talkies. On behalf of all the news reel companies in Great Britain, Sir Gordon Craig and W. J. Gell have announced the Duke of Norfolk (the Earl Marshal) and the Coronation committee have granted full facilities for the filming of the ceremony.

All aspects of the task have been discussed with the Earl Marshal, the Archbishop of Canterbury and members of the Coronation committee in the Abbey itself.

"Every reasonable facility is to be granted for a most comprehensive record of the ceremony to be made in keeping in every respect with the dignity and solemnity of the occasion," they added. "With the utmost resource of the industry at command, there is but little doubt that the film will go down as the greatest historical record of all times."

The List Would Be Long

The move at Ottawa to try and take the profit out of making munitions of war will probably receive support, but the danger in the situation is that there will be a tendency to pay attention only to the munitions shops and be satisfied with having attended to them. It is a fact that during the time when munitions were made in Canada there were contractors who made a great deal of money, and there were others who lost heavily. There were plants which had been assembled for munition making, and after the war they were good for nothing else and the machinery had to be disposed of for what it would bring. It is wrong to conclude that every plant which made munitions also made a great deal of money. After it had been found that defective shells had been killing our own men at the front inspection regulations were increased to the point where some of the second-rate plants were given so many "rejects" on their daily output that they operated at a loss, and rightly so.

During the war years in Canada there was no method of regulating prices, nor was there any method of regulating wages. People who worked in the plants made money to a greater extent than they had ever done before. They made more money in an hour than a soldier made in a day.

But they were not the only people who were making money. The firms which manufacture machine tools were so busy they were weeks and months behind in deliveries. They were making money and so were the agencies which were selling them. There were men who purchased stock in steel companies in Canada and United States shortly after the war started and their holdings mounted, and they made money.

There were stores in many parts of the country which were heavily stocked with certain lines of merchandise the manufacture of which was virtually stopped by the war, and all these places made money. There were men who operated in the wheat market and they made money. The price to which butter and potatoes and food supplies went meant that others were making money. If one were to compile a complete list of all those who made money during the war and as a direct result of the war the document would be long and formidable. It would be by no means a complete list if it included only the makers of munitions.

They Are Expert Keepers

The Department of National Revenue has seen to it that an amendment has been put through to the Customs Act to prevent claims for rebates being launched. After Britain went off the gold standard the Canadian dollar was at a discount compared to the United States dollar, and an official in the department began fixing values for import in terms of the higher American dollar instead of our own Canadian dollar. He had made a mistake and several applications for rebates have been made. It is feared there might be more, so the amendment was put through to head them off.

The reason for the amendment was that the goods had been imported; the importer had sold them and the consumer had paid the overcharge. It was not possible to make a rebate to the people who had actually bought the goods because they were scattered and unknown. If the rebate were paid to the importer it would be just so much money in his pocket, and the feeling at Ottawa was that this excess amount might as well remain in the pocket of the federal treasurer. And it will.

Governments are generally like that. The tax in this case was unjust, admittedly so, and the government collected cash to which it was not entitled, but it is certain the wrong people would get rebates, so it decides to keep the money. Governments as a rule are rather keen when it comes to showing why they should not part with any of their proceeds of taxation, and members of governments and ministers seem to have developed a certain technique of explanation in favor of the system of retention that is difficult to overcome.

Official Nonsense

Beer purchased by the Liquor Commission of Manitoba costs the same whether it comes from Manitoba, Ontario or Quebec breweries, but when the beer is sold the price of the Ontario and Quebec article is five cents a glass higher than the Manitoba. The reason for that is the Manitoba brewers asked their provincial legislature for protection—and got it.

We are not particularly concerned regarding the sale of beer, but the point is here! If the provinces of the Dominion begin on this business of protecting provincial industries where is the thing going to end?

If the system were allowed to grow and expand without interruption then we might well come to the point where cities and counties would take up the same idea, and we would have a commercial war with the consumers paying for it.

The eternal reaching out and grasping for more revenue for governments is at the bottom of Manitoba's short-sighted nonsense. One might well wish a period of quiet sanity would come and dwell with the people who are bent upon mischievous legislation of this sort. Trade barriers the world over are thick enough without provincial governments starting to pile up more of them.

The Work of a Minister

Rev. W. Franklin Banister of St. Paul's United Church in Bowmanville, addressed a service club in that community on the general text of what it means to be a minister. He was not seeking to build up a case, but rather explaining from a vocational angle just what a minister had to do. There was one statement which was different. This:

"A good minister is expected to be a good organizer and a financier, and Mr. Banister related that the Metropolitan church in Toronto selects its minister for his ability to raise money because of the tremendous debt on the church."

We do not for a moment doubt the truth of that statement because it is known the debt on Metropolitan church is large to the point of being huge, and a special campaign was needed recently to handle a situation which looked dangerous.

But there is something a trifle distasteful about the idea of going out with the avowed intent of finding a minister for such a church who is known as a good money raiser. If it meant the minister was good enough to fill all the pews then it would sound better because there is no revenue from empty seats. But having that before him all the time—raising money—is not the work of the ministry. There is no challenge in it, and it is too wide a departure from the great commission given to the disciples when they were first sent off on their labors.

The Small Boy

The Examiner correspondent in Campbellford took some pictures of the fire which broke out there on Saturday morning and in the same day's paper they were published along with the story. We do not mention that as an example of top speed because it is not, but rather as indicating a custom which has become general with many of the papers in the smaller cities within recent times.

One of the pictures showed the street where goods from houses had been piled, and at first glance one might have thought some person had been evicted. The other picture showed the back of the building where the fire had done its work. And it showed something else—a group of small boys, seven or eight of them. They were turned right toward the camera, while two adults in the same picture were turned the other way looking at the damage which the fire had done.

In nearly every picture taken out in the open where there is anything of a general nature going on you will find the small boy present. If it is a fire picture he is there; if it is a view of a parade he is present; if the picture shows an accident scene the small boy turns up. He seems to be ever present.

Just As We Have Contended

A regional meeting of the American College of Surgeons was held in Seattle and one of the discussions turned on that very old question of what to do with a cold. Dr. Perry G. Goldsmith of Toronto, who was present, remarked that "old remedies for colds haven't been greatly improved. It is recorded that doctors frowned on the idea that whiskey was a good thing.

The assembled doctors seemed to have turned to things as they used to be and spoke of hot beef tea, mustard plasters, rubbing with goose grease and so on, and admitted they knew of nothing much better. Go to bed and stay there was about the extent of their advice.

This paper has often contended that things as they existed on the Tenth Concession were just about right, and there they knew how to deal with colds in the head, colds on the chests or colds which threatened to block the pipes. They employed mustard plasters, one part mustard to five parts of flour, senna tea, sage tea, beef broth, hot bricks, goose grease and a good many other things.

When some person started ailing there the neighbors soon knew about it. There were no telephones, but word got around just the same, and then the neighbors started coming over to see what could be done. When they came they were never empty handed. If there were disease in the district then they believed in bringing along their favorite household weapon with which to fight it. It might be that by the time the first neighbor arrived the sufferer had been packed off to bed in an effort to produce a sweating. Perhaps he (or she) had been well smeared with goose grease, and had already been attended to as far as internal treatment was concerned, but if the neighbor had something better then it was given a chance to demonstrate its merits. Like as not the victim already well greased would be treated with something with turpentine in it, for turpentine was said to possess penetrating qualities. If it were well rubbed on the chest then some of the benefit might even go right through and help the spine along. The next neighbor might be enthusiastic about the use of camphor. And so on it went until the bedridden one had been fortified by the accumulated belief and practice of both sides of the concession and from some of the homes along the side roads. And recovery generally came in due season. And doctors meet today in conference and say they don't know of anything better when it comes to handling a cold, so the Tenth must have been just about right. Also it was vigorous and persistent.

When Did He Abdicate?

An Examiner reporter asked sufficient questions to convince him that nine out of ten people can tell you that Christopher Columbus discovered America in 1492, but not one in ten can name the date on which Edward VIII abdicated the throne, which was December 10, 1936.

The questions were asked because there had been a discussion in the office relating to the length of time it would take for recent dates to become known with the certainty of more ancient historical facts. The abdication of a king is an important event in a nation's history. In years to come children attending school will be studying it, and they will probably have to deal with all the circumstances on examination papers, if such things continue to live in the future.

The date will be well fixed in the mind in future years, and yet the date is not well fixed in the average mind today, and the same reporter had reason to find a certain haziness surrounding the date on which the world war was officially declared. But Christopher Columbus and his famous trip—nine out of ten can sing that off with ease.

NOTE AND COMMENT

Spanish loyalists claim the war is almost over—and there must be times the insurgents have no difficulty in coming to the same conclusion.

Only one cannery inspector is listed as among the unemployed in Canada. Looks as if the vocational schools may have to add a course in canning to the curriculum.

According to a research organization a good work horse costs more than many good used cars. On the other hand of course there is no license or driver's permit to buy.

Daylight saving is scheduled to start in Peterborough two weeks later than last year and even then there will be not a few who think that even the shortened period is much too long.

The Ontario Weekly Newspaper Association members are to be entertained at the farm of Premier Hepburn in the near future and the boys should know their onions by the time that visit is concluded.

An American doctor says that ten years could be added to the average length of human life if advantage were taken of available medical knowledge. That is provided of course folk drove their motor cars more carefully.

The proposal of the Federal government to establish a reserve force of 300 members for the Royal Canadian Mounted Police strangely enough gets the most applause from folk who not so long ago were referring to the Mounties as the Bennett Rifles.

Quebec has given the municipalities power to appoint officers to shoot unmuzzled dogs which are roaming at large. If those animals have to be killed surely a more humane method than of leaving them to the uncertain marksmanship of municipal officers could be devised.

York township is endeavoring to arrange a uniform speed limit of thirty miles an hour in all sections of the municipality. If they took the same view as the members of the Legislature they would make the limit 50 miles on the ground that everybody drives that fast anyway.

GLAD

(By A. E. K.)

¶ It would be rather tough indeed, and I'd be out of board and feed, entirely out of luck; if all the people that I know, who hustle round and come and go, just all sat down and struck.

¶ I've often seen the butcher man, who serves me with good slabs of ham, and other things to eat; he's on the go most every day, and knows not any other way, but keeping on his feet.

¶ The man who brings the butter in, is tanned and hard and rather thin, is always on a trot; he has to travel miles I know, and he can't even take it slow, in miles he does a lot.

¶ I watched the man who brings me coal, he dumps it down a little hole, it's weighted on his back; if he sat down to rest his knees, I guess in winter time I'd freeze, I'd never get a sack.

¶ And if the mail man went on strike, I'd never hear from Jake or Mike, I'd get no letters read; I wouldn't hear from home at all, until I went there in the fall, they might be sick or dead.

¶ I'm glad those men keep on the job, nor sit some day upon the sod, I'm glad they never struck; for in a day or so I know, I'd face a large amount of woe—and I'd be out of luck.

Our Statesmen At Their Labors

INTEREST NOT PAID

(Parliamentary Reports)

Mr. BENNETT: As far as I know there never was a time when we undertook in any sense to advance money to the municipalities.

Mr. EULER: Was there not an advance to Winnipeg?

Mr. BENNETT: No, that was done through the province. In no case did we make an advance to a municipality. As regards Winnipeg, since the Minister of Trade and Commerce (Mr. Euler) has mentioned it, an agreement was made whereby certain public works were to be constructed, including, latterly, a sewer, and the Federal government made a grant for labour costs up to a certain sum of money—I think it was 600,000.

Mr. EULER: That would not go through the province, would it?

Mr. BENNETT: It went through the province, yes.

Mr. DUNNING: The whole Winnipeg transaction went through the province. In that case it was intended for a specific municipality.

Mr. BENNETT: Oh, quite; as it was in Alberta, for Calgary and Edmonton.

Mr. GARDINER: Regina and Saskatoon.

Mr. McCANN: And in Ontario, too.

Mr. BENNETT: Yes, and Nova Scotia. Rightly or wrongly, the position was this: The provinces made applications and said they were prepared to carry on during the year undertakings at a certain point, if the federal government would advance them certain sums of money to enable them to pay their share, and make a contribution as well. This we did. I am not going into details. It suffices for my purpose to say that any moneys which went in contractual relations between the government of Canada and individuals in that province.

Mr. DUNNING: That is right.

Mr. BENNETT: That is the position. At any rate we continued to advance money for which we received treasury bills, and bills were also given for the interest, because the province was unable to pay the interest when it became due. It endeavoured to float securities, and did so by means of a bond house in the east. I objected to the terms of the prospectus under which the securities were sold, because, as I stated, and I still maintain the opinion, from looking at the prospectus it seemed that there had been no default, when as a matter of fact they had not paid the interest on the loans made by the dominion except by compounding the interest and giving new treasury bills.

Mr. DUNNING: In part.

Mr. BENNETT: No, it was in whole, at that time.

Mr. DUNNING: In part. They have paid some interest.

Mr. BENNETT: I am glad to hear that.

Mr. DUNNING: My right hon. friend's statement is, in general, true.

Mr. BENNETT: I am talking about the time I was in office.

Mr. DUNNING: The province right through paid some interest, although not much, in cash.

Mr. Bennett: Certainly nothing was paid with respect to many notes that came due.

Mr. DUNNING: Right.

Mr. BENNETT: And thus compound interest was set up.

Mr. DUNNING: And is going on still.

A PIG IN A POKE!

Mr. BENNETT: How many people are involved? How many farms are affected?

Mr. DUNNING: There are 158 municipalities.

Mr. BENNETT: Surely we can tell how many farms are affected?

Mr. DUNNING: We can get that information.

Mr. BENNETT: I would not trouble to get it, but one would think it would be a very elementary sort of thing to have. We are dealing with a problem in which we know the number of municipalities. Surely we didn't buy a pig in a poke; we knew what we were doing.

Mr. DUNNING: As my right hon. friend knows, the government of Canada during his regime advanced these moneys to the provinces.

Mr. BENNETT: Surely.

Mr. DUNNING: The provinces in turn loaned it to the farmers and took security from the farmers by way of a note. The debt, as far as the dominion is concerned, is a debt due the dominion from the province. But it has a further aspect, as a debt due by the farmer to the province.

Mr. PELLETIER: In what form?—A direct loan to a farmer?

Mr. DUNNING: The farmer gave his note; the province holds the note of the farmer.

Mr. PELLETIER: For cash advanced, or what?

Mr. DUNNING: For seed grain and all the various purposes during the years, differing in some as compared with others, for which advances were made.

Mr. BENNETT: Not for relief, I think.

Mr. DUNNING: Oh, yes.

Mr. BENNETT: They cancelled the notes for relief.

Mr. DUNNING: Not all of them. The relief notes for the years for which my right hon. friend arranged cancellation are not concerned in this adjustment; they were taken care of otherwise. Also my right hon. friend will remember that there was one year, I think 1934-35, in which the dominion government of that day dealt with the matter not by way of loan to the province, but assumed the position which this government has assumed in relation to the problem of 1936, that it was a national problem; and in that year the national government bore the cost. So that year does not enter into the adjustment.

NO BALKE MICHIGAN

(Buffalo Courier-Express)

The government of the Dominion of Canada has made it clear that no sit-down strike will be tolerated there. Apparently the Dominion authorities do not share Governor Murphy's view that the only way to avoid "bloodshed" is to suspend law enforcement.

ACHIEVEMENT

Editor Examiner.

Sir: The announcement in your paper, "Coming on April the 1st as it did" of the Hydro Electric Commission having a surplus of over $31,000.00, is wonderful and in view of the times and the competition being so keen, it is very gratifying.

Concluding, I would call it an achievement.

ORGANIZERS

Editor Examiner,

Sir: With regard to a speech made and pointed in your paper dated April 1st, I wish to inform you and your readers that there are no organizers of the Textile workers in our city recognized by the C.I.O., and any one purporting to be such is an imposter. Recent happenings have left a bad taste in the mouths of the textile workers in our city. If all textile organizers had the workers' plight at heart as they say they have they would guard their speech and have better control of their own personal feeling, forget their remuneration and in general think only of the worker.

Hoping you see fit to print this statement to correct any false impression, I am, Sir,

Yours truly,

COMMUNISM AND FACISM

Editor Examiner,

Sir: Rev. Ernest Thomas speaking in the George street United Church recently expressed the thought that communism and facism are God's agents in bringing about a new religious conception of Christianity in Europe. We cannot dispute this as the Creator of the universe can use many agencies by which He may extend His Kingdom. But the average individual would think that these new forms of government are coming into action for material purposes and behind them are the great masses of underpaid workers with the apparent motive of bettering their financial condition, rather than a religious movement. We are living in a day of changing conditions and the world of today would seem an entirely new world, and there is a danger of us being carried away with new ideas and new conceptions of religion. Dr. Thomas made the statement unless the church accepts the new conception of its duty, an upheaval against the church will take place in America in the next few years.

Had Dr. Thomas expressed the thought that unless the church accepts and holds fast to the old fundamental teachings of Christ and His definition of religion, making it the means to one great end, "The redemption of the world," we would have understood him better. There is a danger of the church of today losing the vision that Christ gave concerning His church, and a danger of the church of today becoming an organization rather than a church.

PERSONNEL OF A ROYAL COMMISSION

Editor Examiner:

Sir: An editorial in the Globe and Mail, March 31st, dealing with this matter, provokes serious thought. The legality of our laws cannot be questioned, being enacted by competent authority. Whether they are just and equitable is an entirely different matter. Should any be at variance with justice, is it wise or desirable to entrust revision to a class specially trained in legal technicalities, a class that reverences law because it is law? Are such safe guides not as between one law and another law, but as between what is just and what is legal? Would it not be expecting too much from the most eminent jurist?

All our laws are legal, but all are not just, and a commision appointed to deal with questions of taxation and jurisdictional reasonabilities for public expenditures will face situations where justice and law are opposed. The issue will then be between principles and legal technicalities. Which would a legal mind favor?

SAYS IT'S GAMBLING

Editor Examiner,

Sir: Our Provincial Government has set a good example in withholding grants from exhibitions allowing gambling on the grounds.

Our own exhibition last year held the biggest gamble this city ever had in the way they conducted their car competition which was a means of forcing the gate admissions. A large percent of the ticket holders were forced to pay their gate admissions for four days to honor their draw tickets who could not afford to pay the admission any more than one day owing to circumstances. I know of some other exhibitions who donated cars on draws but they sold tickets which gave admission to the fair the day of the draw which put the gamble of the game in a different light.

Our City Council would do well to follow suit with the Provincial Government along this line. A remark was made to me a few days ago by a highly respected citizen, if our exhibition board cannot run the exhibition on their reputation without resorting to a gamble they had all better resign and let some of the young people under Mr. Munions have a trial. Thanking you, I remain,

W. H. MERRILL

RE OBJECTS

Editor Examiner.

Sir: I must admit I was not much taken with Ald. Gordon's challenge to the mayor to go ahead and name the bootleggers, nor was there much bravery in the claim that he would proceed to swear our information in his own name.

It is really a very old form of doing things and one which means nothing at all and of all this Ald. Gordon is thoroughly aware. He knows well enough you cannot name a man as a bootlegger until you prove he is a bootlegger.

It looks too much like an attack on Mayor Macdonald just for the sake of an attack. The Mayor is honorable and square in all he does and I for one do not like this rather small business of merely trying to take a crack at him for that is all it amounts to.

TAXPAYER OF 42 YEARS

Peterborough, April 5.

Says Youth Is Unfit.

(From the Montreal Star)

"We have a nation of unfit young men and women." This phrase, used by Dr. A. S. Lamb, director of Athletics at McGill University, before members of the Canadian Physical Education Association at Toronto yesterday, summarizes a situation affecting our national physical condition which has long existed in Canada, but for which, unfortunately, nobody has yet found a remedy.

When we stop to consider the appalling effect of sickness on our national fitness, apart altogether from the "direct cost," which Dr. Lamb estimates at $300,000,000 annually, and all the attendant evils—juvenile delinquency is only one—we can, with profit to ourselves, look outside our own domain to see what other countries are doing. Great Britain has a programme for physical improvement of the people as a whole; Germany has for years concentrated its energies on the physical fitness of its people; so has Italy. But, as Dr. Lamb said so succinctly, Canada was "muddled through" since 1918, when "our unfitness showed us greatly."

Unless, therefore, we are content to drift towards "physical bankruptcy," we should in self-protection consider the adoption of remedial measures without delay. The responsibility for this in the first instance rests on the Dominion Government, but the problem can be simplified considerably by the active collaboration of the provinces.

A Dominion-wide health conference, to which the provinces, all health, social and welfare agencies would join to work out a "national physical fitness" programme, would seem to be the first desirable step in ameliorating a situation which will become alarming unless the necessary remedies are soon applied.

HAPPY ON THE FARM

'Tis between the dusk and daylight,
Our tho'ts of the winter take flight,
For those rosy clouds make our minds turn right
To thoughts of spring, when the evenings are bright.

No matter how the weather may change,
We make the best of it, though wide the range,
And live happily out here on the grange.

And ne'er feel lonesome—if you—that may seem strange,
Just how the snow lies cold on the ground,
And through those trees there's not a sound,

As the shadows of the eve seem to go round
To the other side of the world westward bound,
We sit here and wonder how it would seem,

If upon that sun we could sit there and gleam
Over the earth while around us the light would stream,
Leaving darkness and night behind,

When others would dream.
'Twould be a hot trip. And, oh! so fast!
That we'd wish we lived as in the past,

For as such speed, we could never last,
So as an earth dweller, we'd rather be classed,
Where over the beautiful landscape our eyes may flit,

While by the window in this warm room we sit,
And I hurry in the dark to get this farm poem "fit."

While one cat upon a chair did leap,
Another cat sits and through one eye, will peep

At the fish in the bowl swim, as in the deep.
The evening is now dark, and peaceful still,
Except for the music as it floats like water in a rill,

Resounding as the water in the pond by the mill,
Till the music changes and sound just like the soldiers in a drill.
To be here on the farm and not in dream land,

Makes us feel happy and, oh, so grand,
Where we enjoy life and take our stand,
To do all the good work we have planned,

Accepting all errors as a token,
To make amends and not go groped,
Till we are aged and broken,

Such words are not lightly spoken.

Boake Carter is one of those radio chaps who see all, hear all, know all, and keep nothing to themselves. They make a little bit of background go a long way—when draped about the newspaper despatches—and listeners are supposed to sit back in astonishment at the breadth and profundity of their learning.

Well, Boake Carter was born in England, but he had lived in the United States sixteen years, presumably was making a good living through his daily pronouncements on world affairs, and it occurred to him he should become an American citizen, which he did. As Carter tells the story in an article somebody has sent the Halifax Herald this is what happened when he renounced King George and took the oath of allegiance to the United States:

"I felt an immense elation, a sense to triumph, of power. It suddenly flashed through my mind how many slaves must have felt when Lincoln gave them their emancipation. I was free. I was released to breathe great gulps of spiritual freedom."

This is, of course, Mr. Boake Carter's own business, and Britain will just have to do the best she can without his name on her role of citizenship. One does wonder, however, how a man who looks back upon his British citizenship as slavery, his release from it as his first taste of freedom, will be able fairly to interpret world news which largely is built about the Empire he has cut loose.

The List Would Be Long

The move at Ottawa to try and take the profit out of making munitions of war will probably receive support, but the danger in the situation is that there will be a tendency to pay attention only to the munitions shops and be satisfied with having attended to them. It is a fact that during the time when munitions were made in Canada there were contractors who made a great deal of money, and there were others who lost heavily. There were plants which had been assembled for munition making, and after the war they were good for nothing else and the machinery had to be disposed of for what it would bring. It is wrong to conclude that every plant which made munitions also made a great deal of money. After it had been found that defective shells had been killing our own men at the front inspection regulations were increased to the point where some of the second-rate plants were given so many "rejects" on their daily output that they operated at a loss, and rightly so.

During the war years in Canada there was no method of regulating prices, nor was there any method of regulating wages. People who worked in the plants made money to a greater extent than they had ever done before. They made more money in an hour than a soldier made in a day.

But they were not the only people who were making money. The firms which manufacture machine tools were so busy they were weeks and months behind in deliveries. They were making money and so were the agencies which were selling them. There were men who purchased stock in steel companies in Canada and United States shortly after the war started and their holdings mounted, and they made money.

There were stores in many parts of the country which were heavily stocked with certain lines of merchandise the manufacture of which was virtually stopped by the war, and all these places made money. There were men who operated in the wheat market and they made money. The price to which butter and potatoes and food supplies went meant that others were making money. If one were to compile a complete list of all those who made money during the war and as a direct result of the war the document would be long and formidable. It would be by no means a complete list if it included only the makers of munitions.

They Are Expert Keepers

The Department of National Revenue has seen to it that an amendment has been put through to the Customs Act to prevent claims for rebates being launched. After Britain went off the gold standard the Canadian dollar was at a discount compared to the United States dollar, and an official in the department began fixing values for import in terms of the higher American dollar instead of our own Canadian dollar. He had made a mistake and several applications for rebates have been made. It is feared there might be more, so the amendment was put through to head them off.

The reason for the amendment was that the goods had been imported; the importer had sold them and the consumer had paid the overcharge. It was not possible to make a rebate to the people who had actually bought the goods because they were scattered and unknown. If the rebate were paid to the importer it would be just so much money in his pocket, and the feeling at Ottawa was that this excess amount might as well remain in the pocket of the federal treasurer. And it will.

Governments are generally like that. The tax in this case was unjust, admittedly so, and the government collected cash to which it was not entitled, but it is certain the wrong people would get rebates so it decides to keep the money. Governments as a rule are rather keen when it comes to showing why they should not part with any of their proceeds of taxation, and members of governments and ministers seem to have developed a certain technique of explanation in favor of the system of retention that is difficult to overcome.

Official Nonsense

Beer purchased by the Liquor Commission of Manitoba costs the same whether it comes from Manitoba, Ontario or Quebec breweries, but when the beer is sold the price of the Ontario and Quebec article is five cents a glass higher than the Manitoba. The reason for that is the Manitoba brewers asked their provincial legislature for protection—and got it.

We are not particularly concerned regarding the sale of beer, but the point is here: If the provinces of the Dominion begin on this business of protecting provincial industries where is the thing going to end?

If the system were allowed to grow and expand without interruption item might be enthusiastic about the use of we might well come to the point where cities and counties would take up the same idea, and we would have a commercial war with the consumers paying for it.

The eternal reaching out and grasping for more revenue for governments is at the bottom of Manitoba's short-sighted nonsense. One might well wish a period of quiet sanity would come and dwell with the people who are bent upon mischievous legislation of this sort. Trade barriers the world over are thick enough without provincial governments starting to pile up more of them.

The Work of a Minister

Rev. W. Franklin Banister of St. Paul's United Church in Bowmanville, addressed a service club in that community on the general text of what it means to be a minister. He was not seeking to build up a case, but rather explaining from a vocational angle just what a minister had to do. There was one statement which was different. This:

"A good minister is expected to be a good organizer and a financier, and Mr. Banister related that the Metropolitan church in Toronto selects its minister for his ability to raise money because of the tremendous debt on the church."

We do not for a moment doubt the truth of that statement because it is known the debt on Metropolitan church is large to the point of being huge, and a special campaign was needed recently to handle a situation which looked dangerous.

But there is something a trifle distasteful about the idea of going out with the avowed intent of finding a minister for such a church who is known as a good money raiser. If it meant the minister was good enough to fill all the pews then it would sound better because there is no revenue from empty seats. But having that before him all the time—raising money—is not the work of the ministry. There is no challenge in it, and it is too wide a departure from the great commission given to the disciples when they were first sent off on their labors.

The Small Boy

The Examiner correspondent in Campbellford took some pictures of the fire which broke out there on Saturday morning and in the same day's paper they were published along with the story. We do not mention that as an example of top speed because it is not, but rather as indicating a custom which has become general with many of the papers in the smaller cities within recent times.

One of the pictures showed the street where goods from houses had been piled, and at first glance one might have thought some person had been evicted. The other picture showed the back of the building where the fire had done its work. And it showed something else—a group of small boys, seven or eight of them. They were turned right toward the camera, while two adults in the same picture were turned the other way looking at the damage which the fire had done.

In nearly every picture taken out in the open where there is anything of a general nature going on you will find the small boy present. If it is a fire picture he is there; if it is a view of a parade he is present; if the picture shows an accident scene the small boy turns up. He seems to be ever present.

Just As We Have Contended

A regional meeting of the American College of Surgeons was held in Seattle and one of the discussions turned on that very old question of what to do with a cold. Dr. Perry G. Goldsmith of Toronto, who was present, remarked that "old remedies for colds haven't been greatly improved. It is recorded that doctors frowned on the idea that whiskey was a good thing.

The assembled doctors seemed to have turned to things as they used to be and spoke of hot beef tea, mustard plasters, rubbing with goose grease and so on, and admitted they knew of nothing much better. Go to bed and stay there was about the extent of their advice.

This paper has often contended that things as they existed on the Tenth Concession were just about right, and there they knew how to deal with colds in the head, colds on the chests or colds which threatened to block the pipes. They employed mustard plasters, one part mustard to five parts of flour, senna tea, sage tea, beef broth, hot bricks, goose grease and a good many other things.

When some person started ailing there the neighbors soon knew about it. There were no telephones, but word got around just the same, and then the neighbors started coming over to see what could be done. When they came they were never empty handed. If there were disease in the district then they believed in bringing along their favorite household weapon with which to fight it. It might be that by the time the first neighbor arrived the sufferer had been packed off to bed in an effort to produce a sweating. Perhaps he (or she) had been well smeared with goose grease, and had already been attended to as far as internal treatment was concerned, but if the neighbor had something better then it was given a chance to demonstrate its merits. Like as not the victim already well greased would be treated with something with turpentine in it, for turpentine was said to possess penetrating qualities. If it were well rubbed on the chest then some of the benefit might even go right through and help the spine along. The next neighbor camphor. And so on it went until the bedridden one had been fortified by the accumulated belief and practice of both sides of the concession and from some of the homes along the side roads. And recovery generally came in due season. And doctors meet today in conference and say they don't know of anything better when it comes to handling a cold, so the Tenth must have been just about right. Also it was vigorous and persistent.

When Did He Abdicate?

An Examiner reporter asked sufficient questions to convince him that nine out of ten people can tell you that Christopher Columbus discovered America in 1492, but not one in ten can name the date on which Edward VIII abdicated the throne, which was December 10, 1936.

The questions were asked because there had been a discussion in the office relating to the length of time it would take for recent dates to become known with the certainty of more ancient historical facts. The abdication of a king is an important event in a nation's history. In years to come children attending school will be studying it, and they will probably have to deal with all the circumstances on examination papers, if such things continue to live in the future.

The date will be well fixed in the mind in future years, and yet the date is not well fixed in the average mind today, and the same reporter had reason to find a certain haziness surrounding the date on which the world war was officially declared. But Christopher Columbus and his famous trip—nine out of ten can sing that off with ease.

NOTE AND COMMENT

Spanish loyalists claim the war is almost over—and there must be times the insurgents have no difficulty in coming to the same conclusion.

Only one cannery inspector is listed as among the unemployed in Canada. Looks as if the vocational schools may have to add a course in canning to the curriculum.

According to a research organization a good work horse costs more than many good used cars. On the other hand of course there is no license or driver's permit to buy.

Daylight saving is scheduled to start in Peterborough two weeks later than last year and even then there will be not a few who think that even the shortened period is much too long.

The Ontario Weekly Newspaper Association members are to be entertained at the farm of Premier Hepburn in the near future and the boys should know their onions by the time that visit is concluded.

An American doctor says that ten years could be added to the average length of human life if advantage were taken of available medical knowledge. That is provided of course folk drove their motor cars more carefully.

The proposal of the Federal government to establish a reserve force of 300 members for the Royal Canadian Mounted Police strangely enough gets the most applause from folk who not so long ago were referring to the Mounties as the Bennett Rifles.

Quebec has given the municipalities power to appoint officers to shoot unmuzzled dogs which are roaming at large. If those animals have to be killed surely a more humane method than of leaving them to the uncertain marksmanship of municipal officers could be devised.

York township is endeavoring to arrange a uniform speed limit of thirty miles an hour in all sections of the municipality. If they took the same view as the members of the Legislature they would make the limit 50 miles on the ground that everybody drives that fast anyway.

GLAD

(By A. R. K.)

¶ It would be rather tough indeed, and

¶ I've often seen the butcher man, who serves me with good slabs of ham, and other things to eat; he's on the go most every day, and knows not any other way, but keeping on his feet.

¶ The man who brings the butter in, is tanned and hard and rather thin, is always on a trot; he has to travel miles I know, and he can't even take it slow, in miles he does a lot.

¶ I watched the man who brings me coal, he dumps it down a little hole, it's weighted on his back; if he sat down to rest his knees, I guess in winter time I'd freeze, I'd never get a sack.

¶ And if the mail man went on strike, I'd never hear from Jake or Mike, I'd get no letters read; I wouldn't hear from home at all, until I went there in the fall, they might be sick or dead.

¶ I'm glad those men keep on the job, nor sit some day upon the sod, I'm glad they never struck; for in a day or so I know, I'd face a large amount of woe—and I'd be out of luck.

Our Statesmen At Their Labors

INTEREST NOT PAID

(Parliamentary Reports)

Mr. BENNETT: As far as I know there never was a time when we undertook in any sense to advance money to the municipalities.

Mr. EULER: Was there not an advance to Winnipeg?

Mr. BENNETT: No, that was gone through the province. In no case did we make an advance to a municipality. As regards Winnipeg, since the Minister of Trade and Commerce (Mr. Euler) has mentioned it, an agreement was made whereby certain public works were to be constructed, including, latterly, a sewer, and the federal government made a grant for labour costs up to a certain sum of money—I think it was $60,000.

Mr. EULER: That would not go through the province, would it?

Mr. BENNETT: It went through the province. Yes.

Mr. DUNNING: The whole Winnipeg transaction went through the province. In that case it was intended for a specific municipality.

Mr. BENNETT: Oh, quite; as it was in Alberta, for Calgary and Edmonton.

Mr. GARDINER: Regina and Saskatoon.

Mr. McCANN: And in Ontario, too.

Mr. BENNETT: Yes, and Nova Scotia. Rightly or wrongly, the position was this: The provinces made applications and said they were prepared to carry on during the year undertakings at a certain point, if the federal government would advance them certain sums of money to enable them to pay their share, and make a contribution as well. This we did. I am not going into details. It suffices for my purpose to say that any moneys which went in Saskatchewan to farmers for any purpose did not go direct from the federal government, and there were no contractual relations between the government of Canada and individuals in that province.

Mr. DUNNING: That is right.

Mr. BENNETT: That is the position. At any rate we continued to advance money for which we received treasury bills, and bills were also given for the interest, because the province was unable to pay the interest when it became due. It endeavoured to float securities, and did so by means of a bond house in the east. I objected to the terms of the prospectus under which the securities were sold, because, as I stated, and I still maintain the opinion, from looking at the prospectus it seemed that there had been no default, when as a matter of fact they had not paid the interest on the loans made by the dominion except by compounding the interest and giving new treasury bills.

Mr. DUNNING: In part.

Mr. BENNETT: No, it was in whole, at that time.

Mr. DUNNING: In part. They have paid some interest.

Mr. BENNETT: I am glad to hear that.

Mr. DUNNING: My right hon. friend's statement is, in general, true.

Mr. BENNETT: I am talking about the time I was in office.

Mr. DUNNING: The province right through paid some interest, although not much, in cash.

Mr. Bennett: Certainly nothing was paid with respect to many notes that came due.

Mr. DUNNING: Right.

Mr. BENNETT: And thus compound interest was set up.

Mr. DUNNING: And is going on still.

A PIG IN A POKE!

Mr. BENNETT: How many people are involved? How many farms are affected?

Mr. DUNNING: There are 136 municipalities.

Mr. BENNETT: Surely we can tell how many farms are affected?

Mr. DUNNING: We can get that information.

Mr. BENNETT: I would not trouble to get it, but one would think it would be a very elementary sort of thing to have. We are dealing with a problem in which we knew the number of municipalities. Surely we didn't buy a pig in a poke; we knew what we were doing.

Mr. DUNNING: As my right hon. friend knows, the government of Canada during his regime advanced these moneys to the provinces.

Mr. BENNETT: Surely.

Mr. DUNNING: The province in turn loaned it to the farmers and took security from the farmers by way of a note. The debt, as far as the dominion is concerned, is a debt due the dominion from the province. But it has a further aspect, as a debt due by the farmer to the province.

Mr. PELLETIER: In what form? —A direct loan to a farmer?

Mr. DUNNING: The farmer gave his note; the province holds the note of the farmer.

Mr. PELLETIER: For cash advanced, or what?

Mr. DUNNING: For seed grain and all the various purposes during the years, differing in some as compared with others, for which advances were made.

Mr. BENNETT: Not for relief, I think.

Mr. DUNNING: Oh, yes.

Mr. BENNETT: They cancelled the notes for relief.

Mr. DUNNING: Not all of them. The relief notes for the years for which my right hon. friend arranged cancellation are not concerned in this adjustment; they were taken care of otherwise. Also my right hon. friend will remember that there was one year, I think 1934-35, in which the dominion government of that day dealt with the matter not by way of loan to the province, but assumed the position which this government has assumed in relation to the problem of 1936, that it was a national problem; and in that year the national government bore the cost. So that year does not enter into the adjustment.

ACHIEVEMENT

Editor Examiner,

Sir: The announcement in your paper, "Coming on April the 1st as it did" of the Hydro Electric Commission having a surplus of over $21,000.00, is wonderful and in view of the times and the competition being so keen, it is very gratifying.

Concluding, I would call it an achievement.

ORGANIZERS

Editor Examiner.

Sir: With regard to a speech made and pointed in your paper dated April 1st, I wish to inform you and your readers that there are no organizers of the Textile workers in our city recognized by the C.I.O. and any one purporting to be such is an imposter. Recent happenings have left a bad taste in the mouths of the textile workers in our city. If all textile organizers had the workers' plight at heart as they say they have they would guard their speech and have better control of their own personal feeling, forget their remuneration and in general think only of the worker.

Hoping you see fit to print this statement to correct any false impression, I am, Sir,

Yours truly,

COMMUNISM AND FACISM

Editor Examiner.

Sir: Rev. Ernest Thomas speaking in the George street United Church recently expressed the thought that communism and facism are God's agents in bringing about a new religious conception of Christianity in Europe. We cannot dispute this as the Creator of the universe can use many agencies by which He may extend His Kingdom. But the average individual would think that these new forms of government are coming into action for material purposes and behind them are the great masses of underpaid workers with the apparent motive of bettering their financial condition, rather than a religious movement. We are living in a day of changing conditions and the world of today would seem an entirely new world, and there is a danger of us being carried away with new ideas and new conceptions of religion. Dr. Thomas made the statement unless the church accepts the new conception of its duty, an upheaval against the church will take place in America in the next few years.

Had Dr. Thomas expressed the thought that unless the church accepts and holds fast to the old fundamental teachings of Christ and His definition of religion, making it the means to one great end, "The redemption of the world," we would have understood him better. There is a danger of the church of today losing the vision that Christ gave concerning His church, and a danger of the church of today becoming an organization rather than a church.

PERSONNEL OF A ROYAL COMMISSION

Editor Examiner:

Sir: An editorial in the Globe and Mail, March 31st, dealing with this matter, provokes serious thought. The legality of our laws cannot be questioned, being enacted by competent authority. Whether they are just and equitable is an entirely different matter. Should any be at variance with justice, is it wise or desirable to entrust revision to a class specially trained in legal technicalities, a class that reverences law because it is law? Are such safeguides not as between one law and another law, but as between what is just and what is legal? Would it not be expecting too much from the most eminent jurist?

All our laws are legal, but all are not just, and a commission appointed to deal with questions of taxation and jurisdictional responsibilities for public expenditures will face situations where justice and law are opposed. The issue will then be between principles and legal technicalities. Which would a legal mind favor?

SAYS IT'S GAMBLING

Editor Examiner:

Sir: Our Provincial Government has set a good example in withholding grants from exhibitions allowing gambling on the grounds.

Our own exhibition last year held the biggest gamble this city ever had in the way they conducted their car competition which was a means of forcing the gate admissions. A large percent of the ticket holders were forced to pay their gate admissions for four days to honor their draw tickets who could not afford to pay the admission any more than one day owing to circumstances. I know of some other exhibitions who donated cars on draws but they sold tickets which gave admission to the fair the day of the draw which put the gamble of the game in a different light.

Our City Council would do well to follow suit with the Provincial Government along this line. A remark was made to me a few days ago by a highly respected citizen, if our exhibition board cannot run the exhibition on their reputation without resorting to a gamble they had all better resign and let some of the young people under Mr. Runions have a trial. Thanking you, I remain,

HE OBJECTS

Editor Examiner,

Sir: I must admit I was not much taken with Ald. Gordon's challenge to the mayor to go ahead and name the bootleggers, nor was there much bravery in the claim that he would proceed to swear our information in his own name.

It is really a very old form of doing things and one which means nothing at all and of all this Ald. Gordon is thoroughly aware. He knows well enough you cannot name a man as a bootlegger until you prove he is a bootlegger.

It looks too much like an attack on Mayor Macdonald just for the sake of an attack. The Mayor is honorable and square in all he does and I for one do not like this rather small business of merely trying to take a crack at him for that is all it amounts to.

TAXPAYER OF 48 YEARS

Peterborough, April 3.

Says Youth Is Unfit.

(From the National Star)

"We have a nation of unfit young men and women."

This phrase, used by Dr. A. S. Lamb, director of Athletics at McGill University, before members of the Canadian Physical Education Association at Toronto yesterday, summarizes a situation affecting our national physical condition which has long existed in Canada, but for which, unfortunately, nobody has yet found a remedy.

When we stop to consider the appalling effect of sickness in our national fitness, apart altogether from the "direct cost," which Dr. Lamb estimates at $300,000,000 annually, and all the attendant evils—juvenile delinquency is only one—we can, with profit to ourselves, look outside our own country to see what other countries are doing. Great Britain has a programme for physical improvement of the nation as a whole; Germany has for years concentrated its energies on the physical fitness of its people, as has Italy. But, as Dr. Lamb said so succinctly, Canada has "muddled through" since 1914, when "our unfitness shocked us greatly."

Unless, therefore, we are content to drift towards "physical bankruptcy," we should in self-protection consider the adoption of remedial measures without delay. The responsibility for this in the first instance rests on the Dominion Government, but the problem can be simplified considerably by the active collaboration of the provinces.

A Dominion-wide health conference, in which the provinces, all health, social and welfare agencies would join to work out a "national physical fitness" programme, would seem to be the first desirable step in ameliorating a situation which will become alarming unless the necessary remedies are soon applied.

HAPPY ON THE FARM

'Tis between the dusk and daylight,
Our tho'ts of the winter take flight,
For those rosy clouds make our minds turn right
To thoughts of spring, when the evenings are bright.

No matter how the weather may change,
We make the best of it, though wide the range,
And live happily out here on the grange,
And ne'er feel lonesome—is you—that may seem strange.

Just now the snow lies cold on the ground,
And through those trees there's not a sound,
As the shadows of the eve' seem to go round
To the other side of the world westward bound.

We sit here and wonder how it would seem,
If upon that sun we could sit there and gleam
Leaving darkness and night behind,
when others would dream.

'Twould be a hot trip, and, oh! so fast!
That we'd wish we lived as in the past,
For at such speed, we could never last,
So as an earth dweller, we'd rather be classed.

Where over the beautiful landscape our eyes may flit,
While by the window in this warm room we sit,

While one cat upon a chair did leap,
Another sat sits and through one eye, will peep
At the fish in the bowl swim, as in the deep.

The evening is now dark, and peaceful still,
Except for the music as it floats like water in a rill,
Resounding as the water in the pond by the mill,
Till the minute changes and sound just like the soldiers in a drill.

To be here on the farm and not in dream land,
Makes us feel happy and, oh, so grand,
Where we enjoy life and take our stand,
To do all the good work we have planned,

Accepting all errors as a token,
To make amends and not go groping,
Till we are aged and broken,
Such words are not lightly spoken.

BOAKE CARTER is one of those radio chaps who see all, hear all, know all, and keep nothing to themselves. They make a little bit of background go a long way—when drapes about the newspaper despatches—and listeners are supposed to sit back in astonishment at the breadth and profundity of their learning.

Well, Boake Carter was born in England, but he had lived in the United States sixteen years, presumably was making a good living through his daily pronouncements on world affairs, and it occurred to him he should become an American citizen, which he did. As Carter tells the story in an article somebody has sent the Halifax Herald this is what happened when he renounced King George and took the oath of allegiance to the United States:

"I felt an immense elation, a sense to triumph, of power. It suddenly flashed through my mind how many slaves must have felt when Lincoln gave them their emancipation. I was free. I was released to breathe the great gulps of spiritual freedom."

This is, of course, Mr. Boake Carter's own business, and Britain will just have to do the best she can without his name on her role of citizenship. One does wonder, however, how a man who looks back upon his British citizenship as slavery, his release from it as his first taste of freedom, will be able fairly to interpret world news which largely is built about the Empire he has cut loose.

A Bit of Nonsense

An Apt Scale

B.N.A. ACT DEBATE TO OCCUPY HOUSE

Government Law Officers To Give Opinions On Privy Council 'New Deal' Rulings

OTTAWA, April 5 (C.P.). — The House of Commons, its hope of prorogation this week dimmed, to-day faced a long-awaited debate on the constitution during which the Government is expected to disclose opinions of its law officers regarding the Privy Council's action on the Bennett "new deal" laws.

Justice Department estimates will provide the occasion for a full-dress debate on the British North America Act, which established this Dominion 70 years ago. It was expected the Privy Council judgments, setting aside labor legislation framed under provisions of the Treaty of Versailles which Canada signed, would be the basis of discussion.

The law lords held Canada might sign treaties, but that the Dominion authority must respect the B.N.A. Act delimitation of jurisdiction between the Dominion and the Provinces. They said: "There is no existing constitutional ground for stretching the competence of the Dominion Parliament so that it becomes enlarged to keep pace with enlarged functions of the Dominion Government."

That finding placed considerable restriction on powers of the Dominion to give effect to whatever treaties it might sign. It meant the Dominion Government could not give effect to any treaty regarding property and civil rights without obtaining consent of all the Provincial Legislatures as property and civil rights are within exclusive jurisdiction of the Provinces.

Bennett Favors Parley.

A Royal Commission to revise the constitution has been suggested, but Conservative Leader Bennett, speaking on Saturday night in a by-election campaign at Pembroke, Ont., declared he favored a conference similar to that which brought about Confederation.

No one could be found willing to guess how long the constitutional debate will last, but it appeared unlikely it would be brief. In addition there lay before the House more than half the estimates and almost half the Budget changes.

With the House working eight hours a day now day-by-day progress is more rapid, but it was considered prorogation by next weekend could be achieved only through a considerable measure of co-operation between the Government and the Opposition.

Of 402 items in all the estimates before the House so far 208 have yet to be considered. In addition the regular supplementary estimates must be brought down. They may arrive to-day or to-morrow.

Most contentious tariff changes remaining for consideration are those raising imposts on furniture and lowering those on numerous items in the automobile schedule.

Committee reports will be given the House next week and some are expected to provoke considerable discussion, especially that concerning prices of farm implements, being completed after an investigation lasting two sessions.

A Face Covered With Pimples Causes Much Embarrassment

BURDOCK BLOOD BITTERS

There is little doubt but that impure and impoverished blood is the soil on which these red, white, pus filled pimples develop and thrive, and that nothing short of a vigorous, persistent blood purifying treatment will eradicate them from the system.

Try a few bottles and be convinced.

WINNIPEG GRAIN

WINNIPEG, April 5—(C.P.). — Heavy Continental buying combined with higher overseas markets forced grain futures to 1930 levels on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange to-day.

At the close of a fairly active session wheat prices were ¼ to ⅝ cent higher, with May at $1.46¾; July $1.43¼, and October $1.28¼ to $1.29.

VOLLEYBALL TITLE WON BY KITCHENER

Local "Y" Team Among Losers In Senior Championship Tourney In Toronto

Kitchener won the Ontario senior volleyball championship Saturday at the Toronto Central Y.M.C.A. Teams from Toronto Central Y.M.C.A., Toronto Y.M.H.A., Galt, Peterborough and Kitchener turned in some sparkling exhibitions in the five hour tournament, with Kitchener winning all its games. There was keen competition between the Toronto teams with the Central seniors winning out to go into finals against Kitchener. They lost out in the last series, 15-13 and 15-8.

Competition was exceptionally keen and the Peterborough squad—winners in intermediate finals last year—which finished in a tie with Toronto Y.M.H.A., though losing four games, gave Kitchener a great struggle and defeated the other finalist, Toronto Central. "Y" They finished in this order: Kitchener, Toronto Central Seniors and Toronto Central Intermediates, Galt, Peterborough and Toronto Y.M.H.A. in a tie.

The Peterborough "Y" crew, coached by Doug Loomis, got off to a bad start and failed to click up to form expected most of the tournament. However, they were not outclassed noticeably by any team but the winners. The whole team moved up from an intermediate ranking to senior competition and several local players made their debut in Ontario playoffs. The local team consisted of: R. Elliches, S. Payne, A. Dryland, E. Vincent, R. Bolton, N. Stanger, D. Crawford, P. King, A. Rhodes, A. Fitzgerald and W. Stanbury.

TOBACCO STRIKE LINE IS HOLDING

Men Refuse Firm Offer To Take 80 Back—Want Whole 150 Given Work

KINGSVILLE, Ont., April 5. — (CP). — Police officers and the strike-breakers were jostled by striking workers at the Consolidated Leaf Tobacco Company plant here to-day but no serious violence developed. Only a few managed to get by the picket lines and enter the factory.

Although William Ross, plant president, addressed the strikers and offered to take back 80 to-day and 80 to 80 by Wednesday, the strikers refused to go back unless the 150 piece-workers were allowed back at once.

Strikers appeared at the plant before it opened and formed a strong cordon about the workers' entrance. Four day men—workers paid by the day—arrived for work but were stopped by the 80 pickets. Fighting appeared imminent until Jesse Gray, plant foreman, warned the men not to attempt to force their way in until police arrived.

Pickets Cheer Police.

When Police Chief J. C. Babcock arrived with four provincial police officers, he was greeted with cheers by the pickets, but when several attempted to gain entrance to the plant with police assistance, the pickets resisted and a pushing and shoving bout ensued. Police did manage to clear a way for six piece-workers, three of whom were women.

A large company truck containing 10 packers charged through the line of pickets and up to the side entrance of the plant. The driver, Lorne Holt, 21, Kingsville, was reprimanded by police for reckless driving as several strikers were narrowly missed by the vehicle as it charged with the picket line.

Eventually the 10 packers also announced their intention of remaining out of the plant while there was evidence of possible violence, although the packers did not strike with the piece-workers.

No Ontario Election This Year Bragg Declares At Port Hope

Member For Durham Predicts Taxes' Reductions Before Campaign

RICKARD ALSO SPEAKS

High Tariff Thing Of Past He Tells Liberal Women

PORT HOPE, April 5.—W. J. Bragg, M.P.P., and Frank Rickard, M.P., representing Durham county, were the speakers at the annual meeting and election of officers of Port Hope Women's Liberal association, held in the A.O.F. hall Friday night.

"I can assure you that there will be no election during 1937," said Mr. Bragg, as he referred to the fact that the recent Hepburn budget speech had been branded as an "election budget." "And there will be something greater done for the public before the government goes to the people."

Deploring the fact that there were still a great number of unemployed, Mr. Rickard declared, "I think we are always going to have relief with us. But now the government has the names of all persons in the country on relief, and are in a better position to deal with the situation."

Preceding the addresses by the two members a brief business session was held, and following the secretary's and treasurer's reports, the following officers were re-elected: Mrs. Harry Mitchell, president; Mrs. M. S. Hawkins, first vice-president; Mrs. William Armstrong, second vice-president; Mrs. Morley Greenaway, secretary; Mrs. Wilfred Hill, treasurer; Mrs. Frank Flood and Miss Jessie Hawkins, social conveners.

Referring to the collection of succession duties, Mr. Bragg said that over $27,000,000 had been collected since the present government came into power and a large part of this came from estates supposedly wound up by the former government.

Surplus Growing

Mr. Bragg referred to the legislation by which the municipalities will receive one mill on the dollar as refund on taxes. "The provincial government has reduced the debt by $33,000,000 due in some measure to action of the Hydro Electric Commission. The surplus on hand at the time of the budget was $7,300,000 and by the end of April will be in the neighborhood of $7,500,000," he said.

"Civil servants have been much better treated by the present government and there is an excellent feeling among them," he said.

"At time of issuing of the next passenger car licenses there will be a probable cut of 45 for each car," said Mr. Bragg.

"Relief of assessment to municipalities on the Old-Age Pensions and Mothers' Allowances, has been another forward move," he said.

"In 1928, before the beverage rooms started there was $54,000,000 spent on liquor from which the province got $6,000,000 of revenue. In the last year there was $49,000,000 of liquor sold and the revenue to the province was $10,000,000," said Mr. Bragg, emphasizing that there were "no toll gates."

"The department of mines had undergone a great reformation, and a bonus was to be paid for the mining of iron ore which will mean considerable money spent for production, and a large number of men employed," he said.

"Keep well organized," said Mr. Bragg in conclusion, as he complimented the women on their association.

Can't Live Alone

"Mr. Bennett changes his ideas of things considerably and he has found out that Canada cannot live alone. We must have trade and high tariffs are a thing of the past, as the leader of the opposition has found out," said Mr. Rickard.

"In 1930 Mr. Bennett said that he would blast his way into the markets of the world; five years later he declared 'we have no markets; and today he said, 'I rejoice in the prosperity of my country.'

"National defence has been a contentious matter in the present session. We are spending $36,000,000 on defence, and we know well that we cannot arm to fully protect ourselves," he said.

"All parties in the House favored the legislation of pensions for the blind. The Liberal party favors social legislation," he said.

"The experience of 1922-30 is now being repeated under a Liberal government. We are having better times, and I believe that we are on the road to that prosperity. Canada's export trade is being increased tremendously and new trade treaties are being effected. Trade is the basis of this rise in good times.

"We are in no means out of the woods in the matter of unemployment. There are still a great number of unemployed and it will be a long time before that is relieved. If there is one thing for the government to do, it is for the young people. The government plans to start training schools to fill the gaps in industry. Premiums on unemployment are to be stopped.

"I am proud of Liberalism. The cabinet of W. L. Mackenzie King is one of the best in a long time, and is admired by both Liberals and Conservatives" said Mr. Rickard in conclusion.

Cecil Meyer, president of the Liberal Association, referred to the suggestion of organizing Liberal clubs in all towns of the county. Others who spoke briefly were Harry Holdaway and Sam Hathaway.

The troop was recently presented with a library. Rev. J. D. Paterson introduced Warden A. Webber, who presented Mr. Dryland, the donor. Mr. Dryland donated this library in memory of Archie Dryland, his grandson, who was called to higher service years ago and who was a former Scout in the All Saints' troop. It will be known as the Archie Dryland Boys' Library.

Taking advantage of the Easter holiday St. John's Cubs went hiking out the 11th concession. About three miles from town they kindled fires and cooked their dinner. On the return trip the hydraulic lift-locks were closely inspected.

The Scouts gave over their hall to the Girl Guides and some twenty boys met in Scouter Fred Ford's home. Bruce Forsythe received his swimmer's badge, while J. Brown, Art Winslow, Ed. Pinn and Wray Matthews got their ambulance badges. Bob Crocker received his 2nd class badge.

The invitation from the 2nd Rover Crew was accepted and both crews will get together to discuss plans for the Rover Moot this summer.

A Cub Leaders' training course will get underway this coming Tuesday, April 6, at St. John's parish hall. All group committee men, cub leaders, assistant cub leaders and those over 18 years old and interested in Cub work are invited to attend.

The course will last over a period of six weeks and will be held at St. John's and Sacred Heart alternately. The course leader is Gordon Clegg as "Akela," with Miss Lily Bull as "Baloo," Mrs. Langhorn as "Bagheerr," and Pete Dominic as "Chil."

In the course some twenty new songs, 15 games and five jungle dances will be taken. All meetings will start at 8 o'clock sharp, and those late will miss part of the fun. Assistant Commissioner Law Grant will be present at the course, and is in full charge.

The Cub Jamboree committee are asked to meet in the parlor of St. John's parish hall on Friday, April 9, at 8.30 p.m.

We offer sincere congratulations to Gordon Clegg on his appointment as District Cub Master. There is no wonder the Cubs are going ahead when such live leaders are in charge.

What of the Scouts?

NORTH RENFREW GOES TO POLLS

Bennett Speaking For Tory Candidate Urges Constitutional Reform Parley

PEMBROKE, Ont., April 5.—(CP).—North Renfrew's electors go to the polls to-day to name a new member for the seat held formerly by the late Dr. Matthew McKay, Liberal. They will choose between a Liberal and a Conservative.

Conservative Leader Bennett wound up the campaign Saturday for Dr. E. T. Wood, Westmeath physician, the Conservative candidate, with a plea for constitutional amendment by a conference like that which brought about Confederation 70 years ago.

R. M. Warren, Reeve of Wilberforce township, is the Liberal candidate.

Mr. Bennett drew attention to suggestions from Liberal quarters that out of respect for Dr. McKay, one of the five Liberals who has held the seat since Confederation, the Conservative party should have refrained from campaigning.

He asked his somewhat bolstered audience "which is better for North Renfrew, a representative who speaks his own mind or one who responds when the string is pulled?"

Mr. Bennett told the crowd acts which resulted in rising prices for agricultural products were done in the 1932 Ottawa trade agreements which the Liberals had contested, but which they themselves extended this year.

More Taxes Than Before.

He demanded what the Liberal administration had done that his government did not do. "You have a greater burden of taxation than ever before," he declared. "Mr. King (Prime Minister Mackenzie King) talked of a one-man government by order-in-council, but in the last 16 months there have been more order-in-council than in any similar period in Canada's history. Never had a meaner approach to dictatorship since October, 1885, than at any time in the 20th century."

He declared it was essential the constitution be revised to permit the Dominion Parliament to pass effective labor legislation. The country could not exist as a nation if the provinces set up minimum wage laws on different standards, he said.

The way to reform the constitution, he held, however, was not through a Royal Commission on Jurisdiction and Taxation but a conference of provincial representatives like that which mapped the way to Confederation.

Record of the late elections shows Dr. McKay polled 8,083 votes, obtaining a majority of 1,992. T. D. Lennam, the Conservative, had 4,138 and W. V. Kidd, Reconstruction 1,949.

HINT MILLIONAIRE IN MURDER CASE

Slain Model's Father Thinks Bostonian Suspect Because Girl Spurned Him

NEW YORK, April 5 (AP).—One week ago tonight a stealthy, iron-fingered murderer took the lives of three persons in a Beekman Hill apartment and today police detectives still had only their suspicions to guide them in trying to solve the case.

They had what they called "Suspect No. 1," the grayish eccentric Joseph Gedeon, husband of one of the victims, but after many hours of questioning charged him only with possession of a firearm without a license.

Gedeon, father of Veronica, 20-year-old model strangled to death with her mother Mary, was free on bail of $1,000. Police examined assorted needles in his tiny upholstery shop but were loath to say exactly what kind of an instrument was used to kill the third victim, Frank Byrnes, a roomer in the Gedeon household.

For the first time they professed interest in a story Gedeon, estranged from his wife, told after the killings—that a "Boston millionaire" may have hired someone to murder Veronica because she ignored his attentions.

A laundryman, Charles Sturtevant, told detectives Mrs. Gedeon had complained the alleged wealthy admirer was leading her daughter too gay a life. He also said he noticed a swarthy, heavily-built man loitering in the hallway outside the Gedeon apartment last Saturday.

ADMIRAL'S DEATH RECALLS FEAT BY SAINT JOHN'S MAN

Naval Engineer Had Prominent Part In Sinking Collier Merrimac

SAINT JOHN, N.B., April 5 (CP)—Death of Rear Admiral Richmond Pearson Hobson, retired, United States Navy, second to the late Admiral Dewey as a hero of the Spanish-American war, recalled an outstanding part played by the late George Phillips, Saint John, in the brief conflict.

Phillips was engineer aboard the S. S. Merrimac. Hobson, then a young lieutenant, accepted the risky task of sinking his collier across the narrow entrance channel of Santiago Harbor in hope of bottling the fleet of Spanish Admiral Cervera. Phillips went below and pulled the plugs, allowing water to flood the hold.

During this daring manoeuvre Spaniards peppered the Merrimac with shot and shell. They captured Hobson and his men, confining them in the famous Morro Castle at Havana from June 3 to July 6, 1898. Nevertheless the Merrimac crew had greatly hampered the Spanish fleet in the harbor and were considered to have contributed materially toward winning the war.

Rapid promotion rewarded Lieutenant Hobson. Further but belated recognition came four years ago when he received the Congressional Medal of Honor, most coveted decoration the United States government can confer.

Phillips, who actually caused the Merrimac sinking owing to his technical knowledge of the craft, was retired on pension and died years ago. His share in the "bottling" strategy remained unknown in Saint John for a considerable time after it became famous throughout the United States.

Admiral Hobson was 68 years old when he died in New York City recently. Resigning from the naval service with the rank of captain more than 30 years ago, he entered politics. His elevation to the admiralty was in the nature of retirement honor.

wants. She has taken the modern way of conquering a people—by financial investment. It is possible for us to live in peace with all men because our only neighbors are friendly."

The speaker said the expenditures on the trans-Canada air service to be opened this year should be regarded as part of the defence budget. The planes could be quickly converted to military use, he asserted.

He urged the methods of arbitration which settle disputes within each nation be applied internationally to settle differences which would otherwise lead to war. As a small peace-loving nation, Canada is in a fine position to lead the world in urging substitution of arbitration for war, he suggested.

Scouts Japanese Threat

Mr. Woodsworth scouted current suggestions that Japan has plans for the conquest of Canada. If Japan wishes to expand, she has Manchuria and Korea, he said. Expansion into these nearby territories would be much more practical than conquest and colonization of Canada, he pointed out. The Japanese know well that the United States and Canada are determined to defend the Pacific coast, he declared.

On the subject of Japan, he asked for encouragement of a better relationship between Canada and Japan, pointing out that even the Japanese who have become naturalized Canadian citizens in British Columbia are denied voting franchises. "I am ashamed of that. The lease we can do in a country where everyone is said to be equal is to give the vote to all our citizens."

It is now time Canada should choose the future course which she is to follow in international affairs, he stated. "Read your English history and you will find that our Empire has been won very largely at the point of the sword by adventurers and conquerers at the cost of the infinite misery of those conquered." Canada has not yet been guilty of imperial conquest but is now at the crossroads where she must determine her course, having stepped into the realm of international affairs in both the Boer War and the Great War, he said.

Dr. Cotton-Thomas

Introducing Mr. Woodsworth, Dr. Lorna Cotton-Thomas, local C.C.F. leader, declared of the speaker: "He is not a man who has sought office. He is a man who has sought truth." Referring to him as the minority leader in the House of Commons, she said: "One of the most blessed things in democracy is the right of the minority group to express itself."

LUDENDORFF'S NEOPAGAN CULT

His announcement created a sensation, coming as it did on the heels of increasing Catholic and Protestant opposition to Nazi interference in church affairs.

"The chancellor has suppressed the restrictions which my philosophic action hitherto encountered," Ludendorff declared.

"Today my adherents within the Nazi party and outside it should consecrate all their efforts toward destroying once and for all the action of supernational powers who recently have attempted more energetically to undermine the bases of our young racial empire in order to build up once more their domination over our people.

"Total war is pitiless. Our people must be able to hold their strength at the extreme pitch against the enemy for months and years."

Christianity was described by Ludendorff as a "foreign religion which falsifies our inheritance, slays our racial qualities, steals their unity from our people and renders them defenceless."

Result of Long Meditation.

"The understanding of this grave truth came to me as the fruit of profound meditation," Ludendorff averred. "I asked myself how it was possible for the Jewish people and the Roman church to shatter the unity of the German people in the struggle which the latter waged for its existence during the Great War.

"Basing myself on my wartime experience, I studied the Bible, which contains without camouflage the aims of the Jews and the Christian dogma which it selected to propagate them.

"By 1927 I understood the action of the international forces of Rome, Jewry and Masonry.

"We will rid ourselves of Christian dogma and realize the mystery of the incarnation of the German people or else we will sink in the rottenness of a humanity without consistence.

"For the equality of rights (with other churches) I thank the Fuehrer. We will become a nation of industrious ants."

Ludendorff was one of the first important converts to Nazism and was arrested with Hitler in the 1923 Munich "beer cellar putsch." He later disagreed with Hitler and retired into comparative obscurity after Hitler's ascent to power.

Ludendorff was credited with having been the controlling mind in the carrying out of the big German offensives against the Russians in the East, and in the Balkans in 1916. Another was against Italy in 1917, which resulted in the defeat of the Italian army at Caporetto.

His post-war claim to the title of Field Lord of the Great War was acknowledged in the official announcement last Tuesday of the reconciliation with Hitler, which mentioned him as "Field Lord Ludendorff."

Three streams played steadily on the church and its annex after that, while dozens more hoses soaked other nearby buildings and poured into the inferno-like interior of the factories.

Eight Blasts Rock Plants

Now and again, dull roar from the interior of the doomed Merck building signalled an explosion of chemicals and drove firemen back. At least eight blasts rocked the plant, each time sending great red pillars of flame shooting up into the smoke-darkened sky.

For a time it was feared a wall of the building would tumble outward, but it held together. From out the windows leaped long flickers of fire, some of them reaching across the street to lap at offices a full 40 feet away.

Buildings damaged by the flames, or by smoke and water, were the window blind factory of Daley and Morin, the new drygoods store of Sansoucy and Freres, the silverware firm of Cameron, Limited; the Elite Metal Novelty Company and F. Bacon and Company, manufacturer's agents.

The firemen were hampered chiefly by the biting smoke. Gas masks had to be used to get near the fire, but even then the firefighters could see only a few steps before them. Three of the firemen were injured, though none was seriously hurt. There were no persons in the buildings when the fire broke out.

Denial that he was "a very rich man," that he "held many mortgages," and that the Calgary Prophetic Bible Institute building was held in his name was made by Premier Aberhart.

"Did you ever hear of a school teacher getting rich?" he asked. "I do not hold a mortgage on any property whatever; I have $500 worth of Alberta bonds, paying only half interest rate under our reduction in Bond Interest Act, and the Bible Institute is registered in the names of a group of trustees."

SAMUEL TAYLOR

(Examiner Correspondence.)

BANCROFT, April 5. — There passed away in Belleville General Hospital on Thursday, April 1, a faithful railroad workman in the person of Samuel Taylor of Trenton. Mr. Taylor was suddenly taken ill with appendicitis in Maynooth last Friday evening and upon his arrival in Bancroft the following morning, consulted Dr. S. S. Lumb who advised an immediate operation at Bancroft Red Cross Hospital. However Mr. Taylor, unwilling to have an operation resumed his duties as firemen on the Maynooth-Trenton train. Upon arrival at Deloro, his condition necessitated his leaving his work and going into the coach. He was so ill by the time the train reached Bannockburn that he was taken from it and rushed to Belleville General Hospital by automobile. After his appendix was removed there, he developed pneumonia, which was the cause of his death.

Mr. Taylor had spent a number of years as engineer on the T.B.&O. line but in recent years he was fireman on a Trenton-Maynooth run. To mourn his passing he leaves four children, three sons and one daughter.

Miss Wong was reported out of the city and under guard.

FOUR SCHOOLS AND THREE HALLS

The Sons of Freedom sect of Doukhobors have been blamed by their Orthodox brethren, the Christian Community of Universal Brotherhood, for the bombings and burnings and for nude parades in 1929 and 1932 for which some 600 Doukhobors were sentenced to three years at Piers Island penitentiary in the Gulf of Georgia. Their children were placed in institutions until the parents were freed and all were gradually absorbed into their normal life.

Ejection of the Sons of Freedom from the Christian community brought on the nude parades as protests.

One of the earliest bombings was that at Farrow, B.C., west of here, when Peter Verigin, the elder, then spiritual head of the Doukhobors in Canada, was killed by a bomb placed under his railway coach in 1924. Peter Verigin, the younger, succeeded as leader by a younger Peter Verigin.

Coal Mines Threatened.

MADRID, April 5—(AP)— The government's southern army turned the insurgent left flank north of Cordoba to-day, capturing the village of La Granjuela and opening the way for direct attack on the Penarroya coal mines.

The sweeping movement around the northern end of General Gonzalo Queipo De Llano's insurgent army cut the railroad running between Belmez, just south of the coal fields, and Castillo De Almarchon, division point linking the branch line that serves the fields on the trunk line to the insurgent territory to the west.

The fall of La Granjuela followed the capture of Valesquillo, three miles to the north, which had been the first objective of the flanking columns.

So precipitous was the government descent on Valesquillo yesterday the insurgent garrison fled, leaving their breakfast still cooking in the field kitchens.

More than 40 prisoners were captured in the storming of the town.

Around Madrid, the government army was making slow but steady progress on the Guadalajara front to the north-east, penetrating deeper into Avila province to the north-west and pushing the enemy back from the Corunna highway cutting through the Guadarrama mountains.

Government Taxes, Freight and License Extra

THEY'VE been telling you for years that all automobile advertising says the same things. Well, here's one automobile advertisement that dares to be different!

This is nothing less than an out-and-out challenge by Studebaker to all nine other makes of 6-cylinder cars . . . a challenge that invites you to decide which six is best to buy, not on the basis of shopworn adjectives but of first hand facts!

Studebaker bars no six offered in this country from this competition for your favor. Studebaker fearlessly agrees to measure the 1937 Dictator against the whole field of sixes—higher priced, equal priced, or lower priced. Studebaker agrees to do it on any basis you name . . . specifications, performance, economy, and safety.

But in all fairness let us warn you that the 1937 Dictator is the world's first six offering the dual economy of the Fram oil cleaner and the gas-saving automatic overdrive . . . the world's first six offering automatic hill holder plus hydraulic brakes . . . the world's only six with non-slam doors.

See it . . . drive it . . . and you will understand why Studebaker so confidently makes this challenge.

Must Get At Cause Of Unrest In World C.C.F. Leader Claims

REVIEW WORLD AFFAIRS

Speaking under auspices of the local branch of the Workers' Educational Association, J. S. Woodsworth, leader of the C.C.F. party in the House of Commons, drew a large and appreciative audience to the Collegiate auditorium after church services had concluded Sunday evening. Osborne Smith, president of the local branch of the W.E.A., acted as chairman, while the distinguished speaker, who discussed the topic, "World Peace," was introduced by the Rev. F. W. Rowland, pastor of Mark Street United Church. Alderman Robert S. Cotton represented Mayor George A. Macdonald.

Drummond Wren, secretary of the W.E.A. in Canada, briefly outlined the objects of the organization he represents, describing it as "a purely educational organization with no political affiliations." He urged the need of an intelligent study on the part of the masses of world problems and said, "It is only understanding that we can tackle our national and world problems properly." The policy of the W.E.A., he declared, was to make people think for themselves.

Mr. Woodsworth, who covered in his address much the same ground that he went over in speaking at a meeting of the Open Forum in George Street Church earlier in the day, commended the work of the W.E.A., and contended, "If ever we are to handle the affairs of our country, it will be only as we educate the masses to understand each other and to see one another's point of view."

He proceeded with a masterly review of world affairs, and while he did not believe that war is inevitable he spoke of it as being an ever-present danger.

While spectacular progress has been made in the field of medical science in the fight against disease, Mr. Woodsworth said, little or nothing has been done by the nations of the world to get at the underlying causes of war with a view to establishing world peace.

"I do not think we have taken a decided stand on such matters. We must get at the cause of world unrest. If war comes along we are helpless. All we can do is pray that 'we will have peace in our time, O Lord'. But that isn't enough. We must get at the causes of war."

The speaker remarked on the outstanding causes of war as being, racial prejudice; competition among the nations of the world for foreign trade; and the system that permits munitions makers and others to profit from the sufferings of the people.

"While war is a desperate experience for most of us, it is an exceedingly remunerative business for the war-makers. The war-makers not only profit by war, but what is worse they stir up war," Mr. Woodsworth charged.

He would like to see legislation passed that would make it impossible for anyone to make any financial gain from warfare. "If munitions are to be made in Canada," he said, referring to the fact that Canada is this year spending $37,000,000 on her re-armament program, "let the government make them at cost. And if munitions are to be transported, let the government transport them at cost."

Raybestos Retains 75 P.C. Of First Men

In the concluding paragraph of an interview with Robert Abbott, general manager of the Canadian Raybestos Company, on Saturday, it was stated that "7" per cent. of the original employees of the company seventeen years ago were still on the payroll. This was a typographical error, and should have read "75" per cent., thereby confirming the main subject of the story indicating the company's interest in the welfare of its employees from the time the Raybestos located their Canadian factory in Peterborough.

EMPIRE COUNCIL TO CO-ORDINATE FARM MARKETING

Australia Will Suggest Plan At Coming Conference In London

WRITE H. B. COWAN

A new and important development in the marketing of farm products is outlined in a letter from Dr. Earle Page, Minister of Trade and Commerce for Australia, received by H. B. Cowan, Secretary of the Canadian Chamber of Agriculture. Dr. Page states that the forthcoming Imperial Conference in London, England, to be held at the time of the Coronation, the Australian Government intends to suggest the setting up of an Empire Agricultural Council for the purpose of co-ordinating Empire marketing policies for farm products. It will be suggested that this Council shall consist "of those Ministers of the different parts of the Empire who deal with agricultural problems" and that this Council when organized, shall collaborate with "producers bodies organized on an Empire scale."

Developments which have led up to the suggestion to form an Empire Agricultural Council are in part as follows:

The increasing surpluses of farm products produced by Empire countries, the greater part of which for years have been unloaded on the United Kingdom markets, have been the cause of gluts and depressed prices which have caused heavy losses to producers throughout the Empire. For some years there has been a growing conviction that in the interest of producers, both in the United Kingdom and in the Dominions, some system should be devised which would make it possible to secure a better regulation of shipments of farm products to the United Kingdom markets.

In the letter received from Dr. Page, he says:

"It is essential the producers should discuss the question as to the variety and the extent of their production in each of the parts of the Empire, if we are to ensure its profitable sale. In order to co-ordinate Empire activities in this direction the Australian Government will be making a suggestion to the Imperial Conference that there should be held periodically an Empire Agricultural Council, consisting of those Ministers of the different parts of the Empire who deal with agricultural problems, in order to co-relate and co-ordinate their efforts, and that this ministerial body should rest ultimately upon not merely its own governmental experts but upon the producers' bodies organized on an Empire scale."

"It is obvious we need something of the same nature to speak for each separate industry in the Empire. On that body the producers should be fully represented and in control."

Mr. Cowan said that there is some possibility that an Empire Producers Conference may be held in London to discuss this and other similar matters. The idea of such a conference has been approved by the National Farmers Unions of Great Britain and by the national farmers organizations in the other Dominions, and is being discussed with the Governments of the various countries interested.

DESIRE IS TO SEE LOST SOULS SAVED

Otto J. Klink Opens Evangelistic Campaign In Full Gospel Pentecostal Church

Passage to a heaven that is a place, not a condition, that is what Otto J. Klink, evangelist of Miami, Florida, is exhorting his audiences at Full Gospel Pentecostal Church, Water street, to take within the next three weeks.

Mr. Klink, a former member of the Anarchist Society of the Red Mask, and a reformed atheist, now scores atheists.

He believes that all professed unbelievers would refuse to turn away rights to their souls or to their ticket up "the path of Glory," if a showdown came. "Modern infidelity is an perverse lot, and all of perverse wind," he says. He likened the journey of life unto two trains, one Heaven-bound and the other Hell-bound, declaring his firm belief in a literal Heaven and a literal Hell. He begs his listeners in simple words, clearly enunciated, to overcome his handicap of a slight accent—he was born in Germany, studied at the University of Berlin and a former Assistant Secretary to the Kaiser—to leave the tommyrot behind and pack their spiritual suitcases and trunks. Prayer and the blood of Jesus Christ, faith and the Holy Spirit and the Bible—these should go into the luggage that travels up the path to glory, he says.

Otto J. Klink

Mr. Klink believes that "victory is in the blood," which washes sin away. The blood has already been shed for men's tickets to Heaven, he holds. The Bible is the time table, he declared, and the scenery along the way is wonderful to behold.

In introducing himself to the large audience, he declared that he is a Pentecostal fundamentalist of the extreme kind and his supreme desire is to see lost souls saved.

MAKE SURPRISE VISIT

When police visited the Grand Hotel at eleven-thirty o'clock Saturday night, it is alleged they found a number of persons unlawfully occupying guest rooms where beer was being served. It is probable that the manager of the hotel may face a charge of permitting unregistered guests to drink in private rooms. When the premises were visited by eight police officers, it is learned, the manager claimed that occupants of guest rooms comprised the "overflow" from the beverage room of the hotel. Asked if he intended to prosecute a charge against the manager of the hotel Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry, K.C., said he thought it quite probable. He added, "I only learned of the matter this (Monday) morning." No arrest was made by police.

SOCIAL CREDIT SURE CURE FOR ECONOMIC ILLS

Dr. R. W. Frank Explains Douglas Theory For Benefit Of Fellow Rotarians

SAYS THEY'RE LUCKY

The Douglas system of social credit, Rotarian Dr. R. W. Frank told the members of the Peterborough Rotary Club at its weekly luncheon to-day, offered a simple and practical solution for most of the economic and social ills from which the world was suffering.

Dr. Frank, who said that he had approached the study of the Douglas plan in a perfectly hostile mood and that he had come to scoff and remained to pray, said that social credit was not a palliative but a workable solution. "If everybody were given an assured sufficiency," he remarked, "we would eliminate 50 per cent of the insanity, 75 per cent of the suicides, 90 per cent of the crime and all the poverty and wars."

Introduced by President Chris Graham, the speaker stated that he was 100 per cent in favor of the Douglas plan and was satisfied that Major C. D. Douglas had made a greater contribution to human happiness than almost any one in the Christian era.

The persistent barrage in the Canadian press against social credit had created an atmosphere unfavorable to a study of the basic subject and this criticism was based largely on the situation in Alberta.

"I'm not going to go so far as to say that Premier Aberhart knows nothing about social credit," said Dr. Frank. "I will content myself by saying that judging from his pre-election speeches and his actions since he came into power the evidence all goes to show that he does not understand the thing. I have always been satisfied that social credit would not work on a provincial basis; it is essentially a national matter."

A Barren Field.

An audience of successful men such as formed the Rotary club was a cold, barren field in which to sow the seeds of monetary reform, the speaker said. Men who have been successful under the present monetary system might be forgiven for not being anxious to change it.

"However, whether you know it or not," Dr. Frank told his fellow Rotarians, "you are just plain lucky. There are ten thousand Canadians with just as much ability walking the streets to-day.

The depression is over for you fellows but for 1,200,000 Canadians it is not yet over and for one in every ten of the country's population it will never be over unless the economic system is changed".

He pointed out to his hearers that the policy of doing nothing and leaving everything to what were called natural laws would get nowhere. There were no natural laws in economics; they were all man-made and man could change them, and those who refused to investigate and study honest attempts to improve the situation were guilty of aiding and abetting in the degradation of their fellow men.

The Major Trouble.

The major trouble, he contended was under consumption. There was nothing wrong with production. Science and industry had seen to that and the situation was that everybody would buy if they had the necessary purchasing power. Social Credit would provide that purchasing power without disturbing in any important particular the existing setup.

Dr. Frank then proceeded to discuss the three basic principles upon which Social Credit was founded. In the first place it was necessary to appreciate the fact that money need have no intrinsic value. Less than 3 per cent of Canadian purchasing power was as a matter of fact backed by gold; it was the quantitive theory of money and not its gold backing that counted. Less than 3 per cent of Canadian business was done by currency; the balance was transacted through cheque money, financial credit. Explaining the carrying on of business through loans, Dr. Frank said that the country was going deeper and deeper into debt to the banking system.

Industry the speaker said never paid out enough money to its employees to enable them to buy back the products of industry and here the famous A plan B theory of Major Douglas was explained in detail. It was necessary, Dr. Frank pointed out that financial credit which was consumptive capacity should be made equal to real credit which was productive capacity and that the new purchasing power should go direct to the consumer. This he said could be done in two ways, by just price discount, and by the paying of national dividends. The latter would function about the same as at present and foreign trade would be carried on as now although it might not be so important in view of the rich home market the system would provide.

The world, he warned in conclusion, was rushing to a crisis and unless a remedy was found for the economic problems that exist our civilization would go down with that of ancient Greece and Rome.

Celebrates Release From Jail By Getting Drunk, Is Arrested

Second Offenders Appear Before Magistrate Langley In Police Court

FINED $50 AND COSTS

"I made my own bed and I guess I can lay on it," declared Clarence P. Carey, who described himself as a glassblower, when asked what he had to say in answer to a charge of being intoxicated as a second offender to which he entered a plea of guilty.

"It's pretty poor laying at that," Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., remarked in imposing a penalty of $50 and 75 costs or one month in default of payment.

According to Inspector James F. Rigid the defendant was arrested on Saturday shortly after he came out of gaol on the completion of a 10-day term for drunkenness.

Stating that he was a glassblower by trade, Carey urged that he had a job to go to in Hamilton around the middle of the month. He was told by the Cadi that unless he could pay his fine he would not be able to leave for Hamilton or any other place until early next month.

Similar Charge.

A similar penalty was imposed on Thomas Cleary, who pleaded guilty to an intoxication charge as a second offender.

"Couldn't you do better than that," Clearey entreated as he was being walked from the dock to the cells. "I hate to put in a month up there at this time of the year."

James Jordan, who entered a plea of guilty to being intoxicated in a local beverage room, was assessed a fine of $10 and 75 cents costs or one week in the county gaol.

"I'll have to plead guilty on account of going and having a glass of beer. It is the first time I have been locked up in years and years and I would like you to overlook it," he urged in addressing the Bench.

Arrested In Toronto.

Arrested in Toronto on Saturday, Leo Cudahy pleaded guilty to theft of a watch from a fellow boarder at a rooming house at 173 Lake street. He was remanded for sentence until Thursday morning.

Cudahy explained that he had not intended to steal the watch, but had merely borrowed it. He left the watch with an optometrist as security for a pair of eyeglasses he had ordered for himself.

Police intimated that after telling his landlady he was going to work on the night shift at the C.G.M., Cudhay went up town and boarded the Toronto-bound bus. He was arrested in the "Queen City" on arrival of the bus there. It was intimated there might be another charge against Cudahy.

BEVERAGE ROOM LICENSE HELD

Montgomery House Does Not Cater To Women And Hence Has No Room

Beverage rooms for women have been stirring up criticism of the system throughout the province, but the Montgomery House authority for its beverage room for men has been held up several days because they don't cater to women, and don't intend to.

In forwarding their application for a renewal of their license, the management of the Simcoe street hotel made no reference to a beverage room for women. This omission in the application form was noticed by the Liquor Control Commissioner, and apparently it was assumed that the Montgomery House was not properly complying with the regulations requiring a separate beverage room for women.

Authority to sell beer to any persons was not received by the management on April 1, and the only beverage room in the Hotel has been closed.

"We have written the Commissioner explaining that we have not put in a beverage room for women, and we expect that the new authority to sell to men will be here this afternoon or Tuesday morning," the Examiner was informed by the management. "It was simply the fact that we have never had any other than one room, and that for men, which caused the delay."

CONCERT QUARTET HEARD IN TORONTO

Peterborough Musicians Entertain ex-Soldiers At Christie Street

Four local musicians, each of them a soloist on his own particular instrument, who are known as the Peterborough Concert Quartet on Sunday were the guests of the Rev. Mr. Lambert at Christie Street Hospital, Toronto, where they entertained the returned soldier patients with a versatile program. Members of the quartet are: William Stuart, Wesley Boorman, Henry Parnell and Robert Wilson.

In one of the wards at the hospital, a member of the quartet met a comrade musician who had played with him in a similar concert party eighteen years ago. As a result of this meeting preliminary arrangements were made for the quartette to fulfill an engagement at North Bay in the near future.

Members of the quartette also met another Peterborough musician who is a patient in the hospital, in the person of the versatile drum and chimes soloist of the Peterborough Salvation Army Temple Band.

Assisting the quartet in their program were the Misses Alena and Dorothy Wilson of Toronto—two accomplished vocalists.

Victor Boorman leader of Peterborough Male Voice Choir accompanied the quartet as vocal soloist. Mr. Boorman also sang as guest soloist at Metropolitan Church "Fireside Hour" accompanied by the Metropolitan Band directed by Alfred Pence.

ST. PAUL'S WIN FIRST PLAYOFF

Take 29-12 Decision From P.C.I. To Gain 17-Point Lead In Senior Cage Finals

St. Paul's won the first of the Senior Basketball League final playoffs from P.C.I. on Saturday night in the Y.M.C.A. by a 29-12 score. A good-sized crowd of fans saw this fixture, a close-checking rather rough affair. It was the first of a two-game series and gives the Saints a lead of 17 points for the return tilt next Saturday. Though near-charging tactics at times marred the first game from a scientific point of view, it was an interesting struggle most of the way. The referees kept control of the contest but they had their hands full.

The winners led all the way and were up 16-6 at half-time after an early splurge had them leading 13 to 4, with Sedgewick and Thorburn shooting well. Galley led the losers up to them. In the second half P.C.I. could get but six points, four on free tosses, while the Presbyterians collected 13, led by Thorburn and McIntyre.

Kelly stood out for the losers in the heavy going, while Galley was kept down on his usual scoring. Turner and Gunsolus were conspicuous.

Sedgewick and Thorburn shone for the St. Paul's snipers with 19 and 13 points. Marsh proved a tower of strength on defence, and was ably helped by Weir and McIntyre. The teams:

St. Paul's — Ascott, Weir, McIntyre, Marsh, Sedgewick, Thorburn, Puskinghorn.

Referees—J. Wolstenholme and H. Hamnell.

SIMMONS SOLD BARGAIN PRICE

Cost Detroit $75,000 And Big Salary For One Season—Now With Senators

LAKELAND, Fla., April 5 (A.P.).—Al Simmons, who cost Detroit Tigers $75,000 and a big salary for one season's work, went to Washington Senators to-day at a bargain price.

Manager Mickey Cochrane, who bought Simmons from the White Sox late in 1935, refused to disclose the price placed on his friend and companion of championship days on Philadelphia Athletics, but all Tiger Camp followers were agreed it wasn't much.

Estimates on the sale price ranged from $7,500 to $15,000 for the outfielder who hit well over .300 for 12 of his 13 years in major league baseball, and was among the top flight fielders for many years.

Amys Cagers Win Out In Intermediate Tilt

The cage crew captained by H. Amys won the Intermediate boys' Hobby Show finals Saturday in the "Y" from Les Ascott's gang 13-11. It was a tight tussle between evenly-matched outfits, but one point separating them at halftime, 7-6 for Amys. Ferguson and Milburn were steady all the way. McPherson and Rogow were inclined to charge somewhat and Plumpton drew four fouls due to strenuous rushing. Ascott and Row led the scorers with seven points each. The teams:

Amys, Rogow, McBride, Ferguson and Drummond.

Ascotts, McPherson, Milburn, Plumpton and Geraghty.

LONDON, April 5 (C.P. Cable).—Wembley Lions, National Hockey League champions, defeated Streatham 4 to 3 last night in their last game of the schedule. The British champions sail on April 7 for Canada, to take part in an international series at Toronto.

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

By CEC. PERDUE

A MOB of baseball officials descended upon Oshawa Friday night last and did not leave till Saturday evening. It was the 19th annual convention of the Ontario Baseball Amateur Association, and a very good one it was, too. The executive met Friday night while the general meeting got under way at 10 next morning and went right through—barring time out for the big banquet at noon—till five that p.m. They dealt with 14 amendments, plus financial reports, election of officers and one thing or another. Dope on it is in tonight. The Oshawa GM-men put things over okay and everyone enjoyed himself plenty. George Ansley and "Pud" Lane rate medals for their entertainment efforts.

WE WENT down with Vic Hamilton and Max Swanston. A party of Peterborough men including Hugh Campbell, Vern Dawson, Pete Lang and Bill Kay, were on hand Friday night. Frank Hughes and Bill Prindible were other local fellows on hand. The C.O.B.I. did all right by itself. It withdrew one amendment, concerning pro-amateur exhibition games, when shown that this is permitted for charity by the A.A.U. of C. if the O.B.A.A. see fit to grant permission. Its motion to have Bob Elliott of Delora made a life member of the O.B.A.A. was successful by an almost unanimous vote. A fitting tribute to the best baseball officer in Eastern Ontario. Ernie Gibbard withdrew his name for the presidency and was elected first vice-prexy. And Max Swanston was re-elected to the O.B.A.A. executive, Kingston men, who sponsored that pro-amateur amendment, were not even present.

A FLOCK of applications for transfers were passed Friday night at the executive session. Vern Bishop of Napanee was refused a transfer to Welland and will be barred from baseball for this year. Too many moves after being warned, they said. Spook Scriver will be granted a transfer from Peterborough to Toronto, though we don't know what team he'll be with yet. Oshawa got Bennett and Foley by okay. None of the Peterborough transfers came up for consideration, but there'll be a couple more executive meetings to deal with transfers within the next month. Where moves are made for work—and not as a racket—the O.B.A.A. is inclined to be lenient this year.

FRIDAY NIGHT was like Old Home Week for the baseballers. They visited back and forth all night long. We had an argument in one room with "Booster" Dick Mansell of Toronto about his Maple Leaf broadcasts; listened to half a dozen humorous songs in another corner by some lawyer from London decked out in a chef's uniform; chatted with Tip Millier (Oshawa shortstop) and Ned Taylor (elected president of the O.B.A.A. next day) in a fourth-floor corridor at three a.m.; listened also to Ward of Niagara Falls (a school principal and the best speaker at the convention) tell of the best baseball centre in Ontario; and met dozens of old acquaintances or new delegates scattered throughout the hotel.

OLD JOHN DeGruchy, head o fthe O.R.F.U., was there, as were several A.A.U. of C. guys trying to peddle amateur cards. Orme Gamsby, the 73-year-old Gray Fox of Orono, made a big hit with his humorous speech and his piano-playing and singing. Had a chat with Knutty Lee, also. Pat Mulqueen was present at the banquet and nearly talked everyone's arm off. A colored chap from Oakville, controlling 10 votes, was sympathetic toward the C.O.B.I. amendments. Dobson of Barrie talking hockey to us. Yes, you could write pages on that lobbying session and reunion. And not a guy there used that silly term "hardball" once when referring to baseball! We enjoyed this convention as much as any we attended. Next one is in Niagara Falls.

DON'T FORGET that lacrosse meeting tonight at eight in Duffins' Board Room. It's open to anyone of the city or district interested in an O.A.L.A. intermediate team from here this year. A lot of the discussion will revolve around the matter of home grounds to play games in and a possible grouping. It is a bit early to do much predicting yet on the lacrosse setup here for '37 as we don't know how Oshawa or Trenton feel about a Central Ontario League. The independent Tri-County Loop around this district is another question mark at present. Anyway, all those interested are urged to be on deck for tonight's session.

BEING OUT of town we missed the financial meeting of the local Hockey Club. A statement is to be given the press and may be in today. We understand the junior players all received gifts of $25 money orders for merchandise, the coaches got presentations and the trainers cash. Not having enough in their end of it, the intermediates' dough was left in the treasury for next season. Amateurs are allowed gifts up to a certain value but no cash for services rendered in athletics. The club made an excellent showing financially this year and the officers and players deserve credit.

ST. PAUL'S took the first game of the Senior City Basketball League finals, 29-12, Saturday e'en in the "Y" from P.C.I. before a big gang of fans. It's a two-game serial and this gives the Saints a lead of 17 points for the next number this coming Saturday—and that ought to be a comfortable margin (but not for the Students!). 'Twas a rugged joust most of the way, some of the boys on both sides forgetting it was a cage court and using gridiron tactics. But it was good entertainment, regardless. St. Paul's have a nice team and should cop the duke handily. In gals' basketball, which is resumed in playoffs next Friday at the Y.W., the C.G.E. Seniors are favored to take Westclox, while the C.G.E. Juniors will have a tougher time trying to make it two straight over St. John's. Both series are two out of three, first games having been won by the Electrics.

NELSON CAPTURES AUGUSTA CROWN

Youngster Stages Comeback To Beat Out Guldahl Of St. Louis

AUGUSTA, Ga., April 5 (A.P.).—Blazing over the home stretch with a spectacular 32, Byron Nelson, gangling Irishman from Reading, Pa., clamped a "full Nelson" on the field on Sunday to win the fourth Augusta National Gold Tournament featuring the annual return to competition of Bobby Jones.

Stroking masterfully down the final nine holes in a par-cracking pace, the twenty-five-year-old professional finished with a 72-hole total of 283 to conquer the all-star links by two shots.

Nelson overhauled Ralph Guldahl of St. Louis, who stumbled in the stretch to take a 76 on the last lap and wind up with a 285, a stroke ahead of Ed. Dudley, Philadelphian.

After craventing the pesgolfer plane in 36 blows and apparently shooting himself out of the top-prize of $1,500, young Nelson unloosed some golfing magic for his incoming 32 and a neat 70, two under par. His 32 equalled the competitive record for the last nine holes. Nelson led the first two days of play with rounds of 66 and 72, and dropped the lead on Saturday with a 75 to Guldahl's great 68.

GALVESTON, Tex., April 5 (A.P.). — New York Yankees, who set a new American League record for home runs last season, are beginning to warm to their work in this line. Thus far they have hit nine circuit clouts with Bill Dickey and Tony Lazzeri leading with two apiece.

BATON ROUGE, La. — Hank Leiber, New York Giants outfielder, who was beaned by one of Bob Feller's pitchers, yesterday, was X-rayed at a hospital and returned to the team to report that no serious injury has resulted from the blow on the head.

CLEARWATER, Fla. — Burleigh Grimes seems to be setting an all-time high in Grapefruit League combativeness. Brooklyn Dodgers manager engaged in a heated argument with Umpire George Magerkurth yesterday, just to keep his hand in.

Junior Cage Victory For Taylor Outfit

Eric Taylor's team came through handily in the junior boys' Hobby Show cage finals at the "Y" on Saturday, taking a 36-14 win over Bill Hamilton's crew. They led 15-4 at half time but it was much tighter in the last session with Hamilton getting five points, Burns four and Dundas one while the winners got nine. Taylor led the snipers with eight, Bill Stewart, Hamilton and Burns were close behind with five apiece and Ferguson had six. The teams:

Taylor, Stewart, Dunford, Ferguson and Hart.

Hamilton, Burns, Dundas and Kemp.

IROQUOIS FALLS WIN JUVENILE TITLE

Defeat Waterloo Siskens In Final Three Goals To One

TORONTO, April 5. — Iroquois Falls Cubs reign to-day as all-Ontario juvenile hockey champions. The Northern winners defeated Waterloo Siskens, Southern champions, 3 to 1, in a sudden-death final game at Maple Leaf Gardens on Saturday afternoon.

The Cubs showed plenty of class in winning from the smart but well-coached team. They rapped in two goals toward the close of the first period, Porter culminating a break-away by Renholm by scoring the opening goal, and McGrath banging in Renholm's pass a few seconds later.

There was no scoring in the second session, but in the third Dawson completed the Northerners' total and Dorsch netted the Siskens' lone counter.

In the second series, the Ascott outfit came through with 12 points while Amys had 11. Foster, Bevon Gillespie six and Johnston four in a total of eight games played. Lineups were:

Rogow, Perks, Perry and Bullick. Umpires were J. Dougherty, H. Galley and G. Fitzgerald; and Eric Taylor was scorer.

Same Team That Won Pennant Will Start Season For Yanks

Few Rookies Likely To Reach Starting Line-Up—Champion Worst Enemy

SOME GOOD PROSPECTS

By BILL BRAUCHER
Central Press Canadian Sports Writer

ST. PETERSBURG, April 5. — Marse Joe McCarthy, manager of champions, sat gingerly on the edge of a creaking cot in the little front office of the clubhouse at Miller Huggins Memorial field and talked about the great ball club that trushed all of its rivals in the American league last year and romped over the Giants in the world series.

"My story is told in a few words," said Marse Joe, while he pulled a champions' sock over one of the champions' manager's legs. "The Yanks will open the season in April with the same team that won the pennant. I mean I hope it is the same team."

"Isn't that bad news for the rookies?" I asked.

"I wasn't thinking about that," said Marse Joe, hauling up the other sock. "I mean I hope the club hasn't changed its mind. We had plenty of desire to win last year. If the boys feel the same way about it this year, I suppose we'll win. We ought to win, that's sure, with every man just where he played last year."

"But a champion is his own worst enemy. Last year we had somebody to beat—Detroit. We've passed that objective. We're champions now and they have got to beat us."

Marse Joe Continues

Manager McCarthy delved into a trunk for freshly laundered baseball trousers, and continued his discussion.

"I called a little meeting in the clubhouse the other day and told 'em what we had to fight. I told 'em if they lost this year they'd be beating themselves. I warned 'em that the Tigers would be tougher to beat this year, and so would the Indians and the Red Sox, but most important of all, so would the Yankees. Any champion has to beat himself before he can take the others. Swelled heads would murder us."

Babe Missing

In the clubhouse more than 30 players were preparing noisily for a game with the Bees. It was a familiar set in a drama that has been running for many years. There were new faces here and there. One large face was conspicuous by reason of its absence—Babe Ruth—and somehow there seemed to be a little less of boyish boisterousness in the dressing room than there was in the days when that booming voice filled the place.

Back to Marse Joe again for a moment, after a short stroll through the dressing room.

"Should I say that these recruits might as well pack up and go home?" I asked.

"Well, it's not quite that bad," said Joe. "We have five or six rookies here that look good. Watch Joe Gordon, second baseman we got from Oakland. He's going to the Newark farm team. He's the best prospect I've seen for a long time. He really hustles. He's a natural hitter. Needs a little polishing up in the infield, but he's game. Broke right in last year from the University of Oregon, and they had a hot pennant race in the coast league, but he stood up fine.

"Two other fellows from Oakland look like good pitching prospects—Jack La Rocca and Jimmy Tobin. La Rocca is an Irish-Italian, imagine that! and he was born right in Greenwich Village and pitched high school ball in New York. Tobin is an Indian, too. Looks like we're giving the ball club back to the Indians."

Kay is a stocky, swarthy son of the Lone Star state and though he has the features of the aboriginal American, his nationality is listed as German and French. A fast man, he starred in football at University of Texas five or six years ago, was named on several All-American elevens, and played in an East-West Shrine game in San Francisco.

Out in the field, Vito Tamulus, who pitched great ball as a rookie in 1936, but who was kept out last year after an attack of pneumonia, was warming up with Bill Baker, 200-pound catcher. Young Tamulis is fighting to come back. If the Yankee spirit depended upon him, the boys would have it.

That is the thing the Yankees must have to win, that old college spirit, and though the term is hackneyed, its meaning remains undimmed and its value to a ball club undiminished.

Marse Joe hopes he has the same team this year that he had in 1936, but isn't sure yet that he has.

FAVOR POMPOON KENTUCKY DERBY

Good For Route Says Trainer Despite Appearances Of Blood Lines

NEW YORK, April 5 (A.P.). — Although turf history and blood lines are arrayed against him, Jerry H. Loucheim's Pompoon is the horse to beat in the 63rd running of the Kentucky Derby, in the opinion of the men who quote the winter-book odds.

No Belmont Futurity winner ever won the Derby, and Pompoon captured that famous two-year-old stake last year to win the greater part of his earnings, which totalled $23,280. Pompey and the majority of his offspring never showed a liking for the Derby distance of a mile and a quarter, and Pompoon is a son of Pompey. The famous sire set the pace in the 1936 running, only to falter in the final drive.

Yet, despite these adverse facts, Cyril Clark, trainer of the Loucheim ace, believes Pompoon will prove the exception to the rule when the best of the United States three-year-olds break from the barrier at the Downs on May 8.

"He has never shown me that he can't go the route," said Clark. "He's differently gaited than his daddy, and that long stride of his should be just suited for the Derby distance."

Why Not Follow The Signs of Spring?

SIGNS OF SPRING cannot be overlooked, even by the most self-centered individual. They are too many, too varied and insistent. Birds that return, hedges that pop into leaf, and a restless stirring in human hearts.

But there are other Signs of Spring that point the way to increased happiness along all the trails of Summer — the advertisements in The Examiner. Think of them as guide-posts to value. If you overlook these signs, you will spend without adequate information about new things, better products, more beautiful and satisfying merchandise. Examiner advertisements, truly, are the official reports to you by the best manufacturers of the nation, who season by season combine science and art with vast resources to place better things at your disposal.

And every time, Examiner advertisements speak with authority. They are signed by firms of standing and repute. You can trust them. . .and profit well by them.

O.B.A.A. Sanctions Baseball On Sunday If Locally Approved

Ontario Diamond Body Deals With 14 Amendments In All-Day Session Saturday At 19th Annual Meeting In Oshawa

MAX SWANSTON RE-ELECTED

Sunday baseball, where it is legally permitted, was sanctioned by the O.B.A.A. Saturday afternoon at the Association's 19th annual convention, which was held in the Genosha Hotel in Oshawa and was largely attended. The all-day session, interrupted by a banquet at noon, saw a great deal of business legislated upon by representatives of organized amateur baseball from all parts of the Province.

Officers elected for the year were: President, N. A. Taylor of Delhi; first vice-president, G. E. Gibbard of Napanee; second vice- president, J. W. Scott of Kitchener; secretary, W. J. Snyder of Hamilton; treasurer, A. Hillmer of Oakville; A.A.U. of C. Governor, Bert Smith of Toronto; executive, J. P. Dehoet of Barrie, D. L. Graham of Strathroy, J. C. McDonald of Chesley, Frank H. Spry of Amherstburg, Max J. Swanston of Peterborough, W. O. Ward of Niagara Falls, with two to be appointed by the president.

Operating Loss

The financial statement for 1936 showed an operating loss of $216.30, which was more than covered by a gift of $500 from the Ontario Athletic Commission. A balance of $2,734.21 was shown. Receipts in O.B.A.A. playdown series were: senior—$628.51; intermediate "A"—$436.49; intermediate "B"—$371.04; intermediate "C"—$338.04. The usual honorariums were voted the secretary and the treasurer.

There were 14 amendments decided upon at the morning and afternoon meetings. The Western Baseball Association asked for clarification under "Fees", dealing with the three sections of the intermediate series, and this minor matter was carried. A move by the Intercounty Baseball Association to move the residence date for juniors, juveniles and bantams back to Nov. 1st of the preceding season was defeated. The same Association withdrew one concerning the method of measuring distances between towns for residential purposes in favor of an executive amendment—which was carried—asking that residence be established by the most direct road or highway or ferry but with steam or electric railroads not to be considered.

No Distance Fee

Niagara Falls was supported in its demand that diamonds be properly marked and laid out in league and playdown games. The same body withdrew an amendment on protest fees when the executive rule stating protest but being called upon only to give evidence be not required to deposit a defence fee was carried.

The matter of Sunday baseball came in for much discussion, the Essex Counties and the executive strongly advocating the sanctioning of Sunday ball where it is legally permitted. It was pointed out that golf for richer people is allowed and that certain sections have been and will continue to play baseball on Sundays. It was carried with the proviso that no semi-final or final playdown games be permitted on Sunday. The executive wished it reported that this body is not advocating baseball on Sundays but is merely sanctioning it where the law allows it.

The Central Ontario League amendment that amateur clubs be permitted to play exhibition games with professional clubs was withdrawn when it was shown that this rule is already in effect by the A.A.U. of C. for strictly charitable purposes—and that, when played for charity the O.B.A.A. will decide upon permission in individual cases.

No Amateur Cards

Amateur cards for senior and intermediate players came in for much argument, with several A.A.U. of C. officials speaking strongly for it, but this amendment—sponsored by the T.A.B.A.—was lost in a vote, though the O.B.A.A. hinted it may pay the Amateur Union more in the future for services rendered. The C.O.B.I. amendment to have R. A. Elliott of Deloro made a life member of the O.B.A.A. met with much favor and passed by an overwhelming majority. Niagara Falls met with a favorable response when insisting that the signed form for players be produced at all O.B.A.A. games. The executive resolution—the last on the agenda—that Nickel Belt championship clubs in intermediate "B" and "C", and junior and juvenile and bantam be required to stage their playoff games in the south was passed.

Delegates were entertained royally by the Oshawa General Motors baseball officials Friday evening and Saturday at the Genosha Hotel. They were welcomed officially by the mayor of Oshawa at the banquet and also by George Ansley, president of the Oshawa club, who acted as toastmaster, P. J. Muldoon of the Ontario Athletic Commission was guest speaker, while Presidents Joe Walsh of the O.B.A.A. introduced the O.B.A.A. officers. At the executive meeting Friday night, a number of applications for transfers were granted, only one being definitely turned down, that of Vern Bishop from Napanee to Welland.

Three Canadians Try Out With The Leafs

MAROONS FADE BEFORE RANGERS TAKE 4-0 LACING

New Yorkers Are Paced By Colville And Shibicky To Fourth Straight Win

ALL-STAR LINEUP

MONTREAL, April 5 (CP)—Montreal Maroons disbanded today, their hopes for a comeback in the Stanley Cup hockey knights shattered against the amazing New York Rangers. The Rangers, sweeping their semi-final series in two straight shutouts, Rangers mastered the Montrealers 4-0 Saturday night and qualified for a best-of-five final against the world champion Detroit Red Wings, opening in New York Tuesday night.

Hockey magic, on the sticks of the brothers Colville and Alex Shibicky, was on parade as the dark-horse Rangers overwhelmed Maroons and gave 13,000 fans a flashback to the style of another famous Ranger line, the Cook brothers and Frank Boucher was in there Saturday night, the last of this trio, but it was the new set of "kids" who stole the show. There was Neil Colville scoring two goals, and brother Mac one, and Shibicky helping them each once. Boucher fired the other counter.

It was Rangers' fourth straight triumph through the preliminary playoff rounds and Goalie Dave Kerr's third shutout. Only one goal had been sent past the New York goalie in the four games.

Broken Jaw No Holdup.

Maroons never were in the picture after Neil, his fractured jaw protected by a special brace, shot his first goal at 4:34 of the second period. Within five minutes, he had added another, and Boucher his with the help of Cecil Dillon.

Neil and Shibicky each were in on Mac's third period counter, scored after the "kids" had dashed the packed arena with their passing wizardry. Like a magician pulling rabbits from a hat, they passed pucks between each other.

Outstanding on the New York defence was old Ching Johnson, a National League star when half the Ranger team still was playing junior. Ching and his blueline mates gave Kerr perfect support. In fact, it really was an all-star line-up that beat Maroons.

SUDBURY TIGERS SWAMP VOLANTS BY 9 TO 4 SCORE

Northerners' Power Play Gives Them 5-0 Lead In First And 8-1 In Second

ONLY ONE PENALTY

OTTAWA, April 5—(CP) — The little giant-killers of the Allan Cup playdowns, Hull Volants, seemed near the end of the trail to-day. The conquerors of Moncton and the highly touted Quebec Aces went down to defeat Saturday night, 9-4 by Sudbury Tigers.

The Northern Ontario squad may win the Eastern Canada senior title by taking the second game from Hull to-night in Toronto. If they win, they will leave after the game for Calgary to meet North Battleford in the first game of the Allan Cup final, April 8.

There was too much power, too much speed in the Sudbury squad for the black-shirted Hull team. Tigers ran up a lead of 5-0 in the first period, made it 8-1 at the end of the second, and staved off a furious Hull drive in the third.

Crowd of 10,000

The biggest crowd that has seen a hockey game in Ottawa in years, 10,000, watched Irwin Chamberlain, formerly of Shawville, Que., lead the Tiger offensive with four goals. Don Grosse bagged three, Bingo Kampman and Jules Chorlette lasting the others.

Red Stuart, the old Toronto St. Pats' defence player, threw over the boards a squad that had it over Hull in everything but battling spirit. While they posted five goals in the first period, they never gave Hull a decent scoring chance, tying them up with speed and defensive power.

Only one penalty was called by the two N.H.L. referees; Jules Chorlette being waved to the sidelines for boarding in the second period. In the third, the game was held up five minutes while the ice was cleared of papers, vegetables and one electric light bulb. The crowd showered the ice when Sudbury protested Frank Jansen's second goal, claiming he poked it in from behind the net. Referee Campbell ruled it a goal and the sweepers went to work.

Jansen in Van

Jansen led the Hull team with two goals, although their star was Louis St. Denis. The black-browded goalie although beaten nine times, played a great game in the nets, time after time beating Sudbury snipers when they swooped down on him two and three abreast for close-in shots.

Officials—Babe Dye and Clarence Campbell.

SYRACUSE STARS FINISH HORNETS

Win Section Title 4-3—Will Go Into Finals With Ramblers

SYRACUSE, N.Y., April 5—(P). —Although they both had to take the long way around to reach the final, Philadelphia Ramblers and Syracuse Stars will meet in the final East-West series for the championship of the International-American Hockey League.

During the regular campaign these two stood head and shoulders above the rest of the league, topping their respective divisions by a wide margin. The Stars, however, had quite a tussle in the semi-section playoffs, going to the limit of five games against Pittsburgh Hornets before they took the deciding tussle on their home ice last night 4 to 3.

Philadelphia, which won the Canadian-American League title a year ago and compiled the highest total in either group—60 points—during the past season, participated only briefly in the Eastern playoffs. The Ramblers walted on the sidelines while Springfield Indians eliminated Providence Reds, then they polished off Springfield in two games. Since last Thursday they have been awaiting the outcome of the Syracuse-Pittsburgh playdown.

The final series will open in Philadelphia to-morrow with the second game scheduled for Syracuse Wednesday. They'll continue the home-and-home wrangle until finished with the date set for next Saturday and Sunday and the following Tuesday.

REDMEN OUST OTTAWA SQUAD BY 12 GOALS TO 1

Copper Cliff Line of McReavy, Heximer And Hamill Work Like Machine

WESTERNERS NEXT

By William B. Dumsday
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

TORONTO, April 5. — (CP) — Maxie Silverman, wily mentor of many nickel belt junior campaigns, to-day is undecided on the best method to keep his Copper Cliff Redmen in shape for the Dominion junior hockey finals. The Northern Ontario miners await the invasion of either Saskatoon Wesleys or Winnipeg Monarchs.

With the possibility it will be Saturday before the Memorial Cup series gets under way here, Coach Silverman may arrange an exhibition tilt for his club this week. He figures Red men have hit their best form of the season after watching them polish off Ottawa Rideaus 12-1 here Saturday night to take the Eastern title.

"It's rather confusing just what to do," said Maxie when debating whether to send his lads in cage with a game Tuesday or Wednesday, or merely let them have team scrimmages. In any event, Trainer Fergie Dowdall will keep the boys in condition with regular calisthenics.

Playoffs Telling.

Silverman said the strain of playoffs had told on his proteges, most of them being from 10 to 15 pounds under weight. He figures a few days' layoff might do them good but didn't want to take chances of the kids going stale. An exhibition game with a Toronto junior or senior club may be the solution.

There's at least a hope Redmen will have their two injured ace defencemen in action against the western champions. Dick Perry's injured eye is considerably improved, although vision is still double and there is a possibility the cast may be removed from Johnny Godfrey's broken wrist late this week.

Godfrey was injured in practice before Redmen tackled Toronto St. Michael's College and Perry was hurt in a game against Montreal Victorias. Silverman figures his team's chances would be much brighter with these stars in harness as the western winners are expected to provide tougher opposition than Red men have found in the East.

National Timber?

Among the slim crowd of spectators that watched Redmen polish off their mad rush to the eastern title was Art Ross, manager of Boston Bruins. Ross is particularly sweet on Copper Cliff's crack scoring line of Pat McReavy, Roy Heximer and Red Hamill as possible National League timber. He is also watching Jack Shewchuck, burly defenceman, closely.

It was the McReavy Heximer-Hamill flank that counted 11 of Redmen's goals Saturday night to end the best-of-three series in straight games. The trio have Alleged for 60 of the team's 61 goals in eight playoff games. Al Webster completed the Northerners' count while Rideau's lone marker went to Alex Higgins.

Both Silverman and Dowdall, former Athletic director of North Bay College, consider Montreal Vroeries the toughest opposition they have faced in the East. But several of the Copper Cliff players think St. Michael's were a better balanced team than Vics. Redmen's smashing playoff drive is one of the most impressive in junior hockey history. Their overwhelming successes based on total goals for four series of two games each:

Copper Cliff 16, Timmins 5.
Copper Cliff 13, Toronto St. Michael's 4.
Copper Cliff 14, Montreal Victorias 3.
Copper Cliff 24, Ottawa Rideaus 4.

LONDON EXPECTS TO BUBBLE OVER FOR CORONATION

Big Night In Old Metropolis May 12 According To Present Plans

LONDON, April 5.—(AP)—London is planning so much Coronation gaiety the famous old chimney pots are likely to tremble. The cry of "The King, the King, God bless him," will be heard throughout London in night-long revelry. It is estimated that at least 250,000 extra barrels of beer will be required for this toasting of the King's health.

The street merriment the night of May 12 is expected to surpass anything before realized. West End restaurants have been preparing for weeks. Several new ones have opened. Special supper-cabaret programs have been devised; special menus prepared. Getting an table May 12 is going to be difficult.

There is a police campaign at the same time to "clean up" London before the coronation. Shady haunts are being checked up. Bottle party clubs, where drinking can continue all night, are being watched closely. These clubs, which sign up members and dispense liquor by the bottle, are outside the licensing laws' scope. Extension of licensed drinking hours, for both pubs and restaurants, meanwhile, is being urged.

Also open to the public will be such entertainments as a coronation costume ball at Royal Albert Hall May 13. There will be processions and pageantry and the court of Queen Elizabeth will be represented by descendants of courtiers of those days.

Prominent hosts and hostesses are co-operating with the Overseas League and the various empire societies in providing entertainment for overseas visitors.

Ocean liners, moored in the Thames, will cut their own brilliant lighting pattern at night, and give further scope for private parties and celebrations. Hotels will be packed to overflowing. London has 12,000 bedrooms in first-class hotels and 300,000 bedrooms in smaller hotels and boarding houses. Special trains to be used as overnight hotels will ring the city.

As varied a selection of visitors who will share in this gayety would be difficult to find. There will be Indian potentates, and scarlet-clad Canadian Mounted police, Australian soldiers in wide-brimmed campaign hats and kilted Highlanders, in the efforts to do and to see, the East side will rub shoulders with Mayfair.

AUTO HITS ABUTMENT

Windsor Man in Hospital in Serious Condition.

WINDSOR, Ont., April 5.—(CP).—David Tyren, Windsor, is in serious condition in hospital to-day, result of injuries suffered late last night when the automobile he was driving crashed into the concrete abutment of a subway. No one else was in the car. Emergency examination of the man revealed lacerations and other head injuries and possible fracture of the right arm and hand. The car was wrecked.

Automobiles imported into England in a recent month had a total value of over $1,336,000.

READ THIS FIRST:

A cable from America excites the interest of the stenographer in the dingy law office of Stuckey & Stuckey, London. Upon his arrival Charles Stuckey learns that Miss Jacqueline Smith, daughter of one of his few respectable clients, now on the continent with her mother, has inherited $1,500,000 from an American uncle. Colonel Alec Lutman, who obviously has some hold over Stuckey, calls and reads the cablegram about the inheritance when Charles leaves the office for a few moments.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY:

CHAPTER 4

The solicitor, returning to his office, glanced at the cablegram in the Colonel's hand and frowned.

The other stopped him with a gesture.

"It's got it!" he exclaimed triumphantly. "Stuckey, you dare tell me that you have stooped to the level of being custodian of a swarm of performing fleas—umf-fuff—ff—flouting to public ridicule the name of Hoople, that ever has been associated with art and science? Why—sputt—t-t—fap! you renegade—varlet—you—you—cockatrice—"

"Oh, drop it, Charles," said the Colonel. "What on earth does it matter if I read your letters? You've no secrets from me, remember."

Stuckey's face grew sullen. He knew how true were the words, and knew also, to his bitterness, the significance of the caller's last remark.

"Look here," continued Lutman, "who are these Smith people?"

Lutman grinned.

"And I suppose Miss Smith is the other? Well, never mind that now. Where do they live? Have they had this news yet?"

"Mind your own darn business," began Charles, and Lutman grinned again.

"And whose business is this if it isn't mine?" he asked calmly. "I gather that word of this windfall has not yet gone to your old and valued clients? Well, it need not."

The solicitor stared at him.

"What on earth are you getting at, Lutman?"

"Money," said the other laconically. "The only thing I want to get at. Money for you and for Jimmy—and for me, of course."

"Of course," Charles smiled sardonically. "But you can't pinch a legacy!"

An expression of pained fastidiousness crossed the Colonel's face.

"Really, Charles," he expostulated, "I think that for the future you would do well to leave personal contact with your—er—clients to the excellent Mr. Bells, and thus preserve, perhaps, at least some of the usages of polite language. Now listen"—his tone changed and he became serious—"I am not proposing that I should—er—pinch the legacy. What sort of a girl is Miss—Jacqueline—was it?"

"Just what do you mean?"

"I mean," explained the visitor, "has she any attractions, other, of course"—tapping the cablegram—"than the all-important one conferred by this news?"

Charles shrugged his shoulders.

"I've never seen her or her mother," he admitted.

"Where does she live?"

"Ever since we've known her, she and her daughter have been—er—moving around the continent. But listen, Lutman, what's on your mind? I'll have no funny business . . ."

"Please, Charles! You jar me. I am proposing nothing that is not strictly honest and straightforward. We've got to make some money somehow; moreover, we must placate friend Jimmy, who will be here"—glancing at his watch—"very soon now. My idea, briefly stated, is this: Let us marry Jimmy to the—we will hope—attractive Jacqueline." He leaned back in his chair to watch the effect of his words on the other man.

"Marry Jimmy to Jacqueline!" he repeated.

"Why not? As far as I know, the adorable Jimmy has never manifested any particular interest in the other sex, and I should imagine that a marriage of convenience would appeal to him. Besides, it would solve a lot of difficulties. Jacqueline, I understand, is a charming girl, and Jimmy is not exactly a pauper. Why not?"

"But how on earth will that help you?"

"'Ow'd you mean," said Lutman. "I should have thought it was quite simple, my dear Charles. The young woman and her mother are at present in ignorance of their good fortune. Let them remain so. Before the marriage takes place—oh, we'll get them married all right—have the girl sign a deed of assignment, or whatever you call it, of all her property to her husband."

Stuckey jumped to his feet.

"I'll have nothing to do with it!" he stormed. "It's an outrage! It's monstrous . . ."

"Sit down and shut up," said the colonel. Now be sensible, Charles. There's three hundred thousand pounds here—fallen from heaven, as it were. We cut it five ways and I take three. That'll mean sixty thousand each for Jimmy and you—and Jimmy gets the girl thrown in. He may, of course," he added reflectively, "want more for that, but never mind that now."

The solicitor's eyes were fixed on Lutman with a stare of intense but impotent hatred. His fists clenched; his right arm was drawn back as though he would throw himself violently upon the other man. With a tremendous effort of self-restraint, however, he drew himself up to his full height and shook in Lutman's direction a hand the fingers of which quivered convulsively.

"I tell you once and for all, Lutman," he raged, "I'll have nothing to do with it!"

"But . . ."

"But nothing! Get out!"

The colonel rose. On his face was still the sardonic smile—it was rarely missing—but now his voice had taken on a different note: a note of authority, of menace.

"Don't try me too far, Stuckey," he barked. "There is a limit even to my patience. You'll do as I tell you!" He extended a finger, almost melodramatically, at the other man. "Unless"—he spoke slowly and very deliberately—"you want very bad trouble."

He took out his pocketbook and extracted from it a folded sheet of paper.

"Do you know this?"

Charles had sunk back into the chair in front of his desk; his weak fury had gone from him and in its place had appeared a look of dumb resignation.

"It seems familiar," he muttered. "It's a historical document," the Colonel went on. "A request for a loan of three hundred and fifty pounds by a young solicitor's clerk who had misapplied the money of one of his employer's clients and had to put it back in a hurry."

"What a fool I was, Lutman, ever to come to you—a money lender—with my secrets!"

"You were, rather," admitted the other.

Charles leaned across his desk, his forearms resting on his blotting pad, his hands tightly clasped, and looked at the older man.

"I was rather an impulsive kind of lad, you know, and I thought you were my friend. I'd done one or two dirty jobs for you—remember? I'm not so sure I didn't save you once from doing time."

The colonel smiled.

"Very likely; in fact, I believe you did."

"Why do you keep that piece of evidence in your pocket?"

"Don't worry," said Lutman; "I shan't lose it. And I also carry a little memorandum book that I wouldn't let the police see for worlds. I thought the sight of your letter might stimulate you to agree to what I propose."

"Melodramatic," said Charles, "but not very effective. There is a statute of limitations which applies even to embezzlement."

The older man chuckled.

Bedtime Story

By HOWARD R. GARIS

UNCLE WIGGILY AND SUSIE'S BAR

"Susie! Susie! Come back here!" cried Sammie Littletail.

"No, I'm not going to. I like to go this way!" answered Susie.

Sammie and Susie Littletail were two rabbit children who lived with Uncle Wiggily. They had lived with him a long time—even before Uncle Wiggily was married and had little bunnies of his own.

One day Sammie and Susie started to go to school together. They hopped away ahead of Jingle and Jangle, Buster and Custer and the other rabbits from Uncle Wiggily's hollow stump bungalow. They wanted to get to school early to study their lessons for the Lady Mouse Teacher.

"I'm going to take this short way across the field," Susie said to her brother when they reached a place where the path divided like the letter Y.

Good Reason

"Oh you'd better not go that way," said Sammie.

"Why not?" asked Susie.

"Because that path goes past a house and a dog lives there and he may chase you."

"Oh, pooh!" said Susie. "I'm not afraid. And I'll be at school ahead of you."

"Maybe you will and maybe you won't," said Sammie. "Anyhow, you'd better not go that path on account of the dog."

"Oh, pooh!" puffed Susie again.

So she went one way and Sammie went the other way. In a short time Sammie reached the Hollow Tree school, but there was no sign of Susie.

"My, Sammie, you are here early," said Uncle Wiggily, who was out early himself looking for an adventure.

"Yes, sir," said Sammie, "I came early to study my lessons."

"Where is Susie?" asked Uncle Wiggily for usually Sammie and Susie came to school together.

"Oh, she wanted to go by herself across the lots," said Sammie. "I told her to come back, but she wouldn't. I hope nothing happened her."

"I hope the same, Sammie," said Mr. Longears. "And as I have nothing to do just now, I'll hop back over the field and perhaps I may see Susie."

So off he went and Sammie went the other way. In a short time Sammie reached the Hollow Tree school, but there was no sign of Susie.

"My, Sammie, you are here early," said Uncle Wiggily, who was out early himself looking for an adventure.

"Yes, sir," said Sammie, "I came early to study my lessons."

"Where is Susie?" asked Uncle Wiggily for usually Sammie and Susie came to school together.

"Oh, she wanted to go by herself across the lots," said Sammie. "I told her to come back, but she wouldn't. I hope nothing happened her."

"I hope the same, Sammie," said Mr. Longears. "And as I have nothing to do just now, I'll hop back over the field and perhaps I may see Susie."

She Was Sorry

A big, strange dog rushed at poor Susie. Away she darted as fast as she could go. She was sorry, now, she had come this way. Faster and faster she ran. Faster and faster came the dog. Susie saw a barbed wire fence in front of her.

"Oh, if I can only crawl under that fence, the dog can't get me," thought Susie, her heart beating very fast. She crawled under the fence, but one of her long ears caught on the sharp barbed wire and there she was held fast. The dog was coming on, barking loudly.

But, all of a sudden, along came hopping Uncle Wiggily. He was on the side of the fence where the dog wasn't. Quickly Mr. Longears gently pulled Susie's ear loose from the sharp wire. Then he pulled her under the fence and the dog couldn't get her. The fence was too high for him to jump over and he was too big to crawl through it. So Susie was saved.

And if the strawberry jam doesn't turn the green traffic light red when the sidewalk scooter wants to pass, I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily's first aid.

WHOSE BARNS?

Some statisticians can produce amazing results by juggling figures. Here is one of the latest, from a statistician in Florida:

If all the women using lipstick each year on the North American continent were to stop suddenly there would be enough coloring on hand to paint 40,000 barns bright red!

BRITAIN PLANS RADIANT WEEKS WITH CROWNING

Most Luminous Social Season In History Is Scheduled For Old Country

SPREADS TO SCOTLAND

LONDON, April 5.—(CP)—With all its age-old social traditions, old London cannot produce a precedent for a season of the brilliance predicted for the coming Coronation summer.

Centring on the ceremonies of May 12 is a program that will bring thousands of leaders of fashion and culture from almost every corner of the earth. The King and Queen will hold their first court May 5. This marks the opening of the high social calendar, which will extend to July 23 when the King and Queen give a garden party at Buckingham Palace.

May 11. Presentation to the sovereign of addresses by the prime ministers of the Dominions chief representatives of India and of the Colonies. The King will hold a luncheon party at Buckingham Palace for the representatives of the British Commonwealth.

May 12. Royal progress and Coronation ceremony.

May 13. State banquet at Buckingham Palace.

May 14. Court ball at the Palace.

June 10-11. Investitures at Buckingham Palace.

June 12. Levee at St. James's Palace and garden party at Buckingham Palace.

July 1. Court at the Palace.

The King and Queen will be residing at Holyrod, Edinburgh, July 5-12 when the Scottish capital will embark upon a week of such social brilliance as it has not witnessed for many years. For two days after their Scottish visit their Majesties will be among the people of Wales.

Make Welcome For All

In addition to the royal garden parties the Archbishop of Canterbury is holding one at Lambeth Palace, and many owners of lordly houses purpose making similar entertainment for their personal friends and visitor from afar.

Society leaders of London have for months been engaged in preparations for the entertainment of friends in London this summer. Balls and dinner parties, literally by the score, both on the large scale and of the smaller and more intimate type, will take place nightly for two months at least. Some of the hotels have all their accommodation already engaged for such functions.

A movement which has started under the happiest of auspices aims at providing hospitality for overseas visitors apart from the various receptions and other official entertainment. Lady des Voeux is chairman of what is known as the welcome committee of the Overseas League, and others associated with her are the Countess of Plymouth, Lady Annesly and Lady Lymington. Offers have been received from many quarters to organise luncheon or dinner parties of six or eight people, of whom some three or four would be from overseas, thus enabling some interesting personal contacts to be established.

To Represent U.S. At The Coronation

Little Entente Sticks To Ties Shies Off Fascist, Red Blocs

France Sees Stand As Bad Day For Her Influence In Balkans

PREDICT A REVERSAL

BELGRADE, April 5.—(CP-Havas)—Satisfied the unity of the Little Entente remains solid, the foreign ministers of the Entente Council returned to their respective capitals to-day after a two-day conference that ended with a common declaration of fidelity to the commitments that bind Yugoslavia, Rumania and Czechoslovakia.

The council also indicated its conviction that Yukoslavia's pacts with Italy and Bulgaria conform with the spirit of the Entente. In its communique it stressed the unwillingness of the three-power bloc to be drawn into either of Europe's so-called ideological groupings — Communist or Fascist.

Nothing was said specifically about the Hapsburg restoration which it was understood still meets with the opposition of the Entente. Respect for internal regimes in other countries, strict neutrality as regards Spain, and common action to defend their mutual security, were emphasized.

Bad Day for France

PARIS, April 5—(CP-Havas)— The Paris press was almost unanimous to-day in casting doubt upon the affirmations of solidarity made at the conclusion of the Little Entente Council meeting in Belgrade last night.

"It must be admitted that it was a bad day at Belgrade for France and its influence in Central and Balkan Europe. However, despite appearances, Paris and London will soon be recognized by all European peoples as the inevitable conquerors in case a conflict should break in the world. So patience for a few months, and perhaps Belgrade will act in a fashion diametrically opposed to its action of April 2."

Populaire, Socialist party organ, declared "the project to strengthen the bonds of the Little Entente on the basis of mutual assistance made no progress."

SLUMP SPOILED BUILDING DREAM

Late King Had Planned Loans To Servants At Two P.C. For Homes

HALIFAX, England, April 5. — (CP)—The story of how the finance crisis of 1931 forced King George V to give up plans for launching a building society for the benefit of his servants has been told by Sir Ralph Harwood, the late Monarch's financial secretary.

Sir Ralph described the projected scheme as "the building society of borrower's dreams." It was going to charge the borrowers only two per cent on their mortgages, and it would have been willing to advance the full 100 per cent. of the cost of mortgaged property.

The plan had been evolved by the King after a discussion on the civil list. The King had pointed out that the financial position was so satisfactory that he would like to do something for the permanent benefit of his servants.

"He did not want to give wage increases because the wages were good and increases might not always be put to useful purposes," Sir Ralph said. "He wanted to do something which would help and ensure them to be thrifty, and be of permanent advantage to them—he warmly welcomed the building society scheme."

However, the King asked for a $200,000 cut in the civil list when the financial crisis came and so the scheme had to be dropped.

Whisky, Milk Keep 10-Ounce Boy Alive

Albia, Ia., April 5.—(AP) A BABY boy weighing less than a pound entered his third day of life today on a diet of whisky and milk.

The child, born to Mr. and Mrs. Henry Johnston, took the nourishment—one drop of whisky and a teaspoon of milk—from an eye dropper every hour.

No one knows how much he actually weighs because the attending physician's scales do not register less than a pound. The physician, Dr. E. A. Smith, estimated 10 ounces and said the child was normal except in weight and size.

THOUSANDS TAKEN OFF RELIEF LIST BY UTAH MORMONS

Church Official Tells How Necessities Provided For 68,000 People

VISITING DOMINION

SAINT JOHN, N.B., April 5 (CP) —A security program adopted by the Mormon Church has taken 68,000 people off government relief rolls in Utah, according to Abel S. Rich, member of the church who is touring Canada.

"This program has two main objectives," he said. "One is to care for the immediate necessities of life. The other is permanent employment for the members."

Mormon Church organizations carry out the program, with a group of businessmen acting as a central committee. As the first step, land was made available for unemployed to cultivate garden and field crops. Shops were established to re-condition contributions of old clothing, furniture and other articles. Fruit and vegetables were canned or stored in depots. An exchange system was established between the various regions.

"By last fall," said Mr. Rich, "this program had worked so successfully that store houses were filled with food, clothing and madeover furniture in sufficient amounts to care for the needs of all the people through the winter."

Committees sought widely for employment. Unemployed were catalogued according to their capabilities. In addition projects were devised to provide work of the type others were able to do. These projects included the building of recreational halls and playgrounds, improvement and renovation of meeting houses and grounds, and work on public parks.

"The greatest benefit to these people," said Mr. Rich, "has not been in supplying the necessities of life but in restoring them to self-maintenance and independence that are so essential to peace of mind and buoyant hopefulness. This work has met with success not through the work of officers alone but through the co-operation of the entire membership of the church."

DISCUSS RURAL LIBRARY PLANS FOR PROVINCE

Service Would Be First Step In Educational Movement To Aid Farmers

IN NEW BRUNSWICK

FREDERICTON, April 5 (CP) — Plans to make library service equivalent to that in cities available at every farmer's doorstep have been considered here by Dr. Fletcher Peacock, director of educational services for New Brunswick, and Dr. E. A. Corbett, director of the Canadian Association fo Adult Education.

The hope, Dr. Peacock remarked, was to provide rural library service as the cornerstone of an adult educational movement including the theory and practice of co-operation, to teach farmers how to increase earning power and improve living conditions.

One library system considered would involve use of huge book-laden vans travelling on regular circuits and making regular stops. This was said to have worked well in British Columbia, with thousands of farmers taking advantage of the service.

Another method is the box system, with books sent periodically to each settlement from depots situated at strategic points.

"Ninety-two per cent of the people in the rural areas of New Brunswick have no libraries at all, according to the findings of the Dominion bureau of statistics," Dr. Corbett told members of the New Brunswick Legislature.

He indicated there was a good chance of the province obtaining financial assistance from the Carnegie Corporation for a rural library service. Premier Dysart gave assurance New Brunswick would do all possible to take advantage of any such opportunity.

LEGS BEAT OARS IN SPEED TRIAL

Boat Just Failed To Overcome Two-Mile Handicap As Competition Revived

HAMILTON, Bermuda, April 5 (CP)—An old form of competition, popular in Bermuda a generation ago, made its reappearance here when Thomas Dill outhooted the shell sculled by William Gosling in a close driving finish.

It all started when Dill and Gosling made a wager. Gosling said he could scull his shell from Ferry Reach, around Spanish Point to The Club before Dill, starting from the same point on Ferry Reach, could make the trip on foot, taking any route he chose. Dill said it couldn't be done, and the battle was on.

Gosling's course around the Point and in shore again to The Club called for an 11-hour row, while the route chosen by Dill made up a nine-mile walk over rough ground. Gosling was followed by a motorboat while Dill was paced by Captain Paul Curtis.

It was a tight race, with interest added because neither contestant could see how the other was faring until they arrived at their destination. Dill and his companion reached The Club in one hour and 40 minutes flat, just as Gosling was coming down the home stretch to the finish line which he crossed a minute and a half later.

Hazards? Yes, they both had their troubles. Gosling had to backwater once to avoid the wash of a steamer, while Dill was delayed at one point by a funeral procession.

Worried By Pimples And Eczema

Complexion Unblemished After Six Weeks Of Kruschen

"For the past two years," writes a woman, "my face was covered with hard pimples and red blotches, and I also had eczema on my neck and fore-arms. I tried lotions, creams and ointments, without the slightest effect. I was so worried. Fortunately I decided to give Kruschen a trial, and without any exaggeration, within six weeks my face was without a blemish, and I have not had a sign of eczema since. I take Kruschen regularly every morning, and would not be without it."—(Mrs.) J. A.

Pimples and eczema are frequently due to impurities in the blood — irritant poisons which diversify body organs are failing to excel from the system. Kruschen Salts help to keep the body organs functioning normally and healthily, thus preventing the accumulation of impurities in the blood.

Mrs. Thomas Newman's many friends will regret to hear of her painful accident while attending to her household duties, she slipped on her kitchen floor and fractured her hip.

ACQUAINTANCES wonder "how he did it." He always had just an average job—a moderate income—yet now, while still young enough to enjoy life, he can retire. He and his wife are taking a long trip. After that they'll settle where they like because they have an independent monthly income.

You do not have to have a large income in order to make a financial success of your life. If you have thirty, twenty, or even fifteen years of earning power ahead of you, you can be financially independent in your later years even on a moderate salary.

But you must have a saving plan that makes saving easy and sure. The Imperial Life offers such a plan. The advantage of The Imperial Life way over other methods of saving is that, by it you actually do save just what you plan. An Imperial Life policy adapted to your needs will provide for your dependents in case of your death, or for yourself after your retirement.

Radio Phone Service Will Liven North

Unique Scheme To Link Ontario Mines, Lumber Camps, Towns With World

$100,000 OUTLAY

Station Monthly Costs To Run $25 Or More According To Service

TORONTO, April 6 (CP)—Construction of a modern radio telephone and telegraph service to serve the mining and lumbering areas of Northern Ontario, was announced today by Hon. Peter Heenan, Minister of Lands and Forests.

Mr. Heenan said the system would be unique. Mining camps, towns, lumber camps and other settlements in Northern Ontario, isolated except for periodic radio telegraph service through the foresty branch, will be put in touch with the world.

Construction of the first transmitting and receiving units at Red Lake, Pickle Lake and Woman Lake will be started shortly. Estimated cost of these units together with receiving and sending equipment at Sioux Lookout, and Kenora, where the radio system will hook up with telephone lines, is $100,000.

Canadian National Telegraphs has agreed to open a telephone line from Sioux Lookout to Port Arthur to hook up with the new system. The connection at Kenora will be over Canadian Pacific lines.

$25 Monthly Rental.

Private receiving and sending stations to hook up with the central points will be available for rental at $25 a month or so. Such stations to send scrambled messages to prevent anyone listening in will rent at a higher rate.

Because of mineralisation difficulties and because the service has been available only for a stated number of hours, the use of the Forestry Service Radio Telegraph has been unsatisfactory. Messages have been delayed hours and even days.

The stations at Red Lake Woman Lake and Pickle Lake will connect with any private station in the north. A person will be able to lift a telephone at a mining camp 20 miles from Red Lake and ask for London, England or any other place. The message will go to Red Lake by radio, then be transmitted by radio to Sioux Lookout or Kenora and thence by established channels to its destination.

EXETER WOMAN BURNS TO DEATH

Believe Coal-Oil Flare-up Ignited Clothes—Five Others Escape

EXETER, Ont., April 6.—(CP)—Mrs. J. A. Little of Exeter North died in a fire which razed her home early today. Other members of the family, her two sons Earl and Charles and three children of Charles managed to escape through the bedroom windows.

Between six and seven a.m., the sleeping family were awakened by smoke. Escape through the house was made impossible by flames and the family with the exception of Mrs. Little got out through the windows ran around the house to the kitchen which was entirely in flames.

Breaking down the door the two boys managed to get Mrs. Little out but she already succumbed to fire and smoke.

It is presumed that Mrs. Little in attempting to hurry the fire along with coal oil caused the blaze to reach her clothing.

Trio Nabbed As Hijackers Windsor Raid

Seven, Including Two Women, Found Having Party, With Thirty Cases In Garage

SUSPECT ALL STOLEN

WINDSOR, Ont., April 6.—(CP).—Discovery early to-day of 30 cases of beer in a garage here has plunged detectives into an investigation of a suspected hijacking gang. While seven Windsorites, including two men, were placed under arrest, only three men are being held.

George Weir, 35, is being detained at police headquarters, charged with a Liquor Control Act violation; Wilmer Laramie, 27, is held for investigation as is Lawrence Burns, 24.

Others picked up in the raid on the house were John Weir, 20, a brother of George, Ernest Taylor, 21, and Helen Burns. They were released after questioning.

Asked to explain the presence in his garage of the 30 cases of beer, Weir said he had stepped out of the house Sunday morning to place garbage in a receptacle at the back of his lot. He noticed his garage door was closed and thought that strange as he had left it open. He looked inside and found the beer neatly stacked.

Invitation to a Party.

Such a windfall indicated a party, he said, so he invited a few friends. When the police dropped in all in the house were drinking and the police found six cases of empty bottles and 14 full bottles.

Police are investigating a report a total of 50 cases of beer were taken last Friday from another garage and removed to the garage at the rear of Laramie's address, later to be transported to the garage at the rear of Weir's home.

Police also have received information to the effect a resident was hijacked Sunday in his garage and that two cases of whiskey were taken after he was slugged on the head.

Firemen were first called for a blaze in a garage owned by H. Harrier. An hour later and shortly before midnight they were called to extinguish a blaze in a garage owned by George Fox. Firemen received their fourth alarm for a garage on Lavender avenue.

Insist Duce Stay In Pact Isolate War

Threaten To Steer Balkan States From Friendship Rome Covets

FASCIST PRESS WRATHY

Believed Preparing Way For Nation's Break By Levying Charges Against France

PARIS, April 6 (C.P.). — France and Great Britain were reported to-day ready to bring "last resort" pressure against Premier Mussolini to halt any possibility of Italian withdrawal from the agreement to isolate the Spanish Civil War.

The two governments, informed sources in Paris told the Associated Press, would attempt to hold Italy in line with the 27-nation non-intervention agreement by a threat to steer the Balkan States away from that friendship with Italy which Mussolini is so eager to obtain.

Such a move, in answer to statements by an Italian spokesman that his country might withdraw from the efforts to keep the Spanish War from spreading, the Paris source said, would be taken only as a "last resort."

The Italian threat of withdrawal and re-assumption of "full liberty of action" in Spain was based on authoritative charges in Rome France has "flagrantly violated" the non-intervention accord in permitting aid to the Madrid government.

Should Italy prefer formal charges against France before the non-intervention committee, called into session for this week, informed sources said it would indefinitely postpone any effective and definite action to bar volunteers and munitions from Spain.

The purpose set for the committee session was final approval of a date to make blockade of the Spanish coasts by a multi-power naval patrol effective.

Fear Snag From Grandi.

The Advisory committee has already set the date but some informed quarters feared necessary approval of the full committee would be balked by Count Dino Grandi, the Italian Ambassador, bringing a formal accusation French arms and airplanes had helped the government offensive.

Rome sources, however, remained vague on whether such charges would be placed before the neutrality group.

The Italian government spokesman said there seemed no reason "to doubt the authenticity" of the charges made by the authoritative newspaper Giornale D'Italia which said inquiries must be made by Grandi before Rome could determine if the alleged French violations justified withdrawal.

The newspaper charged "violations" between March 1 and March 20 included:

Sending of 50 French planes to the Madrid government;

Negotiations by a "red" emissary at Le Havre for the purchase of 80 French pursuit planes;

Negotiations in Paris with a Vienna munitions maker for cartridge making machines capable of turning out 126,000 cartridges daily;

An order for 50,000 rifles the Madrid government placed with a Liege factory.

The Italian charges were described by French officials as part of an attempt by Premier Mussolini to "retreat with honor," by explaining the defeat of insurgent troops, reported by the Madrid government to be largely Italian, as due to help from France.

Rebel Casualties Being Removed In Spain

After reaching the suburban area of Madrid in what was rated their greatest attack, General Franco's rebel troops were repulsed with heavy losses in one of the first offensive drives by the Spanish Loyalist forces. These two rebel soldiers, who were among those staging the attack on the Spanish capital, are shown as they removed a wounded companion following the battle. Loyalist forces, heretofore on the defensive, changed their tactics and began a series of overwhelming attacks on the rebel concentrations outside Madrid. The Loyalists forced the Italian-supported rebels to retire in what was virtually a rout.

Daylight Saving In City May 29 to September 6

Beverage Room Closing Hours Set At Eleven o'Clock Except Saturday

DELAY IS REFUSED

Subject to the approval of the Liquor Control Board, the closing hour for beverage rooms in Peterborough will be 11 p.m. daily except Saturdays when the doors close at 10 p.m., and the nightly closing hour will move forward one hour during the period of daylight saving from May 29 to September 6.

The recent change in the provincial regulations was implemented by a bylaw of the council Monday night. They provide for closing not earlier than 10 p.m. standard time, and as daylight saving would advance the hour actually to 9 p.m. on the basis of standard time, Alderman Gordon expressed doubt about the Liquor Control Board endorsing that clause of the bylaw.

In committee last week majority support was given to the eleven o'clock closing every night in the week, but Alderman Sloan declined to vote for either the resolution or amendment on that division because he said he was in favor of 10 o'clock Saturday nights.

Sloan Amendment

When the bylaw which was prepared in accordance with the committee decision reached the stage of its second reading Monday night, Alderman Sloan moved an amendment, seconded by Alderman Wilson that the hours be 11 p.m. on "week" nights and 10 p.m. Saturday nights.

Alderman Sloan remarked that this change might cause some hardship to hotel proprietors, but quite a number of citizens had told him they were in favor of the stand he had taken.

"I'd like to make it 10 o'clock every night in the week," Alderman Wilson said.

The Sloan-Wilson amendment carried, the members voting with

Belgium Back Into Pre-War Neutrality

To Sit Among Great

British, French Pledge To Guarantee Her Independence Will Not Be Reciprocal

FREED OF 1936 PROMISE

By George Hambleton
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

LONDON, April 6 (CP)—Belgium returns to her pre-war state of neutrality. Letters exchanged between London and Brussels are shortly to be published. It is expected, relieving Belgium from the pledge she gave April 1, 1936, to go to the assistance of Britain and France if either were attacked. Britain and France will continue as before the Great War to Guarantee Belgium's independence and integrity. But the guarantee will not be reciprocal.

The guarantee of last April was a sequel to the tramp of German soldiers in the Rhineland. By the Treaty of Locarno Germany undertook to respect the demilitarized zone. Canchellor Hitler claimed that France by her treaty with Soviet Russia had violated the Locarno Treaty. Therefore Locarno no longer existed.

Hitler backed up his view with military occupation of the Rhineland. Representatives of France, Britain, Belgium and Italy, as signatories of the Locarno instruments, gathered at London to consider the next move. Locarno had guaranteed the frontiers between France and Germany and Belgium and Germany. Britain appeared in the

PICKETS BATTLE AT KINGSVILLE

Clash With Police As Worker Is Kept From Tobacco Plant

KINGSVILLE, Ont., April 6 (C.P.). — A miniature riot, in which many women took part, occurred outside the Consolidated Leaf Tobacco Company's strike-torn plant to-day with police forced to engage in hand-to-hand fighting with the strikers after they sought to arrest one of the pickets. No arrests were made.

Four police officers and approximately 35 pickets, including 15 women, took part in the first real struggle since the strike began 19 days ago. However, only bare hands and a few feet figured in the fighting. No serious injuries were reported.

Trouble was precipitated by attempts of Ed. France, a "day-worker" and not one of the striking picket lines. The mob closed in and attempted to push him back. He retaliated, and was thrown to the ground.

When police grabbed the man who threw France to the ground, the pickets closed in and fists swung as the mob surged forward and backwards. Although police carried "billies" at their belts, they did not attempt to use them.

After more than five minutes of scuffling, shoving, kicking, and punching order was restored and in short time the picket line dwindled.

Three Youthful Navigators Unwillingly Rescued By Coastguard.

SANTA BARBA, Calif., April 5.—(CP).—Like the three wise men of Gotham in Mother Goose—who went to sea in a bowl—three young navigators began an ocean voyage in a washtub.

The three, the oldest 12 and the youngest eight, had successfully negotiated the shoals of Mission Creek and were paddling out to sea with palm branches as oars when they were unwillingly rescued by a lifeguard.

They said they were heading for Anacapa Island for provisions before continuing their journey to New Zealand.

One Little Bottle Empties A Court

Toronto, April 6—(CP)

A LITTLE bottle containing an ounce and a half of nitro glycerine passed casually from hand to hand in police court today until Professor Joslyn Rogers, Ontario government analyst, expressed the opinion the contents could produce "a tremendous explosion." "Enough to blow this courtroom and everything in it to smithereens?" asked Crown Attorney F. I. Malone. Prof. Rogers agreed.

Within a minute the courtroom was virtually empty of spectators. Even a few reporters decided they must go elsewhere. William Clean and Ed McDonald, charged with illegal possession of the stuff, were committed for trial.

Compulsory Registration Voters, Out

Committee Also Urges Repeal Of 1930 Law On Franchise And Elections

31 RECOMMENDATIONS

OTTAWA, April 6.—(CP).—Compulsory registration of voters in Canada was turned down to-day in the report of the special House committee created under the chairmanship of C. E. Bothwell (Lib., Swift Current) to study the matter of franchise and elections. Tied up with the committee's rejection of compulsory registration was its negative finding on compulsory voting.

These elements thus go the way of proportional representation and the alternative vote against which the committee found unfavorably last year.

Thirty-one recommendations were embodied in the report, covering as many phases of the subject which the committee had exhaustively considered, among them was a unanimous finding that the 1930 legislation dealing with franchises and elections be repealed.

The "basic list" of voters compiled at great expense prior to the 1935 election was found unsatisfactory and the recommendation was made to revert to the system in operation in 1930.

Among other recommendations were that absentee voting be abolished; the use of radio for election speeches on polling day and on the Sunday immediately preceding it be prohibited; that penalties be invoked against employers who refuse to grant workers two additional hours in which to vote on polling day; that flags, bunting and loud-speakers on cars and trucks and other vehicles be prohibited on election day; that all incorporated cities or towns having a population of 3,500 persons or more be treated as urban polling divisions, and that the chief electoral officer be empowered to declare urban any area in which the population last a transient nature or which has received an access of population through temporary or special employment.

Dozen Families Forced To Evacuate—Two Schools Closed

BLIZZARD BLOWING

Southern Ontario Farm Areas Welcome Rains—Creeks On Rampage

NORTH BAY, Ont., April 6 (CP) —Water was six feet deep in some parts of North Bay today as one of the worst floods in the city's history appeared imminent. After a 24-hour rain, water swept down from the hills, causing Chippewa Creek to overflow its banks.

The water level was above the first floor in at least a dozen homes. Families removed household goods to high ground outside. Firemen rescued one marooned family.

Fears the situation might become more dangerous arose when a blizzard blew up, the weather becoming colder. If water surrounding small homes froze it was feared families would be forced to move for an indefinite period.

In the flooded area, where catch basins were incapable of taking care of the rush of water, many one-floor cottages were isolated.

Though snowfall in the city was light during the winter, considerable snow was left in the bush northeast of North Bay. As it melted the water was swept down by torrential rains.

Two schools, St. Rita's and St. Vincent de Paul, were closed for the day owing to flood waters. Public, separate and secondary schools all reported decreased attendance, in many cases children being unable to walk to classes.

TEXTILE MEN ASK FOR 40-HOUR WEEK

And No Reduction In Wages—British Unions Irked By Cautious Action

WASHINGTON, April 6 (CP).—The World Textile Conference prepared to-day for another session of general debate with British workers and employers headed for a long dispute over social and economic aspects of the "sick" textile industry.

British Trade Unionists, expressing disappointment over the cautious approach of the Crowns spokesman to the plan for an international 40-hour week in the industry, were expected to push labor's demands to the front.

P. M. Draper of Ottawa, president of the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada, said Canadian workers wanted a 40-hour week with no reduction in wages.

The first warning that British employers were opposed to international action on the shorter work week came from Thomas Ashurst, speaking for British mill owners. He said they would resist any agreement among nations which would force England to abandon its old system of collective bargaining for settlement of wage and hour conditions.

Ashurst, while workers' delegates clamored for action on the 40-hour week proposal, sought to steer the conference into the deeper channels of export textile trade where Britain has suffered heavy losses with the rise of other textile nations.

The rivalry of England and Japan for export markets is still in the background of the conference but delegates from the Far East, listening to native interpreters relay their proceedings through specially placed phones, followed the manoeuvring with mounting interest.

Sit-Down Waltz Latest Child Of Strike-Mad Michigan City

"Abdication-Strut" And "Coronation Walk" Other Pets Of The Dancing Masters

15,000 PUPILS

DETROIT, April 6 (C.P.). — This city is famed far and wide for its sit-down strikes. Now it's the sit-down waltz.

It was estimated 15,000 pupils of Michigan dancing masters will be gliding through practice motions of the latest waltz step this week after Clement O. Browne, Akron, O., ballroom teacher and originator of the sit-down step spent much time yesterday demonstrating the dance at the semi-annual Normal School and Convention of Michigan Dancing Masters.

Besides the sit-down waltz, Browne gave an hour course in the "Abdication Strut" and the "Coronation Walk."

Hold Hitch Hiker In Triple Murder

LANCASTER, Pa., April 6 (AP).—Lancaster police said today they notified New York detectives that a hitch-hiker found in a parked automobile was arrested today because he resembled Robert Irwin, sculptor sought in the investigation of the Gedeon triple murder case.

Police said the prisoner told them he was on his way to his home in Brooklyn from Washington.

Walter Faber of Guarryville saw the man asleep in a car at a roadside, saw the resemblance and notified Lancaster police. He was held on a technical charge of vagrancy.

Seek To Aid Working Man To Build Home More Easily

Easement Of Housing Regulations Is Sought By The City Council

AID $3,500 HOME

Easement of the regulations applying to Dominion Housing Act loans around the level of from $2,000 to $4,000 was advocated by Alderman Dutton at Monday night's council meeting and the council commissioned him and City Clerk Armstrong to draft a resolution to be forwarded to the federal government urging that restrictions be lightened to encourage working men to build houses worth approximately $3,500.

As a member of the Home Improvement Plan committee Alderman Dutton said he had come to realize that there was an acute shortage of houses in Peterborough. He had heard that twelve houses had been built in Brantford under the Dominion Housing Act, but enquiry had disclosed that they ranged in value from $3,000 to $12,000. Peterborough's demand for that type of house was small compared with the shortage of new dwellings to cost around $3,000 to $4,000. Regulations attached to loans for the dearer houses were no doubt necessary, but these provisions should be lifted if the workingman was to be encouraged to build the type of house he could afford.

Alderman McIntyre said he was in agreement with Alderman Dut-

R. M. Warren Wins Over Dr. E. T. Wood With 3 Polls Out

Returns On 54 Of 58 Give Wilberforce Farmer-Reeve 330 Majority

4,882 TO 4,552

Returning Officer Estimates Not Over 150 Votes To Come—Possibly Monday

PEMBROKE, Ont., April 6.—(CP)—R. M. Warren, Liberal, long prominent in the Farmers' Cooperative Movement and former U.F.O. member of the Ontario Legislature, will represent North Renfrew in the House of Commons.

Making his first venture in the federal field, the Wilberforce township farmer and reeve retained the seat for the Liberals in yesterday's by-election necessitated by the death of Dr. Matthew McKay. Warren won over the Conservative candidate, Dr. E. T. Wood, Westmeath physician, in a close fight.

Only 55 of the 58 polls were heard from. While totals on the 58 were not available, returns from 54 gave Warren 4,882 and Dr. Wood 4,552, a majority of 330. The chief returning officer estimated not more than 150 votes in all would be received from the three remaining subdivisions to report. Results from these polls would likely not be known until next Monday, he said. It was estimated about 10,000 votes were polled out of 15,809 possible.

Only 7 Liberals On 24 Votes.

North Renfrew, regarded as a Conservative stronghold, has sent seven Liberals to the Commons in the 24 elections and by-elections since Confederation. Excepting 1930 and 1935 the successful candidate has always been returned with a majority less than 1,000 and generally lower than 500.

In the 1935 general election Dr.

McKay polled 6,052 votes in a three-cornered fight and had a majority of 1,914, largest in the riding's history. Dr. J. D. Cotnam, who had represented the constituency from 1926, polled 4,134 and W. V. Kidd, Reconstruction, 1,949.

Warren's election brings the House up to its full complement and raised the Liberal representation to 178. Conservatives have 40, Social Credit 17, C.C.F. seven, Independent one, Reconstruction one and U.F.O. Labor, one.

HUNT UNAVAILING FOR LOST AIRLINER

Searchers Comb Wild Arizona Mountain Area With Little Hope For Survivors

WINSLOW, Ariz., April 6.—(AP)—Belief persisted to-day an airliner, missing for three days with eight persons aboard, would be found in rugged, snow-covered country along the Arizona-New Mexico border—probably wrecked.

Major Victor Bertrandias, export manager for Douglas Aircraft Corporation which built the plane for sale to the Royal Dutch Airlines of Holland, held to such a conviction despite a two-day search of the area.

Bertrandias, who took full charge of the hunt, said the unsolicited reports of a plane having been seen in apparent distress "have been too consistent" to be ignored.

Although searchers had not abandoned hope, Major Bertrandias shook his head after a flight over the Mt. Baldy region. "It's the roughest country I've ever seen" he said. "Only by a miracle could a ship have survived a landing there."

The plane had no radio transmitter and only a "short" receiving set.

The reports checked were that a strange plane had been seen, apparently in trouble and circling over a wild mountain country between Escudito and Baldy Peaks in Arizona, 60 miles south-west of Gallup, N.M. All reports came from an area less than 40 miles in radius.

Founder of Nebraska Town Forbids Sale of Alcoholic Spirits

MARION, Neb., April 6—(CP).—This town is dry and it faces a dry future. Its founder, Marion Powell, now of Lincoln, Neb., saw to that.

In the original deed transferring possession of the town site, Powell inserted this clause:

"Intoxicating liquors shall not be manufactured, sold or otherwise disposed of as a beverage in any place of public resort in or upon the premises hereby granted."

If the liquor clause is violated, the town, laid down in 1901, reverts to Powell.

Albert Joined Peerage as Duke of York

NOT until 1920 was Prince Albert, second son of their majesties King George V and Queen Mary, raised to the peerage. In the birthday honors list of that year, it was announced that the Dukedom of York had been bestowed upon Prince Albert, thus giving him a seat in the House of Lords and bringing him more notably into the public eye.

King's son though he was and a Knight of the Garter, an honor bestowed upon his 21st birthday, Albert held no seat in the Lords. The Dukedom of York is not hereditary to the king's second son, as the Dukedom of Cornwall is to the eldest son, and must be conferred. Thus, when in 1920 his majesty created the prince Duke of York, he was conferring the first honor upon him that carried with it a seat among the peers of the realm.

The new-made peer took his place on June 23rd, 1920, and today's picture records that historic incident. The robes he wears are those of a member of the House of Lords.

The dukedom goes back to 1385, when it was created by King Richard II, and though it has lapsed at times for long periods, it has always remained in the gift of the monarch to bestow upon a son or other close relative. And romance and history have centred around the title from its first conferring until the day last December when Albert, Duke of York, became George VI, King and Emperor. In addition to the dukedom, Albert became Earl of Inverness and Baron Killarney—another tie-up with the Scotland that has played such a dramatic part in his life.

The honors were fitting, for he was already taking an increasingly active part in the official duties that fall upon the royal family, and was deputizing, on many occasions, for his father, the king, and his brother the Prince of Wales.

ARCTIC BISHOP IS GOING BACK

Eyesight Much Improved Following Treatments In New York After Northern Adventure

NEW YORK, April 6—(CP).—Most Rev. Pierre Falaize, since 1913 Roman Catholic coadjutor bishop of Mackenzie, a diocese that extends far up through Canada's north country to the Arctic regions said today he was ready to start back home with his eyes much improved.

He found New York interesting. But the jovial, 50-year-old bearded prelate longed also for the North country.

Bishop Falaize came south on the advice of physician to get eye treatments after his vision became impaired from his long stay in the north country with its months of snow and ice.

For New York reporters he told, in an offhand way, of his northland adventures, of sleeping out in 60-below zero weather when he became caught by ice jams and had to spend 120 days in the open.

He spoke of a 65-mile trek across th ice hummocks from Pierce Point, where the mission schooner Our Lady of Lourdes was ice bound to Hornsday Harbor, a mission outpost.

In regard to Alderman Dutton's suggestion that the city should advertise the lots it had for sale, Ald. McIntyre said that they had all been correctly located, and exact information was available to interested citizens by applying at the city hall.

Council's Condolence

In a resolution by Ald. Hamilton, seconded by Ald. Glover, the council extended its condolence to the widow of W. J. Green, tax collector for thirty-two years. Appreciation of the faithful and zealous service rendered by the late official of the city was also expressed in a wreath of flowers sent to his home.

Coldwell Charges Men Of Leopold Type Reflection On Service

PROPOSES PURGE

OTTAWA, April 6 (CP)—Secret agents of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police should not be permitted to interfere with labor and political organizations, J. S. Woodsworth, C.C.F. leader declared in the House of Commons last night.

Joining with M. J. Coldwell (CCF-Rosetown-Biggar) Mr. Woodsworth protested against police activity of the type carried on by John Leopold, staff sergeant, whose evidence figured in the trial and conviction of Tim Buck and other Communist leaders some years ago.

Hon. Ernest Lapointe, Minister of Justice, said the secret agents had instructions to stay away from legitimate trade unions and Mr. Woodsworth declared it time was the case the regulations had been changed.

Every police force in the world, including Scotland Yard, had a secret department, said Mr. Lapointe. The Royal Canadian Mounted Police was performing a valuable work at the present time and it was not always possible to disclose the nature of that work.

Everything was done not with a view to harming any one but to "keeping conditions in Canada as orderly and peaceful as possible."

In raising the question Mr. Coldwell said there were many splendid men in the Mounted Police Force or the government. He knew of Sergt. Leopold's activities at first hand, having been associated with that officer when the latter was posing as a Communist and a trade unionist in Regina.

Joined When Not Subject?

Leopold had become a special officer in 1918 at a time when he could not have been a British subject and was in fact the subject of an enemy nation. He was set to spy on British subjects.

In trying to form a constitutional Labor party in Regina, Mr. Coldwell had met with opposition from Leopold operating under the name of Eastwein, known as the most active Communist in Regina. He was organizing the worker's party, a frankly Communist organization and was urging people to join the Communists. As secretary of a

Colonel La Rocque's Social Party Termed Croix du Feu Under Disguise

PARIS, April 6 (CP-Havas) — A Paris magistrate decided today that Col. Francois De La Rocque's French social party is an illegal reconstitution of the banned pro-Fascist" Croix De Feu." De La Rocque and five of his lieutenants were ordered held for trial.

Magistrate Betelle also found them subject to trial in connection with disorders which broke out in the Pare Des Princes Oct. 2 when the popular front held a gigantic counter-demonstration.

Possible penalties for conviction on the charge of reconstituting the dissolved league are 15 days to two years imprisonment and a fine of from 16 francs (72 cents) to 5,000 francs ($225). For conviction of provoking disorders, the penalty is one to three months imprisonment.

Baby Under Pound Fails To Survive

Fort Erie, Ont., April 6—(CP)

FOUR days of effort to maintain the spark of life in the body of an infant weighing less than a pound proved in vain last night at Douglas Memorial hospital here.

The babe was born last Thursday to Mrs. Hazel Wale, wife of Arthur Wale of Stevensville, eight miles west of Fort Erie. The mother, hospital authorities said, was recovering rapidly.

Mrs. Helen C. Jones, hospital superintendent, who with Dr. Charles W. Street, and a number of nurses made every effort to save the infant, said she believed it was the smallest ever born in a Canadian hospital. Mrs. Jones said she had heard of infants weighing one pound and a half being born in Canada but this child was under the pound mark.

It was a caesarian birth and the child was immediately placed in an incubator at a temperature of 90 degrees. The baby was fed with an eye dropper.

OTTAWA, April 6—(CP)—Establishment of a Distressed Areas Commission to devise means of rehabilitating the "Ghost" towns and areas left by the receding of the lumbering, pulp and paper and shipbuilding industries, was urged upon the National Employment Commission today by a delegation from the Ontario Federation of Unemployed, Toronto.

Decline of these and similar industries along the Ottawa River and along the Great Lakes would doom large areas of population to despair and slow extinction unless some basic program was introduced, the Federation said.

LAPOINTE WOULD ABOLISH APPEALS TO PRIVY COUNCIL

Recent Decisions Come Under Heavy Fire In Commons Debate

BENNETT MORE MODERATE

OTTAWA, April 6.—(CP)—Recent decisions of the judicial committee of the Privy Council rejecting social legislation of the Bennett government were under heavy fire in the House of Commons yesterday from leading constitutional authorities in a debate that drew from Justice Minister Lapointe support for the suggestion that appeals to that body be abolished.

Conservative Leader Bennett would not go that far but criticized the method of referring the social legislation to the courts and the manner in which arguments was presented. He supported his former secretary of state, Hon. C. H. Cahan (Cons. St. Lawrence-St. George) in the charge that in its decisions the judicial committee had permanently interpreted the British North America Act. He urged a national convention to frame amendments to that document.

Joseph Thomson (Lib. Selkirk) declared the time had come when appeals to the Privy Council should be abolished. That had already been effected in criminal cases and should be done in the case of civil actions. All four speakers agreed that constitutional amendments were a pressing necessity.

The debate arose when the House was in committee considering the estimates of the department of justice. It was launched by Mr. Cahan, veteran parliamentarian and eminent constitutional authority, who gave an exhaustive survey of the constitutional relations of the Dominion and the Motherland.

Earlier in the day the House dealt with a resolution upon which will be based legislation authorizing the government to guarantee seed loans

Lakefield Citizens Hear Waterworks Plan Endorsed

Cost Of Proposed System Will Be Approximately $83,000

INSPECTOR SPEAKS

(Examiner Correspondence)

LAKEFIELD, April 6.—A good crowd of Lakefield citizens turned out to the meeting of ratepayers held in the Memorial Hall on Monday evening for the purpose of discussing the installation of a proposed municipal waterworks system in the village.

Clerk H. T. Hill acted as chairman of the meeting and outlined the purpose of the meeting which was to discuss with citizens the estimated cost of the waterworks system and the proposed means of meeting this cost.

Fire Chief A. R. Clark then introduced Inspector Clairmont of the Fire Marshal's Department who explained how the waterworks system will have the effect of lowering insurance rates materially in the village and thus make up to the ratepayer, indirectly, a good part of the expense involved. "The installation of waterworks will make Lakefield a better place to live," Mr. Clairmont said, "and will facilitate the work of your fire chief."

Reeve C. S. Tanner, who was called upon next, emphasized the advantage of putting the scheme into operation at once, and thus taking advantage of the present low interest rates. We have lost twenty-five good prospective citizens in the past three years through lack of proper water facilities, he continued. Many wells in the village are polluted and the water unfit for drinking purposes; if this condition increases Lakefield may be forced to put in waterworks at some later date when interest rates are higher and conditions generally not so favorable. A lot of people felt they could not afford Hydro when it was first proposed, and there are very few houses in Lakefield today which are not equipped with electric light, and those who have this convenience realize that they could not do without it.

At the present rates of interest, 6½% on the money invested $83,000 would pay the interest and carrying charges and retire the debentures in 30 years. It would prove a good investment and in two years would be showing a profit, he said.

No Idle Men.

"If we carry through the plan, there won't be an idle man in the district this summer," Mr. Tanner prophesied in conclusion.

D. H. Fleming, consulting engineer, was then introduced and gave a report of his work on the project. He had prepared a plan of the proposed waterworks system in which the water mains are extended to such extent that every dwelling can be reached for purposes of fire protection; only for a few of the most remote houses would 1000 feet of hose be required. Usually 500 ft. or less would be sufficient. In either case the water pressure is increased and the fire protection consequently improved.

Mr. Fleming spoke of the town of Colbourne, with a population of less than 1,000. "They spent nearly as much on a waterworks system as you intend to spend", he said. "Mr. Kees, a resident of Colbourne tells me that his mill-rate increased eight mills, but his insurance rates were reduced from $2.00 per $100 to $1.35 per $100, so that the decrease in his insurance rate wiped out his taxes entirely and paid him $7.00 profit, which is the interest on $2,000 at the present rate of bonds.

In the village of Stirling—population 900—waterworks were installed five years ago. They now have $1000 in the bank, and made a profit in 1936 of $375, with the water rates varying from 75c per month to $1.45 per month. This provides water for an entire family for washing clothes, watering lawns, cleaning automobiles and every conceivable use. Ex-Reeve West of Stirling says that insurance rates there were reduced from 25 to 35%. Stirling is an example of a small town which has installed waterworks and made a go of it, and you can feel assured that if water works are installed, the savings in insurance will more than pay for the waterworks.

Insurance Reduced.

A man in the village of Waterdon near Hamilton, who was operating a store, was asked how the waterworks system there affected him. "I pay $12.00 a year for water", he said. "My insurance is reduced $35.00 per year, so my savings is $13.00 annually."

Mr. Fleming read a list of villages in Ontario which arecperating a water system at a profit. In the towns which are operating at a loss there is usually a reason, as in one place where the water is so muddy it cannot be used for drinking purposes or for anything except watering gardens. When the system was installed they didn't expect it to pay but put it in to reduce the insurance rate, which it did.

The village of Lakefield has fire protection second to none, for a village without waterworks. For this reason the reduction in fire insurance is not so much as in the town of Colbourne, but even if the reduction in insurance rates is only half that in Colbourne, the business men of Lakefield will never pay a nickel towards the cost of waterworks, because the increase in Lakefield's mill-rate will be only 3 mills instead of 8 mills as in Colbourne's case.

If the business man doesn't pay who will? On a $603 house, an increase of 3 mills will be $1.50 per year. Assume that there is no more than 75¢ reduction in insurance annually and you have the householder paying only 75c per year for the privilege of better fire protection.

For a family who installs the system and has ordinary conveniences, the water rates will vary from $9 to $15 per year. This amounts to $1.25 per month or about 4c a day, at the higher rate, but rates will vary from 3c to 4c per day.

There are 500 waterworks systems in Canada in villages with a population smaller than that of Lakefield, whose population is 1,334. Low interest rates are an inducement at this time. When waterworks were installed at Stirling, prices were very low, and the village consequently saved a great deal. Now prices have advanced, but interest rates are lower which will materially lower the ultimate cost of the system. If you put in a waterworks system in Lakefield this summer and pay 5½% interest on it you will wake up some morning, thirty years hence to find your debt entirely wiped out. This is the great inducement to act at the present. Interest rates are increasing and will be higher next year, but recent issues to substantial communities have paid 3½% which is certainly an inducement."

Can Borrow Easily.

"Lakefield's debenture debt is very low," Mr. Fleming continued. "The tax rate is also low, perhaps the lowest in Ontario. If there are any villages in Ontario with a lower tax rate than Lakefield they can be counted on the fingers of one hand. That is why the village can borrow money so cheaply—because she has not defaulted on her debentures and has reduced the tax rate from 55 to 27 mills."

"Water will be taken from the Otonabee river — the same water which provides the City of Peterborough," Mr. Fleming continued. This is soft water, containing 65 p.p.m. hardness (anything under 100 p.p.m. is soft water) and soft water will lengthen the life of clothes washed in it and provide a saving in soap as well as protection to delicate skin. Some towns have as high as 700 p.p.m. hardness in water.

In conclusion, Mr. Fleming summed up the situation: "The savings in insurance premiums, better fire protection, greater comfort and convenience, encouragement for tourist stop-overs and the establishment of gentlemen's homes, improved sanitation in schools, better lawns and gardens are obvious advantages resulting from the establishment of a waterworks system. The cost is less than five cents per day per family, for those enjoying the maximum benefit."

Mr. G. W. Sharp, outstanding waterworks contractor, assured the audience that he would be pleased to take the contract at the estimated cost of $83,000. The installation of a waterworks system is the first real forward step of any municipality, he said. "Lakefield is in an enviable position because of her marvellous water supply.

"If the work proceeds the village will receive many benefits. I hope to have the privilege of bidding on your installation," he concluded.

Stirling's Experience.

A letter from W. C. West, formerly Reeve of Stirling, was read by Mr. Hill. The letter said in part:

"Our waterworks system is self-supporting, that is, after we charge a hydrant rental in our levy for taxes the same as street lights. It takes about three mills on our assessment which is, indirectly paid by lower insurance rates which I believe have been generally reduced 25 to 40 per cent, depending on the risk. We covered our village with mains and hydrants so we can reach with about 1,000 feet of hose all the outlying buildings, "in case of fire. We spread our debentures over a thirty-year period, but had to pay 6 per cent, and that makes it more costly."

"Lakefield is a fine village. It has been favored by nature, and has everything that a country village should have, but it suffers from a lack of manufacturing concerns and of population. If Lakefield had waterworks it would be an attraction to new business enterprises and to new residents," Dr. A. W. Mackenzie, principal of Lakefield Preparatory School, told the audience. "Though not a resident of the village, and therefore not vitally concerned, I feel that Lakefield should have a water system," he said. "If waterworks are installed in 1937, I hope it may be the beginning of a new era of prosperity for Lakefield."

Councillor T. Scriver, when called upon, remarked that there was not much left for him to say. "I am strongly in favor of waterworks and if the matter is put to a vote I think the ratepayers would make a great mistake in turning it down."

Councillor Alexander MacDonald said he did not need waterworks for his own use, but that recent experience in towns where there were waterwork facilities made him realize the advantages of such facilities. If the people say they need waterworks, the Council will be in favor," he concluded.

Councillor W. A. Nixon expressed the opinion that it was up to the people whether or not they should have waterworks. "You have heard the discussion; it is up to you to decide," he told the ratepayers.

Rev. J. J. Garvey, called upon for his opinion, said he was one of the persons in the village who already had a complete water system, and so would not benefit personally by the improvement, but stated that he thought it would be to the great advantage of the village to have a waterworks system. "The age of the hooped skirts and the horse and buggy is over; and Lakefield's present sanitary system is likewise passe," he said. Someone had asked him the question, "Why should a hick town like Lakefield have a waterworks system?" He replied: "The only thing that makes a town a 'hick' town is the 'hicks' in it—the people who have no public spirit and who refuse to support any worthwhile enterprise."

"We should not be content to drift as our grandfathers did. We are only 9 miles, just a few minutes' ride, from Peterborough, and many Peterborough citizens would make their homes here if Lakefield had water facilities to offer. Here is a chance to put Lakefield on the map. Let us hope that this opportunity will not be turned down. Let us not be selfish, rather let us look to the welfare of future generations." Father Garvey said he felt that there was a lack of civic pride in Lakefield, and mentioned a number of eyesores, old buildings, which he thought should be torn down and rebuilt, to improve the appearance of the town.

T. J. Wood spoke, stating that there is no doubt of the value the town will receive by having a water system, but wondered if the burden of debt could not be spread over a longer period, say 50 years.

Mr. Fleming replied to this question, stating that debentures spread over a longer period would make the proposition more expensive.

W. J. Charlton expressed himself as strongly in favor of waterworks, and said that if a vote were taken he hoped it would go through.

O. H. Spense said if the village saw fit to go ahead with the enterprise, he thought it would be a good thing.

Mr. Babcock, proprietor of the Lakefield Inn, expressed himself as strongly in favor of the improvement. "Even if it is a burden, I think Lakefield should put in waterworks," he said.

At the conclusion of the meeting a motion was made by J. R. Knox, seconded by W. J. Charlton, that the plans should be open for inspection by citizens for a week, and that all persons favorably impressed by the plans should affix their signatures to a document in signification of their agreement with the enterprise.

JANETVILLE

HOCKEY BANQUET PROVES SUCCESS

Presentation Of Club Bag To Rovers' Goalie Is Feature

JANETVILLE, April 6.—The hockey league, consisting of three local teams, "Rough Riders," "Rinky Dinks" and "Rovers," held a banquet in the L.O.L. Hall on Tuesday evening last, when covers were laid for fifty-two, the guests including the members with their wives or girl friends.

The hall was artistically decorated in a colour scheme of green and white and the long tables presented a pleasing appearance with their gleaming silver and crystal on snowy linen. Bouquets of spring flowers, chiefly daffodils and tulips, were interspersed by silver candlesticks with lighted tapers. Place cards in green were appropriately designed as hockey sticks and pucks.

Seated at the head table were the members of the winning team of the winter schedule, the "Rough Riders" with their lady friends, Mr. Ray Tiffany, who was being honoured prior to his departure for Markham, Miss Bessie Howe and Toast Master Percy Hamilton and Mrs. Hamilton.

At the conclusion of the banquet the toastmaster requested Mr. Jack Wiles to propose a toast to the King, which was responded to by the singing of the National Anthem.

The toast to the Winning Team was proposed by Mr. M. Armstrong and responded to by Mr. Leslie Hall and the toast to The Ladies, by Mr. R. J. Burn, was responded to by Mrs. M. Armstrong. Short speeches by several of the hockey players were also enjoyed.

Mr. Ray Tiffany, goaler for the Rovers, was then given a seat of honour, while Mr. Russell Devell read a well worded address and Mr. Jack Wiles made the presentation of a club bag on behalf of the hockey club, who desired to express their appreciation of Ray's many fine qualities and particularly of his outstanding ability in the realm of sport.

Ray replied in a few well chosen words and concluded with wishing the hockey club every success.

"For He's a Jolly Good Fellow" was sung and three cheers and a Tiger were given for good luck.

Community singing was then entered into with zest, with Miss Bessie Howe at the piano and later when the banquet tables were removed dancing was enjoyed until after midnight.

Music was supplied by P. Hamilton's orchestra and the most successful evening concluded with the National Anthem.

ALBERTA PLANNING RESTORE PAY CUTS

Members Expected Also To Get Back Ten P.C. Slash In Sessional Indemnities

EDMONTON, April 6 (CP)—The Aberhart government lined up its Social Credit legislation to-day preparatory to presenting it to the Alberta legislature.

Debt legislation is the next important measure on the program. Introduction in the legislature may come today or tomorrow, it was indicated after a caucus of Social Credit members last night.

Members will give it further consideration at a caucus today, while measures to implement Social Credit legislation will be considered at another caucus at night.

A 50 per cent reduction in principal with the terms of repayment extended from 10 to 30 years are reported to be salient features of the debt reduction bill.

The caucus agreed last night, it was learned, to restoration of salary reductions taken by civil servants earning $1,500 and under a year in 1932 and decided, it was reported, to let stand a resolution on the legislative assembly order paper which would have rescinded a 10 per cent cut in members' sessional indemnities made five years ago.

Government legislation was given speedy consideration in the legislature Monday, though no major Social Credit measures were dealt with. Twelve bills were adopted and many more advanced to final stages.

Amendments to the Alberta sterilization act were adopted, giving a medical board authority to order a sterilization operation for a mental defective without consent of parents or guardians. The board will compromise four doctors and one expert layman.

Any mentally defective person would be examined on recommendation of the medical superintendent or other person in charge of a mental hospital.

RESUMES OPERATIONS

Agreement Calls For Return Of All Goodrich Employees This Week.

KITCHENER, Ont., April 6 (CP)—The B. F. Goodrich Company of Canada resumed manufacturing operations yesterday with part of its payroll back on the job after a week of inactivity occasioned by a strike. The agreement between the company of the United Rubber Workers of America calls for the return of all employees by Thursday of this week.

Wage increases of from five to 14 per cent are provided for in the agreement. No other details have been made public due to a gentleman's agreement on both sides.

Muskrat Trappers Will Be Held Up For Twelve Days—Lakes Icebound

Icebound lakes in the district are delaying the galivanting season of the muskrat, and trappers are impatiently waiting for warm rains and sunshine as they watch the limited season slowly moving along the calendar, the while bringing them no hides and profit.

"It may be another twelve days before the season gets under way in the Kawartha Lakes," Cyril Lech told the Examiner today. "A man from Stoney Lake told me this morning that there is still twenty-two inches of ice on Stoney, and teams are still driving along some of the winter roads over the ice."

Trappers are tenting along the banks, but so far they have simply been wasting time. The rats won't run until there is open water. The season has been slower than was expected getting started, and unless there are warm rains and sunny days I don't think the trappers will get much to do for ten or twelve days."

Rice Lake is still covered with ice, and there is no water in the marshes. From the present outlook trappers will have to request the Department to extend the season a week or ten days.

Putting In Time

The Duke of Windsor has moved, and this time he has a smaller house. Reports say it will cost about $1,500 less per month than where he was previously staying. He has a good-sized place as houses go; there are 18 rooms in the building, and the situation is described as ideal.

But it will be a strange house and if he has neighbors they will also be strangers, and like the other house which he has just left this new one is also away from home. Possibly there may be new things to do or new places to go, but at best it will be only the shadow of his former life. We read now and then that he plays golf; a while ago he was taken up with skiing, and at other times he has been making short trips to Vienna. That may be pleasant enough in its way but it is not sufficient for a man who had been accustomed to days filled with appointments and with problems which were full of substance and world interest.

The Duke of Windsor, when he was Prince of Wales and later King, had an empire to consider. He had travelled much in it and knew more about it than any other man. He was interested in his own people, and even if it did annoy parliamentarians, he was given to making personal visits to districts where people had been hard put and where the problem of adequate existence was before the people always. He was in the midst of things and he had a man's job.

Today he moves from one place to another; he has leased the last place for only a month. No doubt there are matters to which he has to attend personally, but apart from that the existence he is now leading seems too much like putting in time and there can be no recompence by the way of having a sense of having accomplished something. He will attract attention wherever he goes not for what he is today but for what he used to be, and the future holds nothing much different for him. Interest in the Duke of Windsor will diminish. One cannot envy him in his present position. It is not humanly possible for a man to step from a position of high estate and find himself happy as one who is virtually an exile from home. Whether his marriage to Mrs. Simpson will compensate for that which he has left behind is doubtful. She would have to be an extraordinary woman to warrant the price which the Duke of Windsor will have paid for her hand.

A Small World War

The insurrection in Spain is kept alive because the nations of Europe have refused to allow it to come to a close. Within recent days the government forces have been meeting with success, and more recently we read the rebels have secured more recruits and are recovering lost ground. If the rebels and government forces had been left to their own resources they would have been through by reason of exhaustion months ago.

It is openly stated in despatches that Germans and Italians have been doing a good deal of the fighting in the ranks of the rebels. Mussolini has sent word that several of the Italian officers shall be shot because they permitted defeat, but the insurgent leader refuses to carry out the order.

The recent successes of the government forces are credited to the work of Russian bombing planes which are described as being more accurate and much faster than anything yet brought into action. In one section near Cordoba fifteen of these machines are described as having taken part in one raid.

There has been no declaration of war, but Russia is actually in Spain today fighting against Germany and Italy. It is not a simple matter to stop an affair of that kind. Italy found her troops were not making a good showing; they were more splendid in retreat and confusion than in deliberate advances, and the result is that Mussolini takes a hand. He is not going to have the name of his troops dragged about in the mud. He will see to it that more troops are sent in there because their reputation is at stake. Germany will doubtless take a similar attitude although that country is not so openly vigorous.

The New York Times says Russian bombing planes are now in action against the rebels, and that means against German and Italian troops, and the Times says these planes have been reaching the government forces in large numbers. And Russia will be in the same position as any other nation which has decided to take a hand in a foreign war. That country will want success and it will keep on sending in men and supplies until success is achieved.

So it is that in Spain today we actually see not merely Franco and his rebels fighting the loyalist or government troops, but in addition Italy and Germany allied with the rebels and Russia actively engaged in assisting the government forces. It looks like a miniature world war without any formal declaration of hostilities.

A Link With the Past

A link with the past has suddenly snapped in the passing of William J. Green.

Few of Peterborough's citizens possessed such a store of accurate reminiscences of the people and events of the earlier days of this community's history as did Mr. Green who for many decades played an important part in the business and civic life of Peterborough. Although almost at the ninetieth milestone, this fine old gentleman maintained a keen and intelligent interest in what was going on around him and especially was his enthusiasm for sport kept ever fresh in spite of the relentless march of the years. An athlete in his faraway young days, an officer of sporting organizations in middle life, his later years found him still a fan who loved to sit in the grandstand at Riverside Park and watch the ball teams perform and who until very recently saw most of the hockey games at Brock St. rink. He was young in spirit until the inevitable end.

In his fraternal associations, in his many years relations with the public as collector of taxes, in the host of friendships he had made in the community, Mr. Green was a prominent figure on Peterborough's stage and his exit will be regretted not only by the older citizens who had known him so long but by the young athletes who always found in him a warm champion and a faithful friend.

With him goes a wealth of information as to the Peterborough of yesterday; information that is not to be found in the printed page but was carried firmly in the unerring memory of one of the community's oldest and most highly regarded citizens.

Taking Off the Horse Collar

We notice where a farm woman has been writing something about a horse collar. She admits she is a trifle short on height, being just over the five feet mark, and so when she had to try and get the collar off a horse she stood in the oat box to give her a commanding position. The only thing wrong with that was that the horse preferred to stand off a considerable distance. When she did come to grips with the thing it took her more than five minutes to undo the buckle at the top of the collar. The tongue of the buckle stuck firm and fast into the hole in the leather strap, and on that particular problem the lady from the farm comes to that general conclusion that 'something should be done about it." Probably the introduction of the modern zipper fastening might be more in line with what she desires.

We believe all horse collars are made now with a strap and buckle, but it was not always that way. There were several on Lot 4 Concession Ten where the collar was all one piece, as much so as a stove pipe. It was a delight to watch the hired man take those collars off. He could get them just so and then turn the thing around to pass over the horse's head and ears and do it so there never was a struggle. The first time the younger generation tried to take the collar off it must have seemed to the horse that his head was going to come off along with the collar. If one finally stood in the oat box then the horse wanted to stand over where the hay was or look up toward the roof. The ears of a horse are unlike the horns of a cow; they are soft things, but they always seemed to grow to unusual size when trying first to take that collar off on which there was no buckle. We can quite well understand how the farm lady of five feet and one small inch felt when undertaking such a major operation. If she is bent on chores we believe it would be better for her to milk a cow and let the hired man take the collar off the horse.

The Doukhobors Again

Four schools, two community halls were burned, two other halls were partially burned, a fifth school was damaged by a poor bomb, and that all took place within fifteen miles of Nelson, B.C. Although there has been no official report made yet, the general feeling is that the Doukhobors have again been busy. They have been rather quiet, nothing serious having been charged to them since June of last year when three schools, a sawmill and a community hall were burned or bombed.

The magistrate at Nelson has been on the bench for 30 years and in that time 80 per cent. of the cases with which he has had to deal have had to do with Doukhobors. Since the Doukhobors came to Canada in 1898 it is stated nearly 3,000 years of imprisonment has been given in sentences against members of the sect.

The one thing which can be said for them is that they are good farmers. If they were away off by themselves so they would have no dealings with other people, and were subject to none of our laws and customs they might get along well indeed. When they have reason to protest on some issue their favorite means is a parade in the nude, a spectacle which is disgusting.

The Doukhobors started in Russia about the middle of the eighteenth century and they were opposed to the use of ikons or of sacred pictures in their homes. They interpret the Scriptures to their own satisfaction, and regard the teaching of the New Testament as something like mythology. All they want is to be left alone and do as they please in this country. If war were to break out tomorrow no Doukhobor would enlist.

Our officials made a rather poor guess when they admitted them to the country, but the problem now is what to do with them. It would cause no grief if they decided to leave, but that is the one thing which never seems to occur to them. Filling the jails with them makes no change in their outlook.

NOTE AND COMMENT

Radio inspectors have started their rounds in Toronto and we imagine they will be about as popular as a policeman in a Queen City drug store on a Sunday.

Two circuses have arrived in New York. Market note: The outlook is for greatly increased sales in peanuts in the near future.

Premier Aberhart has decided not to go to the Coronation so that the royal pageant is to be robbed of the only social credit premier in captivity.

Every home should have a toy theater according to a Toronto artist. The trouble seems to be that many households have so many bad actors.

Errol Flynn, movie star, was wounded in Madrid the other day. That is the trouble with warfare; a bullet has no time to go round examining the passports before it strikes.

Employees of Toronto bakeries contend that if the price of bread advances the wages should also go up. The consumer may soon find himself called upon to finance both advances.

In Winnipeg four hundred citizens have refused to pay taxes until the council slashes expenditures. Many other citizens do not need to decide to refuse—they are simply unable to pay.

The former head of the Russian Ogpu is now in the hands of that body. He will probably have good reason to realize what a ruthless and efficient machine he has built up.

The fact that the Duke of Windsor is no longer King is demonstrated by the fact that a press despatch speaks of him wearing leather "pants" on a mountain climbing trip.

The Canadian Broadcasting Corporation arranged to broadcast from a moving Canadian National train the other day. It would have been a real thrill if a message from a transient riding the rods had been included.

Two teams of Canadian hockey players will now proceed to decide whether the Stanley Cup, donated by a former Canadian governor-general, will spend the summer in Detroit or New York.

Two different York township housewives left roasts in the oven so long on Sunday that the meat took fire and the fire department had to be called out. Their alibi probably was that the ministers' sermons were too long.

An Iowa movie theater manager put up a sign in electric lights to the effect that the feature picture he was showing was no good and yet business was as brisk as ever. That should prove something or other.

Over a thousands persons packed an outdoor arena in a Missouri town to see a youth hanged for murder. Before we get too critical it might be well to ask how many would attend a similar event here if the opportunity were available.

Labor troubles are threatening to upset all the gains made by industry since the depression was definitely defeated. And the saddest thing about the situation is that in the long run the public will have to pay.

In the official Canada Gazette of April 3 it is recorded that "the undermentioned are awarded the Colonial Auxiliary Forces Long Service Medal" That word "Colonial" is the case in point.

COUSIN EZRA

(By A. B. K.)

¶ My Cousin Ezra had a plan, so he'd not be a hard-up man, in future he'd retire; when he came to his older days, he'd loaf about in lazy ways, and sit beside the fire.

¶ He went right at it rather brave, each week he planned just what he'd save, he'd salt some in the bank; he'd heard about another man, who hid kale in an old tin can, and put it 'neath a plank.

¶ So Ezra started on his scheme, pursued it for a time quite keen, he led a happy life; his one defect in seeking wealth, he did not sacrifice himself, but took it from his wife.

¶ He told her of the scheme he had, she seemed to think the plan not bad, she is a thrifty soul; but Ezra cut her down so fine, it didn't seem like any time, till she was in the hole.

¶ But Ezra's wife is smart indeed, she started cutting down his feed, and seldom would she bake; she cut off goodly roasts of beef, and that filled Ezra full of grief, she cut off pie and cake.

¶ And Ezra groaned when fed on hash, she said she had to save his cash, this was their humble life; so Ezra finds he can't retire, and loaf in winters by the fire—and like it from his wife.

Our Statesmen At Their Labors

PARLIAMENTARY DEBATES

On section 18—Offices and equipment.

Mr GEORGE PERLEY (Argenteuil): I am sorry, but I do not like this clause at all. It looks as though some one were trying to build up a great organization as a special branch of the Department of Labour. I see no possible reason or argument why the commissioner should have offices anywhere else than in Ottawa. If he has in hand an investigation which requires some place in Winnipeg to carry it on, perhaps a room in some building, it surely would be proper for him to engage it and be reimbursed as part of his expenses. But to suggest that there shall be offices—innumerable, if the commissioner so wishes—all over Canada, is extraordinary, and I submit that there is no necessity for this clause. We have had too many examples in governmental administration of officers building up an organization for the purpose of increasing their own importance and spending money unnecessarily. All that a commissioner could ever need when away from Ottawa would be a room, which could be paid for as part of his ordinary expenses. But to set up regular offices—

Mr. BENNETT: Stationery and equipment.

SIR GEORGE PERLEY (Argenteuil): Yes, there is no necessity for it whatever. The offices should be in Ottawa. All the business could be carried on here excepting when, in the case of some particular investigation, the commissioner went to another city.

Mr. ROGERS: This particular section as it appears in the present bill is not new.

Mr. BENNETT: We took it out, deliberately, in 1935.

Mr. ROGERS: It appears first in the Board of Commerce Act, and was continued in the Combines Act of 1923 and in the revision of 1927. I understand that this section with a number of other sections of an administrative character was omitted from the act of 1935, because the Combines Act was placed under the direct administration of the tariff board. I am informed that actually it has seldom been invoked in the past, and when offices have been opened elsewhere they have been opened temporarily, for the matter of a few weeks. I can assure the house that there is no intention to set up anything in the nature of a permanent organization outside Ottawa. It is quite obvious that there would be no purpose served by doing that. The section is here rather to authorize the setting up of an office which might be needed during a prolonged investigation at a distant point.

Mr. BENNETT: You will observe that the word is "establish."

Mr. CAHAN: A temporary office would be a part of the commissioner's expense.

SIR GEORGE PERLEY (Argenteuil): Would the minister consider whether the rental of space in Winnipeg or elsewhere to carry on one of these investigations is not evidently a proper expense, just as much so as the commissioner's railway fare for getting there, or his meals while he is there?

Section stands.

THE SKATING CRAZE.

(Overseas Daily Mail)

COME with me and learn why 100,000 people go skating every week.

In little more than five years the fascination of skating has spread throughout the country. At the present time Britain has 20 indoor rinks, and so great is the enthusiasm for the sport that experts predict that this number will be doubled in the next five years.

No other sport calls for and develops such skill and grace. Blending the essentials of several different sports, skating, has the added attraction of being an individual pastime, and the problem of finding a partner, making up a four, or a team is eliminated. And it is a fine recreational tonic. Picture the scene at the Empire Pool, Wembley. Many well-known people skate regularly here, including one Cabinet Minister, Sir Samuel Hoare, First Lord of the Admiralty. Miss Cecilia Colledge, women's champion, practises twice a week she is given a whole sheet of ice to herself for an hour to perfect her most intricate steps.

At the beginning of the evening session early arrivals practise figures. Professionals perfect jumps and turns and pirouettes like a ballet dancer, whirling round and round and, gradually sending from the rink, appears to be disappearing into the ice, cork-screw fashion.

Real Men Are Wanted.

(From the Chatham News.)

THE recording of opinions, such as is done in every election, municipal, provincial and federal, brings to the front a diversity of views hopeless to reconcile.

Unanimity of opinion seems impossible in more than political issues, and this very condition is essential to the best interests of every community.

"The need of the age" is something talked about from every platform and pulpit, written about in every station of life and in every nation in the world.

All are agreed on one point, and that is that the need of the age is men who are honest, sincere and have at heart the welfare of their fellow citizens.

The need of "men" in public life is considered by many to imply something different than required for private life. There are many ready to believe that if the quality of the private lives dictated the quality of the men needed for public position, the ability and consistency of public men would never be called in question.

There are men who "soft pedal" whenever great issues are at stake, and there are others who are as putty in the hands of designing persons. There are men full of promises but little performance. Some like the glitter of spangles of office, who leave their responsibilities to others, and some who are interested in only one class, one nationality, one religion, as though any one possessed a monopoly of goodness or good deeds. Honesty is found among the poor and the lowly as well as among the rich and the noble. Men are needed who are responsive to duty and who cannot be persuaded to shirk, whatever the consequences.

There are first things and there are secondary things. The first things should always come first in dealing with matters that affect the life of the community, the home, society.

The world would have little or nothing to complain of if all of us were like what we would like the world to think we were. Every ideal would be realized, and every effort looking to the bettering of conditions in our own little circle would help to brighten life for others.

Putting first things first is the need of the day and the age.

Weeds and Tourists.

(From the Brockville Recorder and Times.)

ONE of the speakers at a tri-county conference of municipal officials held recently at Woodstock, Ont., suggested that weeds growing alongside country roads in the province constituted one of the chief bugbears of Ontario and would have to be removed if it is to continue to attract tourists from the United States. This gentleman expressed the belief that if Ontario did not clean up her roadsides and make them more attractive generally, much tourist traffic and revenue would be lost within the next few years.

It is doubtful if the average tourist pays as much attention to the immediate neighborhood of the surface over which he travels as this man seems to think. Most of them move from place to place at such speed in their anxiety to cover as much ground as possible in the shortest space of time that they cannot be expected to take very much notice of whether weeds do or do not grow alongside the road. Moreover, many of the country roads in the land from which they come are equally lined with weeds and possess just as many eyesores as those which are to be seen on this side of the border.

But if the statement in question seems to be rather far-fetched in its connection between tourists and weeds, there can be little doubt that it would pay rural municipalities and those residing in them to have their weed inspectors devote greater attention to the appearance of the road allowances. The seeds from the weeds which grow alongside the highways may be and are blown into farmers' fields and thus cause him loss from his crops. Weeds are thus associated with economic losses as well as affecting the scenery and putting them down will prove of tremendous assistance to farmers who desire to keep their own premises clean.

There is, however, one thing to be said for weeds. They often hide accumulation of rubbish dumped at the roadside by people who must have dirty instincts and who do not care how greatly these deposits may offend their neighbors or others on the roads.

LANDMARKS GO.

(Brantford Expositor)

TIME marches on and erstwhile landmarks topple in its wake. A few months ago the Crystal Palace, once England's architectural wonder, burned. Soon its contemporary, the Eiffel Tower, famed engineering feat of the Dijon genius, is to be pulled down—all 984 feet of it.

The strange structure—fashionable moderns now call it an ugly framework, but it really isn't so ugly as they pretend—was designed and erected by Gustave Eiffel for the Paris Exhibition of 1889. Built in the form of a curved pyramid and constructed of 7,30 tons of iron, it was for years a marvel of the modern world. Today it is no longer in the marvel class; it has become a relic. Once it was the tallest structure in the world. Now it is dwarfed by the Empire State Building which is two Hundred and sixty feet higher. What was once an amazing triumph has become but a location for a radio station and a meteorological observatory, a quaint, soon-to-be-demolished link with the past. Yet its builder died as lately as 1923. Time marches on.

SHORTER WORK LIFE.

(Oshawa Times)

ONE of life's greatest satisfactions is in doing things, in accomplishing things by your own hand and brain, and there is often more real happiness in our daily work than in the amusements we pay for in our leisure hours. But most of us do not like to feel that we have to work, and applaud the extension each year of the shorter working week. By this means there has been in a few decades a tremendous reduction in the working time of the average life, and the end is not in sight.

That old saying "man's work is from sun to sun, but woman's work is never done," possibly had a lot of truth in it, but in these modern days there is less of truth in the saying. Now-a-days our working lives are being shortened at both ends. This may be explained in part to the faster age in which we are living and to the greater production which is possible with modern appliances. Every ten years the general age for young people to start earning their living advances one year, the Department of Trade and Commerce reports. At the other end of life we find the proportions of persons at work over the age of 65 steadily diminishing. For each of these changes there has had to be increased expenditure out of the public purse, because the younger people have had to be kept longer in school, and those over 70 have had to have pensions.

POWER'S ELEPHANTS.

(Belleville Ontario Intelligencer)

POWER'S elephants are going into pictures. So comes the news from Europe where the Power's Performing Elephants have been touring for some years. The picture is to be called "Hippodrome" and will review as many of the feature acts of the famous old show place in New York City as can be gathered together, or reproduced. Power's elephants were the feature attraction of at the old Hippodrome for eighteen consecutive seasons. The story of Will Power and his performing elephants is an interesting one. Will was brother of Tom Power, of Belleville, who performed the prodigious task of taking the Kilties Band of Belleville around the world. Will was no less famous, but his talent ran to circuses, beginning as treasurer of a circus which folded up and left the treasurer with a bunch of elephants on his hands. He turned the elephants into money as the most famous troupe of trained elephants in the world, visiting many countries, with many notable engagements including the C.N.E., Toronto, and an extended engagement in Belleville when the stage of the old Power Opera House was strengthened for the act, and the performers held receptions every day in the dining room of the Queens Hotel, creating an acute peanut famine in the city. The Power elephants now belong to the widow of Will Power, and although as troupers they have seen many years their act is as good as ever—just as good as when it was rated "The Highest Priced Act in Vaudeville."

A HINT TO DRIVERS.

(Ottawa Journal)

THE new speed limits authorized by the Ontario Legislature now are in effect—fifty miles per hour in the country, thirty in towns, villages and cities.

What drivers must keep in mind at all times is that these are the maximum legal speeds permitted under perfect conditions. The motorist who drives to the common danger is not protected by the more generous provisions of the law. It is as illegal as it ever was, and more dangerous, to drive on the wrong side of the road, to go over the crest of a blind hill at high speed, to pass other vehicles unless the road is clear.

And in cities the thirty-mile maximum must not be permitted to shelter dangerous practices. There are times and places when ten miles per hour is reckless driving—and it is punishable as such under the new law as under the old. Careful drivers seldom will attain the maximum in urban areas, because they put safety first. They take no chances with pedestrians and thoughtless children.

AT ITS BEST.

(Brantford Expositor)

THE search for the missing little son of Mr. and Mrs. Sanford Wilton by 500 volunteer workers in Caradoc Township, near Mount Brydges, shows humanity at its best. The little lad, only three and one-half years old, had wandered away from his home and failed to return. After some time the alarm was given and a search party was organized which scoured the country over an area of several square miles. When night fell, and the boy had not been found, the news was broadcast over the radio, with the result that hundreds of others volunteered and minutely examined every part of the area round about for the lost child. The search was successful and he was found, warmly clad, sleeping in the barn of a neighbor about a mile away from his home.

This is one of the incidents that makes one realize the truth of the saying, "One touch of nature makes the whole world kin." The solicitude for the grief of the parents, and the desire to find the missing boy alive if possible, but determined to find his body if dead, is commendable in the extreme.

TWO CENTURIES AGO.

(Winnipeg Tribune)

Great wooded areas had produced huge trees, making the forest lands into silent cathedrals of beauty. Coal, oil, and mineral wealth of every kind lay under the surface. Hundreds of millions of acres of grass lands formed pasturage for buffalo and caribou and other grazing animals in tens of millions.

There was an abundance of bird life, far greater than the old world had ever known. The flights of the passenger pigeons darkened the sky for days at a time, and ducks, geese and other waterfowl teemed. The slap of the beaver's tail resounded in every corner of the continent, and along with other fur-bearing animals offered a supply of fur that seemed to have no limit.

Every stream and lake seemed filled with fish. The mind of man could conceive of no greater natural wealth than this continent in its virgin state provided.

MOVING NORTH.

(Brandon Sun)

ABOUT 6,000 farms in southern and central sections of the Prairie Provinces have been abandoned in the last five years. Some 250,000 people must have given up their homes and started anew. What disappointments and heartbreaks these figures bespeak. But there is a brighter side to the story, for they have not been broken in spirit. Most of them must have taken fresh courage and started again in the north, for on the northern frontier of Saskatchewan alone there have been about 8,000 new farms established since 1931. Altogether the more favored areas of the three provinces show an increase of nearly 20,000 farms in the five years. The many families at least have either started farming or started over again.

Trouble in Store

The teacher had been giving a lesson on the rainbow, its peculiarities, and uses. One boy was still paying the slightest attention, so the teacher pounced on him.

"Now, Tommy, what is the use of the rainbow?" she asked him.

The startled youngster looked nonplussed, and then replied: "Please ma'am, it makes things grow."

NOT OLD ENOUGH FOR GOLF

Japanese Prince Is Japan's Number One Sporting Gentleman.

OTTAWA, April 6.—(C.P.).— Japan's Prince Chichibu is his country's number one sporting gentleman but he doesn't play golf—not old enough. At 24 the Prince plays hockey and baseball, likes to ski, skate, climb mountains, play tennis, but not golf, his spokesman here, Major-General Masaharu Homma, told newspapermen. He considers himself too young for it.

Sunday Salute Ban Gets Denial

OTTAWA, April 6.—(CP)— Dominion authorities gave no order against a salute in Toronto last Sunday in a war veteran's memorial service, Defence Minister Mackenzie told the House of Commons today.

He was replying to a question by William Mulock (Lib., York North).

The minister said a branch of the Canadian Legion sought assistance from the department in organizing the service and this was given. Officers of the military district, however, decided the consent of local authorities was necessary for the salute which is contrary to the Lord's Day Act.

Whether this consent was given was not known to the department, Mr. Mackenzie said.

SHORTER SERVICE FOR CORONATION

Hour is Lopped Off By Omitting Sermon And Having Mass Homage By Peers

LONDON, April 6—(C.P. Cable)— Changes shortening the Coronation service by a full hour were announced today.

The Westminster Abbey ceremony will take two hours, as compared with three at the Coronation of King George V in 1911. No sermon will be delivered and the King will take the oath immediately after his "recognition" by the people and before the communion service begins instead of during the communion as in 1911.

The act of homage will be made by the peers together instead of individually. The Litany and Te Deum will be omitted from the service proper, but before the arrival of the King and Queen the Litany will be sung by the clergy and choir in procession.

Queen Mary drove to the Abbey today to inspect the arrangements. She was conducted by the Earl Marshal, the Duke of Norfolk, to the theatre where the actual crowning will take place. Her Majesty expressed satisfaction at the general arrangements.

OSHAWA STRIKE SNAG

Union Recognition Demands Likely To Upset Negotiations.

OSHAWA, Ont., April 6 (CP) — Union recognition demands today threatened to upset negotiations between General Motors of Canada officials and their employees.

Company heads remained firm in their stand yesterday against suspending complete recognition of the Automobile Workers' Union, after hours of conferring with union representatives and Louis Fine, representing the Ontario Department of Labor. The men were just as firm against completing negotiations until this main point was solved.

WINNIPEG GRAIN

WINNIPEG, April 6—(CP)—Despite export business placed at 1,000,000 bushels, grain futures on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange slumped to-day. Early gains of almost two cents were lost when heavy profit-taking hit the market and at the close values were 1¼ to 1⅝ cents lower, with May at $1.48⅝, July $1.43⅝ to $1.44, and October $1.27⅝ to ½.

Bullish overseas markets encouraged export of buying but price advances were quickly offset on receipt of news favorable weather conditions in the United States Winter wheat belt.

Late weakness followed the decline of the Chicago market where losses in almost all commodities were registered.

was disrupted on the Falconbridge road.

Following a 24-hour rain, Junction and Nolin Creeks overflowed. Flat districts along their banks were covered by water, citizens making temporary plank bridges in order to walk from their homes.

Two trucks and a passenger car were abandoned in four feet of water beside the Falconbridge road, though traffic generally moved slowly over the stretch. A wooden bridge was under water in the city. Ice jams forming under Larch street bridge over Junction Creek compelled the engineer's department to use dynamite to free the water.

Rain Welcomed by Farmers.

TORONTO, April 6—(CP)—Ontario grainlands were soaked today by the first heavy rain of spring. Agriculturalists viewed the downpour of yesterday and last night with rising spirits after a winter which produced far less snow than usual.

The Grand River at Kitchener was about six feet above normal but unless more rain falls within a few hours it was not expected to reach flood proportions. The temperature dropped from 50 to 34 degrees overnight at Kitchener.

Fair weather was forecast at Windsor after a rainfall which started yesterday and continued through the night. Greater precipitation was recorded than during the whole of March. A strong cold wind dried up the streets today.

A gang of five men worked during the night at Owen Sound to keep catch basins open as water flooded the roads. The storm, heaviest of the Spring season, caused sewers to back-up and householders reported cellars flooded. Subsequent wet snow did not cause damage to Hydro or telephone wires.

Light rain fell at Brantford and was welcomed by farmers as it will aid in bringing frost out of the ground.

INDIAN TRAPPING GROUNDS INVADED

Northern Chief Says Catch Lowest In Years Due to Jobless Whites Flocking In

ELSAS, Ont., April 6—(CP)—Unemployment has sent the white man into Northern Ontario in such numbers to compete with the Indian trapper the latter's income from fur has been reduced to its lowest figure in his recollection, Indian Chief Alex Picaddy said today in protesting the Department of Indian Affairs announcement relief assistance and clothing would be discontinued May 1.

Due to unemployment, the 64-year-old chief said, there were 10 men trapping today for every one in normal times. Chief Picaddy said he had received word Indians would receive their April allowance but relief assistance and clothing would be discontinued the following month. The chief said Indians are faced with privation should they be denied government aid.

TAKE SEATS IN HOUSE

Two New Members Are Introduced In House Of Commons.

OTTAWA, April 6 (CP) —Two new members took their seats in the House of Commons today as a result of recent by-elections.

Prime Minister Mackenzie King and Justice Minister Lapointe introduced P. E. Cote, new Liberal member for Bonaventure. Conservative Leader Bennett and Albert Brown (Cons. Hamilton East) introduced John Marsh new Conservative member for Hamilton West.

treaty only as guarantor. She undertook to give assistance in the event of flagrant violation, but was not guaranteed assistance if Britain were attacked. The dominions were expressly excluded from Locarno obligations unless they chose to adhere. None adhered.

New Guaranties.

At the London conference France and Belgium pressed for new guaranteen Britain, hoping for a new peace agreement with Germany, gave an understanding that "if conciliation should fail" she "will in return for reciprocal assurances from your government take, in consultation with your government, all practical measures available to His Majesty's government for the purpose of ensuring the security of your country against unprovoked aggression."

The pledges given France and Belgium were identical. In so far as Britain was concerned, they differed from Locarno in that the pledges were reciprocal. The British, Belgium and French general staffs subsequently met.

But the reciprocal nature of the guarantee roused sharp opposition in Belgium. Belgian opponents saw in it a camouflaged defensive alliance, threatening to drag Belgium into any neighborhood quarrel. They pictured Belgium as once more the cockpit of Europe.

The Belgian foreign minister shocked the diplomatic world with a speech in which he declared Belgium would fight only in defence of Belgian independence. It meant Belgium intended to rule herself out of the reciprocal guarantees. France is taking time by the forelock by extending the Maginot line northward to protect her from invasion over the Belgian route. It was Germany's violation of Belgian independence which led Britain into the Great War.

2 GREAT NAVIES PEACE GUARANTEE

New York Press Upholds Tweedsmuir In His British-U.S. Friendship Stand

NEW YORK, April 6—(CP)— Under the heading, "Hang together or hang alone," an editorial in the New York Daily News to-day endorsed that part of Lord Tweedsmuir's recent speech at the United State's Naval Academy, in which the Governor-General of Canada said:

"The American and British navies are united in the same purpose—the preservation of liberty and peace."

The News foresaw difficulties if an attempt were made to put a formal naval and military alliance between Britain and the United States through Parliament or Congress. "We would hardly like to see ourselves up in an agreement to help Britain fight Italy or Russia," it argued. "Britain wouldn't like to be tied up to us for some conceivable South American or Mexican war."

"But for the two of us to keep our informal friendship unfailingly warm is only common sense. As long as we maintain the world's two most powerful navies, any nation will think a long time before picking a fight with either Britain or ourselves."

The editorial added that American-British friendship is not only natural. "but is also, as Lord Tweedsmuir says, the best guarantee of both nations safety and the best insurance against another world war."

FAIL TO GET BULLET.

TORONTO, April 6—(CP)—Edna Leadingham, 15, Niagara Falls girl accidentally shot a week ago today by a boy shooting birds, was operated on to-day at the Toronto Hospital for Sick Children and the .22 bullet was located low down in the lung on the right side of the chest.

Another operation will be performed in a week or 10 days after the girl has had an opportunity to recover from the distress of to-day's operation. It is hoped the second operation will be successful in recovering the bullet.

American tourists spent about $4,000,000 in Ontario in the last year.

LAKEFIELD.

"TAKE MY ADVICE" IS ABLY STAGED BY Y.P.U. CAST

Amateur Play In Memorial Hall Is Voted Enjoyable Success

PARTS WELL HANDLED

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LAKEFIELD, April 6 — A good crowd attended the annual dramatic production of the Young People's Union of Lakefield United Church in the Memorial Hall, Lakefield, on Friday evening, April 2, when members of the Union presented a successful comedy-drama entitled: "Take My Advice." The play, which was directed by Rev. O. F. Kelly, and produced by special arrangement with Walter H. Baker Co., [illegible] variety of character representation. The characters were without exception, well chosen. Each member of the cast gave a good interpretation of the role assigned him and this, coupled with a breath-taking plot which moved swiftly to a dramatic climax in the third act, kept the close attention of the audience throughout the production.

Each of the three acts was laid in the newspaper office of Bob Mannion, editor of the "Eureka News." Robert Spence, who played the part of the newspaper editor, gave a good interpretation of a difficult role. The part of Jimmy Bampson, representative of Bickley and Co., promoters, who was dubbed the "human alarm clock" by Jud Fenton, when he attempted to wake up the town of Eureka, was portrayed by Earl Robinson, who brought out the humour in the character and gave a good picture of Bickley's effervescent publicity man.

Marian Payne appears in the role of Peggy Acton, heroine of the production, who, because of her love for Bob Mannion and her dislike for John Wargrim, villain of the play, backs Jimmy Sampson in a publicity campaign that succeeds in putting Eureka on the map. Miss Payne, who has had a good deal of experience in church dramatics and always excels in a role of this kind, was at ease in her part and played it with feeling.

Innumerable Wisecracks

The part of Vergy Mannion, Bob's sister, who appears to be sort of a handy-woman about the newspaper office, and whose innumerable wisecracks at Jimmy Sampson's expense provide a good deal of humour, is taken most capably by Eva Hendren.

The picture of Mrs. Nelson-Dodds, as president of the Uplift Society of Eureka, is presented by Phyllis Webster, who leaves nothing to be desired in her portrayal of this character, whose activities make her the butt of much of Jud Fenton's best wit.

The character of Maria Wargrim, autocratic daughter of John Wargrim, provide the villain of the play with a companion in his misery. This part is taken very cleverly by Mrs. Earl Robinson.

The pledges given France and Belgium were identical. In so far as Britain was concerned, they differed from Locarno in that the pledges were reciprocal. The British, Belgium and French general staffs subsequently met.

But the reciprocal nature of the guarantee roused sharp opposition in Belgium. Belgian opponents saw in it a camouflaged defensive alliance, threatening to drag Belgium into any neighborhood quarrel. They pictured Belgium as once more the cockpit of Europe.

The Belgian foreign minister shocked the diplomatic world with a speech in which he declared Belgium would fight only in defence of Belgian independence. It meant Belgium intended to rule herself out of the reciprocal guarantees. Between acts, a novelty orchestra composed of Mesdames J. R. Hull, Wm. Millage, Theo. Crawford, D. MacMillan and D. H. Webster, and Misses Hannah Webster and Elsie Kidd, under the direction of Mrs. H. E. During intermission, members of the Mission Circle of Lakefield United Church sold candy.

SCIENCE MAKES NEW DISCOVERIES

Light Development Reveals Fingerprints Never Before Visible

NEW YORK, April 6 — A.P.) — Discovery of two new tools for scientific crime detection, one a light that reveals fingerprints never before visible, and the other a method of marking ransom money so a suspected bill will shine like a glowworm, was made public to-day.

Both came from the Bell Telephone Laboratories. Both are by-products of scientific research on metals used in telephoning, made under direction of Dr. Francis P. Lucas, one of the world's foremost metallurgists.

The suggestion of a police official who visited the laboratories only two weeks ago, turned up the finger-print discovery.

Prints Made Permanent.

Dr. Lucas discovered the method, which mineralizes the prints and makes them permanent, in contrast to present silver nitrate and iodine fuming methods which are "fugitive," tending to fade. The prints mineralize in the fumes of Fleming's re-agent, a chemical made of three acids, chromic, osmic and glacial acetic, a preparation used by biologists as a fat fixative.

The mineralized prints show as dark lines. Having made them indestructible as metal, Dr. Lucas turned to another department of metallurgy, which used ultra-violet, or black light, to reveal metallic crystals not otherwise clear.

The surfaces carrying the indestructible prints were soaked with dyes invisible under light, but which flouresce, that is shine like glow worms, under the invisible rays.

This makes the mineralized prints stand out like iron bars in a night-lighted window.

A black or colored surface, which masks fingerprints on it, can be dyed any color desired, so that under the invisible rays the prints stand out on a lighted background.

Fruits Are Protective Foods In Early Spring

Fruit Salads Tide You Over Period When Vitality Saps

PROTECTS FROM COLDS

(By MARY MOORE)

PETER'S friends who knew him best remembered his love of fruits, and when he was sick an abundance of strawberries, Honey Dew melons, pineapples, huge grapefruit, red bananas, pears, etc., bulged the doors of our refrigerator.

Needless to say with his fever and lack of appetite very little of it was eaten by him, and the Moore family had many a choice fruit salad and fruit cups due to the kindness of Peter's friends.

These also make easy and favorite desserts and our Audrey has many little variations up her sleeve. Some days I was so occupied with my nursing job, that Audrey had to think up her own menus for lunches and dinners—and I was mighty glad of her initiative.

Our largest ice box bowl contains two quarts. Into this she shredded a whole pineapple—and to extend it added two large Californias oranges, 2 Spy apples, 2 large ripe bananas, and about 6 very finely sliced strawberries. She sweetened and moistened this somewhat with strained honey.

It served one evening for dinner dessert—next morning for breakfast it was slightly changed in flavor, by the addition of 1 small can of grapefruit juice,—and there was enough left to serve over some vanilla ice cream for the next evening's dinner.

Since my roast of beef (see elsewhere on page) stretched over so many nice meals at such low cost, I figured the cost of the fruit salads with fresh pineapple as a starter:

The pineapple was 20 cents, the bananas were 4 cents, the apples were 4 cents, the oranges 7 cents, the grapefruit juice 10 cents; 45 cents for fresh choice fruit for a total of 15 people at 3 meals.

With a Honey Dew Melon costing 35 cents yielding more actual bulk than the 20 cent pineapple we extended the delicious flavor of this fruit, by cutting it into thin slices, and adding canned pineapple, a small bottle of maraschino cherries, 2 fresh pears, diced, and 2 Texas oranges. This we sweetened with corn syrup and made tart with the juice of 1 lemon.

The fresh fruit habit especially during the month that is to come, before asparagus and strawberries become plentiful will protect you from colds and tide you over the period when vitality is apt to be sapped from long winter sunless days.

Cooks and Mothers: Be smart and heed this hint; it is a good one (all the nutritionists will be glad to agree).

Promissory Notes

By MARY MOORE

My scratch pad reminds me that I promised Brioche (coffee cakes), and Cocoanut Drop Cookies (these being those "that accompanied Chocolate Nut Diamonds") to two different readers.

Brioche (French Coffee Cakes)

One cup scalded milk, 4 yolks of eggs, 1 egg, 2-3 cup butter, ¼ cup sugar, 2 yeast cakes, ½ teaspoon extract lemon or 2 pounded cardamon seeds, 4 2-3 cups flour. Cool the milk; when lukewarm, add yeast cake and when they are dissolved add remaining ingredients, and beat thoroughly with hand for 10 minutes. Let rise 6 hours. Keep in ice box overnight. In morning turn out on floured board, roll in long rectangular piece ¼-inch thick and spread with softened butter, fold from sides towards centre to make 3 layers. Cut off pieces ¾-inch wide; cover and let rise. Take each piece separately in hands and twist from ends in opposite directions, coil and bring ends together at top of cake. Let rise in pans and bake 20 minutes in oven of 375 deg. Fahr. Cool and brush over with confectioners' sugar, moistened with boiling water to spread and flavored with vanilla.

One reader asked for a repetition of the little cakes that were printed at the same time Chocolate Nut Diamonds were a few weeks ago—I believe these are the little cookies she means.

Cocoanut Drop Cookies

One cup brown sugar, 2 cups cocoanut, 1 cup rolled oats, 1 cup flour, 1 teaspoon baking powder, ½ teaspoon salt. Mix the foregoing ingredients in warm bowl. In another bowl beat 1 egg, and add ½ cup milk and ½ cup vegetable oil or melted butter. Add the first mixture and mix well, and drop from spoon on well greased baking sheet. Bake in moderate oven of 375 deg. Fahr. This recipe may be varied by using raisins and nuts instead of cocoanut.

Just Between Us Women

A Daily Chat With Examiner Neighbors, Conducted by Roberta

MUCH ado there was, God wot he would love and she would not.
She said never man was true,
He said, none was false to you.
He said, he had lov'd her long,
She said, Love should have no wrong.
Corydon would kiss her then.
She said, maides must kiss no men,
Till they did for good and all.
—Nicholas Breton (Phillida Corydon).

Dear Friends:

I have been asked again to write about love. "For, says this person, I do not understand it at all!" And which of us do understand it? Look around and you will see more ill done in the name of love than any other thing unless religion, and that is supposed to be done for the love of God.

Who thinks they have the right to hurt us like those who profess love for us? Look at any young married couple and in the majority of cases the one is imposing their will on the other, "Because they love them." They must not do this, and they cannot do that, or it will "hurt" the other one.

Love is a fine thing, but it cannot be tied, and the freer it feels the more likely it is to stay at home. But try to fetter it and you drag its wings in the mud, for love has wings indeed, and is a frail thing until the years have strengthened it.

Love of country has caused many wars. Love of God has brought many tortures in its train, and yet love should be and is a lovely thing if is not confused with egotism and the desire for power. We all need it and suffer when we do not have it, and many times suffer because of it.

Let us see what the dictionary says of it. "Love: A strong feeling of affection; Fond and tender attachment; Passionate devotion to the opposite sex. . . Parental care; state of feeling kindly towards others, and of desiring the welfare of all." . . .

Nowhere does it say that it should be used as a means of getting your own way, nor of being cruel. Yet how many times is it used just like that. Anyone who loves another thinks more of that one's comfort than they do of their own, not more

Four Meals For The Family And All Different Dishes Procured

MARY MOORE TELLS HOW

THE calibre (if there ever was any) of this cookery department is liable to show signs of elevation. For those who read between the lines may have detected my distraction in the past weeks, for our small son has been quite ill is still in bed, but happily convalescent.

With his temperature sometimes above 104 and ourselves getting only an average of about three hours sleep per night for a week, the cookery page took second place,—was definitely second rate.

However, now that the world is taking on a rosy tint again I can give some thought to cooking which is exactly what I did this past weekend, when we had relatives for dinner three nights in a row.

Two weeks ago we had planned to have a large dinner party and I had bethought myself to have a 13-lb. sirloin roast of beef hung away to ripen in my butcher's refrigerator for the event. Of course, the party was cancelled when Peter took sick, but the beef was consumed just the same.

I think it was the largest roast of beef I have ever roasted. I watched and basted it with loving care and it was indeed done to a turn, in an uncovered pan, much salt and paprika rubbed into the surfaces first, and the original oven temperature 400.

After 3 hours it was still slightly pink away inside after a few slices were carved away. Done to everyone's taste.

The following day was Sunday and dinner was to be at noon, so we made a large dish and Potatoes au Gratin, and sliced the beef carefully, one huge thick slab to a plate, and passed horseradish and Chili Sauce. Although I am partial to hot meat, this beef was so fine it was equally good cold.

The following day we put one-half pound sauteed mushrooms into the gravy, and put slices of the beef in the steamer and steed this over the simmering gravy to heat through without drying the juice out of the sliced beef.

The following day it was destined to mincing, either for Shepherd's pie or Meat Loaf or Meat Cakes, but a friend of ours who is an Italian Spaghetti fiend dropped in, so the minced beef became meat sauce (with tomatoes and onions) to top boiled spaghetti, the whole being sprinkled with grated cheese, as I have often described in these pages.

A truly noble roast of beef, costing $2.60 and serving four meals to a total of twenty-two people. Almost economical, isn't it?

Enquiry Column

Conducted by Mrs. MARY MOORE

QUESTION: I am asking for an athletic diet. Would you please send it to me?—Miss H. McM.

ANSWER: Thank you for your letter.

You must have an abundance of fruits and vegetables—the majority of them fresh and raw if possible—at least half of them raw.

Bananas are excellent food for an athlete—but they must be fully ripe—by this we mean the yellow skin must be well flecked with brown spots all over. The banana should have a sweet taste instead of the starchy taste of one the outside tip of which may still be green. There is no green tip on a ripe banana.

Most fruits leave an alkaline ash—this is desirable for athletes—apples have four times as much alkali as any other common foods.

Potatoes are best baked. Bread is best made of whole grain cereals, such as whole wheat, whole rye, full oat, whole oat. You should consume at least 1 lb. of butter per week, and one quart of whole milk a day. At least 1 egg per day.

Make sure that you have two fresh fruits per day. (additional cooked fruits are good, too); 1 fresh raw vegetable at least, 1 cooked green vegetable at least. (tomatoes and tomato juice would take the place of this). If you make sure of these there will not be room for foods such as pies, cakes, pastry, candy and soda fountain products.

After very strenuous athletic exercise many coaches advise drinking a glassful of water in which 1 teaspoon of bicarbonate of soda has been dissolved. This is a quick alkalinizer. However, if plenty of apples are eaten it is not essential—unless the athletic training is intense.

We hope you find this information useful and shall be glad to help you at any time.

QUESTION: Thank you for all your trouble in finding a recipe. The kind of muffins I have had are made at the —— and also at the —— I think they are made with yeast, and taste more like crumpets, but they are shaped like a small bun and cut in half, and well buttered, and they are called English Muffins. I think they are toasted before buttering.—R.V.B.

ANSWER: As a last resort I went to the hotel and ordered the muffins, so I would know what you meant. Of course, I cannot give you an exact duplicate of their recipe, but the following is so near to them I am sure it will do.

English Muffins (raised with Yeast)

One cake Fleishmann's yeast, 1 cup scalded and cooled milk, ½ cup lukewarm water, 2 tablespoons sugar, 2 tablespoons melted butter, 2 eggs, 2 cups sifted bread flour, ½ teaspoon salt. Dissolve the yeast and sugar in lukewarm liquids. Add the butter, eggs beaten until light, and flour to make a moderately stiff batter, then add salt, and beat until very smooth. Cover and stand aside in warm place for 1 hour. When risen, form into muffins that will half fill buttered muffin tins. Cover and again let rise for ½ hour. Bake about 20 minutes in oven of 425 deg. Fahr. Serve hot, split and toasted—preferably with unsalted butter.

QUESTION: Would you oblige me by printing how to make Banana Whip? Also could you tell me what sago is and how to prepare it. I read your page every week. Thanking you, Mrs. H. S. P.

ANSWER:

Banana Whip

Three egg whites, 3 tablespoons powdered sugar, 3 ripe bananas, ½ cup cream whipped or 1 cup boiled custard (see method of making below), 1 tablespoon lemon juice. Beat the egg whites to a stiff froth and beat in the sugar by degrees until fine and stiff. Mash two of the bananas with a fork and gradually beat into the meringue, then add lemon juice. Place large tablespoon of whipped cream or boiled custard in bottom of stemmed glasses and heap the banana whip on top. Cut remaining banana in thirds crosswise and then into strips and insert around dessert with long ends protruding. These strips should be dipped in lemon juice or fruit syrup to prevent them turning brown.

Boiled Custard

Excellent with banana or other fruits whips, or lemon snow or other desserts where cream is often used.

One and one-third cups scalded milk, yolks 2 eggs, 2½ tablespoons sugar, ¼ teaspoon salt, ½ teaspoon vanilla. Beat eggs slightly, using fork, add sugar and salt. Stir continuously while adding hot milk. Cook in granite double boiler, stirring until mixture thickens and coating is formed on spoon. Remove from heat immediately and add flavoring and chill. If cooked too long and custard curdles whip with rotary beater.

Question.—Please consider me covered with sackcloth, ashes, confusion etc. The note of thanks which I intended sending you has awaited all this time for a recipe which I have shamelessly begged from a friend. I hope you like it as much as we do.

For the refrigerator rolls alone, you deserve lasting fame. We make them every week and had had an airtight tin made to fit one of the refrigerator shelves. When people ask how we can have hot rolls so often we just look superior and sort of purr.

By the way, is it possible to make Chelsea Buns from some of the same dough? If so, I would like to know how to go about it. Should the dough rise at all after being put in the refrigerator?

At Christmas time I started at the top of your page and went right to the bottom: The Rich Dark Fruit Cake, White Fruit Cake, Mrs. Peary's Mincemeat (and was it different and good!) Mine tasted as if it had a pint of N.B. rum in it after a week or two. I made your genuine Scotch Shortbread. Lebkuchen (still a few left, and still good!)

A few weeks after Christmas I saw some comment on an error in the dark cake. Would it be asking too much for you to look over my copy and see if it is the correct version? I had to bake my cake longer than this calls for, but that would be the difference in the size of pan used. My cake was extremely moist and when cut there was no suggestion of butter at all: that is, all fruit and nuts (which remain rather tough). The flavor was marvellous and I want to keep the recipe as a permanent Christmas cake, hence all the questions.

Do you recall a recipe for Japanese Chow Chow? Green tomatoes and limes. We made it and the family inform me that I did something queer to it, as it is very like marmalade. They are all keen to have it for breakfast but as pickles made with vinegar are verboten for me, I stick to my guns and serve it with chicken. I want to make it again next season, so thought I would ask about it now.

I hope I have been lucky enough to come across something which you will like in this pudding. Your column has been the greatest help and I do thank you very much for all your kindnesses.—Reader.

Angel Food Pudding

(Submitted by Reader)

Four egg whites stiffly beaten, 4 teaspoons orange marmalade, 4 teaspoon icing sugar, 1 teaspoon baking powder, pinch of salt.

Method.—Beat egg whites very stiff, add a pinch of salt, baking powder, icing sugar and marmalade. Put mixture in a well-greased double boiler and steam 1 hour and 20 minutes without removing the cover.

Four egg yolks, ¼ cup sugar (if use fruit sugar), 1 cup milk, pinch of salt.

Method: Beat egg yolks and sugar, add milk and place in second double boiler. When boiling in double boiler add the pinch of salt. Boil until it coats the spoon. Remove from fire and add a small glass of sherry. When cool add ¼ cup of cream whipped stiff.

NOTES.—This is a different pudding. Should be served at once when cooked as there is a tendency to fall if allowed to stand any length of time. Care, should be taken when adding the sherry to the sauce. Curdling may result if added too quickly. Any other preferred wine may be used.

P.S.—I have already asked far too much, but cannot resist expressing the hope that you will tell us how to make French Bread and Vienna Rolls one of these days. The crusty French bread is so good. When are we to see the eagerly awaited Mary Moore Cook Book?

Answer. — It is at times when I receive letters like yours that I lament purely correspondence friendships. However, that is better than never having known you at all.

I have a friend who depends on the dinner parties she partakes at our house to give her ideas for hers. I shall spring the Angel Food Pudding on her some evening soon. It impressed me very much. Thank you so much for it.

The clipping of Dark Rich Fruit Cake that you sent me is correct in all details. The way you described your cake is just as mine is—more of a confection than a cake, but the flavor unsurpassable.

Although I was glad you liked the refrigerator I must remind you I did not originate it.

Certainly you can use your Refrigerator Rolls dough for Chelsea Buns.

Chelsea Buns

(From Refrigerator Rolls Dough)

Roll dough thin and spread with butter and sprinkle sugar over it—using about ¼ cup to a surface 1 foot square. Sprinkle over with ground cinnamon and cover thickly with cleaned, washed and dried currants. Roll up like jelly roll, cut off into slices about ¾ or 1 inch thick, place touching on buttered pan, let rise to double their bulk, and bake at 375 degrees Fahr.

All I can do is repeat the recipe for Japanese Chow Chow, for I do not know where you could have made a mistake if any, since I have not seen or tasted your batch.

Japanese Chow Chow.

Twelve medium-sized green tomatoes, 1 dozen small limes, with bright yellow skins, 6 cups granulated sugar. Cut the limes in halves and remove the seeds from them, then put the limes and tomatoes through the coarse knife of the food chopper and add the sugar to the chopped fruit and let stand overnight. In the morning cook slowly, stirring very frequently for 2½ hours, then pour into sterile jelly glasses, cover with paraffin immediately adding a second coat when cold. This has a jelly like consistency and is invariably a surprise to all experienced cooks who eat it—especially good with white cold meats.

I have a note on my program file to print recipe for French Bread and Vienna Rolls in the Tested Favorite Recipe space next week.

As for the cook book, I am slowly but surely working on it, and while it is not anywhere near completion now—we promise you it will be.

Do write when you can.

Distinguished Visitor Here Wednesday.

Adjutant and Mrs. Neil Warrander and the members of the local Corps of the Salvation Army are making extensive preparations for a fitting celebration of the visit here tomorrow (Wednesday) of General Edward Higgins (retired from active command) and Mrs. Higgins.

General Higgins, former world commander of the Salvation Army who was succeeded some years ago by General Evangeline Booth, now lives in Florida, but he and Mrs. Higgins spend most of their time in travelling and visiting various branches of the Army across the continent. They are expected at 3.45 on Wednesday afternoon from Ottawa, and will leave here on Thursday for Boston, Massachusetts, and a tour of the Western States. They will be accompanied unofficially by the new General Secretary for the Army in Canada, Newfoundland and Bermuda, Lt.-Col. Peacock of Toronto, who is to make an official visit to the city on Sunday next, with his wife.

In order to allow the small children an opportunity to meet the General, an especial time has been set aside for them, from 7.30 to 8 o'clock tomorrow evening, when General Higgins will be at the Junior Temple on Aylmer street, to receive them.

In 1890, the founder of the Salvation Army, General William Booth, came to Peterborough and was warmly welcomed by the small group of adherents of that period. He met at that time R. C. Braund, who was in charge of the Sunday School, a position he has held for over forty years. General and Mrs. Higgins will be guests of Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Braund during their stay in the city, while Lt.-Col. Peacock will stay with Adjutant and Mrs. Warrander.

General William Booth was succeeded in office by his son, Bramwell Booth, with General Higgins next in line, followed by the present Commander, Evangeline Booth, a daughter of the original founder. So that the distinguished visitor of tomorrow was the third to hold the reins of office over an entire world for a religious organization whose membership has increased with astonishing rapidity since the days when the old founder commenced with small street-corner gatherings in London, England. They were often chased from the streets in those days and their early history is one of tribulation and difficulty. The old General, William Booth, of whom his daughter Evangeline wrote with such pride in recent years, had a fiery and indomitable spirit. In the years when his resolute leadership had won him a different place in the world's regard, it is related that a great reception was planned in his honor at a South African visit, but he frowned on worldly display and refused to have anything to do with it, preferring to visit the people he had come to see, the ragged people of the slums. Evangeline Booth tells of her father that he could never pass a homeless animal in the streets and seldom returned from a walk without a stray cat or dog in tow, so that their home became a constant refuge for as many as thirty or forty of such forlorn creatures. She speaks also of his fiery temper that would flare with sudden and devastating results at manifestations of cruelty or injustice he saw or heard of.

Fashion Service

The sash tied at the front gives it a very sophisticated look. However, the toddler, will probably like her dress untied. There's a plait right down the front to the flared hem.

Cottons as chambray, percale prints, dimities, broadcloth, printed lawns, crepes, etc., are inexpensive and practical for this pretty dress.

Illustrated Sewing Guide accompanies the pattern.

Style No. 3076 is designed for sizes 2, 4, 6 and 8 years. Size 6 requires 2¾ yards of 35-inch material with ¼ yard of 36-inch contrasting and ⅝ yards of binding for dress; panties require 1 yard of 36-inch material.

DAINTY BLOUSES MAKE FINE TOPS FOR SPRING SUITS

Sheer Models in Lace, Organdie, Embroidered or Edged With Color, Are Practical, Washable

By LISBETH

At first glance there may seem to be a discrepancy between a tailored suit and a sheer, lacy blouse. But if so there are many such discrepancies in the season's mode, and they are quite delightful.

You can, of course, choose a tailored blouse in any of the materials used—prints or plain, fairly solid in texture or sheer, but the tendency is for fluffy effects. And for the sheer blouse nothing is much better than such a fabric as organdie. It is cool and fresh all through the summer months as well as for now.

The two blouses shown here are made of imported Swiss organdie. This fabric washes delightfully, so is practical as well as attractive. At the left is a youthfully tailored blouse of transparent Swiss organdie with a tiny embroidered dot. It has a high round neck and four pretty bows down the front. Red embroidery edges the collar, bows and interesting yoke treatment.

Lace and Embroidery

A clear organdie with a lustrous permanent finish is delicately embroidered and appliqued with lace in the other washable dainty model. It has a frilly jabot and pin-tuck details at front, and at the band cuffs of the short puffed sleeves.

There are many new and exciting materials for blouses this year. For instance, the new imported matelasse organdies in plain and patterned designs. Self-patterned in dainty floral designs, stripes and checks, shadow-prints are becoming more popular, and the cut-out and embroidered types vie with drawnwork and dropstitched fabric. Colored embroidery and raised designs in chenille flocking are lovely against white backgrounds, and add an attractive bright touch to a simply tailored blouse, as you can see in the one shown here.

WEDDINGS

FLEGG—PRESTON.

The following account of a wedding which took place in Ottawa on Saturday is of local interest as the bride has often visited here at the home of her twin sister, Mrs. Herbert Bradburn, who was matron of honor:

"Feathery ferns, clusters of mixed Spring flowers and sprays of dainty forsythia were used to adorn All Saints' Church, Ottawa, for the charming wedding ceremony at three o'clock on Saturday afternoon of Clare Brooks, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William J. Preston, of Ottawa, to Roy Lloyd Flegg, of Montreal, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Flegg, of Montreal. Major the Rev. C. O. Hepburn, rector of All Saints', officiated, and Mr. Hugh Huggins presided at the organ. As the bridal party entered the church, the wedding music from Lohengrin was played. During the ceremony Mr. Huggins played softly, 'O Perfect Love' and 'Midsummer's Night's Dream,' and later, on the departure of the wedding party, the wedding music from Mendelssohn was rendered.

"The bride was given in marriage by her father, and was attended by her twin sister, Mrs. Herbert Bradburn, of Peterborough, as matron of honor. Mr. Stuart Kell, of Montreal, was best man.

"The bride was a radiant picture in her lovely wedding costume of French ivory satin, made on long Princesse lines with a cowl neckline and long close fitting sleeves, buttoned from the elbow to the wrist. Pearls adorned the neckline and marked the girdle. The train fell in graceful folds from the bolero jacket. Her long tulle veil hung from a Juliet cap of pearls, and caught with clusters of orange blossoms. She carried pink roses and lily-of-the-valley in shower.

"The matron-of-honor wore a pretty Paris model of Viennese lace in a faint hyacinth shade, designed on Empire lines over a costume slip of fern taffeta of the same shade. The sleeves were full at the pointed shoulders and fitted from the elbow to the wrist. The skirt touched the floor, and deep cascades formed a peplum at the hips. She wore a Mary Queen of Scots hat of the same shade, and matching sandals, and carried an arm bouquet of mixed Spring blooms.

"Mrs. Preston, mother of the bride, wore a handsome costume of Belgian blue lace in shades of dolce and grey over blue taffeta, made on long lines with draped shoulders, marked with crescent pins of light sapphire blue. Her hat was a picture model of straw in Belgian blue shade, and she wore blue sandals, and a corsage bouquet of orchids.

"Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, 141 Cooper Street, where the rooms were bright with mixed Spring flowers. Later Mr. and Mrs. Flegg left for a motor trip to Southern Pines. The bride travelled in a smart beige English doe cloth costume with a beige taffeta blouse and black accessories. Her hat was a black Breton sailor model. On their return, they will take up residence in Montreal.

"Out-of-town guests were Mr. Herbert Bradburn of Peterborough; Mrs. John T. Preston, Mr. and Mrs. Lovell Jaques, Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Jaques, Miss Isabel McBride, Mrs. C. Gowans, all of Montreal; Dr. and Mrs. J. A. Roberts, of Toronto; Mrs. James Kennedy, of Montreal; Mr. Gerry Wells, of Sault Ste. Marie; Mr. and Mrs. James Davis, of Toronto; Mr. and Mrs. Don Robertson, of Kingston."

PASCOE—LEAN

(Examiner Correspondence.)

ROSENEATH, April 6. — A wedding of much interest to many friends of the bride, a former resident of Alnwick Township, was solemnized on March 27 at Oshawa. The ceremony was performed at 7 p.m., at the home of Mr. and Mrs. T. E. Graham, 30 Gibbon Street, Oshawa, when Ella Mildred Lean, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Lean of Roseneath, was united in marriage to Harold N. Pascoe, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Pascoe of Oshawa. Rev. Russel O'Brien of Whitby officiated. Lohengrin's Wedding March was played by Miss Bernice Werry.

A lovely setting for the ceremony was an arch of pink and white, with touches of silver with large mauve baskets of spring flowers, making a perfect background.

The bride wore a gown of floor-length rose taffeta faille, styled on Coronation lines, tiny button trimming extending down the back. The color contrast was found in a sash of mauve and a corsage of pink and mauve sweet peas. She wore a halo of pearls in her hair, silver sandals, and carried a white Bible showered with lily of the valley.

The bridesmaid, Miss Madeline Riggs of Brooklin wore a floor-length gown of green taffeta faille, made on Coronation lines, with tiny button trimming extending down the back. The color contrast was found in a sash of mauve and a corsage of pink and mauve sweet peas. She wore a halo of pearls in her hair, silver sandals, and carried a white Bible showered with lily of the valley.

The bridesmaid, Miss Madeline Riggs of Brooklin wore a floor-length gown of green taffeta faille, made on Coronation lines, with tiny button trimming. She wore a bandeau of flowers in her hair, silver slippers, and carried a bouquet of Talisman roses.

Little Miss Elinore Pierson, niece of the groom, made a charming picture as a flower girl, dressed in a long frilly dress of pale yellow, and carried a basket of pink and mauve sweet peas. Master Billy Pascoe dressed in a blue suit, was ring bearer.

Lawrence Ashton of Bowmanville attended the groom.

The bride was given in marriage by her brother-in-law, J. H. Mountcey of Penella.

During the signing of the register Miss Ruby Granger of Oshawa sang "I Love You Truly."

A wedding dinner was served to over thirty guests. Two Girl Guides of Fourth Oshawa Guide Company, of which the bride is lieutenant, and two Boy Scouts of First Troop, of which the groom is Scoutmaster, served the dinner. The bride's table was done in pink and white, with silver baskets of mauve and pink sweet peas, and centered with the wedding cake.

Mr. and Mrs. Pascoe later in the evening left for points East, the bride wearing a shepherd check suit, small black straw turban, and patent and suede accessories.

The bride's gifts to the bridesmaid, pianist, and soloist were evening bags, and to the flower girl bracelets. The groom's gift to the best man was a Parker pen.

Guests were present from Detroit, Cannington, Harriston, Preston, Peterborough, and Peterlee. Mr. and Mrs. Pascoe will live in Oshawa.

BOOST GUN GALLERY LICENSE

KINGSTON, Ont., April 6 (C.P.). —City Council last night passed a by-law presented by Ald. H. C. Nickle to increase the license fee for shooting galleries from $10 to $50 a year. The Council has already placed a fee of $100 on slot machines and pin boards, and barred them entirely from some places, such as restaurants and cigar stores.

At the Theatres

AT THE REGENT.
GRACE MOORE IN "WHEN YOU'RE IN LOVE."

Here she is again, the golden-voiced, vibrant singer whose health and youth color her screen roles with such vitality and charm. She gives you songs of a classical and 'swing' type. If you never imagined for a moment that Grace Moore would sing a Cab Calloway stunt song, then you want to go and watch her do "Minnie the Moocher" in the most approved 'swing' fashion. And just to round out the program, she gives you a 'Martha' aria; Franz Schubert's immortal "Serenade" (a beautifully-backgrounded number); a waltz aria from Verdi's "Romeo and Juliet"; "Our Song" (another popular composition), and a bit from the old favorite "In the Gloaming."

The picture doesn't depend entirely on singing, however—not by a long way. It takes a romance of the popular type—the sort of thing that gives a cave-man an opportunity to gush a temperamental girl around—when it makes Louise Fuller (Grace Moore), an Australian soprano, marry the first available man so that she may enter the United States. The first man happens to be Jimmy Hudson (Cary Grant), a rough-tongued, rough-mannered customer with a lot of he-man good looks. (If Mr. Grant thinks he can do a good imitation of Clark Gable, he has another think coming. He isn't so hot in this picture).

So that's where all the fun starts—down in Mexico — with a hasty marriage and a divorce agreement in the offing. Just how everything turns out very differently for both the main actors is a matter of several thousand feet of pleasant filming that brings the songbird into action in a varied repertoire.

The cast brings in some fine actors. Here is Aline Macmahon with the sharp tongue and the kind heart, in a typical role that gets her plenty of appreciation. Here is Henry Stephenson as the old maestro, Walla the golden voice of this songbird of the screen, singing her way into the hearts of her listeners.

AT THE CAPITOL
GRETA GARBO IN "CAMILLE."

This picture ranked high with Liberty magazine, the reviewer who rave under the title of 'Beverley Hills' praising it to the utmost. But another magazine that conducts a very high type of critical analysis of moving pictures panned it terribly and said that Garbo went through the scenes as if she were walking in her sleep, remarking also that this is her usual manner of procedure.

Be that as it may, and taking a local opinion for what it is worth, this reviewer thinks that Greta Garbo is a great actress and that she reaches to the heights in her characterization of "La Dame aux Camellias." When you get a crowd of people touching every strata of society, walking quietly out of a theatre after a death-scene such as finishes this tale of the demi-mondaine whose love affair wrecked her life, then you get something in the way of acting. They were not talking, they were just thinking it over.

What all can it be that can recreate that immortal tale of love and sacrifice so that the people from a book written long ago can move and breathe and rouse the emotions of a sophisticated thing. If you admire Garbo, you will come away with the feeling that Bernhardt's characterization of Camille must have been somewhat like this.

It is a beautifully presented drama, finished to the last word. It has a marvellous cast: Robert Taylor as Armand Duval, the young and earnest lover; Lionel Barrymore walking in for one brief scene—and stealing it, as usual—as Duval, Senior; the hard-faced Jessie Ralph as the soft-hearted duenna of Marguerite Gautier (Greta Garbo); Laura Hope Crews as the gay and unscrupulous old harridan; Lenore Ulric as the full-blown Olympe; Elisabeth Allan as the sweet younger sister of Armand—they speak their parts and vanish, while that frail and exquisite creature who dominates the scene plays out her role of passion and self-sacrifice. It is not, possibly, a picture for the 'jeune fille,' as the French put it, but the implications of the tale are lost in the heroism of the woman who expiates sin through suffering. One wonders why an actress like this would want to forsake the screen that gives her such marvellous opportunities.

by the provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, and passed through committee stage the bill amending and consolidating the Combines Investigation Act.

Provincial Control.

Regarding abolition of appeals to the Privy Council, as suggested by Mr. Thorson, the justice minister reminded the House the provinces have control of administration of justice in their respective territory and have the right to appeal to the judicial committee.

"I think it would be a very difficult matter for Canada, although we may deal with our own jurisdiction and we did so far as the Criminal Code is concerned," said Mr. Lapointe. "But when the question is discussed around the table if I am there I will vote 'yea' with my friend the honorable member for Selkirk."

Judgments rendered on the social statutes by the judicial committee were such as might lead to disruption of the Empire, Mr. Cahan declared. "It was the same disregard for constitutional realities," he said, that led to the loss of the American colonies and disruption of the first British Empire.

The former secretary of state was referring to decisions which rejected as unconstitutional the statutes dealing with unemployment insurance, the Natural Products Marketing Act, and particularly the three measures, arising from International Labor Office conventions, regulating hours of work, wages and the weekly day of rest.

Mr. Cahan urged the government take steps toward the negotiation of these decisions or that it fail to heed them. The Privy Council had dealt with the actual text of the British North America Act "in a casual and conversational way that cannot fail to weaken if not nullify public confidence in reliability of its decisions," he declared.

In rejection of the Labor legislation which was based upon international conventions, Mr. Cahan said, the established foundations of Dominion autonomy were "insidiously undermined by the decision of the judicial committee that the Dominion parliament has not complete authority to carry into effect treaties which His Majesty may enter into with foreign states on the advice of His Majesty's Privy Council in Canada."

Every Citizen's Right

Mr. Bennett maintained it was the right of every individual to appeal to the King as represented by the Privy Council of England and parliament could not deprive the individual of that right in civil cases which were within control of the provinces.

Reference of the legislation to the courts before they had been challenged by presentation of concrete cases was criticised by Mr. Bennett. He believed the decisions were of no value and no better than the opinion passed by the present Minister of Justice, Mr. Lapointe, who had declared the statutes invalid when they were before the House.

Only one course was left, Mr. Bennett said, and that was to obtain amendments to the constitution. "We all know," he said, "you cannot have various provinces enacting this legislation. You will have one province doing it and another will try to outbid them. They will try to get industry to move from one province to another. It must be national in its character."

His suggestion for a method of obtaining such amendments was by national convention representing all the provinces and all shades of political opinion, said Mr. Bennett. Legislation could be prepared and presented to all the provincial legislatures and the Dominion Parliament.

While he would support a move to abolish appeals to the Privy Council, Mr. Lapointe said, it was not because of any lack of intrinsic merit in that institution. It was a fine court, he declared, and had performed useful and difficult tasks.

The judgments on social legislation had only conformed to what the Supreme Court of Canada had found in its decisions, and had borne out the opinions of many members of the House of Commons who had challenged the statutes and of the provinces that had held them an infringment on their rights, said the minister.

He found it difficult to understand why there were people in Canada who failed to realise the urgent necessity of amending the British North America Act, Mr. Lapointe said. He feared it would be impossible to obtain the necessary approval for the national convention urged by Mr. Bennett but felt the Dominion-provincial committee on constitutional matters should continue the work it started a year ago, particularly in the light of these recent decisions on jurisdiction.

Leopold was now engaged on the force in Ottawa and wore a sergeant's stripes. It was a reflection on the force to retain him in the service. A man of his type was necessarily unreliable. His own sworn statements proved he was not strictly honest or straightforward in his dealings.

The force should be purged of men of his type or innocent people would have to suffer, Mr. Coldwell said.

Mr. Lapointe promised to look into the matter. His information was Leopold had been employed because of his knowledge of languages. He could not have become a member of the force without swearing allegiance to the King.

"My friend (Mr. Coldwell) says he invited somebody to join the Communists," said Mr. Lapointe. "I agree this would be going too far and I will take the trouble to inquire."

"In the course of trying to organize the C.C.F. as a political party I have been followed by the agents of the government," Coldwell said. "They have sat in our meetings and asked me leading questions, trying to trap me into unguarded statements."

the mover and seconder being Mayor Macdonald, Aldermen Wilson, McIntyre and Cotton. Those voting against it were Aldermen Hamilton, Clover and Dutton.

Two Members Ill

Aldermen Blocker and Jutty were both absent by illness.

Alderman Hamilton said he thought the council was making a mistake.

"Well, we'll abide by it." Mayor Macdonald replied.

"There is no mention of daylight saving time in the regulations," Alderman Gordon observed.

This point was referred to John R. Corkery, City Solicitor, for his opinion.

"The bylaw has to go before the Liquor Control Board for final approval," Mr. Corkery said, "and it is a question whether they will approve it."

Mayor Macdonald moved, seconded by Alderman Gordon, that the bylaw take effect seven days after it is endorsed by the Liquor Control Board.

Motion For Delay

"Come on," said the Mayor as Alderman Hamilton stood with the bylaw in his hand, hesitating about the third reading.

"I don't like it," Alderman Hamilton said.

"I still think it is a mistake to put in the 10 o'clock closing for Saturday nights," Alderman Clover commented, and seconded Alderman Gordon's motion that the bylaw be not read a third time until all the members of the council were present.

"This is an important bylaw, and I think all the members should be here," Ald. Gordon said.

Alderman Gordon's motion was defeated, by the same division, and the by-law was read the third time and signed by Mayor Macdonald.

Havelock Ladies Hear Talk On Health, Child Welfare By Mrs. J. Bedford

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HAVELOCK, April 6.—The April meeting of the Havelock Women's Institute was held on Monday afternoon in the Town Hall with the president, Mrs. John Armstrong, in the chair.

The meeting commenced with the members answering to the roll-call with a "home beautification hint." Several letters of appreciation from members who have received sick cards and fruit from the Institute were read by the secretary. The annual election of officers which is to be held at the May meeting was discussed, and it was decided that after the election should take place at the April meeting.

The Institute will continue to supply milk for nine pupils at the Public School. They have been working in this splendid work for the past several months.

Mrs. Armstrong was officially appointed to represent the Women's Institute on the Old Boys' Re-union Committee.

Program convenor for the afternoon was Mrs. Jay Bedford. Following a community sing-song, a paper was presented by Mrs. Bedford on "Health and Child Welfare." A very instructive demonstration on the many uses of "Dytnt" was given by Mrs. J. Armstrong.

An interesting bit of news concerning Mrs. Alfred Watt, the white-haired Canadian who introduced Women's Institutes to the United Kingdom and is president of the Associated Countrywomen of the World, was read by Miss F. Wright. Mrs. Watt has just returned to England after a tour of 100,000 miles, during which she attended 500 mass meetings and 200 Government banquets. Topic for study was "Co-operative Program in Home Economics."

Refreshments by the group in charge were served at the close of the meeting.

- Reduces carbon deposits and oil consumption.
- Decreases starting wear. Clings to metal surfaces and provides adequate lubrication even when the engine is cold.
- Positively eliminates bearing wear and bearing corrosion.
- Forms a tough film around abrasive dust particles—decreasing the harmful effects of road dust.

Red Indian Aviation Oil is a Premium Oil—Yes. But remember, its astonishing protective qualities give value far in excess of the slight extra cost. Give your engine its Triple Protection —change NOW to Summer Grade Red Indian Aviation Oil.

Compare These Scientific Facts:

Using the finest mineral oil, test bearings seize under pressure of 4,000 lbs. per Square Inch

With CLARALLOY added, the same oil withstands test bearing pressure of 12,000 lbs. per Square Inch

*WHAT IS CLARALLOY?

CLARALLOY is a super-refined chemical whose discovery marks the most advanced development in E.P. (Extreme Pressure) Lubricants. The three outstanding characteristics of CLARALLOY are:

(1) It triples the film-strength of the finest mineral oil;

(2) Makes it cling more closely to metal surfaces;

(3) Creates an increased "oiliness" which gives adequate lubrication under all operating conditions.

Each one of these additional qualities, which CLARALLOY gives to Red Indian Aviation Oil, is of vital importance to motorists because each one provides additional protection from engine-wear. CLARALLOY plus Red Indian pure, wax-free oil = Red Indian Aviation Oil; the sensational, new lubricant which has Triple Film Strength.

Monaghan Given Sewer Rate Lower Than Citizens Charged

So Charges Alderman Max Sloan At Meeting Of City Council

REFUSE FIRE PROTECTION?

North Monaghan can go to the government and get a rate for connections to the city's sewer in the township lower than property owners in the city are charged Alderman Sloan declared at Monday night's meeting of the council, proposing in a motion which was adopted that the Fire, Water and Light committee consider the advisability of discontinuing the neighborly practice of sending fire fighting apparatus in municipalities that have not provided fire protection.

The fire department was costing the citizens of Peterborough 1½ mills on the tax rate. Neighboring municipalities with comparatively low taxes expect services at small cost "and even go to a department of the government to get it," Ald. Sloan said. "It is about time that we did something," he added.

Alderman Dutton said he preferred to put the onus on outside municipalities. Notify them that the city was considering the matter of entering into an agreement for such services, and give them a chance to say "no," if they wished. "If a man is drowning and you have a rope on the shore, you are not concerned about arguing points of propriety. You are naturally going to help him," Ald. Dutton said. "If you took the action that has been suggested I can foresee that some day you might be placed in a very embarrassing position."

Mayor Macdonald— We used to have an agreement, but that was discontinued because insurance on our equipment did not extend beyond the limits of the city.

Alderman Cotton — Legally it is impossible for us to enter into an agreement. We have been serving North Monaghan at so much a call for fire protection. We have gone into some other municipalities, and I believe in some cases we didn't get anything for that service. It seems to me a question how far can we legally go in doing that. The best way seems to be to leave it to the Mayor whether fire department apparatus is to be sent when calls come from outside the city.

Alderman Gordon—I agree with Alderman Cotton. The Mayor can decide quickly and the council would support him.

"Why don't they buy a Johnson pumper, and they might help us out some time when we need it," Ald. McIntyre remarked. "I like to cooperate with the people outside the city, but the longer we serve them, the longer they'll let us.

Alderman Sloan said that there have been occasions when three fire alarms were sent in in five minutes for city fires, and there was always a risk that a fire might break out when part of the Department went into a township. If some people lived outside the city to get a lower tax rate it was hardly fair that they should expect Peterborough to provide essential services for them.

Alderman Dutton said the proposal could be discussed by the committee at any rate before a decision was made.

THE STARS SAY . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Wednesday, April 7

Lively and interesting conditions are forecast from the reigning lunar and mutual aspects. This may be in connection with letters, writings, contracts or documents. Beware of intrigue. With good judgment there is prospect of sound investments, favorable finances and returns from industry and fidelity.

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate an interesting and lively year, with success and good fortune dependent on their own discretion and vigilance as to petty intrigues, deceits and treacheries. The mind may be in a rather tricky frame, leading to unfavorable complications.

A child born on this day may be industrious and hard working in business, writing, publishing or kindred occupations. But its judgment may be a bit treacherous and involve it in intrigue, collusion or other menaces to an upright career. It will, however, be socially popular.

VETERAN TEACHER DIES IN HER SLEEP

Miss Emily Louisa Thomas Was for 41 Years On Peterboro Public School Staff

Believed to have succumbed to a heart condition, Emily Louisa Thomas who retired in 1935 after 41 years' service on the Peterborough Public School staff, was found dead in bed at her home, 304 Margaret avenue, Monday. Although she had been in failing health, her passing was unexpected.

Sixty-six years of age, Miss Thomas had spent a total of 44 years in teaching. She was born in Hampton, Ontario, daughter of the late William Charles Thomas and Jeannah Score Courtice. At an early age she was taken by her parents to Port Perry and there gained her early education. She attended the Port Perry high school and later the Peterborough Collegiate.

Her teaching career began with three years' service with the Markham public school. In 1894 she joined the staff of the old West Ward school in Peterborough. Upon the opening of the Queen Mary school 25 years ago, she took the post which she held with distinction until June 1935. Throughout her career, she taught primary grades.

On the occasion of her retirement, the Board of Education honored her with a presentation. At that time, School Inspector A. Mowat pointed out that her record of service to one board would likely stand as the longest in Ontario. Hundreds of Peterborough citizens remember her as a kindly, patient, efficient instructor, having passed through her class at the West Ward and Queen Mary schools.

Miss Thomas was active in the Lady Teachers' Guild of this city and served a term as president. She took a consistent interest in the affairs of the Home and School Association during her teaching years.

For forty years she taught in the Sunday school of Trinity United Church of which she was an active member. She presided over various Bible classes, latterly the Women's Bible Class.

Surviving are two sisters, Mrs. Herbert Forster of North Monaghan township and Mrs. Albert Roach of Toronto.

The funeral is to be held Wednesday, a private service at the home at 3 p.m. to be followed by a public service at Trinity United Church at 3.30 p.m., Rev. George S. Easton officiating. Interment will be made at Little Lake Cemetery.

"Unreality" was the subject of the Lesson-Sermon for First Church of Christ, Scientist, Charlotte street on Sunday. The Golden Text was: "Surely God will not hear vanity neither will the Almighty regard it." (Job 35: 13.) Selections from the Bible included the following from Genesis 3 4-5: "And the serpent said unto the woman, Ye shall not surely die: For God doth know that in the day ye eat thereof, then your eyes shall be opened, and ye shall be as gods, knowing good and evil." Corrolative citations from the Christian Science textbook included the following from page 520: "Error comes a talking, lying serpent to tempt the children of divine Love? The serpent enters into the metaphor only as evil. We have nothing of the animal kingdom which represents the Principle of good—a talking serpent—and should rejoice that not, by whatever figure presented, contradicts itself and has neither origin nor support in Truth and good. Seeing this, we should have faith to fight all claims of evil, because we know

Others in the party narrowly escaped death.

Australia's Coronation Contingent In London

Back in England for the first time since the war, the slouch-hatted troops of Australia's military forces renew their acquaintanceship with some of the old spots they frequented in war years. This group is part of the Australian military contingent sent to participate in the coronation celebrations and they are happily engaged hunting up familiar landmarks. Britain gave the "diggers" a right royal welcome.

Crowing Of Roosters At Midnight Creating A Nuisance Council Told

Mrs. R. Paquette, 199 Crescent street, posed a problem for Alderman McIntyre's property committee in a complaint to the council Monday night that roosters on Harry A. Lush's "poultry farm" at the rear of her houses, 607 and 611 George street, are a nuisance to her tenants.

The Lush roosters, Mrs. Paquette wrote, are numerous and start crowing around midnight, thereby causing a "great annoyance."

Daylight saving time from May 23 to September 6 was adopted by bylaw without comment. Another bylaw increased the salary of Edward Rumpage, city auditor, from $1200 to $1500, effective April 1. The increase is paid to the council by the Utilities Commission for extra work they have lined up for the city's new auditor. A third bylaw ratified the contracts for the building of a comfort station at King Edward Park as recommended by the Board of Works.

The bylaw creating a restricted area in the Benson Avenue district was referred back to the Board of Works for further consideration before it receives the third reading.

This area is bounded by Wolsley Street, Park Hill Road, Benson Avenue and Aylmer Street. Value of dwellings to be erected in the defined section is to be not less than $4,000, exclusive of the cost of the land.

"This bylaw was to have been referred to the Property Committee before it came to the council," Mayor Macdonald said. "We gave our word to Joseph Labrash that he would be heard before it was finally passed. He hasn't been heard yet, and I think we should give him the opportunity."

Alderman McIntyre, presenting the bylaw which City Solicitor Corkery said had been prepared by Alex. L. Elliott, representing the interested property owners, gave his opinion that Mr. Labrash would support whatever action the Council took. Delay was causing a hold up of building permits.

"I still think that Mr. Labrash should have a chance to come here and say yes or no," Alderman Glover suggested. "I would prefer that he got notice of this bylaw. If he doesn't then come to a meeting we can assume that he is satisfied."

Alderman Gordon said the Council could report progress and defer the third reading until the bylaw was passed again, been considered by the Board of Works, to which Mr. Labrash could be invited. This suggestion was adopted by the council for the reason that all the members are on the Board of Works.

Silos For Signs

Alderman Glover, chairman of the Manufacturers Committee, reported that silos for two fifty foot signs advertising Peterborough, were rented Monday afternoon from Albert Moore, east of Port Hope, and A. F. Whitsett, near Welcome, west of the town. The signs are to be erected by Harris and Boddy, and are facing No. 2 highway.

Alderman Glover's recommendation that a half page of space in Asserman's Sporting Guide, advertising Peterborough, be taken at a cost of $40, was also adopted.

Takes Cold Water Dip And Wins $1.00 Pool

JERRY Juby of Boswell avenue, son of Alderman James Juby, earned $1 the other day and, as far as most citizens are concerned, he is welcome to it.

Back in the winter, Jerry and four other fellow-students at the Collegiate threw 25 cents each into a pool for the first of the five to take an outdoor swim in the 1937 season. Jerry won the pot by plunging into the icy waters of the Otonabee just above Nassau.

He didn't stay in any longer than was necessary to qualify for the pool winnings.

PLAY PRESENTED BY DOURO CLUB

Members Of Douro's Dramatic Club Entertain Audience In The Lyceum

A bumper house that filled the big auditorium at St. Alphonsus Lyceum to capacity greeted the presentation of "Molly Bawn", an entertaining four-act Irish melodrama, at the Lyceum on Monday evening by the members of the Dramatic Club of Douro.

This play, which was reported fully on the occasion of its initial presentation in Harmony Hall, Douro, on March 17th, provided plenty of entertainment and received plenty of appreciation from a well-pleased audience last night. Arrangements were in charge of Rev. Edward Welsh, who looked after all details of staging, costuming and lighting in a manner that left nothing to be desired. He was assisted by Mrs. Ida McCarvey and Miss Mary Quinlan, the latter also playing accompaniments.

The cast includes the dainty "Molly Bawn", Miss Mary Walsh, and a supporting group that includes splendid actors in Wilfred Kennedy, John Hyland, Fergus O'Connor, Miss Mary Leahy, Miss Isabel Towns, Harry Fitzgerald, Miss Elizabeth Fitzgerald, and James and Gerald Walsh.

The motto in the scroll across the bottom is "Ut Incepit Fidelis Sic Permanet" (As' Loyal She Began So Shall She Ever Remain)."

Fire Chief George Gimblett warns that unless more care is exercised by householders in helping to keep down the increasing number of alarms occasioned by chimney fires, he will have to launch prosecutions against offenders under the provisions of the city by-law. In a four-hour period this (Tuesday) morning the brigade was called out four times in response to chimney fire alarms. The first of the calls received at 1.05 p.m. from Gishman's store on Charlotte street sent the whole brigade to the scene on account of the alarm coming from the business section. The Rambling REPORTERS

DOG HAS ELEVEN PUPS.

Arnold Cross, 323½ George Street, on Monday owned one police dog. Now he has an even dozen of them, counting the eleven pups which arrived this morning.

Reporters, unfamiliar with canine love, thought they had a story when they heard of the multiple birth and hurried to the scene with notebooks and cameras. They were disillusioned by the comment of Dr. Arthur Johnston, veterinary surgeon.

"Eleven pups are nothing unusual for a police dog," he said. "They breed like fleas. I've known police dogs to have as many as 18 and 20 pups."—C.P.R.

ROUTE IS OUTLINED FOR MOTORCADE

Robert Young Covers Territory And Arranges Hotel Accommodation

Just as he entered the city at the completion of a two weeks' motor trip that took him to Buffalo, Pittsburgh, Columbus, Akron, Youngstown, Cleveland and Erie, Robert W. Young, representative of the Kawartha Lakes and Haliburton Tourist Association, met with a mishap, when the left front wheel of his auto fell off on Charlotte Street. Fortunately the accident was without serious consequences.

On his trip to the United States, Mr. Young made arrangements in connection with the goodwill motorcade of at least 100 car loads of people that is to leave here on May 31 next for a tour of the above-mentioned cities and towns, sponsored by the Association.

At all the places he visited on the 700-mile circuit from Buffalo to Erie, Mr. Young said he was well received. Through the convention bureau of the Chamber of Commerce in each of the centres which he visited, the local representative had the assurance that visitors from this district will receive a hearty welcome. The motorcade will be accorded civic receptions all along the route, and no effort will be spared to make the trip a memorable one for all who wish to participate.

Mr Young has secured hotel accommodations and he announces that figuring the expense of the four-day tour per person on the basis of four persons to each car, fifteen dollars will cover the cost of gasoline, oil, hotel accommodation and meals.

Painters Object To City Council

"We feel that he cannot call himself a legitimate painting contractor," the Master Painters' Association wrote the council with reference to the contract of painting the market rest room, recently let to F. R. J. McPherson & Son. "We are trying to give unquestionable painting service and would like to know how competent painters can be paid a reasonable wage at the price accepted on this particular job."

Alderman M. McIntyre, chairman of the Property committee, stated the difference in tenders from four applicants was only around $10. He said that Mr. McPherson had been painting all last year. The terms of the contract were explicit and he would be expected to comply with them to the complete satisfaction of the committee.

FLAMES DESTROY OAKWOOD HOUSE

Residence Of Robert Copeland Is Burned By Mysterious Fire

LINDSAY, April 6.—The Consolidated Lead Mines Company, which has mining property a short distance from Burnt River, is showing considerable activity at the present time. A diamond drill has been installed and drilling operations have extended to a depth of 100 feet.

The funeral of Roy Graham, the young married man who was fatally injured at the Gull River Lumber Co. plant on Thursday last, took place Monday afternoon at his former home in Coboconk. Hundreds of friends from different parts of the county, and including a big contingent from Lindsay, attended the obsequies. The residence of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Copeland of Oakwood was totally destroyed with contents Sunday at 9 o'clock. The fire, which was of mysterious origin, was burning fiercely when Mr. and Mrs. Copeland returned from church. A strong east wind carried the sparks across two farms and ignited a building on the farm of J. E. Webster. It was easily extinguished, however. The loss is a heavy one, as little insurance was carried.

JIM LEHANE HEAD OF LACROSSE CLUB

Elected President Of Peterborough Club At Annual Reorganization Meeting

Jim Lehane was elected president of the Peterborough Lacrosse Club last night at the annual re-organization meeting held in Duffus' Board Room. He succeeds Pete King, who declined to stand. A good turnout of lacrosse enthusiasts elected officers and made various plans for the coming season. Peterborough will have an intermediate team in O.A.L.A. competition, it was decided, if a grouping can be secured.

The slate of officers elected, with Pete King acting as chairman, was: Honorary President, R. M. Glover; president, Jim Lehane; vice-president, Harry Tudhope; secretary, Charlie Carson; treasurer, Doug Miller; executive, Lou Brooks, Bud Fisher, Frank Buckland, Bob Townsley and Mick Magee.

Spot to Play.

There was much discussion over where home games could be played. The Brock St. rink and the Armouries were mentioned as possibilities, and also it was suggested that an outdoor box with a fence around it might be erected on city property if permission could be obtained and the necessary finances raised. This latter project might be tied up with a men's softball channel, it was stated. A committee of Pete King and Doug Miller was named to interview various men regarding a place to play and report back at the next meeting, which will be in Duffus' at eight next Monday night.

The matter of players came in for some discussion, local and district lacrosse being mentioned as well as several newcomers here. The secretary was advised to write concerning a grouping to Trenton Airport, Oshawa, Belleville, the O.A.L.A. and possibly Kingston. It was felt that the local club could field a strong intermediate team and make a success of the game here if properly grouped and with a good spot to play home games.

KINGSTON, Ont., April 6 (CP) — Johnny Edwards, star running half back of Queens senior football team and regular forward on the senior basketball team, has been awarded the Jenkins Trophy at the university, given for the student who combines athletic prowess with academic standing.

Formerly he attended the University of Michigan. Edwards graduates in arts this spring.

Canadian Cyclists Edge Out Irish Team

LOUISVILLE, Ky., April 6 (AP)—Big Bill (Torchy) Peden, west coast rider claimed today a tie with Piet Van Kempen, the flying Dutchman, holder of the world's record for six-day bicycle race victories—29.

Peden, a native of Victoria, B.C., paired with handsome Jules Audy of Montreal, wheeled to victory in the windup here last night of a six-day grind. The Canadian duo stole a lap in the last 15 minutes of competition to edge out the Irish team of Jackie Sheehan and Henry O'Brien.

MORENZ BENEFIT GAME

MONTREAL, April 6 (CP)—The National Hockey League's benefit game for Howie Morenz' family, tentatively set for April 17, will not be held until next fall, the committee in charge decided today.

Committee members felt a benefit game now would come as an anti-climax to the regular season and might not attract the crowds a pre-season game would draw. Further, most of the N.H.L. clubs have disbanded for the year.

The game likely will be staged here in October, between Howie's old team, Montreal Canadiens, and an all-star crew.

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

By CEC. PERDUE

LACK OF ice forced cancellation of the final playoff game in the Southern Intermediate Hockey League these past few weeks. There were six squads in the loop, Pirates, China Clippers, Maple Leafs, Maroons, C.P.C. and Grant's Cleaners. Pirates and China Clippers reached the finals. First playoff resulted in a draw. Pirates won the next and then the Clippers came through with a victory. But then, alas, they found they were fresh out of ice and had to call it off. So the teams agreed to hold the Scarfe Trophy six months each, the Pirates having possession nthe first half of the year. And thus endeth that puck chapter.

BASEBALL RUMORS float freely around the C.O.B.I. these days. It is said that Trenton Fliers are doubtful starters this semester, though we think they'll ultimately decide to come in. 'Tis whispered also that the Kingston Ponies have done no importing yet but may try a few late moves. If so, we might inform 'em they're being watched. Oshawa is set with two good imports but no coach as yet. Napanee has two passed at present and expects two more transfers to be granted. Belleville is definitely out and may not even field an intermediate team. We doubt if they will return to senior company for years.

COME GUYS named Jakaffy, Long, Brown and Johnston have applied to the O.B.A.A. for transfers to Peterborough. First two from Western Ontario and the other pair from Western Canada. Couple pitchers, a first sacker and an infielder. Cases won't be dealt with for two weeks or so. Also Pinky Clark, good Toronto infielder of a few seasons back, is here but may not apply. Being a traveller out of this district, he may not be available for many games. There might be a few others here good enough for junior or senior ball, too—chaps that came in looking for work. We dunno. All will eventually come out in the wash, or for spring practises. And we have half a dozen at least good local senior ballsters. We lost Scriver and Foley of last year.

ORME GAMSBY, 73-year-old humorist of Orono, was telling Saturday of how he played in the outfield a few years ago. He managed Orono in the Lakeshore Loop. One day he had but nine players and one was ejected for a fight. The umpire said: "Sorry, Orme, but you'll have to default, you haven't nine players left." Orme snorted: "Default nothing. I'm a playing manager!" So he took his place the last few innings in the outfield. "I prayed to Heaven nothing would come my way," he said, "and my prayers were answered." A great old card.

AT THE lacrosse meeting here last night it was decided to enter an intermediate squad in the O.A.L.A. provided a good grouping could be arranged. Efforts will be made to get Oshawa, Trenton Fliers and one more team in. Local officers are: Hon. President, R. M. Glover; prexy, Jim Lehane; vice-president, Harry Tudhope; secretary, Charlie Carson; treasurer, Doug Miller; executive, Lou Brooks, Bud Fisher, Frank Buckland, Bob Townsley, Mick Magee. A good bunch of workers. A committee was appointed to check up on possible playing grounds here, the Brock St. rink, the Armouries and an outdoor box all being under consideration. A good team from city and district can be lined up, and all looks fairly promising at present. Next meeting is Monday eve at eight in Duffus' when more will be known about home grounds.

FROM THE Lindsay Post: "Girls' softball will probably be played here again and there is a suggestion that a team might enter the smart Peterborough girls' league. The league is formed of a few Peterborough teams, Keene, sometimes one from Omemee, maybe one from Cobourg this year and perhaps Lindsay if they enter. The ball played in this loop is pretty good but the locals improved a lot last year and may be ready. It would create a lot of interest in the girls' sport here if they had out-of-town teams playing." Officials of the Girls' Softball League should be thinking of calling a meeting here soon and seeing what's what.

BARRIE COLTS knocked off Guelph, 7-6, last p.m. with Jones and Goring starring. Next game in the O.H.A. junior "B" round-robin serial is in Toronto tomorrow between Barrie and the Norvos. It's a cinch these two teams will meet in the playoffs now. The Falls play Guelph at Galt tomorrow but it doesn't make much difference which team wins. The Barrie gang haven't lost a game in this playoff series and, in fact, the only game they dropped all season was right here in Peterborough in the first of that rather tragic (to 180 playdown series. The Bees should win the Ontario title and that questionable goal in Barrie—the only difference between that team and our own Colts—looms bigger and bigger. Ooooch, how we hate that goal-judge!

WILLIAM J. Green died here yesterday in his 90th year. A keen sportsman all his life, he was the oldest active fan in this city. A close follower of cricket and lacrosse in his younger days, he was also secretary of the Peterborough Baseball Club away back in 1879! He was an officer of the local Hockey Club in the early years of this century and has been a hockey and baseball fan right up to his death. He would occasionally drop in to see us and tell of the old days in sport—but he was quite interested too in the hockey and baseball of today. A gentleman and a sportsman.

Clancy And Conacher Unite Purses To Cover Wager Of Conn Smythe

TORONTO, April 6.—If Red Wings take the Rangers into camp in the Stanley Cup finals, King Clancy and Chuck Conacher will divide 150 bucks of Conn Smythe's cash, but if the Rangers take the Wings, Messrs. Clancy and Conacher will have to go 50-50 in digging up $150 for their bone.

While watching the Leafs and Leafian rookies cavort at the Gardens yesterday, Smythe took time out to expound his views to Clancy about the cup finals. Rangers are rolling on high after having taken both the Leafs and Maroons in stride, the manager said. Then he went on to declare that Rangers would also bowl over the Red Wings.

Clancy promptly said Smythe was all wet, or sumpin.

"For how much?" inquired the manager.

"For a hundred smackers!" came back the King.

"It's a bet."

Dirty Work at Crossroads.

Clancy promptly called Conacher over to the boards, and explained just how silly he considered Smythe to be. Conacher agreed that the boss had been silly, very silly. In fact, Conacher decided to take half of Clancy's bet.

Five minutes later Smythe hunted up Clancy, and jealously accused him of peddling the bet around.

"I don't feel like peddling anything," ahrtilled Clancy. "And if you don't mind, I'll just take another $50." And that, fox, was arranged.

Latest report is that Conacher horned in again and took up 25 of the final 50. All three are going to see the games in Detroit, and all three expect to make expenses.

Leafs are cutting their post-season drilling shorter than had been planned, and today's session will ring down the curtain. Three amateurs from Western Canada took part in yesterday's workout, viz., Doug Bentley, Moose Jaw, right-winger; Elmer Lach, Weyburn, centreman; and Harvey Barnes, Weyburn, defenceman. Very notable among the regulars showing good form was Pep Kelly.

North Battleford Beavers Awaiting Eastern Champions

Critics Think Team Is Stronger Than The Kimberley Dynamiters

ALLAN CUP-HOLDERS

By DICK MATTHEWS
Central Press Canadian Sports Writer

LETHBRIDGE, Alta., April 6.—North Battleford Beavers, beaten out by over-confidence last season, are zooming along the Allan Cup trail to-day with a stronger club than ever. They will now meet the east for the Allan Cup, emblematic of senior hockey supremacy.

John Harrison (Jack) Abbott, pudgy manager of the club, stated not long ago that "last year we had nine good men. This year we have twelve." Which would indicate that Jack is confident his team is strong and well-balanced from the goal out.

Dazzling speed and superb passing and stick-handling feature the play of the Beavers. Their fancy passing has critics talking to themselves and they seem superior to Kimberley Dynamiters, last year's champions, in this respect. Fort William Wanderers, always strong contenders, appeared to be the main western threat to the Saskatchewan club, but Beavers defeated them to represent the west in the Allan Cup finals.

Thumb-nail Sketches

Ken Davis, goalie, weight, 185 pounds. Ken has performed in the North Battleford nets for the past two years. Formerly of Moose Jaw, Davis played juvenile and junior hockey there.

Walter McIntyre, weight 183 pounds, is one of the reasons the opposition's forwards approach the Beaver blue line cautiously. Walter has played all his hockey in North Battleford and starting with the separate school team he passed from junior into intermediate and finally into senior ranks with the Beavers. "Mac" is rated as one of the best blockers in Saskatchewan and when he steps into a man the rafters shake. It was feared for a time that he would be lost to Prince Albert Mintos this season, but the home town called and Walter returned to the fold.

Vic Myles, weight, 195 pounds, teams with McIntyre on defence and the pair make up an exceptionally strong barrier. This is Myles' third year with the Beavers and he previously performed in Moose Jaw juvenile and junior circuits.

Outstanding Front Line

Dave Duchak, 160-pound first-string pivot, has performed for the Beavers for the past two seasons. Considered the outstanding centre in the west, he sets up perfect plays for his wing-mates.

Clarence Shillington, 165-pounds, plays the right wing position on the line centred by Duchak. Clarence (don't ever call him that) started his hockey career in Delisle, Sask. He has played for Saskatoon Quakers, Kerrobert Tigers, North Battleford, and last season was with New York Rovers in the United States Eastern Amateur Hockey League. He is fast on his feet and a deadly shot. "Shilly" has what it takes in rough hockey.

Cam Burke, weight, 170 pounds, plays left wing on the Duchak line and has played that position for the Beavers during the past two seasons. He came to North Battleford from Moose Jaw, along with Myles, Duchak, Davis and Walker. He plays a large part in rounding out one of the highest scoring lines in the Northern Saskatchewan league scoring this year.

Second Trio Fast

Eddie O'Keefe, weight, 165 pounds, centres the second string line. Eddie started his hockey career with Saskatoon as a youngster on public school teams. Has since played with Saskatoon Tigers, Kerrobert Tigers and the Beavers. Last year, Eddie, along with Shillington, forsook the Beavers to play hockey for New York Rovers. He has been transferred from left wing to centre and is performing very creditably in his new position.

George Allan, is O'Keefe's 180-pound left winger. He is exceptionally fast and a "Deadeye Dick" in front of the net. He hails from Kerrobert, where he played most of his hockey before joining the Beavers.

"Squee" Allan, right wing, is the lightest member of the club, tending the beam at a mere 135 pounds. He is just out of junior hockey, having performed with Kerrobert Tigers last season. Little was known of Squee's ability until Coach Abbott quietly picked him up. Now he is making fans sit up with his speed and stick-handling ability.

Joe Schwab, 175-pound utility man, is known as "Silent Joe" in North Battleford. He played junior hockey with Wilkie Outlaws before moving to Kerrobert, where he starred for a number of years. This is Joe's third season with the Beavers.

Widely Known

Jack Abbott, manager, weight unknown, is familiar to the majority of Saskatchewan fans and has acquired a wide reputation. He has managed Beavers for two years and during that time he had led them to one western Canada playoff and two Northern League playoffs.

WINGS, RANGERS OPEN "BLUE CHIP" SERIES TONIGHT

Both Patrick And Adams See Nothing But Victory For Their Squads

MAY MEAN FIVE GAMES

By Alan Randal
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

NEW YORK, April 5 (C.P.).—New York Rangers, the "youth movement" team of the National Hockey League, and the champion Detroit Red Wings open their "blue chip" series in Madison Square Garden to-night for the Stanley Cup with confidence the keynote of both outfits.

If the rival managers, silver-haired Lester Patrick and portly Jack Adams, each have the right dope, the fiesta will likely go the full five-game route, before the resting-place of hockey's highest award and the world championship is decided. Both see nothing but victory.

Before leaving Detroit with his Stanley Cup holders, Adams came up with this: "We ought to take the Rangers, barring bad accidents. We did it during the regular season, and we can do it with the Stanley Cup at stake."

Said aPtrick: "We should be 6 to 5 favorites to take the first game, and even though the champions will have the ice advantage after the opener, I figure if the odds are on the Red Wings to win the series, they should not be more than 3 to 2 against us. I think we have at least an even chance to win the Cup."

To-night's battle will be Manhattan's last this season. When the game is over a circus moves into the Garden and the remaining matches—four if that many are necessary to settle the three-out-of-five series—will be played in Detroit Olympia with 15,000 seats already sold for Thursday's and Sunday's games.

16,000 Seats Sold.

Just as many fans as can find elbow room in the Garden fans will watch Rangers attempt to make their playoff record five straight wins. Early yesterday the Garden's 16,000 capacity was booked.

Patrick, pleased at the dividends his injection of youth in the Ranger lineup has paid this season, figured his outfit in great shape for the tussle. "Success hasn't gone to their heads," he declared.

The Ranger generalissimo admitted Red Wings had been a tough assignment all season, but said that did not necessarily mean a big-game team. Detroit, he said, has been "hot and cold" all season, and he looked for the Motor City crew to be "cold" to-night.

Adams, however, was not to be outdone in the optimism department. He said the Wings had come from the lacties that knocked Toronto Maple Leafs and Montreal Maroons from the Cup fray in straight games.

"We'll play semi-cautiously—waiting for the breaks rather than making them," he said.

Any particular strategy Adams had worked out, he kept to himself, but said: "We'll miss Larry Aurie in the Garden. His greatest hockey has been played there. But Canadiens couldn't beat us with Aurie out and the Rangers can't either."

Aurie, high-scoring Detroit forward, broke a leg during Red Wings' last Garden appearance. He came along with the team and his crutches to watch the Cup enagagement from the side lines.

N. YORK RANGERS WON CUP TWICE RED WINGS ONCE

New Yorkers Seen Knocking At Door In Finals Almost Annually

ADAMS' SYSTEM SHOWING

NEW YORK, April 5 (CP).—Detroit Red Wings and New York Rangers, finalists for hockey's highest honors, have pursued differing paths in their years of hunting for the Stanley Cup.

Rangers sprang into prominence from their first year in the National Hockey League and won the cup as far back as 1928, repeating in 1933. In only one year, 1936, were they out of the playoffs.

On the other hand, Detroit began slowly and cut no real figure in the post-season battles until 1934. Then, as Jack Adams' building process began to produce results, the team clicked. They reached the final that year, winning the N.H.L. title but losing to Chicago Black Hawks in the cup final. In 1935 Detroit did not make the playoffs, but in 1936 won the League title and the Stanley Cup. This year they have again clinched the League title.

The 10-Year Playoff Records Of Both Teams.

1927—Rangers finished first, beaten by Boston; Detroit finished last.

1928—Rangers finished second, defeating Pittsburgh and Boston, then won Stanley Cup over Montreal Maroons; Detroit was fourth.

1929—Rangers ended second, defeated Americans and Toronto to reach Cup final but lost to Boston; Detroit finished third and lost to Toronto.

1930—Rangers finished third, defeated Ottawa but lost to Canadiens; Detroit was fourth.

1931—Rangers finished third, defeated Maroons but lost to Chicago; Detroit was fourth.

1932—Rangers finished first, won N.H.L. title over Canadiens, but lost to Toronto in Cup final, three straight; Detroit was third, defeated by Maroons.

1933—Rangers third, defeated Canadiens. Detroit and Toronto to win the Cup; Detroit finished second, defeated Maroons but lost to Rangers.

1934—Rangers finished third, lost to Maroons; Detroit finished first, defated Toronto for League title; lost to Chicago for Cup.

1935—Rangers finished third, defeated Canadiens but lost to Maroons; Detroit finished fourth.

1936—Rangers finished fourth; Detroit finished first, defeated Maroons for League title and Toronto for the Cup.

BRADLEY COLTS GIVEN A CHANCE

Famous Kentucky Colonel Pinning Hopes On Billionaire And Brooklyn

By Orlo Robertson
(Associated Press Writer.)

NEW YORK, April 5 (AP)—Once again the "hardboots" are tuning up for their famous yell. The report is out that this is Bradley's year in the Kentucky Derby.

It's been four lean years since historic Churchill Downs last echoed with that famous victory yell, but it Brooklyn and Billionaire Col. E. R. Bradley, the master of Idle Hour Farm, has a pair that may give Kentucklans a chance to loosen their vocal cords May 8.

Brooklyn is considered the ace of the combination although Billionaire compiled the better record as a two-year-old. Lightly campaigned, Brooklyn started only four times in 1936. He won two of his races, including the Walden Handicap, and was placed second in the Pimlico Futurity when Privileged was disqualified, to earn $11,500. Billionaire faced the barrier in 14 races for a record of six victories, a second, two thirds and earnings of $12,600.

In the future books Brooklyn is one of the choices at odds of 8 and 10 to 1 while Billionaire is quoted at 20 to 1. The latter, famous for his early speed, may be used to set the pace for his stablemate.

Trainer Speaks Up

"I like him," says "Derby Dick" Thompson about Brooklyn.

That statement amounts to almost a wild burst of enthusiasm on the part of the veteran trainer, who has saddled four Derby winners for Bradley. He's never voluble when talking about his own horses.

Thompson considers Brooklyn his best Derby prospect since the colt's sire, Blue Larkspur, ran sixth in 1929. Clyde Van Dusen won that muddy battle, but Blue Larkspur went on to prove himself the outstanding three-year-old of the year.

Since then two Bradley colts—Burgoo King in 1932 and Broker's Tip in 1933—have given the "hardboots" a chance to give vent to their feelings. Previously the famous Kentucky Colonel won in 1921 with Behave Yourself and 1926 with Bubbling Over.

At The Baseball Training Camps

Tyler, Tex., April 5 (AP).—Mal Schumacher, New York Giant pitcher, really believes in taking a strenuous turn in the outfield. Prince Hal chased a fly ball right into the fence yesterday and bruised his leg badly. The injury may prevent him from taking his next turn in the box.

Sarasota, Fla.—Joe Stripp, third baseman of Brooklyn Dodgers, is the latest addition to the club's imposing hospital list. An injured right shoulder has developed into a serious backache and may keep him out of action for two or three days.

Dallas, Tex.—New York Yankees claim the backgrounds for hitting in their recent games are the reason they are hitting so well. The Rupport Rifles have been using Texas fans the slugging show of the year with 39 hits and 27 runs in two games in the lone star state.

Clearwater, Fla.—News that Brooklyn's ballplayers will be decked out in Kelly green caps, stockings and other trimmings to their uniforms this season has inspired their sportswriting clan to song. To the tune of "The Wearing of the Green," they offered the following ditty to be sung on opening day:

"Oh, Paddy dear, and did you hear
The things that may be seen?
The dear old Daffy Dodgers
Are a-wearin' o' the green."

Colt getting the biggest play is Seeme Shifter, trained by Earl Sande. . . Odds on him have been cut from 60 to 1 to 20 to 1. . . MONARCHS BOW SASKATOON OUT IN THIRD GAME

Overwhelm Westays 6-1 In Brilliant Passing Attacks And Hard Checking

MEET REDMEN NEXT

By Ross Munro
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

WINNIPEG, April 5.—(CP).—Winnipeg Monarchs won the Western Canada Junior hockey crown again to-day won with two hard-checking, fast-passing forward lines, and prepared to swing east for the Memorial Cup final with the classy Copper Cliff Redmen.

Saskatoon Wesleys, deposed champions, headed back west after losing the final game of the best-of-three series here last night 6-1. Overwhelmed by a brilliant passing attack and confused by persistent checking, Saskatoon keked out of the hockey picture.

Winnipeg opened the series auspiciously with a 5-2 win Thursday and then crumbled 6-3 before Wesleys amazing, five-man offensive in the second game Saturday. But they came back to form last night to win and regain the western title they last won in 1935.

So for the third time in five years, Monarchs will play in the Canadian Junior final with a team from the Sudbury district. In 1932 they lost to Sudbury Wolves, but three years later turned the tables on the Sudbury aggregation and took the championship.

Meet On Saturday.

This time it is Copper Cliff Redmen and, with the Monarchs-Sudbury district title series even, a battle royal is in the offing when they step on the ice in Toronto Saturday night for the first game. Monarchs will leave here Wednesday.

Smooth combination plays of the first string line of Alf Pike, Johnny McCreedy and Mick Kowcinak brought Winnipeg the western title last night. Between them they scored five goals while a skinny little lightning bolt, Lassen Martel, substitute left winger, netted the other tally. Pike and Kowcinak each had two and McCreedy one.

Eddie Martinson scored on a pass from Sid Abel for the only Saskatoon goal. For 37 minutes Winnipeg held them off the score sheet.

Pete Etsinger, Saskatoon defenceman, had three penalties which handicapped his team. Loose work around the nets was a factor in Saskatoon's defeat.

Coach Harry Neil of Monarchs said it was unlikely Paul Rhenaut, his classy left winger, gashed on the thigh Saturday night, would make the trip East. Without him Monarch's championship hopes will be somewhat subdued but Martel, who took his place last night, might fill the position adequately.

Quaker Oats Likely To Enter Team In Soccer League This Year

Greater enthusiasm was evident at the meeting of the Peterborough and District Football Association, on Monday, in the Chamber of Commerce rooms with President Reg. Whitehouse in the chair and a full attendance of directors.

A communication was sent to the City Council asking for the usual privilege of King Edward Park, and it is expected that the new facilities will add to the greater convenience of the football players.

After a lengthy discussion, it was unanimously agreed that a committee on rules and regulations be appointed when the clubs are fully represented; also, that the appointment of a groundsman be left over until a full quota of the Board is completed.

Quakers Make Request.

The Quaker Oats representative was present with the request of the necessary information so that the Quaker Oats may consider the question of affiliation with the Soccer Association at a special meeting that will be held on Wednesday night. The executive is enthusiastic of the Porridgemen's application.

It is expected that the Canada Packers, Canadian General, C.C.F. and Quakers as the local teams, while an entry is expected from Bowmanville and Oshawa to complete the league. Perhaps, Deloro will be represented at the next meeting on Monday, April 12— a seven league schedule.

Referee Wanted.

The executive desires the services of referees for the current season and request that applications be made accordingly as soon as possible.

MONTANEZ WINS OVER LOU AMBERS

Herkimer Loses First Six Before He Discovers Rican's Weakness

NEW YORK, April 5.—(AP)—Pedro Montanez of Puerto Rico, was the official lightweight champion of the world to-day.

He earned this title, such as it is, by beating Champion Lou Ambers, of Herkimer, N.Y., in a 10-round non-title fight at Madison Square Garden last night.

Though he won the last four rounds and had Montanez hanging on at the final bell, the Herkimer hurricane was just a breeze for Montanez in the first six rounds.

Montanez dropped the champion with a hard right cross in the first round and kept pounding effectively at long range until Ambers discovered he could get somewhere by fighting at close quarters. But by the time the champion discovered it, Montanez' lead was too great.

For the Leafs, Rudy Enns was a standout all the way. Hyslop in the nets played his usual stellar game, and Mason and Hever worked hard.

THE MOUTHPIECE

READ THIS FIRST:

A cable from America excites the interest of the stenographer in the dingy law office of Stuckey & Stuckey, London. Upon his arrival Charles Stuckey learns that Miss Jacqueline Smith, daughter of one of his few respectable clients, now on the continent with her mother, has inherited $1,500,000 from an American uncle, Colonel Alec Luttman, who obviously has some hold over Stuckey, calls and reads the cablegram about the inheritance when Charles leaves the office for a few moments. Luttman proposes that they arrange for Jim Anson, an ex-convict, to marry Jacqueline Smith, having her assign her property—before Stuckey tells her of the inheritance—to her new husband. Luttman would take three-fifths of the inheritance, Stuckey and Anson each one-fifth.

(NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY)

CHAPTER 3

"WELL, NOW listen, and let's hear no more nonsense," Colonel Luttman said to Charles as he pointed out the simplicity of the scheme. "We'll send Jimmy out to wherever these women are living. He'll scrape an acquaintance with them, make love to the girl—he's a suave devil—and try to get things fixed amicably. Before the marriage you'll draw up a deed of—whatever it is—where by the girl assigns him all her property."

"But why should she?" expostulated Charles. "I don't see...."

Luttman regarded him pityingly.

"And you a rising young lawyer!" he murmured. "Listen, my poor ass: Jimmy is a wealthy young man, desperately in love with the, let us hope, beautiful—Miss Smith. His whole idea is to safeguard the interests of her and her mother. The mother's very important, Charles. You did say they were hard up, didn't you?"

"Yes."

"Did you ever hear of a woman—a hard-up woman—who wouldn't fall for any scheme—any honorable scheme, of course—which involved the payment to her of an annuity of, say, a thousand?"

Charles grunted noncommittally.

"I see you didn't. Now, once this document is signed...."

"But suppose the girl doesn't fall for Jimmy?"

"I shall be there, keeping an avuncular eye on the romance. Should it be necessary, I have no doubt I can find ways and means of bringing pressure to bear in Jimmy's favor. As I say, once the deed is signed, and the happy pair are married, the money is ours. The mother is satisfied, you and I and Jimmy are satisfied, and, we will hope, then, of course, they must know nothing."

Charles was fingering the cablegram.

"But...." he began.

The older man made an impatient gesture.

"You can acknowledge receipt of this cable and tell the New York lawyers that you are instituting immediate inquiries into the whereabouts of your clients, of which you are at the moment ignorant. The rest you may leave to Jimmy and me."

Charles sat for some moments in gloomy silence. His fingers beat a nervous tattoo on the desk in front of him. If only there were some way out for him! He cursed himself a dozen times a day for the youthful folly which had thrown him, irrevocably, it seemed, into the power of this soulless and unscrupulous rogue, from whose domination he would have given anything in the world to escape. But what could he do?

"Well, Charles, what do you think of my scheme?" Luttman asked.

The solicitor roused himself.

"It's vile and abominable," he exclaimed bitterly.

"But clever, eh, Charles?"

"Oh, yes, it's clever."

"Does you acute legal mind perceive any flaw in it?"

"No."

"Then I'll leave you to draw up the deed. Jimmy will be here in a few minutes. I'll tell him to look in on you."

Charles Stuckey nodded. He was conscious of a feeling of relief that Luttman was not going to remain in the office. He wanted to be alone to think out his position.

Luttman rose, and Charles followed suit.

"Only that you may not be able to persuade the girl," said Charles curtly.

The Colonel's smile oozed complacence.

"Don't worry about that, my boy," he said. "Love will find a way.... That sounds like the return of Jimmy."

Sounds of commotion in the outer office reached their ears, and the next moment the door connecting the two rooms was thrown violently open and a tall slim young man burst in, followed by a perturbed Bells, his right hand outstretched as though he sought to restrain such undignified procedure from disturbing the traditional serenity of the profession to which he belonged.

Inside the door, the negrocomer turned on the managing clerk.

"All right, Bells," he said; "you can beat it."

Bells looked inquiringly at his employer, and, in response to Charles' gesture, turned on his heel and went back into his own office.

With a nod to the solicitor, the visitor strode toward Luttman, his rage-distorted face working convulsively.

"Now, you double-crossing blackguard," he began, his arm upraised as if to strike.

"That'll do, Jimmy," the colonel said in his silkiest tones. His right hand rose leisurely from his side; it held a businesslike-looking automatic, which he pointed straight at the other man. "Any—er—trouble, and I'll shoot you as dead as—let me see—as yesterday, shall we say—self-defence, you know."

The man in the doorway made a tremendous effort to gain self-control. It was evident that he was laboring under the stress of some very powerful emotion; but there is nothing like a pistol a few feet from one's ribs to induce self-control in such circumstances. He fell back a pace or two, his hands falling to his sides, impotent hatred blazing in his eyes.

Colonel Luttman was speaking again.

"Don't let's have any bad feeling, Jimmy. I only did what I thought was best for everyone."

"And I got the raw end of the deal!" complained Anson.

Luttman's voice was soothing.

"Yes, I know," he said. "But this time, my boy, you're going to get the business end."

Jimmy scowled at him questionably.

"What do you mean, 'this time'?"

The Colonel beamed.

"It's like this," he explained. "During you—er—absence, your friends—Charles, here, and I—have not been idle." He proceeded to lay before the younger man the details of the proposed coup.

Jimmy listened attentively for ten minutes. Then:

"What's this girl like?" he asked.

Stuckey was about to answer, but the Colonel stopped him with a gesture.

"Lovely, my boy, lovely. If I were a younger man...."

"I'm not very keen on marriage," grumbled Jimmy.

"I've noticed that," replied Luttman with a smile. "Your amorous adventures have never brought you within the range of that highly speculative investment. And quite rightly!" he hastened to add. "But this need be nothing more than a formality. A brief honeymoon, if you like, with a lovely girl"—his eyes twinkled lecherously—"and certainly no tie more enduring than you care to make it."

"All right," he said. "But mind any funny business and I'll...." He made a threatening gesture.

"Don't worry, Jimmy. Whatever fun there may be you're going to get—and a share of the loot," he added, with a departure from his customary elegance.

Jimmy, his sense of grievance still rankling, but looking more subdued than when he had entered, found time on the way out through the clerk's office to lean over Essie Harringay, seated before her typewriter, and exchange a few confidential words with that young lady.

Bedtime Story

By HOWARD R. GARIS

UNCLE WIGGILY'S FIRST AID.

"Oh, Uncle Wiggily, my ear, My ear," cried Susie Littletail. "Oh, how my ear hurts."

"I know it does, my dear, and I am sorry," said Uncle Wiggily as he and Susie hopped away from the barbed wire fence. On the other side of the fence barking and growling, but not able to get through to bite the rabbit, was a big dog.

The dog had chased Susie. She had crawled under the fence to escape but a sharp wire had caught her by the ear. Only that Uncle Wiggily happened to pass in time to save Susie, she might have been bitten by the dog.

"But it's almost as bad as if the dog bit me to have my ear torn on the barbed wire fence," sobbed Susie. "Though I thank you just the same and just heaps and heaps, Uncle Wiggily, for saving me."

Aid Needed.

"That's all right," said the rabbit gentleman kindly. "But now I had better do a little first aid work on your ear."

"Yes," said Susie, not crying quite so hard now. "I wish you would do something, please. Oh, am I going to be late for school, Uncle Wiggily?"

"I think not," said Mr. Longears looking at his watch. "You started early and this is the short way to school."

"I wish I hadn't taken it," sighed Susie. "Sammie told me not to, and he warned me about the dog. But I thought I could fool him. Only I didn't. And now—my ear—oh, dear."

Uncle Wiggily looked at Susie's torn ear as Dr. Possum might have done. The sharp barb of the wire fence had made a long scratch in the ear and it was bleeding. Really, it wasn't much of a hurt, but Susie, like most girl animals, was afraid of the sight of blood.

"That's silly," laughed Uncle Wiggily when Susie told him blood frightened her. "A little blood does not mean any great harm. But now I am going to do some first aid work on you."

"Will it—will it hurt?" asked Susie.

"Only a very little," said Mr. Longears. "It will not hurt as much as getting your ear caught on the sharp wire. Now I am going to put a bandage on for you, Susie, just as the Lady Mouse Teacher in the Hollow-Tree School taught when she gives first aid. Then you'll be all right."

First Uncle Wiggily hopped to a while birch tree and stripped off some of the thin bark which is almost like paper or cloth. Then he found where some plantain leaves were growing.

Made a Pulp.

Picking some plantain leaves, which come up very early in spring, Uncle Wiggily pounded them into a pulp between two stones.

"Plantain leaves make a very good sanitary poultice on a bandage for torn ears, Susie," said Mr. Longears. "They will help the cut to heal nicely."

When the plantain poultice was ready Uncle Wiggily bound it on Susie's ear, wrapping it in the birch bark. But Uncle Wiggily had no safety pins to fasten the bandage. He didn't know what to do.

But just then, all of a sudden, along came an early dragon fly or darning needle. With a piece of long thin grass for thread the darning needle insect sewed the birch bark bandage on Susie's ear and the first aid work was over.

"Thank you," Uncle Wiggily," said Susie as she hopped on to school. She also thanked the dragon fly.

And if the potato masher doesn't start drumming on the dishpan to wake the alarm clock, I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily's umbrella.

The darning needle sewed the bandage.

LUGGERS CAPTURED

Australian Government on Drive to Stop Illegal Pearl Diving.

PORT DARWIN, Australia, April 5 (C.P. Cable). — Seventeen Japanese pearling luggers were captured to-day by a Government patrol boat in Australian waters off the North Coast.

Machine guns were trained on the craft to prevent their escape. After their skippers had been warned the vessels were released. It is understood, however, that the Australian Government is considering the establishment of a permanent naval patrol to suppress illegal pearling.

Samuel Archer Is Re-Elected Master Of East Durham L.O.L.

Port Hope Man Returned For Third Time To Head County Body

WALK AT MILLBROOK

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MILLBROOK, April 5.—The annual meeting of the East Durham County L.O.L., held in Millbrook last week, was one of the most enthusiastic gatherings in many years, featured by a splendid attendance, representative of the fourteen primary lodges of the county.

The usual business procedures were conducted, and the following brethren elected to office for the ensuing year, namely:

Worshipful County Master: Bro. Samuel Archer, Port Hope; Deputy County Master: Bro. L. T. Oaland, Port Hope; Chaplain: Bro. Fred J. Griffiths, Port Hope; Recording Secretary: Bro. Nathaniel Belch, Millbrook; Treasurer: Bro. Stuart Fallis, Millbrook; Marshal: Bro. James Paul, Cavan; First Lecturer: Bro. R. Williamson, Fraserville; Second Lecturer: Bro. W. K. Gilmour, Campbellcroft.

Encouraging reports were received from the various officials and returns showed marked progress during the past year, revealing a substantial increase in membership, the most splendid results perhaps having been achieved by the brethren of the Port Hope unit who are opening and dedicating their spacious new hall on the evening of April 7th. The building materials and labor involved in its erection having almost all been secured and paid for during the past year.

Tribute is Paid

Especial tribute was accorded the County Master, Bro. Sam Archer, Port Hope, now entering upon his third year in office, for the splendid leadership afforded under his guidance. Also included in the vote of thanks extended were the names of a number of brethren who gave splendid assistance to his many untiring efforts, especial mention being given to their visits made to the primary lodges.

The Millbrook Council, in a body headed by Reeve Percy Stinson, visited the hall and were escorted by the County Marshal, Bro. James Paul, to the chair of the Wor. County Master, who expressed appreciation of their visit, introduced them to the brethren and received from them an invitation to celebrate the coming July 12 in Millbrook, which later was the unanimous decision of the County Lodge.

A delegation of the brethren from West Durham County, headed by the County Master, Bro. Charles Brown, Orono, also visited the meeting and contributed much toward plans for the 'gala day.' Co-operation between the East and West sections has been definitely assured, each unit having pledged their support to the section wherein the celebration is and will be scheduled.

Detailed arrangements were left over for a future meeting when a public gathering will be called as soon as county roads are improved. The event will be held in Millbrook, and it is expected that Rev. Morris Ziedman will deliver an interesting lecture to which the general public will be welcomed as an audience.

What with 'Coronation Teas' and 'Socials' planned and announced, by various women's organizations, a gala sports' day and street dance in conjunction with Coronation Day activities, May 12, under the auspices of the ex-servicemen's Club and the glorious twelfth, Millbrook citizens are scheduled for a busy and jubilant season.

To Be Extradited

CAPT. FREEMAN HATFIELD

Another chapter in the drama of the Nova Scotia schooner, Gypsum Queen, has been written with the ruling of the United States Supreme Court against Captain Freeman Hatfield in his two-year fight against extradition to Canada. The captain has been in jail at Manchester, N.H., since December, 1934. He will now be returned to Canada to face charges of fraud arising from sinking of Gypsum Queen during the world war. Captain Hatfield was paid $71,000 in reparations for loss of his ship allegedly by torpedoing. The government charges that the ship floundered during a storm.

Women's Association Of Selwyn United Church Already Planning For Event

(Examiner Correspondence.)

SELWYN, April 5.—The regular meeting of the Women's Association of Selwyn United Church was held at the home of Miss Emma Elliott on Thursday, April 1st. Ten members and two visitors were present and the meeting opened in the usual manner with the president, Mrs. Gordon Fitzgerald, in the chair.

Appropriate hymns were sung to the accompaniment of Mrs. Gilbert McIlmoyle, playing on the melodian, which is a much treasured relic of the Elliott family for many years.

Mrs. Melville Crapp acted as secretary in the absence of Mrs. Wm. Purdy and the roll-call was answered by each one donating an article to be sold at the bazaar held in connection with the Strawberry Festival in July. Many pretty and useful articles were displayed and later on in the meeting the tickets were placed on them.

The Scripture lesson was read by Mrs. Clarence Elliott and in the absence of Mrs. Wilfred Nicholls, the topic was read by Mrs. Ed. Preston.

The W.A. this year subscribed $25.00 toward the minister's stipend and they also donated $5.00 to aid in the work of the flower committee. The different groups again planned to take upon themselves the responsibility of having flowers in the church each Sunday throughout the summer months.

The meeting closed with the Mizpah Benediction, after which delicious refreshments were served by the committee in charge, and a pleasant half hour was spent in social intercourse.

Power Bars Pension Idea For All Vets

Will However Ask For Grant To Rehabilitate All Jobless Ex-Soldiers

23,000 IN NEED

Would Not Imitate U.S. Bonus Idea—79,600 On Canadian List

OTTAWA, April 7 (C.P.). — Definitely turning down a recommendation of the War Veterans' Assistance Commission that special allowances be made unemployed non-pensionable war veterans, Hon. C. G. Power, Minister of Pensions and National Health, told the House of Commons to-day he would ask for a grant to assist in the rehabilitation of unemployed ex-soldiers.

To supplement the municipal relief being received by ex-service men as recommended by the Commission would be to open a door to demands for a general pension to all who wore the uniform, Mr. Power said. He would never recommend that to his colleagues.

Care of the ex-service men and their dependents already was costing Canada in excess of $50,000,000 and ample legislation existed to ensure maintenance of all those disabled by service as well as the dependents of those who died.

He did not propose, the minister declared, to launch a new system of war pensions in Canada. Nor would he support a move that would place a class of the population in a position different from that of their fellow citizens merely because they served their country.

Aid Needed for 23,000.

Voluntary war veteran assistance committees were doing a useful work in rehabilitating returned men and he proposed to ask Parliament for a grant that would be used to assist these committees in their work. It was estimated there might be about 23,000 in need of such form of aid.

Howard Green (Cons., Vancouver South) raised the question when the House in Committee was considering pensions estimates.

After listening to the minister's address on pensions in general, Mr. Green declared the Government was running away from the problem instead of meeting it.

Mr. Power reviewed the system of pensions and veterans' assistance since the Great War, and for which this year he is asking $41,500,000.

At the outset Mr. Power declared he would personally discourage any demand for payment of soldier bonuses such as had been paid in United States recently.

When a few years after the war ended the Dominion paid out some $183,000,000 in war service gratuities based upon years of service, its question of service bonuses was closed, the minister thought, and he was confident the parliament and people of Canada would agree with him.

Pensions were awarded by the state to those disabled in its service and were not a payment for service nor for valor on the field of battle, the minister said.

70,000 In Canada

There were now about 70,000 who were drawing war disability pensions, and 18,000 dependents of the 60,000 who fell on the field of battle.

Akin to the pension system was the payment of war veterans assistance based on the assumption that those who served in the front line trenches must have impaired their health to the extent that it

Chrysler Strike Over---65,000 To Start Work

Settlement Ends Month-Long Tieup Pact Good for Year

Corporation Grants Union Bargaining Rights For Its Employees

END OF STRIKES PLEDGED

Solution Will Bring Work For 20,000 On Supply Plant Rolls

DETROIT, April 7 (A.P.). — The Chrysler Corporation arranged today for a prompt return to work of 65,000 employees and suppliers dependent upon it prepared to recall another 20,000 who have been idle a month.

This was made possible by the signing of an agreement last night between Chrysler and the United Automobile Workers of America, ending a strike which began March 8 and providing for further negotiations on issues not settled in the past.

Governor Frank Murphy of Michigan, who brought the two sides together and announced the strike settlement at Lansing, turned his attention immediately to the two remaining strikes in Michigan automotive factories.

All the principals in the Chrysler peace parley, which opened in the governor's office on March 24, voiced satisfaction over the terms of the agreement.

A statement by Homer Martin, international president of the union, indicated that sit-down strikes in the motor car industry were at an end.

The agreement provided the U.A.W.A. would call no more sit-downs in Chrysler plants during the life of the pact, effective until next March 31.

The Corporation granted the union bargaining rights for its employees, members of the U.A.W.A. The union had asked for exclusive bargaining rights and called the strike when this was denied it.

Other Provisions

Chrysler agreed neither to interfere with employees joining the union, nor discriminate against them for such membership, and also to not aid, promote or finance any labor group or organization which purports to engage in collective bargaining or make any agreement with any such group or organization for the purpose of undermining the union.

The union would not "intimidate or coerce employees" nor solicit members "on corporation time or plant property."

In defining "employees," the agreement exempted foremen, assistant foremen, timekeepers, plant protection employees and "confidential salaried employees."

Union members would not engage in any "other stoppage in any of the plants" nor in "any sit-down or stay-in strike." Matters not covered in the agreement will be negotiated in a conference opening in Detroit to-morrow.

The union agrees immediately to terminate the present strike. Chrysler would reopen its closed plants "as soon as possible. It agreed to "re-employ as rapidly as possible its employees now on strike at their usual work without discrimination against them for participating in the strike and in accordance with the seniority rules of the corporation now in effect."

The company agreed to seek dis-

TORONTO, April 7. — (C.P.) — Awards of contracts for $5,500,000 highway work and calling of tenders for another estimated $4,500,000 was announced today by the Ontario Department of Highways.

Woman Is Held For Receiving Stolen Goods—Three Boys For Breaking, Entering

FIND LOOT IN HOME

WINDSOR, Ont., April 7.—(CP). —Mrs. Lillian Wilson, 37, Windsor, whose three sons face breaking and entering charges, pleaded not guilty in police court to-day to a charge of receiving stolen goods. Mrs. Wilson had been arrested a few hours earlier at her home.

She was remanded for one week when one of her sons appears for sentence. The son was found guilty yesterday while the two others have yet to face trial.

Three weeks ago police found a huge stock of goods in the Wilson home that was later identified as stolen. A quantity of clothing proved to be the same as that taken from a drying cleaning plant March 20 and there were also articles alleged to have been stolen from another cleaning establishment. Loot from a drug store entered March 23 was also found in the home.

Mrs. Wilson was accused only of receiving clothing taken from the first dry cleaning plant, which consisted of several suits and dresses estimated at a value of $300.

The woman was released on bond of $1,000 because "we have to move and besides my aged mother is there and somebody's got to look after her."

Fresh Rebel Rout Claimed Cordoba Area

Madrid Forces Storm And Capture Heights Of Mount Chimorra

PLANES FOLLOW UP

MADRID, April 7 (A.P.).—A government force stormed the heights of Mount Chimorra in Cordoba Province, it was reported to-day, and put their insurgent foes to rout in one of the most smashing victories of the Civil War.

The thrust, near the easterly end of the government's Pozoblanco front, carried the shouting "Millicianos" within 2½ miles of Villaharta from which a short drive would sever the insurgents' main line of communications, the Cordoba-Penarroya road.

(Villaharta was erroneously reported captured last week.)

Last night, after the government column reached the summit of Mount Chimorra, a detail was put to work burying the bodies of 400 insurgent victims of the fierce attack.

When day broke the Madrid-Valencia soldiers set out again, away from the mountain top, to clear out scattered groups of insurgents caught behind the suddenly formed new line.

Insurgents were reported in flight from Villaharta on the road to Penarroya. Mount Chimorra is part of the mountain range of that name

BOARD ACCEPTS RESIGNATION OF INSPECTOR MOWAT

Has For Forty-Nine Years Been Engaged In The Teaching Profession

30 YEARS AN INSPECTOR

Alexander Mowat is retiring in June after forty-nine years service in the teaching profession.

His resignation as public school inspector was accepted by Peterborough Board of Education on Tuesday evening.

Inspector Mowat originally tendered his resignation to the Board at the March meeting, and was asked to reconsider the matter.

At Tuesday night's meeting a further letter was read by Secretary G. H. Thompson in which Inspector Mowat reaffirmed his wish to retire at the end of June at the completion of forty-nine years service in the profession.

He thanked the Board for the confidence they had shown by asking him to remain in service and declared, "I am still of the opinion I acted in the best interest of all concerned."

Opening up a brief discussion of the matter before Inspector Mowat's resignation was formally accepted by the Board, John R. Marshall said he had been of the strong opinion all along that the inspector wished to retire, but he did think Mr. Mowat might have continued in service another year to complete the half century.

"I feel that if he wishes to retire there is nothing the Board can do but accept his resignation with regret," said Mr. Marshall in moving that the resignation be accepted. W. A. Richardson seconded the motion.

System Being Changed

After the motion had been declared carried, Inspector Mowat told the Board it had not been easy for him to make up his mind to retire.

ATTEMPT TO OUST PREMIER ABERHART FAILS IN ALBERTA

Social Credit Rebels Fail To Get Across Resolution In Legislature

DECLARE OFFICE VACANT

EDMONTON, April 7 (CP)—An attempt to remove Hon. William Aberhart from office and have the Alberta legislative assembly elect a new premier and cabinet failed Tuesday.

A resolution, sponsored by two supporters of the insurgent group of Social Credit members in the legislature, to have the offices of the premier and cabinet declared vacant was ruled unconstitutional by Speaker Peter Dawson.

Never Reached Floor

It was not allowed to reach the floor of the legislature. S. A. G. Barnes, Independent Social Credit member for Edmonton, sought leave to have the resolution put on the order paper for Thursday. The seconder was W. J. Lampley, prominent in the insurgent movement. He represents the far northern constituency of Peace River.

Barnes, read out of the Social Credit party caucus last July, supported the insurgents during the attack on the budget of Hon. Solon Low, criticizing its taxation features. Final ruling on the admission of the resolution to the order paper rested with Speaker Dawson.

"I have refused admission of the resolution," he said. "It would interfere with the functions of the

Father Races 1600 Miles In 24 Hours To Bedside Of Sinking Daughter

KITCHENER, Ont., April 7—(CP) —Harold Lippert of Kitchener arrived at the bedside of his sick child Joyce, to-day after a nerve-wracking journey of more than 1,600 miles in 24 hours. Rail, air and highway were combined in the thrilling dash.

Controlled Press Flares At Russian French Allegations

Joint Italo-German Withdrawal From Hands-Off Pact Seen Coming

NEW VISIT BY GOERING

Italians Claim Both France And Soviet Shipping In Arms

ROME, April 7 (A.P.). — The government-controlled press warned to-day the limit of Italy's patience over charged violations of non-intervention in the Spanish War by other Powers—particularly France and Russia—had almost been reached.

The possibility of joint Italo-German withdrawal frim the non-intervention agreement to isolate the Spanish Civil War, in protest against alleged continuing French and Russian aid to the Madrid government, was considered likely in usually well-informed circles.

Official circles contented themselves with reiterating the basic statement of Italian policy that Italy would not intervene directly in behalf of the Spanish insurgents as long as other nations kept the "hands-off Spain" agreement.

France and the Soviet, the Italian press charged, have broken the accord by shipments of arms and planes to aid the Madrid government in its recent offensives against the insurgent regime, recognized by Germany and Italy as the true government of Spain.

"Continuance of unilateral neutrality," wrote Umberto Guglielmotti, former president of the Italian Journalist Federation, in La Tribuna, "is all to the profit of one of two parties in the fight."

Plans To Lay Charges

Count Dino Grandi, Italian ambassador to London, informed sources said, would lay the charges against France and Russia before a meeting of the non-intervention committee in London this week.

Well-informed circles linked the possibility of joint Italian and German withdrawal from the agreement not to intervene in Spain with reports of a forthcoming visit to Rome of Col.-Gen. Hermann Wilhelm Goering, Chancellor Hitler's chief aide.

The German air minister, these sources indicated, would work out with Fascist officials a detailed campaign against Communism.

A previous visit by Goering resulted in a coordinated plan between Germany and Italy on their Spanish policy and laid the foundation of a campaign to unite Nazi-ism and Fascism against Communism and prevent its spread in Western Europe.

1937 RELIEF BILL PASSES COMMONS GOES TO SENATE

Rogers Hints Some Grants May Be Earmarked For Certain Municipal Needs

COMBINES ACT AMENDED

OTTAWA, April 7.—(CP).— Social Credit, modified Socialism, municipal relief strikes, charges of "secret" negotiations with the British government and an attack on censorship exercised by the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation, featured yesterday's discussions in the House of Commons.

A long step toward early prorogation was taken when after a general debate which has covered several days, the 1937 relief bill passed all stages in the House and was sent to the Senate.

In the face of criticism from government supporters and from all parts of the Opposition and suggestions of strikes by municipalities because of the relief burden, Labor Minister Rogers hinted the possibility that some of the relief money granted the province would be "earmarked" for certain municipal works and relief needs.

Social Credit Leader John Blackmore enunciated the Social Credit creed as the means that should be adopted to deal effectively with an unemployment problem which he declared would exist even if the prosperity of 1929 returned.

Conservative Leader Bennett, when the relief bill was discussed in committee stage suggested the provinces be assisted in technical education, particularly in the west.

If the system of splitting relief costs between the municipalities, the provinces and the Dominion continued, municipal bankruptcy was inevitable, Mr. Bennett said. Cities and towns were carrying intolerable tax loads through relief and should press the provinces to persuade the Dominion for direct assistance.

Some Not Passed On.

Federal grants to provinces were increased in December, 1936, with

THE Royal Road TO THE CORONATION

The Somerset Infantry and St. John's Ambulance Brigade salute Their Majesties

WE have heard a great deal so far in this series, about the King and his service to the Empire, in war and in peace. His position as an official representative of the royal family called upon him to appear often in public, and particularly, as a former active member of the navy and air forces, at functions involving the fighting services. To-day's pictures show the popular prince as Duke of York, at one of these functions. As colonel of the Somerset Light Infantry, he is shown reviewing that regiment.

But to-day's layout also shows her majesty the Queen playing her part in the job of serving the Empire, and a right royal part it has been. Long before she was Duchess of York and wife of a king's son, Queen Elisabeth was publicly giving of her time and energy to the country and to the Empire.

She was but fourteen when war went to the struggle, one to die in the front lines at Loos, another to suffer capture and imprisonment in Germany. Glamis Castle, her home, was turned into a hospital and her mother, the Countess of Strathmore, and her sisters were swept into the work of nursing. There, too, came Elisabeth, to cheer many a battle-weary soldier with her quick, kindly smile, and a cheery word.

Across the Empire to-day, as well as in England, are former soldiers who came to know their future Queen in the quiet of the war hospital at Glamis; it is fitting then that in the picture above her majesty wears the uniform of St. John's Ambulance Brigade, an order that has done so much for the sick, the weary and the suffering. Long after the war was over, indeed until this day, Lady Elisabeth Bowes-Lyon, later the Duchess of York, and now the Queen of England, retained her interest in the nursing services that

OTTAWA DISTRICT FLOODS RECEDING

Four Rivers Rampage Washing Out Bridges, Flooding Highways

OTTAWA, April 7.—(CP)—Slowly receding flood waters greeted weary workers today as they sought to prevent further damage in the Ottawa district where the Nation, Castor, Quyon and Rideau Rivers, caused considerable havoc yesterday.

BANG! SLITHER! CRASH!

ANOTHER BLOW-OUT TAKES ITS TOLL

A blow-out—one spin out of control.

A sickening lurch—a crash—then what?

Caused by a blow-out—think of the result.

Guard your Family and your Car with GOLDEN PLY BLOW-OUT PROTECTION

WHAT if your name was featured in one of those newspaper blow-out accident headlines? Your car smashed, you or your family crippled! Blow-out accidents kill or injure thousands every year. Why gamble with this horrible chance? Why not make sure of blow-out protection now!

Heat—Blisters—Blow-outs

Consider what happens to your tires when you're travelling at today's usual high speeds. Naturally the best generated in your tires is terrific. A tiny blister may form inside between the rubber and the fabric. Steadily it gets bigger and BIGGER. You have no warning—until BANG! A blow-out! Then it may be too late.

Goodrich engineers have developed a real blow-out protection called the "Golden Ply", found only in Goodrich Silvertown Tires. It is a layer of special rubber and full-floating cords, scientifically treated to resist internal tire heat. Blisters don't get a chance to form, and that means blow-outs due to heat don't get started.

Don't YOU take chances

You can't afford to take chances on tires you're not positively sure about. The only safe thing to do is replace your risky tires with Goodrich Golden Ply Silvertowns. They're the only tires made with Golden Ply Blow-out Protection. Best in the long run—yet they cost no more.

We May Yet Need It

It has been stated definitely with an emphasis which has not been dimmed by the frequency of the assertion that the Privy Council stepped outside of the law and invaded the political field when they turned against the reform laws enacted by the Bennett government. The feeling is that the interpretation of the Privy Council was based on the premise that Canada is not yet a nation, but retains much of its colonial rating in the eyes of the court which is above our own Supreme Court and which can reverse any decision of that court.

There might be more agreement with that contention were it not for the fact that our governments persist in taking to themselves more power, and they keep on doing so. The Ontario Legislature recently made it clear that the Hydro Electric Commission was a thing separate and apart from all ordinary law; action could not be taken against it without the permission of the government, and judgment against it even if rendered by the Privy Council can be of no effect. More recently the same government gave to one of its own arms power to investigate any transaction which had taken place between man and company or in any other way—powers which no agency of government possessed before and which no government should possess.

Likewise there is the continued tendency of governments to take to themselves new and greater powers of taxation, which is another way of compelling people to pay more revenue to governments. A large portion of the average man's income is spent in order to live, and as it is being spent it is being taxed. He is paying sales tax, tariff and excise taxation levied by the federal government; in some cases he may be paying an added provincial and civic sales tax, and then once a year he is again taxed on the same money for purposes of federal and provincial income taxation.

It is the attitude of government in its constantly renewed drive for more revenue that may make a number of people wonder if it is not wise to retain the Privy Council as a court of appeal where the excess of government action may be tested and checked. If there were any evident tendency on the part of governments to give to us just the minimum amount of government which we need and showing some practical consideration for a man's honest efforts to get along and keep from going in debt then we might be more inclined to listen with approval to arguments about drawing away from the Privy Council. Until such evidence is forthcoming we had better leave things alone.

A Nice Sort of Result

North Renfrew federal by-election resulted just as it should, and it was a splendid way for any election contest to come to a conclusion. It is difficult indeed to think how it could have been any better.

Traditionally it is a Conservative seat, but in the last general election it slipped. It did more than that—it slid—and slid so far that it landed in the Liberal column by the largest majority ever recorded for any candidate in the riding.

In the by-election it slipped again toward the Conservative side, and slipped by quite an extent, but not sufficient to land there.

So the Conservatives are able to say the old riding of North Renfrew is on the way back to where it belongs, and they have the satisfaction of knowing they cut deep into the last Liberal majority, and therein they find comfort.

The Liberals rejoice that the seat remained in the ranks of government forces. So there you have an election which seems to have pleased those who lost and those who won.

Asking For More

From Shaunavon, Sask., comes word that 180 farmers threaten to refuse to seed a single acre of land until the government agrees to give every farmer sufficient seed to put in his entire crop. It is stated that under existing regulations the government gives sufficient seed for 300 acres, but some of the farmers claim that will not be sufficient to seed summer fallow which will be allowed to go to weeds.

It is not likely any government has any intention of trying to deal unfairly with the farmers of any section, nor would a government stand in the way of a farmer putting in sufficient seed to secure adequate crop returns if weather conditions proved favorable. But it does look as though some of these farmers were asking a good deal and if they do not get all they ask for they are threatening to put in no seed at all.

Members of parliament from Toronto ridings have been doing much the same thing only in a different way. They have been asking that more money be spent in Toronto on public buildings and public works, and if it is not done the prediction is made that Toronto will never again elect any Liberal members.

A good many people might well learn the truth of a statement which was made by Hon. Charles Dunning when he referred to "taking money from all of us for the benefit of a few of us." The government has no money except as it takes it from the people—all the people—and the more demands there are for added expenditure the more all the people will be asked to contribute.

An Expert Muddler

Five thousand Scottish engineers and apprentices are on strike, and it is admitted the effect of this stoppage is being felt in slowing down Britain's programme of re-armament.

The Mine Workers' Federation is taking a vote to see what will be done about forcing recognition of the union in Nottinghamshire.

Transport and General Workers Union have given a month's notice to terminate an agreement which would affect 26,000 London busmen.

Three railway unions, with a membership of 500,000 ask for increased wages and holidays with pay.

Not since the days of the general strike in 1926 has the Old Country seen such an assortment of serious demands coming at any one time. And on top of that John Bull is planning elaborately to entertain the world and all its cousins when he places a crown upon the head of the King. If it is a fact that he muddles through all his difficulties then it looks as though he would have to be an expert muddler to deal with all that faces him at the moment.

The Congregation of 1937

Although the Bible is the world's best seller today there is a prevailing ignorance of its contents even among religious people. If you want to be in fashion when you go to church these days leave your Bible at home.

The church is a well-dressed corpse and is losing ground rapidly.

People who call themselves religious spend hundreds of dollars a week for their own selfish pleasures and they give only a few miserable cents to the maintenance of the Lord's work.

So speaks Rev. Herbert Lockyer, of Liverpool, England who has been in Toronto within recent days at the annual Prophetical Conference at Knox Presbyterian Church, and apparently the visitor is not so steeped in seeking revelation on matters of prophecy that he can overlook the religious rheumatism of the present.

This visitor from Liverpool has not come to this land as one who is to say pleasant things. He has the severity of an Amos or an Ezra. In the time of Ezra it is recorded that after hearing their sins denounced "all the congregation answered and said with a loud voice, As thou has said so must we do." It would be interesting and impressive to discover a 1937 congregation doing the same thing.

Brussels Points the Way

Always is there something new, or something different. Never have we envied those writers whose business it is to put into shape the social events of the season because in so many cases the folk have been doing pretty much the same thing. They have been playing bridge, or they have been indulging in games of some sort; in a good many places in this district we notice when gatherings are held they play euchre and progressive crokinole.

We read in the Brussels Post of one gathering which was different. It was a birthday party, and with commendable caution no mention was made of which one was being marked. But the good folk who attended came bearing gifts and before they departed there was the customary "dainty lunch." That much of it is not unusual, but we commend this line:

"The evening was spent in fancy work and conversation."

We cannot recall having seen it put that way before, and it seems to indicate a condition where utility and pleasure were mixed to a nice degree with the pleasant sound of friendly voices. No person received a nasty look for having trumped an ace and no one went home feeling sorry the hand had been overbid. We take it the folk on departing could tuck their work away in a bag with the feeling of satisfaction that something had been accomplished. There is much to be said in favor of that sort of entertainment which takes place in Brussels, which is candidly recorded as a time when "the evening was spent in fancy work and conversation.

An Apprentice in 1847

A heading worded "Stop Him!" inserted in the Peterborough Weekly Despatch of January 13, 1847, was probably put in that way to arrest the attention. It had that effect when looking over this paper today, more than 90 years after the paper was published.

The notice in full was this:

STOP HIM!

Ran away from the subscriber last Monday Week, James McBean, my indented apprentice. Any person harbouring or employing him after this notice will be prosecuted to the utmost limits of the law. And I also give notice that I will not be answerable for any debts contracted by him in my name.

THOMAS BELL.

Cavan, 1st December, 1847.

The terms of apprenticeship were far different then than today. The indentured apprentice signed himself to rigorous statements, and he was often bound by deposit to complete the full period agreed upon. It was also an offence on which legal action could be taken for an apprentice to pick up and leave. In the light of today's regard for such matters the old system was too severe and too rigid, and probably if the old-timers could look at some of our apprenticeship methods of today they would say they are entirely too loose.

How Did He Do It?

Rumanian youth, 16 years of age, who had been working as waiter in a restaurant in London, Ont., recently confessed he was guilty of having committed a series of 33 thefts within two months. The thing seems so amazing as to be almost unbelievable, but the police seem to be willing to accept the youth's plea of guilty as the solution for the whole business.

The Chatham News notes that inquiry will be made to find out just how this boy happened to enter the country. That may be interesting, but more to the point would be some knowledge of how he entered so many premises without being detected.

If there are 33 places in London which can be entered by a youth of 16 then it would seem that putting out the lights at night and locking the doors is little more than an empty gesture.

NOTE AND COMMENT

British Columbia is to have an election in June which seems to be a very effective way of spoiling one of the year's best months.

A twelve-year boy has won the chess championship of Manitoba and the mystery is how they managed to keep a youngster of that age quiet long enough to master the game.

Three California youngsters started out to sea in a washtub with New Zealand as their ultimate goal. They must have been descendants of the famous three wise men of Gotham.

An aviator whose propeller dropped off in midair landed beside an undertaking establishment—unhurt. Just how the undertaker views the incident is not made clear in the story.

There has not been an arrest in Lunenburg, N.S., for a month which means either that the folk have been very good or the police force has not been very active.

Objections have been raised because a member of the R.C.M.P. has been investigating Communistic activities in disguise. Still he would not have made much progress if he had carried on his inquiry in a scarlet tunic.

Sturgeon fishing is to be permitted in Northern Manitoba lakes after a closed season of ten years. The announcement will recall the fact that sturgeon could at one time be caught in many Ontario rivers and lakes.

There has been a vacancy on the council of Marysville, N.B., for three months and six nomination meetings have failed to produce a candidate. With a civic spirit like that there will be no holding Marysville back.

Toronto street commissioner complains of the folk who cut their lawns and throw the grass out on the road. He evidently believes in the value of an early warning for we cannot imagine there has been much of that kind of thing in recent months.

It is a surprise to find that there should be controversy over the discharge of a field piece as part of a Sunday memorial service in Toronto. We always had an idea that you could fire off a cannon in the Queen City any Sunday without hitting anyone.

It is proposed that British prime ministers should sit in the House of Lords so as to be relieved from the questions and criticisms they receive in the Commons. Evidently there must be a few Jean Francois Poulicts in the British House too.

WARNED

(By A. R. K.)

¶ When I was but a little lad, at adding figures I was bad, though I worked hard and long; I'd do all things I ought to do, yet found when I was done and through, my answers would be wrong.

¶ The teacher scolded quite a lot, and said my adding was a blot, my brains had come apart; if I faced future years like that, my ending would be hard and flat. In fact I'd never start.

¶ My Uncle Eben told me too, I'd have small chance in pulling through, my adding went to seed; to take a job I would not dare, I'd pick up odd things here and there, it would be tough indeed.

¶ It was a gloomy outlook then, when I lived on Concession Ten, the wheels clogged in my tank; I'd never rise to own a store, and have deep rugs upon the floor, nor could I run a bank.

¶ I got a job one day at noon, the boss just handed me the broom, I had to sweep the floors; I had to get his mail and stuff, he kept me hopping hard enough, doing thirty-seven chores.

¶ He never asked if I could add, when I was but a little lad, no figures did I get; and I've been working on for years, now hair is grey above my ears—and I can't add right yet.

Our Statesmen At Their Labors

From Parliamentary Debates

Mr. SPENCE: Let us have some information about the building at Kingston.

Mr. CARDIN: The sum of $42,302 is provided for the erection of a machine shop requested by the Deputy Minister of National Defence. He says the machine shop is necessary for making major repairs and overhauling guns and other militia equipment. A plant capable of undertaking and maintaining a repair service for the R.C.A. and other local units should have about 10,000 square feet floor area, and the necessary equipment should be adjacent to the premises in which the guns are stored. The request has come from the Department of National Defence.

Mr. MacNICOL: Does it include the machinery for the repair of the guns?

Mr. CARDIN: No.

Mr. MacNICOL: Why is the term "machine shop" used?

Mr. CARDIN: I understand the Department of National Defence will place their old machines in it.

Mr. MacNICOL: It is just a storehouse.

Mr. CARDIN: Yes.

Mr. GRAYDON: I notice provision made for a public building at Arthur, another at Burlington, and another at Oakville. Can the minister tell the committee what kind of buildings they are. Will they be post office buildings?

Mr. CARDIN: Yes.

Mr. MacNICOL: A lethal chamber at Arthur.

Mr. GRAYDON: They are post office buildings?

Mr. CARDIN: Yes.

Mr. BENNETT: Not a place to store guns?

Mr. CARDIN: No.

Mr. GRAYDON: All three places I mentioned, Arthur, Oakville, and Burlington, are close to the boundaries of the county of Peel. I was wondering if coming events are casting their shadows before, and that we might expect something within the next year or so in the constituency of Peel.

Mr. BENNETT: Philanthrophy stops at the county boundary.

DROPPING A TUNNEL

Mr. STEWART: I gather from what the minister said when these estimates were up before, that practically all the undertakings under the two Public Works' Construction Acts have been completed and that none of them appear in these estimates. Is that correct?

Mr. CARDIN: There are only three items that have not been put through—the Cobalt public building, the Guelph public building, and the Toronto tunnel. All the other undertakings have been carried out.

Mr. STEWART: Guelph public building; that is not the new public building, is it?

Mr. CARDIN: No, that is the installation of an elevator in the old building, for $15,000.

Mr. STEWART: Approximately what would be the total of those items?

Mr. CARDIN: For Guelph, $15,000; Cobalt, $58,000; and the Toronto tunnel, $1,000,000.

Mr. STEWART: Apparently those have been dropped.

Mr. CARDIN: Yes.

Mr. STEWART: They are not provided for anywhere in these estimates?

Mr. CARDIN: No.

Mr. STEWART: Have any representations been made recently in connection with the tunnel at Toronto? The airport question seems to be very much alive there now.

Mr. CARDIN: No representations have been made to the department recently.

A QUESTION OF MANNERS

The CHAIRMAN: Shall the section carry?

Mr. SPENCE: Mr. Chairman, I wish to say a word or two. I object strenuously to the hon. member for Temiscouata—

The CHAIRMAN: The minister has the floor.

Mr. ROGERS: I am quite willing to give place to the hon. member, but I am obliged to leave the house early this afternoon and I wished to make a brief statement before going.

Mr. SPENCE: Does the minister object to my making a statement now?

Mr. ROGERS: Certainly not.

Mr. SPENCE: One would think the hon. member for Temiscouata would control himself a little bit, and not harass the house with such statements as he has been making. He has been selected as one of the delegates to attend the coronation, and a man of that calibre should be more courteous than he has been.

Mr. POULIOT: I am uncrowning your leader, that is all.

Mr. SPENCE: We appreciate his entertainment at times, but sometimes it goes too far. We cannot let it go on all the time. The hon. member used a word he had no right to use—if it is parliamentary, I am not aware of it.

Mr. BENNETT: Of course it is not.

Mr. SPENCE: The hon. member referred to the ex-Minister of Labour as the dumb Mr. Gordon, and repeated it two or three times.

Mr. POULIOT: He did not answer my questions at that time, and therefore he was dumb.

Mr. SPENCE: I want to say that Mr. Gordon was not dumb when he sat in the house. He was one of the brightest lights in the house, and probably had more friends than the hon. member for Temiscouata. If the hon. member's language was not unparliamentary, at least it was ungentlemanly and should not have been used.

Mr. POULIOT: I rise to a question of privilege. The hon. member for Parsdale has no right to say that I used unparliamentary language, and therefore I ask him to withdraw.

Mr. SPENCE: You are doing it all the time.

WHY ABERHART HANGS ON

(Lethbridge Herald)

There are a lot of rumors around that Premier Aberhart is about to resign. Ten thousand five hundred a year and a trip to the Coronation isn't easy to give up.

"Yes, ma'am, I'd be satisfied with twenty dollars to start with, but I don't like the idea of having to climb backwards and forwards through there."—Humorist.

History Behind the Coronation.

(Written for The Examiner by "L.")

READING the comments in your issue of York 120 A.D. Two Roman Emperors died in York. Constantius the Great was inaugurated Emperor of Rome in York. Henry II., 1175, held the first English parliament at York.

In the Saxon Abbey church of St. Wilfrids at Hexham stands a "frid stool." the sanctuary stool; to it fled fugitives from the law. Beverly also has a sanctuary chair, which used to bear the Latin inscription: "This stone chair is the freed stoole, the chair of peace to which what criminal so ever flies hath the fullest protection."

Old Durham Cathedral has a sanctuary knocker. In old times two monks were always stationed near and at the sound of the knocker ran, admitted and led to the sanctuary who ever knocked.

The Temple church also had the right of sanctuary. King John lodged there on his way to Runneymede. The Temple church, the round church, built by the Knights-Templars, 1095—the name was added in 1240—passed from the Knights Templars to the Knight-Hospitallers and from them passed to the lawyers in 1247 or thereabout. Near the entrance of the church lie the bodies of Knights of the Crusades; between two recumbent figures of crusaders is a tablet commemorating the members of the Inner and Middle Temple who died 1914-1918.

THE cradle or home of the law may be said now to lie in the Inns of Court, namely, Lincoln's Inn, Grey's Inn, the Inner and Middle Temple. The Inns of Court for centuries have been governed by "Benchers," or Masters of the Bench. Such names as Edward Coke, Mathew Hale, Thomas More, Blackstone, names too numerous to mention are connected with the Inns. Ben Jonson dedicated a play to "The noblest nurseries of humanity and liberty in the kingdom, the Inns of Court."

The King, in whose name all law is administered, represents not only law but the nation's history. He is, so to speak, the epitome of history for back of him like scroll unrolls the long, long road, a road crowded with people, figures of those from all parts of the Empire, those who have, stone by stone, step by step, helped in the building of Great Britain. One sees them in countless numbers, those who gave their lifetime, and those who gave their lives, not only for benefits to be derived during their own time, but for the benefit of generations to come.—a great multitude crowding a road that extends so far back that the vanishing point is lost in the mists of time.

THE Scotts went from Ireland up to Scotland, and from Scotland descended again on Ireland. In 1101 Edith, called Matilda, daughter of Malcolm, King of Scotland, thane of Glamis married Henry 1st of England in Westminster. In May, 1937, Elizabeth, descendant of Malcolm, King of Scotland, thane of Glamis, and George VI of England will be crowned in Westminster.

The earliest form of coronation service is said to be derived from the pontifical of Archbishop Egbert of York, 732-766, and used at the coronation of his brother Eadbert, King of Northumbria 737 or 38.

Westminster Abbey dates from 1050 from Edward the Confessor. The choir and transepts were built by Henry III, 1220, and the building was practically completed by Edward I, but improvements were added down to the time of Henry VII. In the choir is the tomb of St. Sebert, King of East Saxon, "of whom 'tis said builded on this spot an abbey to the Glory of God." The abbey of St. Sebert was destroyed, Edward built Westminster Abbey on the ground where St. Sebert's abbey stood. The meeting of the first commons, after the division of parliament into two houses, met in the chapel below every man within the city, except the King. The right to attend the Privy Council on the occasion of a King; the right to act as butler at cup bearer at the coronation—this last right dates back to remote times and has passed into disuse.

* * *

THE exact date of the closing of Temple Bar—the limit of the city's liberties in the west—is lost in time. Although the gate is long since gone the King still observes the city's right and pauses at that point when entering London on a state visit and he is tendered the city sword by the Mayor which he returns again to the Mayor.

When the Mayor of York goes forth in state he is preceded by the sword-bearer wearing the fur-edged cap, the cap of maintenance of Richard the second's time, and bearing aloft the great sword of Emperor Sigismund.

The Lord Mayor's procession is something much more than a show; it is the snatching up of history. The insignia of office is not a mere bauble. It is a symbol of an honor, of a purpose, a reminder of duties fulfilled and duties to be carried on. The so-called "trappings of office" have their roots deep, deep down in history.

To The Editor

WASTED EFFORT

Editor Examiner,

Sir: After listening to two addresses by Mr. J. S. Woodworth, I have come to the conclusion that he is barking up the wrong tree. Being fat and unable to either fight or run, I am naturally inclined to peace. I am positive my neighbors on either side of me and across the street don't want war. And I am safe in saying, I think, that 99% of the people of Canada and the Empire are immensely desirous of peace. Why, then, is Mr. Woodsworth wasting his time trying to create a sentiment that already exists?

Now, if the C.C.F. leader would go to Germany, Italy and Russia, and disseminate his propaganda it would be more to the point. Only he knows he would be thrown out on his ear if he attempted it. In those countries regimented populations are told by a controlled press that other nations are seeking their destruction, all as a means of whipping up war spirit against the time when the dictators are ready to attempt to achieve their avowed aim,—world domination. And against whom is this preparation directed? Against the only obstacle standing in the path of their ambition, the British Empire.

Mr. Woodsworth is right when he says that the people of Canada should decide if the country is to participate in a war. But I will venture to say that if Britain or any other part of the Empire is attacked that the Anglo-Saxon element in Canada will vote solidly to give assistance. It is sincerely to be hoped that the decision will never have to be made, but this pacifist propaganda is playing right into the hands of the aggressors. It is alright to talk about Canada setting an example to the world, but I can lead an exemplary a life as it is in my power to do, but it won't deter the gangster from following his nefarious occupation.

WORKS LIKE MAGIC.

(Montreal Star)

THE giant gooseberry and prize pumpkin will soon hide their heads in shame, if the new fertilizer just perfected by Dr. Joseph Astrel, chief medical officer of the Hungarian State Railways, does all that is claimed.

Noticing that certain dyes helped wounds to heal quickly, Dr. Astrel experimented upon plants. The results were astonishing, many species growing to five times their normal size and reaching maturity far more quickly than usual.

The name given to this giant-producing fertilizer is "Photosanin." It is put up in powder form, and is very cheap to produce, so we may soon see it in general use by farmers and market gardeners. "Photosanin" might have come out of "Alice-in-Wonderland," for while a normal dose makes a vegetable grow into a giant, an overdose reduces it to a midget!

RECKLESS DRIVER IS THREATENED WITH JAIL TERM

John Moher Of Douro Received Severe Criticism As Judgment Reserved

FAULTY BRAKES

John Moher, Douro Township motorist received severe criticism from the Bench after he pleaded guilty this (Wednesday) morning to a charge of reckless driving and admitted that an accident in which he was involved was caused by defective brakes.

Undecided as to whether or not to impose a term of imprisonment and declaring he did not consider it to be a case in which a fine would meet the circumstances, Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., reserved judgment until Friday morning.

According to police Moher was driving west on Hunter street on the evening of Saturday, March 27 and was in the act of turning south on Water street when his car scattered a group of three pedestrians who were crossing the intersection with the traffic lights in their favor.

Mrs. Irene Howarth, 122 Wentworth street, Hamilton was admitted to St. Joseph's Hospital as a result of being knocked down by the defendant's car, and suffered hip, leg and internal injury. She has since been discharged from hospital.

Asked what he had to say in answer to the charge Moher admitted. "I had no brakes on my car, but I was blind up."

"Don't you realize that a motor car with faulty brakes is a death-dealing machine. You have no right to drive a car without brakes. It is nothing short of murder. Have you any reasoning at all even to think of driving into a busy city in a car without brakes." His Worship remarked.

The car Moher was driving was stated to have cost him fifty dollars four years ago.

London will spend $3,250,000 in extending its subways.

Douro Farmers Complain That Dogs Worrying Sheep And Killing Chickens

John Deremo, 76-year-old peddler this (Wednesday) morning pleaded not guilty before Magistrate O. A. Lingley, K.C., to a charge of permitting dogs to run at large contrary to provisions of a Douro Township by-law. Hearing of the case was adjourned until Wednesday next after the aged defendant stated his intention of getting rid of the dogs.

Representing the municipality, V. J. McEdery K.C. consented to adjournment of the hearing and intimated he would be prepared to withdraw the charge if the defendant would keep his promise to rid his premises of the dogs.

Two residents of Douro Township who were present in court prepared to testify if the case had proceeded for trial, rose from their seats on the public benches to protest that Deremo's dogs had been worrying sheep and killing chickens.

In hailing an argument that threatened to develop between the aged defendant and the two witnesses, His Worship told Deremo, "Get rid of the dogs and the case will be dropped. If you do not get rid of the dogs and it is proved that they have been causing a nuisance and worrying sheep as alleged, I'll take care of you and make no mistake about that."

His Worship added that it was known all up and down the county the trouble that Deremo and his dogs had been causing.

NATURALISTS PLAN SECOND FIELD DAY

District Committee Plans Field Day In Peterborough Area

The Federation of Ontario Naturalists is planning for another field day in Peterborough district, the exact date of which has not yet been settled. There will be ten or twelve such days during the season. It is also desired to form a branch of the association in Peterborough as it is recognized that this district has much which is of interest to the naturalist. The Federation includes in its program all form of wild life, flowers, trees, animals and birds. It is also intensely interested in plans for conservation and also in reforestation.

Ontario Naturalists have invited F. J. A. Morris to be president for this district, and his committee at the moment consists of F. C. Marshall, A. D. Runions and H. H. Graham, but it is expected the number will be increased as the work develops in this district. Last year the field day was in Lakefield district, with Dr. A. W. MacKenzie of Grove School acting as host. The location of the spot for the field day this year has not yet been determined.

POWER BLOCKS PENSION ALL VETS

they became incapacitated they have some claim.

This form of assistance goes to approximately 10,500 men involving $4,500,000, Mr. Power said.

Hospitalisation was also provided disabled pensioners in eight departmental and other allied institutions. The sum of $2,930,000 was in the estimates to pay relief to those disabled veterans whose pensions were not sufficient to keep them.

There was on the statute books ample legislation to take care of all veterans, said Mr. Power. That was not to say all those entitled were receiving pensions nor that all pensions were high enough. But the machinery was there to take care of all cases.

Recently the war veterans' assistance commission had reported after an investigation there were large numbers of veterans unpensioned and undisabled, who were unemployed and in distress.

What Was Proposed

The commission definitely recommended that such veterans who had seen service in the actual theatre of war, and Imperial war veterans with similar service who had been domiciled in Canada since 1924, be awarded payment up to $5 a month for single men and $10 for married men to supplement what they were receiving in local relief in the municipalities in which they resided. Mr. Power said his answer to this recommendation would be "No."

He would also reject any suggestion an Imperial war veteran, not a pensioner who was not domiciled in Canada until after the war, should be made a "ward" of the Canadian people.

A large number of voluntary committees had been set up across the country under the "War Veterans' Assistance Commission," he said. These committees were finding work for veterans. They were registering unemployed veterans.

As a result of their surveys it was estimated there were about 25,000 unemployed ex-service men not receiving pensions and not being dealt with under one of the existing schemes.

Roughly there were about 400,000 ex-service men in Canada, said Major Power, and of these 100,000 were being looked after by the government in one way or another. Out of the remaining 300,000 there were about 25,000 who might need assistance.

EXHIBITION BOARD JUMPS ADMISSION TO ANNUAL FAIR

Strip Tickets However Will Be Sold At Four For Dollar

VOTE UNANIMOUS

General admission to the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition will this year be boosted to 35 cents, according to a decision of the Exhibition Board at a meeting Tuesday. Strips of tickets will, however, be sold at 4 for $1 in advance of the Exhibition opening.

The decision resulted from a general feeling that the show afforded within the gates is sufficient to justify the admission price current at all other fairs in Central Ontario. Of the more important exhibitions only The Canadian National Exhibition offer admission at 25 cents, it was pointed out.

General admission last year was 25 cents and purchasers of strip tickets gained admission for 20 cents.

Considerable discussion preceded agreement of the Board on the increased admission, but the vote was unanimous when taken. L. J. Clancy sponsored the move, seconded by R. M. Glover.

The Board discussed the suggestion emanating from the City Council that the local tourist camp should be removed from the Exhibition Grounds to Riverside Park, but no formal expression was voiced. The majority of the Board members were of the opinion the city would be well advised to maintain tourist accommodation at the Exhibition Grounds as in the past. It was apparent the Board intended to take no action and open the grounds to tourists again this summer. The caretaker is to be employed as usual, it is understood.

Construction of a new fence on the west and north sides of the grounds and on the east side from the southwest corner as far as the cattle barns was decided upon. For expedition of this and other maintenance matters, a sub-committee composed of R. M. Glover, E. F. Mason, Roland Denne and President Thomas Brown was appointed.

It was reported to the Board that all but two of the Exhibition Judges have been obtained.

North Monaghan's Successful Appeal Is Still Smarting Board Of Works

North Monaghan's successful appeal to the Ontario Railway and Municipal Board for a reduced cost of connections to city sewers laid through the township is still smarting the Board of Works.

The judgment of the Municipal Board cut the cost in half, from $18 to $9, and the city has to pay $65 as the township's legal fees in connection with their appeal.

"Where does Monaghan get this stand in?" Alderman Stocker enquired Tuesday night.

"I guess we didn't organize well enough," Mayor Macdonald said.

"We are compelled to do the work below our estimate of the cost," Ald. Dutton commented.

"And the first application for a sewer connection after the decision was announced was made by Reeve Milby," Ald. Sloan told his committee.

Mayor Macdonald said the Municipal Board had the right to decide the terms of sewer connection costs in the township. "We got a decision some years ago giving us the right to lay sewers through the township, and other clause was added at that time giving residents in Monaghan permission to apply for connections to sewers laid past their homes," Mayor Macdonald recalled.

"I guess we're got to pay the $65," Alderman Stocker said, moving that the bill be paid.

but he considered the present time opportune for such a move in view of the fact that certain changes in the educational system are to come into effect next Fall.

He urged that a ground floor office should be provided for his successor, because he stated, his own efficiency had been reduced twenty-five per cent by having a third floor office in Central School that had not been readily accessible to the public.

Dr. G. R. Scott, chairman voiced the Board's appreciation of Mr. Mowat's thirty years of service as a public school inspector, and he remarked on the fact that before attaining to his present position he had taught public and high school in the province for nineteen years.

On motion the question of securing new office accommodation for Inspector Mowat's successor was referred to the property committee under chairmanship of Harold O. Walker.

TORONTO, April 7 (CP).—Coronation stamps to the value of $50,000 have been ordered by a Toronto millionaire, C. A. Moore, secretary of Canadian Philatelic Society, said today.

The reason for the sudden interest here in Coronation stamps was the success in jubilee issues in which E. G. Jarvis, Hamilton-born Buffalo resident, had invested $750,000 to make a profit of $300,000, he said.

BREAKS HIS ARM CRANKING MOTOR

Ten-Year-Old Jimmie McGill Victim Of Painful Accident

(Examiner Correspondence.)

JANETVILLE, April 7. — Little Jimmie McGill, 10-year-old son of Mrs. McGill and the late Herbert McGill, suffered a most unfortunate accident on Saturday morning.

Jimmie was trying to assist his uncle, Mr. Allan McGill, who was making some repairs to his car and, unnoticed, commenced cranking. The engine immediately backfired and Jimmie received a broken arm.

He was rushed to the office of Dr. Parker, Lindsay, and upon X-ray examination it was found that both bones were broken in the form of a "goose-neck" break. The injured member was treated and later the brave little victim was able to return home.

Successful Dance

Another successful dance under the auspices of L.O.L. No. 99 was held in the hall on Friday evening, April 2, and despite most unfavorable roads, the hall was filled to capacity.

Splendid music was supplied by Mr. F. Hamilton's orchestra. Refreshments were served at midnight after which dancing was resumed for an hour or two. The proceeds were most gratifying and will be devoted to lodge purposes. The next dance will not be until May 7, when, it is hoped, the roads will be more favorable.

QUEEN BESS MADE PECULIAR RIGHTS FOR ABBEY DEANS

Westminster Has Special Duties To King, As Church Head

AT CORONATION SERVICE

LONDON, April 7 (CP)—Special functions fall to the Dean of Westminster at the Coronation service on May 12. The Deanery of Westminster is what is known as a "Royal Peculiar," meaning that the Dean is responsible to the King alone, and does not acknowledge jurisdiction of any Bishop over himself or the other clergy of Westminster Abbey.

For 10 years following the dissolution of the monasteries, Westminster Abbey was the "cathedral" of a Bishop of Westminster but Queen Elizabeth finally placed it under an independent Dean and Chapter, whose successors rule today. The endowments, incidentally, of this bishopric were diverted to St. Paul's Cathedral—hence the old saying "robbing Peter to pay Paul."

Following the anointing and the presentation to the King of various pieces of the regalia it will be the Dean's duty to vest the King with the Armill and Royal Robe. "Armill" really means a bracelet, an ornament which has been specially associated with monarchs from time immemorial. King Saul was wearing one when he was slain in battle.

Nowadays "Armill" is a kind of stole. The royal robe corresponds to a chasuble or cope, and is ornamented with golden eagles symbolical of the sovereign's imperial authority.

It is the Dean's duty also to bear the crown when the Archbishop of Canterbury moves from the High Altar to King Edward's Chair, where the Archbishop "reverently puts it upon the King's head."

Would Improve Abbey

The present Dean of Westminster, Rev. Dr. Foxley Norris, was appointed in 1925, and for some years previously had been Dean of York. Before that he was Archdeacon of Halifax for 11 years.

Since he came to Westminster, Dr. Norris has striven hard to create an artistic opinion which would allow certain additions to be built to the Abbey, and so furnish what he considers would provide adequate facilities for the arranging of processions, the storing of vestments and so on. So far the Dean's efforts in this direction have met with little success.

Taxes in the Irish Free State are being reduced.

Home and School Association News

QUEEN ALEXANDRA SCHOOL

Miss Genevieve Fowler, speaking on Books for Children, was guest speaker at the Monday-night meeting of the Queen Alexandra Home and School Association, with the president, Mrs. I. M. Richardson, in the chair.

Miss Fowler stressed the value of good reading, both for educational purposes and for good company, and urged the need for creating a taste for good reading in children, by the use of attractive editions of worthwhile books. Of especial interest was the demonstration of splendidly-bound, illustrated, printed and priced volumes of the classics, which would attract the most casual reader.

Reports of the Easter-week convention in Toronto were given by Mrs. Richardson, assisted by Mrs. H. Trumain, Mrs. J. S. Reynolds and Mrs. H. G. Welser. The ladies remarked on the stress laid on the importance of good work, in every aspect of the work.

Supplementing the Religious Education section, J. R. R. Munro spoke of the desirability of preparation of a related sequence of Bible readings suitable for the upper grades.

Mrs. Thomas Shield reviewed a paper given by Dr. Murray Fraser on the home treatment of wounds and burns.

The president reminded the parents that a combined Open and Fathers' Night will be held next month, at a date to be announced later.

Interesting musical numbers were presented, in two piano numbers by Ruth Gaskell, and a tap dance and song by Sylvia Duignan and Irving Parnell.

The wedding of Winnifred Preston, younger daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. A. J. Preston, B.A., B.Th., of Keene, to Hilton Roy Hilliker, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Hilliker of Norwich, Ontario, was a pretty and quiet ceremony, solemnized on Monday at St. Paul's Presbyterian Church by the Rev. Dr. A. T. Barr, M.A., assisted by the bride's father.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was charmingly frocked in pink silk organdy with a bouquet of sweet peas. Her attendant, Miss Mildred Hilliker, sister of the bridegroom, was attired in yellow sheer and carried Talisman roses.

Stanley Preston, brother of the bride, was best man.

After the ceremony, the party returned to the Presbyterian Manse at Keene, residence of the bride's parents, where a dainty wedding dinner was served. Mr. and Mrs. Hilliker left later by motor for a brief trip, to reside later in Norwich. The bride travelled in a rosewood suit with navy blue hat and accessories.

Thinks Campbellford's Mayor Should Have More Information

Councillor Wants Data As To Cost Of Changing Power Lines

RAISING CENOTAPH

$400 Is Provided To Cover Expense Of Necessary Alterations

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, April 7.—A minor flare up occurred at the meeting of the Town Council on Monday night during the discussion of the Bell Telephone Company's proposal to remove its overhead lines from the main street and place them at the rear of the buildings and to run an underground cable from the corner of Booth and Bridge streets across the river by submarine cable and again underground to the corner of Sebastopol and Canrobert streets.

Mayor Long told the council that the Water and Light Commission to take advantage of this opportunity and change their lines at the same time and also to install new light standards.

"How much is this going to cost the town?" asked Councillor P. H. Macmillan addressing himself to the Mayor.

When Mayor Long professed that he did not know exactly how much the change would cost the town but that it was his opinion that the money would be well spent as the work would have to be done some time in the future if it was not done now when it could be done more economically when the Telephone Company was instituting a change.

"What I would like to know is if the Commission has enough money to pay for this themselves or are they going to ask the town to help them out?" questioned Councillor Macmillan of the mayor.

The mayor explained that he thought the Water and Light Commission had sufficient funds on hand to meet the expenditure.

"I can't understand how it is that the mayor sits on all these committees and is still unable to give the council any information regarding the cost of the plant," continued Councillor Macmillan rather heatedly.

A motion by Councillor McColl that the clerk be instructed to write the Bell Telephone Company that they could start the work of changing their lines immediately was withdrawn "for fear the Water and Light Commission would construe this action as consent for them to go on with their work."

A motion by Deputy Reeve Calver that a joint meeting be held with the Water and Light Commission to consider the cost of the removal of poles and that the commission be prepared to give an estimate of the cost of the work before any negotiations be entered into regarding changing of the lines by the commission, carried.

Mr. A. H. McKeel addressed the council requesting that some action be taken to raise the Cenotaph on George street approximately six feet above its present level by placing it on a suitable concrete base.

Councillor Kelly suggested that since the pointing on the monument had gone and it would have to be re-set within the next two years it would be a good idea to go on with the work as outlined by Mr. McKeel. The approximate cost of the work was set at $400, which Mr. McKeel said could be raised to the council by public subscription and street dances.

To Raise Cenotaph.

Following some discussion as to the possibility of finding a more suitable location for the monument a motion was passed instructing the treasurer to set aside the sum of $400 to be used in making the necessary alterations said amount to be repaid to the council by public subscription. A further motion was made that Councillor McColl be made treasurer of the Memorial Fund and that a committee consisting of Mr. A. H. McKeel, Mayor Long and Councillors Kelly and Macmillan be formed.

A letter from Fire Chief Charlie Davidson requesting 500 feet of new hose, 6 firemen's coats, smoke helmets and smoke masks was referred to the chairman of the Fire, Water and Light Commission.

Following a request from Captain Sharpe of the Salvation Army that permission be granted to hold a tag day on May 15 which motion carried Dr. H. O. Richardson presented the estimates of the School Board for 1937, giving $14,650.00 as the required amount of the Public School which after deducting the Provincial grant of $800 and the Seymour Township grant left a balance of $12,743.00. The estimate for the High School was $16,180.00 with rents, provincial grants and a balance of $1000 to be deducted leaving $9,425.00. These requisitions were left in the hands of Counc. McColl, chairman of the Finance Committee, after which the pay sheet was passed and the meeting adjourned.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels and you become constipated. You get constipated. Poisonous gases go into the body, and you feel sour, sunk and the world looks muddy.

A mere bowel movement doesn't always get at the cause. You need something that works on the liver as well. It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get those two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up". Harmless and gentle. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name! Enjoyable Program When All Saints' A. Y. P. A. Pays Lakefield Visit

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LAKEFIELD, April 7. — About 50 young people were present on Monday evening in the Parish Hall, Lakefield, when St. John's A.Y.P.A. of Lakefield entertained the Young People's Association of All Saints' Anglican Church, Peterborough. Rev. Mr. Creighton of Lakefield welcomed the visitors, expressing on behalf of St. John's A.Y.P.A., their pleasure in having the Peterborough branch as their guests. A variety of novel games and contests entertained the crowd during the evening, one game especially, "Making a Will," causing a great amount of merriment. Mrs. Percy Hill of Lakefield and Donald Lynch of Peterborough carried off the high prizes in a keenly-contested peanut race. A treasure hunt, when groups of young people went out to scour the town in search of requested "treasure," last variety to the program. Requests for such articles as "a pin from a Ford V8" and "a nut and bolt with a left-handed thread" caused a good deal of fun and confusion, in fact the Scouts to scour for nothing in his own house.

At intervals during the evening, the guests were entertained with musical selections. Dainty refreshments were served by the committee in charge of arrangements, consisting of Misses Grace Watson and Pat Earnshaw, and George Chappell. At the close of the evening Allan Worsencroft of the Peterborough branch, thanked the members of St. John's A.Y.P.A. for the pleasant evening the visitors had enjoyed, and expressed the hope that the members of St. John's A.Y.P.A. would be their guests in Peterborough at a later date.

MEN at some time are masters of their fates:
The fault, dear Brutus, is not in our stars,
But in ourselves, that we are underlings.—Shakespeare.

Dear Friends:

Recently I had a letter from a man with grown-up children, and he was very resentful of the way they treated him. He said he got no respect, he was never consulted about anything they wanted to do, they belittled him if he passed an opinion, in fact he seemed to count

At present he is a builder, yet it seems to me it is rather late in the day to resent these things, now that they are grown up. This condition couldn't have arisen in just a day or a week, but must have been going on for years.

But, if when they were growing he took no interest in them, if his business and his paper and his pleasures were of more importance than his children, what can he expect? If they were too much bother so that he became simply a provider but not a real father to them, how can he look for something he never planted?

You have to give love to get love, interest to get it in return. You have to bother about someone, before they will be bothered with you, and if over the years he repulsed his children when they came to him for sympathy or love, what is he grousing about?

The mere fact of being a father or a mother, is not enough. No child has a choice about being born, and merely saving there is enough money for food and shelter on the man's part, and keeping them clean and fed on the woman's part is not being real parents. There is more to it than that.

Yet how many will do just those things, and expect all manner of return for it. They want love when they have never given any, they want respect when they have never respected the child's problems, they want a full measure for all the money or time they have spent on their children, when all they have done is their simple duty, which, if they did not perform, the law could force them to do.

They blame the child for going wrong, when they were too busy, or too concerned with their own affairs to teach them otherwise. If there are a number in the family, they lump them all under one set of rules, they make the not-so-strong one keep up with the husky one, and demand respect and love they have never given.

Children need discipline, and well they know it. They are horrible if they are treated carelessly, and if not in the schoolroom they should be taught, but in the home. But if you are a slacker, if you want peace at any price, then these same children know there is a lack, and a feeling of distrust, and a sort of contempt is born in them towards their parents.

I never blame a child so much as I blame parents if the child is ill-behaved, or a sloppy eater or has a violent temper. They never had these things disciplined out of them, or explained to them. Steel must have temper or it is no good, but if it has too much, it will break before it will bend. A temper is necessary in either a child or an adult, but it must be controlled, else it will break them indeed.

And so my friend, don't think you can lie back in your easy chair and let things take their course, or let mother shoulder all the burden, then decide now they are adults you are going to put your foot down, and not expect the scorn you deserve. You have built up something over the years which is going to be very hard to break down, yet if you are reasonable about it, there is still some hope. Think back to your own youth and find the solution clear as glass.

Thinks Campbellford's Mayor Should Have More Information

Councillor Wants Data As To Cost Of Changing Power Lines

RAISING CENOTAPH

$400 Is Provided To Cover Expense Of Necessary Alterations

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, April 7.—A minor flare up occurred at the meeting of the Town Council on Monday night during the discussion of the Bell Telephone Company's proposal to remove its overhead lines from the main street and place them at the rear of the buildings and to run an underground cable from the corner of South and Bridge streets across the river by submarine cable and again underground to the corner of Stradbrook and Campbell streets.

Mayor Long told the council that it was the intention of the Water and Light Commission to take advantage of this opportunity and change their lines at the same time and also to install new light standards.

"How much is this going to cost the town?" asked Councillor P. H. Macmillan addressing himself to the Mayor.

When Mayor Long professed that he did not know exactly how much the change would cost the town but that it was his opinion that the money would be well spent as the work would have to be done some time in the future if it was not done now when it could be done more economically when the Telephone Company was instituting a change.

"What I would like to know is if the Commission has enough money to pay for this themselves or are they going to ask the town to help them out?" questioned Councillor Macmillan of the mayor.

The mayor explained that he thought the Water and Light Commission had sufficient funds on hand to meet the expenditure.

"I can't understand how it is that the mayor sits on all these committees and is still unable to give the council any information regarding the cost of the plant," continued Councillor Macmillan rather heatedly.

A motion by Councillor McColl that the clerk be instructed to write the Bell Telephone Company that they could start the work of changing their lines immediately was withdrawn for fear the Water and Light Commission would construe this action as consent for them to go on with their work.

Joint Meeting Planned

A motion by Deputy Reeve Calver that a joint meeting be held with the Water and Light Commission to consider the cost of the removal of poles and that the commission be prepared to give an estimate of the cost of the work before any negotiations be entered into regarding changing of the lines by the commission, carried.

Mr. A. H. McKeel addressed the council requesting that some action be taken to raise the Cenotaph on George street approximately six feet above its present level by placing it on a suitable concrete base.

Councillor Kelly suggested that since the pointing on the monument had gone and it would have to be re-set within the next two years it would be a good idea to go on with the work as outlined by Mr. McKeel. The approximate cost of the work was set at $400, which Mr. McKeel said could be repaid to the council by public subscription and street dances.

To Raise Cenotaph.

Following some discussion as to the possibility of finding a more suitable location for the monument a motion was passed instructing the treasurer to set aside the sum of $400 to be used in making the necessary alterations said amount to be repaid to the council by public subscription. A further motion was made that Councillor McColl be made treasurer of the Memorial Fund and that a committee consisting of Mr. A. H. McKeel, Mayor Long and Councillors Kelly and Macmillan be formed.

A letter from Fire Chief Charlie Davidson requesting 500 feet of new hose, 6 firemen's coats, smoke helmets and smoke masks was referred to the chairman of the Fire, Water and Light Commission.

Following a request from Captain Sharpe of the Salvation Army that permission be granted to hold a tag day on May 15 which motion carried Dr. H. O. Richardson presented the estimates of the School Board for 1937, giving $14,650.00 as the required amount of the Public School which after deducting the Provincial grant of $800 and the Seymour Township grant left a balance of $13,748.00. The estimate for the High School was $16,182.00 with rents, provincial grants and a balance of $1000 to be deducted leaving $6,420.00. These requisitions were left in the hands of Coune McColl, chairman of the Finance Committee, after which the par sheet was passed and the meeting adjourned.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

The liver should pour out two pounds of bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You get constipated. Poisons poison you into the blues, and you feel sour, sunk and the world looks punk.

A mere bowel movement doesn't always get at the cause. You need something that works on the liver to get those 2 pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." Dr. Emil Frey's Pleasant Pellets are gentle, they make the bile flow freely. They do the work. Be sure to ask for Dr. Emil Frey's Pleasant Pellets. Only 25c. (Adv.)

EARLIER KINGS CROWNED FIRST TO MAKE SURE

In Middle Ages Heirs To English Throne First Took Over Treasury

CEREMONIES LATER

LONDON, April 7 (CP).—Three royal dynasties have filled the throne of England and passed away, and the dynasty which now holds sway has ruled for nearly two centuries.

While the Coronation solemnities in their essentials for the crowning of George VI. and Queen Elizabeth on May 12 will be as they have been since the beginning of the realm, it is hardly surprising that through the centuries their actual celebration has been performed under the most diverse conditions.

The practice of a Coronation taking place a considerable time after the death of the previous sovereign dates back only to Stuart times. In an earlier period the matter of a questionable succession often prompted the performance of the ceremony under conditions of haste and even of some secrecy. In the Middle Ages the first care of successors to the throne was to secure the treasury which lay at Winchester and then to hasten the Archbishop and other higher officers to the performance of the Coronation rites.

One of the first instances of long delay between accession and coronation was in the case of Edward the Confessor, so called on account of his great reputation for sanctity. He appears to have been formally recognized as heir to the throne, if not actually associated in the kingship, of Hardicanute, who recalled him in 1041 from Normandy where Edward had been taken by his parents, Ethelred II. and his wife Emma, for refuge on the recognition of Sweyn as King of England in 1013.

On the death of Hardicanute in 1042 old records have it that "all folk received Edward to be king," but his actual coronation was delayed until Easter of 1043. A few months later Edward, in conjunction with the great earls of the kingdom, made a raid on the queen-mother Emma, seized all her possessions and compelled her to live in retirement.

Saxons Killed At Crowning Of William The Conqueror

Alarmed By Shouts Of Homage In Strange Language, Normans Use Swords

BLACK PAGE OF HISTORY

LONDON, April 7—(CP).—Of all the unusual incidents which have marred many previous Coronations, the bloodiest occurred at crowning of William the Conqueror in 1066. The Norman princeling had invaded England and gained the victory at Hastings.

On Christmas, 1066, a wild snowy day, William was crowned at Westminster. For the time being there was no Archbishop of Canterbury, so the ceremony was performed by the Archbishop of York.

When the Archbishop asked the Saxon nobles, formerly subjects of Harold II, if they would receive William as their King there was such a responsive shout of approval that William's Norman soldiers, not understanding the language of the conquered people and mistaking this demonstration for signs of revolt, rushed in with drawn swords, and put many a good Saxon to the death.

In a few minutes the then new grey building was empty save for the King, prelates and monks, but the prayers and litanies went on and though robbed of some of its splendor the ceremony was performed with all order while outside Williams new Saxon subjects were being trampled under the hoofs of Norman horses.

William I was the illegitimate son of Robert the Devil, Duke of Normandy, and was trained in a hard school. Three of his guardians were murdered in France and it appeared the young duke-elect would suffer the same fate, but when he was only 20 years of age he stamped out a serious rising in the districts of Bessin and Cotentin, one of many encounters with Norman rebels.

He is supposed to have received a promise of succession to the English throne while on a visit to his kinsman, Edward the Confessor, in 1051. Twice William repelled invasion of Normandy and in 1064 the visit of Earl Harold to the Norman Court resulted in a promise by Harold to support the claims of his host upon the English succession, Harolds perjury forming the chief excuse for the Norman conquest of England.

The Duke and his Normans were enabled by Tostigs invasion of Northern England, to land unmolested at Pevensey on Sept. 28, 1066. On the 14th October he inflicted a crushing defeat on Harold at the Battle of Hastings.

OBITUARY

REV. R. B. BEAVIS.

NORWOOD, April 7.—There passed away in Vancouver recently, after a few months' illness, an old Asphodel boy, in the person of Rev. R. B. Beavis, in his seventy-sixth year, son of the late Adam Beavis, of Asphodel, he was educated in Norwood High School.

After teaching in Norwood for several years, then in Hastings and other places, he decided to enter the ministry, and through the Rev. T. Crosby was delegated to go as a missionary to the British Columbia coast. There he was stationed at Port Simpson and Bella Bella, where he labored and was greatly loved and respected by the people.

He returned home and entered the University of Toronto, where he graduated and was ordained. Mr. Beavis returned with his wife to Bella Bella, where they spent a number of years. The rest of his ministry he labored in the Saskatchewan area, and after spending almost forty years in the ministry, he retired from the work he loved and went to Vancouver to take up residence.

While there he took an active part in St. John's United Church, when about two months ago his health failed.

The funeral service was held from St. John's Church, and he was laid away tenderly in Ocean View Cemetery.

The funeral was conducted by Rev. Mr. Wicks of Coe Hill on Wednesday, March 24th at Hartsmere School House, after a short prayer and hymns at the house. 1937 RELIEF BILL PASSES COMMONS GOES TO SENATE the express understanding the increase were to be passed on to the municipalities, Mr. Rogers replied. Some provinces, however, had not passed on the increase.

The minister said he had been impressed by the recent representations of the Mayors' Association. He was studying a plan to entrust to municipalities a certain percentage of relief grants. This money could be used for joint undertakings to provide work, such as playgrounds and recreational facilities.

"We will have this purpose very much in view" when drafting agreements with the provinces this year, Mr. Rogers said.

Denton Massey (Cons. Toronto-Greenwood) asked if the plan would include slum-clearance.

The minister said it would be necessary to stay within the money appropriations. Slum - clearance schemes were not excluded so far as he was concerned, but it was up to the municipalities and provinces to agree. In his judgement, playgrounds and recreational facilities were excellent examples of the sort of work that would add to the welfare of the people.

F. F. Leonard (Cons. Wentworth) said it was impossible for a man to get a job on relief works in his district without a recommendation from the local Liberal member.

That sort of discrimination was a violation of the agreement with the provinces and in the fact they had been forced out without difficulty, Mr. Rogers said.

James S. Woodsworth, Leader of the C.C.F. group, urged the socialization of all natural resources as a step toward reform and as a long-range measure to fight unemployment. Coupled with the tapping in larger measure of available sources of taxation, including mine developments.

Ralph Maybank (Lib., Winnipeg North Centre) declared municipalities would be well advised to go on a strike against provision of any further relief unless the Federal Government came to their rescue. Denton Massey also protested the plight of larger municipal centres which, he declared, should get more benefits from monies granted the provinces from the Federal treasury.

Censoring of C.B.C.

Late in the sitting, on motion to go into supply committee, Hon. J. Earl Lawson (Cons., York South), raised the question of censorship by the Broadcasting Corporation. His particular complaints was of deletions made by the Corporation from a radio sermon prepared by Rev. Morrice Zeidman of Toronto, described later by Transport Minister Howe as "a recent convert to the Protestant faith."

Mr. Lawson claimed the sermon had not attacked any other religion but had been an advocacy of the Protestant faith. The deletions included portions quoted from the Bible, and to this he particularly objected. He also protested rejection by the Radio Corporation of a broadcast on sterilization on the grounds that it was printed verbatim in the press and there was no justification of banning it from the air.

Mr. Lawson urged that the Corporation set up a censor's committee to hear complaints. Mr. Howe replied that Mr. Zeidman had frequently attacked other religions in his radio broadcasts and was carrying on a controversy with a Roman Catholic priest and that both their utterances were being censored in Ottawa so far as broadcasts were concerned.

Aim To Offend None.

No section of the population was to be offended by radio broadcasts if it could be prevented the Minister said, and regulations of this nature were an essential power of the Corporation. He also declared that banning of sterilization broadcasts was justified on the ground they were not fit subjects for the very young who made up a large portion of the listening public.

T. L. Church (Cons. Toronto-Broadview) charged the government had negotiated with the British government for changes in the Coronation oath without reference to parliament and declared no power existed for such "secret" action while parliament was in session. No reply from the government was possible as the question rose just before the hour for adjournment was reached.

To-day the House proposes to deal with estimates for the pensions department when occasion will be provided for discussion of war veteran assistance commission reports.

missal of its injunction against the union and the U.A.W.A. said it would do likewise concerning its answer and crossbill.

Chrysler Signs

Walter P. Chrysler, chairman of the corporation, K. T. Keller, president, and other company executives signed the agreement, along with John L. Lewis, head of the committee for industrial organization, Martin and other labor leaders. E. E. Hutchinson, Chrysler finance chairman, said the fact was "non-exclusive and the corporation is free to hire union or non-union men. It doesn't preclude our dealing with other unions except for the purpose of "undermining" the U.A.W.A."

Martin, however, interpreted the document as giving his union sole bargaining rights although he said it did not set up a closed shop.

Governor Murphy called executives of the Reo Motor Car Company and the Hudson Motor Car Company to separate meetings with firm and union officials today to discuss strikes in their plants. Ten thousand Hudson employees are idle at Detroit, 2,200 Reo workers at Lansing. Those strikes began the same day as the Chrysler tie-up.

Better Car Brakes For 50-Mile Limit

TORONTO, April 7—(CP)—Question of fixing new requirements for the decelerating power of motor car brakes will be considered by the Ontario Department of highways before the new 50 mile-an-hour speed limits become effective May 24, an official of the Motor Vehicles branch said today.

The official said the present requirements were fixed some years ago after consultation with the Society of Automotive Engineers. They were equal to most of the other Canadian provinces and to most of the states.

A motor car going 20 miles an hour must be able to stop in 50 feet under present Ontario regulations. In Massachusetts this has been reduced to 30 feet.

ATTEMPT TO OUST PREMIER ABERHART

Lieutenant-Governor in the election of a premier, and is unconstitutional."

"I have no comment to make," said Premier Aberhart when advised the resolution had been submitted to the speaker by clerk of the assembly Robert Anderson.

Speaker Dawson announced his decision at a press conference shortly after the legislature adjourned for the night.

The resolution quoted from the Irish Free State constitution. There the members may elect their own premier and cabinet.

Pleads For United House

"A crisis has arisen creating dissension among us," said the resolution. It pleaded for a united house to "carry out the will of the people. It declared:

"The government has admittedly been unable to take the first steps to introduce the principles of Social Credit in Alberta.

"Be is resolved that this assembly do now declare all cabinet offices, including the office of the premier, vacant and that we forthwith proceed to elect a premier and also the members of the cabinet by a majority vote of this assembly."

There was no comment from sponsors of the resolution. It was understood the Barnes resolution was discussed at a caucus of insurgent members last night but no future plans were announced.

Supporters of Premier Aberhart met in caucus in the legislative building last night and completed consideration of the government's debt legislation, which may be introduced in the House today. It is understood to provide for a 50 per cent reduction in principal on all Alberta debts.

More automobiles are being sold in the Irish Free State than at any time since 1929.

Blinding Headaches Made Her Helpless

Forced To Lie Down For Hours At a Time

Other sufferers from headaches will be interested to read this letter:

"Until last summer I was subject to very bad headaches. While they lasted I seemed to lose my sight and all power in my hands, and was forced to lie down for hours at a time. My aunt (who has taken Kruschen Salts for 12 years) with beneficial result(s) suggested my trying them. I did so, and I've not had any return of those headaches for months, in fact I feel quite better. I shall always take Kruschen regularly in future."—(Mrs.) M. W.

Headaches can frequently be traced to a disordered stomach, and to the unsuspected retention in the system of stagnating waste material which poisons the blood. The numerous salts in Kruschen assist in the complete elimination of waste matter, resulting in a purer bloodstream, and thus helping to bring relief from headaches.

CAMPBELLFORD

SPEAKER TELLS OF "ONION" TRIP TO CALIFORNIA

Rev. H. Turner Gives Interesting Address To Members Of Rotary Club

USED ANCIENT CAR

CAMPBELLFORD, April 7.—Speaking before Rotarians at their weekly luncheon held in the St. Lawrence Hotel here on Monday, Rev. H. Turner of the Christian Missionary Alliance gave a very interesting account of his first motor trip to California two years ago when he travelled 8,000 miles from here across the Rocky Mountains to the Pacific Coast in a car of ancient vintage.

Referring to the queer conception that some Americans have of the Canadian climate the speaker assured his listeners that he encountered the worst snow storm and blizzard in all his years of motoring after he had passed through Detroit on his way to the coast. Describing it as an "onion trip" since leaving Canada in the early spring it became necessary to peel off heavier clothing bit by bit as the latitudinal lines were crossed in southern trip. Digressing for a moment the speaker told of how his trip through the fertile farmlands where large, prosperous farms which were later destroyed by the floods brought to his mind an occasion when he was travelling in South America and was caught with his family in the throes of a flood as water rushed in torrents caused by a cloud burst in the mountains. On this occasion he stood in water up to his knees as he handed his children to a higher level and after the flood waters had receded large, partly stupefied snakes were shovelled out of the houses along with the mud.

Should Travel Light.

Returning to his subject Rev. Turner pointed out that it was not until his second trip to the south that he actually learned how to travel light. Referring to automobile travellers that in order to enjoy the trip as much as possible they should take with them as little as possible in the way of luggage. The speaker gave a brief outline of the standards of living and hygiene of Mexico which forcibly brought to mind his good fortune at claiming Canada as his native land. In conclusion Rev. Turner told of his trip through the lower end of Death Valley ninety-six feet below sea level where the temperature never falls below 100 degrees, and finally climbing back up the mountains through snow and clouds to an altitude of 4,000 feet to coast down through the grapefruit and orange groves to the beautiful city of Diego which has "the world's most equitable climate." Rotarian A. D. Bennett moved the thanks of the club to the speaker for his delightful address.

All Children Lie And No Parent Can Stop Them Dr. Blatz Claims

'The Nursery School In Modern Life' Subject Of Interesting Address

TRUTH NEVER DEFINED

"All children lie; no matter what we do, they do lie...."

If parents say their children don't lie, then the parents themselves are liars, or they are ignorant.....

"We cannot share our inner selves with the world or with anyone else, unless through language, and as soon as we start to talk, our talk is subject to the phenomena of lying."

Switching his subject from a scheduled talk on "The Nursery School in Modern Life," to an address on "The Psychology of Lying," Dr. W. E. Blatz, Professor of Psychology at the University of Toronto and director of St. George's School of Child Study, entertained his listeners with an address at the Collegiate Institute auditorium on Tuesday evening, under the auspices of the Home and School Council and the Department of Health.

Dr. Blatz, who appeared to have a thoroughly enjoyable time of it, delivered a talk that resembled somewhat the writings of the late G. K. Chesterton, who liked to pull down established ideas and present a fund of assorted theories in their stead.

The meeting was presided over by O. M. Biser and the address was preceded by a very beautiful rendition of "Sonny Boy", sung by Mrs. Mendell Braund, with accompaniment by Mrs. S. J. Richardson.

Commenting on the somewhat attenuated attendance (in the neighborhood of two hundred people), the speaker thanked those who had come to hear him, and said: "How few are compared to all of Peterborough, as a group interested in children. But the same thing might happen in Toronto tomorrow. We have gone ahead with leaps and bounds in our scientific and mechanical life. We travel in cars and aeroplanes. But, in speaking about our neighbors, we are not much ahead of medieval times. Our advance in social legislation has not kept pace with the advance in our material life."

Truth Never Defined

The speaker, who was introduced to the audience by Dr. O. Murray Fraser, declared: "It amuses me to hear people talk about absolute honesty and absolute truth, because there isn't such a thing. No one yet has ever defined the truth. It has too many faces...."

He divided the practice of lying into four categories: the psychological lie, the lie of fancy, the lie of loyalty, the lie of protection.

"Everyone employs to some degree some one, or all, of these. In dealing with children, we must decide on the kind of lie before it can be correctly diagnosed. Most of you have been trained in the theory that all lies are bad, but I will demonstrate that there isn't one of you who can carry on in the social world of today without lying."

In dealing with the psychological lie, Dr. Blatz described it "as the inevitable result of the apparent deficiencies in our consciousness." Everyone, he declared, is subject to lapses of memory, so that, in recalling a previous incident, important factors may be omitted, or certain facts may be added to the original happening, or a re-arrangement may take place with reference to time and place. Then, after recalling it two or three times in any one of these distorted ways, the narrator tends to believe his own story which has also, in most instances, been colored by prejudice.

Parents should not confront a child who has told a lie of this type, with the question: "Are you telling the truth?" They should forget the lie, asserted the speaker.

As for the lie of fancy, Dr. Blatz appeared to be greatly in favor of it. Human beings, he said, are entertaining it so far as you can't predict what is going to happen next. The child discovers early in life that the more interesting you are, the more you are sought after, and that most people are not all interested in the fine details of life, but are seeking instead for some interesting highlight, the thing that happens only once in a while.

"If we wish to enjoy life, we want to train children to grow up to be able to lie fantastically, because, aside from the joy they give up, this may become one of the most lucrative form of employment. The child who lies well may grow up to be a great novelist. How else could we have a Robert Louis Stevenson, an A. A. Milne, a Lewis Carroll?"

"Lies of fancy," Dr. Blatz asserted, "require far more skill than being honest. It is far easier to add up a row of figures and get the right answer than to get a wrong answer that will suit. When your child starts in on those lies, congratulate yourself and see that as it grows up, it is developed to an adult standard."

The Loyal Lie

Referring to the third classification, the lie of loyalty, he said: "Without the lies of loyalty, we could not get along. We teach our children that they must not tattle. And yet there is a skeleton in every closet, or at least a few dry bones. We teach our children this deep, dark secret and that we don't want these bones to rattle. So that when Mrs. Jones prys, we hope that our child will protect us. And, in addition to the lies of loyalty to the family, there is loyalty to the group, to the fraternity, to the State. If your child becomes really skilled in the lie of loyalty, he may grow up to be an ambassador.

"Call them white lies, or what you will, we can't get along without them. If your child doesn't learn, you must start in to train him and tell him how and when to lie. When I hear children of five and six saying prettily "Please" and "Thank you," I know they are being trained in a species of lying, for no child of that age ever says such things voluntarily."

As for the lie of protection, Dr. Blatz said: "Those are the lies that manifest themselves in children which we don't like to see and would like to know how we can eradicate them."

He defined this type of lying in two sections. The first has to do with the desire of the child to protect himself from discipline which is often all fault, as in the case of an accident like a spilled ink-bottle on a cloth. The child, lying to protect himself, blames this on a cat, and the parent, recognizing the invention, punishes him accordingly. The proper procedure is to recognize the occurrence as an accident pure and simple and enlist the aid of the child in repairing the damage and preventing its recurrence.

"We should always remember to maintain up discipline that if we, as adults, thought that the administration of justice in the State were as just as we would like, there would not be the lying among us that is prevalent in many instances, such as in filling out our income-tax returns."

That Insecure Feeling

The second section in this category is concerned with the lie that rises out of a feeling of insecurity in the ego or self. An outgrowth of this is in the copying so prevalent in schools. For this, Dr. Blatz blamed the competitive system of marks which gives to the brilliant student an unfair advantage over his dimmer-minded companion who knows, whether the teacher realizes it or not, that he can never hope to attain to the mental ascendancy of his clever companions and feels obliged to resort to copying to get by.

Another outlet for this feeling of insecurity is evidenced in the malicious lying and gossip which is so characteristic of Rubidge street south of MacDonnel street to provide an entrance into a building of the former Wm. Hamilton Company on the east side of Reid street was granted on Alderman Dutton's motion providing permission is obtained by Realty Brothers from the Ontario Railway and Municipal Board. City Engineer Parsons estimated at $200 the cost of opening the street including removal of the foundation of what was once a storehouse for machinery forms. It was stated that this building had been constructed many years ago on the unopened part of Rubidge street and the cost of demolishing the stone walls would have to be borne by the city as owners of the street allowance.

Inspect City Yard

Referring to Alderman Sloan's suggestion that a new shed for storing materials should be built in the city's yard on Townsend street which is to be enclosed with an eight foot wire fence Mayor Macdonald advised that the yard should be resurveyed and defined as a preliminary to the location of any new buildings which may be required.

"Every member of the council should go down and look over the property," Ald. Slocombe said and Ald. Sloan was asked to arrange an early visit of the council to the yard.

"It might all have to be rearranged," Ald. Hamilton remarked. "Like Topsy it just growed up."

MINIMUM VALUE OF $4,000 PUT ON NEW HOMES

Bylaw Must Be Submitted To Ontario Municipal Board For Approval

NORTH END AREA

New dwellings are restricted to a minimum value of $4000 in the northeast end section of the city bounded by Wolseley street, Benson avenue, Park Hill road and both sides of Aylmer street, by Alderman Glover's motion seconded by Alderman Stocker at the meeting of the Board of Works Tuesday night.

The bylaw embodying the proposed restrictions has to be passed by the council and submitted to the Ontario Municipal Board for its approval. A deputation of ratepayers who have petitioned for this measure made their third appearance at the city hall. They first appealed to the council as a whole, and when their request was referred to the Property Committee they returned the second time. Monday night the bylaw was held up in the third reading to give Joseph Labrash and any other objectors a hearing before the Board of Works which is composed of all the members of the council.

Mr. Elliott accompanied the main delegation of property owners and reported that they were satisfied to have the minimum valuation reduced from the original $5,000 to $4,000.

Mr. Labrash said he had bought two lots for $500 for both. One is 48 feet and the other 40 feet frontage. He has built one house on the west side of Aylmer street worth about $2,500 and he intimated that if he built another for $4,000 as required by the bylaw he did not think he could find a buyer for it. He said his plan was to build the type of house workingmen could pay for.

"Citizens must be protected if they are spending considerable sums of money on new houses" Mayor Macdonald stated; "but we will try to be fair to all parties."

Alderman McIntyre said he owned property in that area, but he would not oppose the bylaw. "I am willing to take a chance," he added.

Members of the Board said they considered $4,000 a reasonable minimum value for new houses that may be erected in that section of the city, and the Glover-Stocker resolution was unanimously carried.

King Edward Street

A petition from residents of Ware street that its name be substituted for King Edward street from Lock to George streets south of the C.N.R. was left in abeyance for consideration when the renumbering of streets comes before the Board.

Car Wrecked Against Pole But Driver Escapes Lightly

Kenneth Reid Emerges With Minor Injuries From Terrific Crash

MACHINE SOMERSAULTS

(Examiner Correspondence)

LAKEFIELD, April 7.—When the steering-gear on his car locked as he was driving north on Queen street shortly after 11 o'clock on Tuesday night and the machine failed to negotiate a left hand turn near the northern outskirts of the village and was wrecked against a telephone pole, Kenneth Reid, 23, of Lakefield and son of Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Reid of Douro township was fortunate enough to escape with minor injuries.

The terrific crash when the car struck the pole, which was broken off by the impact, was heard for a considerable distance and the condition of the automobile which was almost completely wrecked, has caused wonder that the driver should have got off so lightly. Although the automobile would seem to have somersaulted after crashing the pole and came down on its side in a driveway leading into the property of Trueman Jewell, facing the opposite way from which it has been going, Reid escaped with shock, bruises on his left side and some facial cuts caused by broken glass.

After the crash Reid was able to crawl out of the car in a half-dazed condition and walked half a block to the home of relatives where he was taken care of for the night. Dr. Fraser who examined him stated that his injuries were not serious.

For Thursday, April 8

An eventful day, full of enterprise and notable achievements, is read from the prevailing planetary configurations. There are signs of changes of a precipitate nature and these should prove profitable if tendencies to rash and impetuous words and conduct are properly suppressed. Indulgence in these and in reckless, tempestuous, jealous and angry behavior would be hazardous to very promising conditions.

Those whose birthday it is are confronted by a memorable year, with many opportunities for progress and profitable change and unusual emotional or intellectual experiences. But these happy auspices should not be circumvented by reckless, tumultuous, quarrelsome and vilent behavior.

A child born on this day may be temperamental, impulsive, indulgent, highly talented, enterprising and adventurous as well.

COUNCIL DRAFTING DANCE HALL BYLAW LICENSE FEE $20

Finance Committee Seeks To Regulate Public Dance Halls In Peterborough

CLOSING HOURS SET

Regulation of public dance halls is proposed in a bylaw that was scanned by the finance committee of the council Tuesday night. As tentatively drafted it would require owners of such halls to obtain a license from the city at a fee of $20 which with $5 fee for refreshment booth would amount to $25.

Applicants for a dance hall license would have to satisfy the chief constable as to personal character, and police would inspect the hall to see that good order was maintained. No girl under sixteen years would be admitted during dancing hours unless accompanied by a parent.

Alderman Sloan said that sixteen years seemed too young, and Alderman Glover's comment was that most of them today "have got their dancing years all over by the time they are 10." Mayor Macdonald expressed the opinion that girls under sixteen should be at home in bed instead of thinking of dancing.

The provisions of the bylaw will not apply to private dances and those conducted by patriotic, fraternal and charitable organizations. It is likely that a clause ordering public dance halls to close at 1 a.m. and at midnight Saturdays will go through. The closing clause was discussed at considerable length. Mayor Macdonald and some of the aldermen favored 11.45 p.m. Saturdays, but the midnight limit was agreed upon as a concession to those who have money invested in dance places.

Alderman Glover said he was formerly interested in the Brock Street Summer Gardens, and from that experience he appreciated the difficulty of trying to make the rink pay. The city has been providing free rinks, and as a result of that competition skating at the rink probably does not turn in a revenue of $300 for the entire season. In other years the rink would take in $138 in one evening when the crowd was exceptionally large. The dance hall venture was entered upon to get some extra revenue from the Brock street property to compensate for the decline of skating.

Penalties for the infraction of the bylaw would begin with a fine not to exceed $25, and end with cancellation of a license in the discretion of the council.

Beverage Room Closing Hours Remain Unchanged In Cobourg

Council Of Opinion Liquor Control Board Is Passing Buck

NO ACTION TAKEN

COBOURG, April 7.—Notice from Chief Commissioner Odette advising the council that the municipality had the right to fix the hours of closing for beverage rooms received a peremptory disposition at the hands of the town council Monday night, one Liberal member of the council asserting that it was a case of the "Government passing the buck to the municipality." Mr. Odette's letter pointed out that the municipality had the right to decide at what time between ten and midnight that the beverage rooms should close, all being necessary was the passage of a by-law which would have to receive the approval of the Liquor Control Board.

"The Liquor Control Board has control of such things, and there is no reason why they should put it in the lap of the municipality. I haven't heard of any trouble here anyway" said Councillor McGuire.

Councillor Archie Russell said: "I have supported the Government but in this case I think that the Government is passing the buck."

Parks Board Objects

The Parks Board in a letter from its solicitor, Harry Dayman, told the council that it had no right to reduce the board's estimates without inquiring into the needs of the board. Nothing except a press report had been made public to the board in regard to the council cutting the grant, and in view of this, the board intended to go ahead and spend up to its estimated amount.

Council passed a by-law lowering the mill rate from 47 to 46 mills as a result of the provincial subsidy of one mill, the amount being about $3,000.

Resignation of Humphrey Stitch from the Parks Board and the Board of Health was accepted by the council, Mr. Stitch resigning because of ill-health. The clerk was instructed to write a letter expressing appreciation of his services.

A letter from H. R. Tasker, general manager of the Ontario Car Ferry Co., informed the council that, contrary to reports, there was not enough business to keep both ferries in operation and had not been since 1931.

A deputation headed by Lt.-Col. C. T. Peterson was present at the meeting to inform the council of the plans discussed at a meeting of various organizations relative to Coronation celebration, to be conducted along lines similar to the Jubilee observance. The council gave the deputation authority to spend up to $100 on souvenir medals for the school children in connection with the Coronation.

BILL KEMP WINS HANDICAP SWIM

Defeats K. Gillespie In 40-Yard Breast Stroke Race In "Y" Pool

Standing the strain of three consecutive heats, Bill Kemp won the 40 yard breast stroke handicap swim in the "Y" pool by a slim margin from the scratch swimmer, Ken Gillespie. These two swimmers tied for first place in the final and, like the 40-yard free style event of two weeks ago, a swim-off was necessary to decide the issue. These handicap races are creating considerable interest in boys' swimming at the "Y" and the attendance is increasing weekly.

This Friday night, the local boys are hosts to the Orillia Y.M.C.A. in a dual swim meet and, in preparation for it the juniors will have an extra period this Thursday afternoon at 4.30. Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

By CEC. PERDUE

THEY WERE sitting around shooting the bull about one thing and another a few nights back when the discussion turned to Barrie in the O.H.A. junior playdowns. And, inevitably, to the Barrie-Peterborough series. And we listened with interest to Java Joe's account of the final game which he saw. His odd pronunciations fascinate us and stick in what we laughingly call our mind. Joe was polishing off his third jug of java when the Barrie question came up. "I went on that train 'extortion,'" he says, "and I never saw such a mob. Packed in like sour beans and everything. It's no wonder the humidity was so low. But they all make the extortion in the hopes the Colts will submerge winners. Hope springs internal, they say.

* * * * *

"I LISTEN to a guy who saw the game in Barrie and he is still seeping with ignition over a steal put over by the Barrie gold judge. He says it is grand arsony and if he lives to be a nongenarium he will never see such a two-faced hunk of bestness outside of maybe the Simonise Twins. He says the gold judge should have been tired and feathered instead merely of being ejaculated from the rink. But I tell him it is the irony of faith and that Justice is not only blindfolded but also blind, camtidately speaking."

* * * * *

HE WAS quite impressed with the large crowd paying four bits to six bits for the privilege of seeing the game. "It surprised me to see so many hockey frantics going in. I stopped to facilitate the guy in the box office on his business accumulation but he intimidated that I was holding up the line. Inside the rink is threes parts filled with noise guns and dolls some filled with the spirits of Demon Rum and others just filled with spirits! They were very based in their opinions, having a lot of infection for one team and loafing for the other. I never saw such an indigent and belligncrant crowd in my life. Once the game is started there is hardly a gentile person there, and in the intermittance between periods pantomime reigned—it was kayotick!

* * * * *

"THE PETERBOROUGHS went good for a time but they weren't real opportunistics and Barrie gets the verdigris. But it was a mural victory for the Petes anyway and they deserve an orchestra. Or a sactimonial banquet as a tonsin of our depreciation for what they done in spite of an unconscious gold judge. I had a great time on the extortion all right but I was so hoarse next day I had to gargoyle my throat quite infrequently!"

YOUNG MEN of Manhattan—the N'Yawk Rangers—are better than a marathon dancer's heels right now and the way they pushed the Red Wings around last gleaming in Madison Square Garden didn't keep Smilin' Jawn Adams smiling. However, the Wings fly high on their own Olympia ice and may yet barge through to cop the Stanley Cup again this year. Regardless of the outcome you've got to doff the weather-beaten chapeau to Lex Patrick as being one of the best—if not tops—of the pilots in the N.H.L. And he has more color than a window full of Spring styles. But the team from the town of sit-down strikes has a bunch of knock-down parksters who will be in there punching hard the next few games, not—we regret to state—for the honor of hanging onto a battered silver mug but for a wad of greenbacks that goes to the victors.

A MILD squawk from Oshawa: "Oshawa lawn bowlers like other clubs are fed up with getting their dates mixed due to the Central Ontario and Provincial Association groups each controlling tournament dates. Last night, at an organization meeting, the local trundlers moved to have a committee formed which would be in charge of the entire district and in this way tournament dates will be allotted and mixups avoided. The South African bowlers visit Canada this year and Peterborough will get the visit for this district. Oshawa are hoping to have their turn at entertaining in 1938 on their new courts." Chief Gimblett and his buddies are busy lining up plans to entertain the touring South African exponents of the game of bowls.

TWO PLAYOFF games in the Ladies Basketball League will be staged this Friday e'en in the Y.W. gym. C.O.E. Juniors meet St. John's and Westclox tangle with C.O.E. Seniors. These are second tilts in two-in-three series for the championships, and the Electrics won the first contests. St. John's have a very fair chance of evening up the junior affair but the Clockmakers will have to hustle like a.m. commuters or they'll miss the train. St. P.C.I.'s and P.C.I. wind it up Saturday night in the Y.M.C.A. in men's basketball and it looks like curtains for the Collegians. What time are these different tussles set for, anyway?

SOME THOUGHTFUL soul has sent us a copy of the April Tick Talk, an entertaining house organ put out for Westclox employees. Besides a lot of interesting chatter and very personal "personals" ala Winchell, it contains a bunch of sports items on hockey, basketball and an ole, or two. We see that the editorial staff is made up of Editor F. R. Scott and Reporters C. R. Chapman, Stewart Hayes, Pearl Elliott, J. N. Stanger (could that be Nelly?), Hugh Robertson, Harry Baptie, Jim Pearse, Marion Weeds, Bertha Pamment, Bill Sharpe, Mary Gregson, G. Big Bout Fails To Worry Joe Louis
He Flops Into Bed For All-Day Nap

CHICAGO, April 7 (AP) — Joe Louis came home from his barnstorming tour today—so unconcerned over plans for fighting James J. Braddock that he flopped right into bed for an all-day nap.

The Brown Bomber didn't stay up long enough to say he was happy that arrangements for a chance at the heavyweight title at Comiskey Park, June 22, have virtually reached the point of certainty. He was so sleepy when he reached Chicago from San Diego, Calif., that even his appetite failed to keep him from hustling to bed.

Co-Manager Julian Black said Louis would rest until Friday, when they plan to go to Hot Springs, Ark., or West Baden, Ind., for a two-week stay. After that, the negro, who weighs about 205 pounds, will head for the open spaces for a three-week wood-chopping and hiking siege. Jack Blackburn, the Bomber's schoolmaster, said Louis had "smartened up on his lessons" during the tour on which he engaged in twenty exhibitions.

"The boy showed steady improvement on correcting some little faults," said Blackburn. "No, I can't say what those faults are. That's a secret between me and Joe. Anyway, he won't have any faults when he meets Mr. Braddock."

Simmons Sold

After purchasing Al Simmons (ABOVE), from the Chicago White Sox for $75,000 last year, Detroit Tigers have sold him to the Washington Senators for an unannounced sum. Sold only to Goose Goslin in runs batted in, Simmons, was shoved in the field. Manager Mickey Cochrane decided to keep Rookie Chet Laabs and so had to dispose of one outfielder. Simmons was the one to get the nod.

Red-Hot Rangers Are Sent Message From Asbestos, Que.

"A Dangerous Coal On Every Stick" Is Slogan Of Team

OTT HELLER MARKED

MADISON SQUARE GARDEN, New York, April 7 (CP)—The "red hot" New York Rangers emerged from last night's one-sided championship victory over Detroit Red Wings to find a congratulatory telegram from—of all places!—Asbestos, Que.

"The Rangers have developed a new slogan—a dangerous goal on every stick," Manager Lester Patrick grinned as he contemplated the five goals his Blue Shirts scored in the Stanley Cup series opener. Two of them were by his husky son, Lynn, and one by Joe Cooper, whose last previous goal was scored when he played last season for Philadelphia Ramblers, Rangers' farm team.

"We've got two strikes on them now," Patrick chortled. "They're out to win two straight before we start worrying."

Roland Rondeau of Asbestos sent the telegram from "Previous Town" to the "team on fire." It said best wishes "to Lynn and the rest of the boys."

Ott Heller Marked.

Lynn said he thought his two goals were "swell." Busch Keeling just grunted when his opening counter was mentioned. Frankie Boucher wore his usual wide grin and Cooper opined that was the stuff that counts in playoffs.

Ott Heller, Kitchener's contribution to the New Yorkers, was the only one to show visible marks of battle. He sported a chunk of sticking plaster on a head cut he received prior to his third-period brawl with Eddie Goodfellow; from that fight which he said started when the Detroit defenceman boarded him, he emerged unscathed.

The contagious grin was missing from the ample face of Manager Jack Adams, but with amazing confidence he said:

"This is a five-game series and I still think we can take them."

Adams had no alibis for the woeful showing of his skaters in the first period which actually wrote their defeat in three insurmountable goals.

"Those Rangers," he said, "were hot as pepper. Our boys certainly weren't anyway near their stride. We should have pulled even in that one-sided second period, but Kerr was just too good on the night's play, the better team won but we're far from being down."

Smith Far From Right.

Adams revealed that he pulled Normie Smith out of the goal after the disastrous first period to save him for the games to come, not because the arm injury he suffered against Montreal Canadiens had been aggravated.

Smith himself said, "I'll be in there for the next game. I think it will be a winning one."

It was apparent when young Patrick banged in his first goal that Smith was far from right. He wasn't able to raise his arm to attempt to save on Lynn's slam shot. A nerve near the left elbow crippled the arm. The Detroit players were grim but not glum as they hurried into street clothes to catch an 11.45 p.m. train for home.

Blond Hec Kilrea, hero of the overtime triumph over Canadiens Thursday, summed up the feeling of the Motor City squad when he said:

"It just wasn't our night—and it sure was Kerr's."

KNOT HOLE CLUB TO ENROL 100,000

1,000 Boys' Baseball Teams Will Be Organized Among Knot Holers

CINCINNATI, April 7 (AP).—Cincinnati Reds, seeking to spread the gospel of baseball, Monday invited every school boy from 9 to 18, within a radius of seventy-five miles of Cincinnati, to join their knot hole baseball club.

"We expect to have more than 100,000 boys in the club this year," said General Manager Warren C. Giles. "About 60,000 were enrolled last season when the only boys eligible were those in Greater Cincinnati."

He estimated more than 1,000 boys' baseball teams would be organized among the knot holers in Ohio, Kentucky and Indiana.

"We hope the knot hole club will keep the youngsters playing ball; will keep them baseball-minded," Giles said.

"If we can do that, we not only will be taking a step toward the development of future baseball stars, but we'll go far to keep alive the fans' interest in the game."

RANGERS LACE WINGS BY 5-1 IN FIRST GAME

Victors Open With Three-Goal Splurge In First Frame

SMITH IS REPLACED

Injures Arm Again And Robertson Goes In Nets—Shows Up Well

NEW YORK, April 7.—(CP)—Manhattan's surprising Rangers, more potent than ever in their previous playoff games, jolted Detroit Red Wings back on their collective heels last night with a smashing 5-1 triumph in the first game of the best-of-five Stanley Cup finals.

A capacity crowd of more than 16,000 delirious fans cheered the Rangers on as they opened with a three-goal splurge in the first period; added another in the second and then matched tallies with the enemy when each side rang up a single tally.

The game was replete with thrilling and dramatic moments. The first occurred when Manager Jack Adams of the visitors had to replace his all-star goalminder, Normie Smith the brilliant Torontonian, after the first frame.

Smith, who suffered a bad arm injury in the series which saw the speedy Wings win the National League title by eliminating Montreal Canadiens, hurt the member again with a blazing shot from the stick of Lynn Patrick bounced off his arm and into the cage. He was unable to lift it after that and was replaced by Earl Robertson an Edmonton product who has been playing for Pittsburgh of the International-American League.

Robbie Plays Well.

Robertson took Smith's place for a game in the semi-final series against Canadiens.

Robertson played a fine game in the last two frames, and only his heady and acrobatic work prevented the "hot" Rangers from piling up a bigger margin so deadly was their passing and sniping.

Melville (Butch) Keeling, the Owen Sound minute man, started the New Yorkers off to victory by scoring an easy goal in the first six minutes. After getting a relay from Murray Murdoch, the Winnipeg "iron man," Butch slapped the puck goalward, and it was deflected off Sully's reach by Bucko McDonald's stick.

Patrick then scored with the aid of Frankie Boucher, veteran Ottawa centreman, who played sparkling hockey throughout, and Art Coulter, belting defenseman. With less than two minutes of the period to go the game was practically sewn up when Joe Cooper scored with the aid of Keeling and Cecil Dillon.

Boucher notched the only tally of the hard-checking second chapter following a brilliant solo rush which saw him outwit Bobbie Goodfellow and Scotty Bowman of the Detroit backline and backhand a shot past Robertson.

Rosy-cheeked Syd Howe saved the Motor City outfit from a shutout by flipping the puck into the open cage late in the third period after a lengthy scramble around Davie Kerr, Rangers' sensational goal-minder, who was somewhat annoyed at not hanging up his fourth shutout in five playoff games. This goal was countered shortly after by Patrick's second score, notched on a relay from Boucher after the Wings had been trapped in the New York end.

Heller-Goodfellow Fight

Ott Heller, Rangers rearguard from Kitchener, and Goodfellow enlivened the third-period activities by staging a brief and rousing fistic bout. Both dropped their sticks at the same moment, and threw punches until they crashed into the boards.

Goodfellow then got in some healthy blows while Herbie Lewis held the Ranger. Referee Mickey Ion and Johnny Mitchell got knocked down and shoved around a bit, and Heller received a cut on the head which required several stitches.

The brawl was quickly stamped out and the belligerents given major penalties.

Wally Kilres and Phil Watson threw a few punches at one another to bring the crowd to its feet in the last minute, but were soon parted and penalized for two minutes.

The winning team held a narrow margin on the play throughout, getting in 35 shots at the Detroit cage, six minutes. Smith getting a relay while the Wings levelled 30 at Kerr.

Only six penalties were meted out in the gruelling joust, with each side getting three.

Wings left immediately after the game for Detroit, where the balance of the series will be contested, with Rangers now favored to win the battered trophy from the defenders.

BRADDOCK BUSY CHOPPING WOOD

Will Spend Next Two Weeks With Axe And Saw In Wisconsin Bush

By Charles Dunkley
(Associated Press Sports Writer.)

STONE LAKE, Wis., April 7 (AP).—Chopping down trees in the woods surrounding his camp and sawing them into firewood length to heat his cabin will be the extent of James J. Braddock's training activities for possibly two weeks.

The world's heavyweight champion said today he will indulge in no boxing for at least that time. Road work is out of the question because of the muddy condition of the highways, almost impassable, even to motor cars, due to melting snows.

Any hopes of playing golf that Braddock entertained vanished after a storm left half a foot of snow on the course at Hayward, 24 miles away. Although Braddock brought his clubs along, he probably will not get a chance to use them until May 1.

As a result he will devote his time to chopping and saxing. Bobb Lippmann, Braddock's trainer, is a strong believer in a boxer, wielding an axe to toughen his hands. He says that exercise also sharpens a fighter's punches. Lippman has trained Braddock for 12 years and previously conditioned Benny Leonard, former lightweight champion, Gene Tunney and other noted ringmen.

MRS. ETHEL MARS HAS 5-PLY ENTRY KENTUCKY DERBY

Chicago Sportswoman's Major Threats Lie In Reaping Reward And Case Ace

OUTSTANDING IN 1936

By Orts Robertson
(Associated Press Sports Writer.)

NEW YORK, April 7—(AP)—Mrs. Ethel V. Mars, first lady of the United States turf, is bidding for the 63rd running of the Kentucky Derby at Churchill Downs, May 8, with a five-play entry that boasts quality as well as numerical strength.

Heading the delegation from the Chicago sportswoman's Milky Way Farm at Pulaski, Tenn., are Reaping Reward and Case Ace—two of 1936's outstanding juveniles. The others include Murph, a sprinter of no mean ability; Jawbreaker, of which little is known, and Military, which ran second to William Dupont, Jr.'s, Fairy Hill in the $500,000 Santa Anita Derby last Winter.

Reaping Reward is considered the stable's real threat, however, ranking only a notch below Pompoon and Brooklyn in the future books at 10 to 1. This son of Sickle won only five of his 15 starts as a 2-year-old but wound up the year with two victories that stamped him as a route-running horse.

He whipped Pompoon by a nose in the mile and 70 yards of the New England Futurity and then came back a week later to take the mile of the Kentucky Jockey Club Stakes at the Downs. These two victories together with a triumph in the United States Hotel Stakes at Saratoga figured largely in his total earnings of $88,965.

"Reaping Reward is well advanced after training since January 9," writes Trainer Bob McGarvey from Arlington Downs where the five eligibles are receiving their final preparation before moving on to the Downs. "He did a mile in 1.42 for me recently and went on to cover 1 1-16 mile in 1.47. His only drawback is that he isn't such a good muddier.

"As for Case Ace, there's a horse that will be dangerous if he will go 1¼ mile."

SUDBURY TIGERS IN FINE SHAPE

Hand-Picked Squad Goes West To Meet Beavers In Calgary Thursday

TORONTO, April 7 (CP)—Sudbury Tigers, rulers of eastern senior hockey, will present a hand-picked lineup when they face North Battleford Beavers at Calgary tomorrow night in the first game of a best-of-five series for the Allan Cup. In best of spirits, 15 players, Coach Red Stuart and Manager Harry Towns will arrive at the foothills city tomorrow morning.

Nucleus of the club is the Frood Mine team which won the Nickel Belt League championship and lost only one game during the schedule. Three other players have been chosen from other teams in the league to round out a squad which marched through eastern opposition with little difficulty.

Thumbnail sketches of the players:

Goal:—

Charlie Teno—Rated one of the best goalies in Ontario. A Windsor product, he played with Hamilton Tigers last season when they won the Senior O.H.A. championship. First year with Frood Mine.

Defence:—

Frank LaVigne—Was with Halifax Wolverines when Coach Stuart steered that club to the Allan Cup in 1935. Boasts Ottawa as his home sport and has been with Frood for two seasons.

Rudolph (Bingo) Kampman — Graduate of Kitchener intermediate ranks, this hard-bumping defenceman, has been playing in the Nickel Belt for two seasons, joining Frood last fall.

Bill Regan—A reinstated professional, once with New York Rangers, this big fellow has a steadying influence on Tigers. He did a bang-up job this winter as player-coach-manager of the Creighton Mine team.

Verdell Price — Starred with Brockville Maedomas when Sudbury Falcons eliminated them in the eastern playdowns last season. Coached Coniston Mine this year. A steady player, he got in some pre-season training with Chicago Black Hawks and it is reported his name is still on that club's reserve list.

Centre:—

Jim Dewey—Spearhead of Tigers' attack, this former Moose Jaw and Saskatchewan University star has won the Sam Rothschild Trophy, awarded to the Nickel Belt's highest scorer, two seasons in a row. He was a member of the Saskatoon Quakers team which made a successful tour of Europe.

Steve Conick — Veteran of the club, this smooth playmaker comes from Hamilton. He teamed with Maxie Bennett and Toe Blake on Hamilton Tigers' great scoring line of 1933.

George Hastie—Light but tricky George is Tigers' most valuable man when they are shorthanded. He is an artist at ragging the puck. Originally from Windsor, he played with Teno for Hamilton Tigers.

Right Wing:—

Mel Hill — Blond Bomber from Saskatoon who is considered a fine professional prospect. Played with Sudbury Cub Wolves in 1935 but was barred from playoffs when the O.H.A. refused to grant his card. He is recognized as the fastest skater in the Nickel Belt.

Jules Cholette—Colorful Frenchman from Hull who played two years in Paris and is playing his first season with Frood. Has the hardest shot on the team.

Charlie Marshall—Gleaned from Ottawa senior ranks. Marshall's backchecking was a feature of Ontario Refinery's play in the Nickel Belt League this winter.

Left Wing:—

Don Grosso—Considered the best utility man on the club, this Sault Ste. Marie youngster has proved invaluable in the playoffs. He graduated from Sudbury junior ranks.

Murph Chamberlain — Another player with lots of experience. Coming from Shawville, Que., he broke into organized hockey with Ottawa Primroses and played with New Edinburgh seniors and at Lake Placid. After moving north he played with Noranda, Que., and South Porcupine, Ont., before going to Sudbury.

RAMBLERS DOWN SYRACUSE STARS

Open First Of Series With 2-0 Victory To Imitate Parent Rangers

PHILADELPHIA, April 7—(AP)—Philadelphia Ramblers, a hand-picked aggregation of budding hockey stars who hope to hit the big league in a year or two with New York Rangers, are following closely in the steps of their National Hockey League parent.

Winners of the Eastern division playoffs in the International-American League, the Ramblers started off their final series for the league title last night by whipping the high-powered Syracuse Stars 2-0, while the Rangers were beating Detroit in the first game of the Stanley Cup series. To make the parallel even close, the Stars, Western division champs, are "farm hands" of Toronto Maple Leafs, beaten by Rangers in the opening round of the National League playoffs.

The clever young line of Bob Kirk, Clint Smith and Bryan Hextall did all the scoring. Chuck Shannon, Syracuse defence man inadvertently passed the puck to Kirk for the first "break" and the former Vancouver player promptly converted it into a goal. Five minutes later Smith was on the scoring end of a three-man play.

READ THIS FIRST:

A cable from America excites the interest of the stenographer in the dingy law office of Stuckey & Stuckey, London. Upon his arrival Charles Stuckey learns that Miss Jacqueline Smith, daughter of one of his few respectable clients, now on the continent with her mother, has inherited $1,000,000 from an American uncle. Colonel Alec Lutman, who obviously has some hold over Stuckey, calls and reads the cablegram about the inheritance when Charles leaves the office for a few moments. Lutman proposes that they arrange for Jim Asson, an ex-convict, to marry Jacqueline Smith, having her assign her property—before Stuckey tells her of the inheritance—to her new husband. Lutman would take three-fifths of the inheritance, Stuckey and Asson each one-fifth. Asson arrives and agrees to try and marry Jacqueline and Stuckey reluctantly consents to handle the legal end of the scheme.

(NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY)

The hotel Walderstein was not the best hotel in Cobenzil, and for that reason Mrs. Millicent Ferguson Smith had a grudge against it. If it had been the best hotel, Mrs. Smith of course, would not have been staying there; and although she tolerated its second-class amenities with a show of patient resignation, she could never shake off a secret feeling of resentment against the place for its failure to be the sort of hotel in which a woman of her taste would choose to reside.

Yet the Walderstein, besides the comparative moderation of its tariff, had much to commend it. It had a pleasant sunny terrace that looked out over the valley of the Danube; it had comfortable chairs on the terrace, and big gaily colored sun umbrellas, exactly like those of the more expensive hotels, and, even had its charges been less moderate and its food more elaborate, the view from the terrace could hardly have been more beautiful than it was under present conditions.

At the moment Mrs. Smith did not seem to be agreeably impressed by the beauty of the view. Seated in a low cane chair beneath one of the umbrellas, she was gazing at the river with a look of disapproval more in keeping with the Thames at Wapping than with the sunlit waters of the Danube at Cobenzil.

Seeing Mrs. Smith sitting there, frown not only at the Danube but at the entire unjust and ill-conceived scheme of existence; but "the forties" is a wide and vaguely defined realm in which a woman may wander for far more than a decade without adding to her years, and Mrs. Smith certainly did not look her age. She was still pretty; she had still to discover the first silver thread in her dark hair; and her slim figure was still independent of special diet and fatiguing exercises. Her dress, too—cause of so many feminine frowns—was such as any woman might have worn without frowning even in Cobenzil's best hotel. All these blessings, and Mrs. Smith was none the less frowning. But she was not at the moment counting her blessings; she was mentally counting the contents of her purse.

The manager, of course, had behaved very badly—coming out here on the terrace and flourishing the bill at her and gabbling on in his nasty guttural English. After all, it was quite a small amount. Four weeks for herself and Jacqueline at his wretched little hotel was nothing to make such a fuss about, especially as for the first fortnight she had paid her bill regularly each week.

That was the worst of staying at these second-rate places; they thought only of getting their money, and didn't take the least trouble to keep the bath water hot. Last night she had actually shivered, and the boast this morning hadn't been that nothing could so effectually wither the roots of a young friendship as a suspected shortage of money, and she did not want either Jim Asson or Colonel Lutman withered; both of them were coming along nicely, and it would be disastrous if anything should occur now to check them. Time enough to broach money matters when their friendship was more firmly rooted and likely to survive the shock.

But the financial situation had to be faced. The manager had delivered an ultimatum: either she must pay her bill within a week or she must leave his hotel. He had a wife and a family to support, he said—as if she were in some way responsible for his indiscretions! But the ultimatum was a nuisance. It had been delivered at a most awkward moment. Mentally counting her assets, Mrs. Smith realized that the settlement of the bill within the stipulated time limit was in the highest degree improbable; which would mean that, unless the manager could be brought to a more reasonable frame of mind, she must leave the hotel. And she did not wish to leave; because that would mean leaving Jim Asson and Colonel Lutman and abandoning all her schemes and hopes. Jim Asson and Colonel Lutman were chances far too good to be left lying about a continental hotel for anyone else to pick up and make use of.

Still there was a week before the ultimatum would expire, and a great deal could happen in a week. She must see if she could speed things up a little. If only Jacqueline were more tractable....

She lighted another cigarette, caught the sound of footsteps on the terrace, and turned her head to see Jacqueline coming toward her. She noticed that the girl was frowning, and instantly dismissed her own frown and greeted her with a smile.

The outward appearance of Jacqueline Smith always brought a smile to her mother's lips. Jacqueline in that respect was so completely satisfactory, with her dark hair, her gray eyes, her clear-cut features and her slim, boyish figure.

Jacqueline helped herself to a cigarette and lighted it.

"Well, mother? Do we start packing?"

Millicent Smith glanced at her quickly. She had tried very hard to cure herself of the habit of giving her head a sudden turn when Jacqueline made one of her unexpected remarks, but she had never managed to do it. Some of the girl's remarks were so very disconcerting.

She raised her eyebrows in mild surprise.

"Packing, my dear?"

Jacqueline nodded.

"I suppose we're moving on, aren't we?"

"Moving on? I hadn't thought of it, Jacqueline. We're fairly comfortable here, and there are some quite nice people staying in the hotel, and even if the bath water isn't very good—"

"What you mean, mother, is that you hoped I didn't understand. But I saw the whole thing from the window of my bedroom, and it didn't need much understanding. Where are we going next?"

"We're going nowhere; we're staying here."

"But if you don't pay the bill..."

"I haven't said I can't pay the bill. Just because I don't choose to pay this afternoon—on the hotel terrace, in full view of everybody—it doesn't follow..."

Jacqueline cut her short with a gesture of impatience.

"Why go on pretending, mother? I'm not a perfect fool, and it doesn't deceive me. Do you really suppose I don't know why we left Marienbad, and Prague, and—oh, half a dozen other places? We left because the hotel would give us no more credit.

"When a hotel manager starts waving a bill we usually do move on, don't we?"

Again Mrs. Smith raised her shapely eyebrows.

"I don't think I quite understand, Jacqueline."

Bedtime Story

By HOWARD R. GARIS

UNCLE WIGGILY'S UMBRELLA

"What's the matter?" asked the Fox.

"It's raining again," mewed the Bob Cat, who, of all the Bad Chaps, most hated to get wet.

"What if it is raining?" growled the Wolf.

The three Bad Chaps were in the Wolf's den. The Fox and Bob Cat had gone there to talk about a new way to catch Uncle Wiggily. And while they were in the den it began raining. It was just one of many showers that always happen in April.

"What if it is raining?" asked the Wolf again. "None of us is sugar or salt—we won't melt in the rain."

"No, but we can't catch Uncle Wiggily in the rain, either," said the Bob Cat.

Has a Plan

"Nonsense," yapped the Fox, that being his way of talking. "We shall have all the better chance to catch the rabbit in the rain. He will be carrying his umbrella."

"How will that help us?" asked the Bob Cat.

"Why, when Uncle Wiggily walks through the woods the rain with his umbrella over his head he can't so easily see us sneaking up on him," said the Fox.

"That's right," agreed the Wolf. "This is the very day to catch that rabbit. He'll be leaving his bungalow about this time to go adventuring and he'll be sure to have his umbrella as it's raining hard."

"Good!" laughed the Fox. "Come on, Bobbie!" he called. "Out you go!"

Quickly the three sneaked up.

"Oh, dear!" mewed the Bob Cat, who very much disliked getting wet. "Why don't you two chaps go out and catch Uncle Wiggily and bring him here?" he asked.

"What!" We do all the work and you stay in the cave where it's nice and dry?" howled the Wolf. "Not to you!"

"No, indeed!" yapped the Fox. "Come on, Bobbie."

"But my tail will get all wet!" said Bobbie.

"Ho! Ho!" laughed the Wolf. "If I had such a silly little tail as yours I'd be glad to get it wet."

"That's right!" chuckled the Fox. "Maybe you tail will grow longer, Bobbie, if you take it out in the rain."

"Oh, don't try to be funny!" sneered the Bob Cat. But he went out with the two other Bad Chaps and soon they were in the woods through which Uncle Wiggily often hopped.

Sneak Up

"Here he comes now!" whispered the Wolf.

"And he has his umbrella over his head!" said the Bob Cat.

"He can't see us. We can easily sneak up behind him and catch him!" said the Fox. Quickly the three Bad Chaps sneaked up on Mr. Longears. But before they could get near him, all of a sudden the rabbit began running very fast through the rain with the umbrella over his head. He ran so fast he soon got safely away from the Bad Chaps.

"How did he do it?" panted the Fox, lying down to rest. "How did he know we were coming."

"Some bird in a tree must have warned him," said the Wolf.

"Perhaps he smelled us," mewed the Bob Cat. "But, no, he couldn't do that. The wind was blowing from him to us. It's a mystery."

But it was no mystery to Uncle Wiggily.

That morning, before going adventuring, he had put an old automobile rear vision mirror inside the front part of his umbrella. He could look in the mirror just as he could in the one in his car and see who was coming back of him.

"And when I saw the Bad Chaps in my mirror back of me," laughed the bunny, "I sped away from them as if they were traffic cops. Ha! Ha!"

And if the back fence will please stop coming on the front porch to ring the doorbell, I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily's happiness.

U.S. Senate Hedges On Stand To Condemn Sit-Down Strikes

Balks At Coupling Them With Roosevelt Bill To Control Wages And Hours

OUTLOOK IMPROVING

NEW YORK, April 7—(CP)—The United States senate balked yesterday an effort to have it take a clear-cut stand against sit-down strikes, labor's newest weapon to force its demands, but it appeared the issue had merely been postponed.

As the Senate declined by a 48-38 vote to couple a denunciation of this form of strike with the Roosevelt administration's bill to control wages and hours in the coal industry, three senators promptly introduced at Washington new declarations of policy against sit-downs and announced they would seek an early vote.

The most strongly worded of the new resolutions offered by Senator William King, Utah Democrat, condemned these strikes as "subversive of the authority of the United States", and as creating "disorder, lawlessness and a growing spirit of disrespect for law and the courts."

In the House Representative Clare Hoffman, Michigan Republican, introduced a bill to make sit-downs illegal where they affect interstate or foreign commerce.

Scene Improves.

While the federal legislators moved toward placing a control on labor's latest technique, no large scale sit-down strike marked an industrial scene that appeared to be improving. John L. Lewis' Committee for Industrial Organization, most prominent user of this weapon, gave notice of its intention to seek unionization of the country's 1,000,000 petroleum workers but a labor leader said no sit-down strike was contemplated.

Meantime, absence of official command from President Roosevelt on this type of work stoppage, where Labor forces its aims by taking possession of plants, continued to be criticized by many legislators, economists and editorial writers. Some observers blamed the president's failure to take a definite stand for the wave of strikes which temporarily "drowned" a great number of industrial plants.

Move Has Spread Far

No strike has been so serious as that which threw 100,000 men out of work for 44 days in January and February when 11 branches of General Motors were occupied by sit-downers. However, since then the fever has broken out in many places, from airplane factories to hospitals, from 10 cent stores to textile mills.

Sit-down strikes were known before John L. Lewis, hard-driving president of the United Mine Workers broke with William Green, mild-mannered head of the American Federation of Labor on the issue of industrial unions versus craft unions. However, they did not reach national dimensions until the bushy-maned Lewis set out with his usual vigor to gain members for his C.I.O. unions and force workers' demands. His cry was that labor was not getting a just share of increasing industrial profits.

While the charge that the strikes primarily to force Green and craft unionism to the wall continued to be heard in anti-Lewis quarters, it was clear that labor had found new strength under the C.I.O. banner. A year ago the United Automobile Workers' Association, now a C.I.O. branch, had between 30,000 and 40,000 members. Now it claims almost 300,000 steel union membership and is said to have climbed from 15,000 to 200,000 in the same period.

Domination Of Car Industry In Canada By Lewis Forces Of U.S. To Be Blocked

Mounties Held Ready In Toronto—When Plant Opens, Protection Guaranteed

TORONTO, April 8.—(CP).—Premier Mitchell Hepburn will throw the force of the Ontario Government behind General Motors of Canada to prevent dominantion of the automobile industry in Canada by the John L. Lewis labor forces of the United States, it was learned authoritatively to-day.

The Premier was expected to issue a statement late to-day commenting on the strike of 3,700 General Motors workers at Oshawa and setting out the Government's position in the crisis.

Labor Minister David A. Croll and Louis Fine, Industrial Standards Officer, took part in negotiations last week which prevented the strike taking place March 27. In subsequent conferences between the management and employees Fine acted as chairman.

175 Extra Police Called.

It was learned a force of 200 Canadian Mounted Police was en route to Toronto and will be stationed here 25 miles from the strike scene, for call if disturbance marks the strike. The Provincial Police were ordered to stand by while 75 officers were advised to come to Toronto.

Premier Hepburn spent most of the morning dealing with the strike situation. He instructed that liquor stores and beer taverns in Oshawa be closed, the order being carried out through Liquor Commissioner E. G. Odette. By telephone he conferred with officials of his Labor Department and General Motors representatives.

The fact that recognition of the United Automobile Workers of America, a United States organization, was the chief strike issue was said to have convinced Mr. Hepburn his Government should support General Motors.

Pledge Protection.

It was understood that when the company is ready to announce operations at the Oshawa plant will resume, the Government will promise those returning to work will not be interfered with by strikers.

In the absence of Mr. Croll on vacation, Mr. Fine and Roger Irwin, the Minister's secretary, reviewed departmental efforts to prevent the strike during a conference with Premier Hepburn.

BIG SCALE ACTION ON AIRWAYS IN '37

$915,000 Appropriated For Airports, Radio Beacons, Other Features

OTTAWA, April 8.—(CP)—Construction of airways, airports and radio stations throughout Canada is scheduled for continuation on a big scale this year. In the supplementary estimates for the current fiscal year tabled by Finance Minister Dunning in the House of Commons today, $915,000 is appropriated for that purpose.

The chain of emergency landing fields across the Dominion is almost completed, with fully equipped stations at the principal points on the route. The money will be devoted to speeding up construction operations in view of the projected initiation on the trans-Atlantic air service this year.

In addition to the above sum, the civil aviation branch is down for another vote of $650,000. This is to be applied in the form of contributions to assist municipalities on the trans-Canada airway to improve existing airports, or provide new ones.

For maintenance and construction of radio direction finding stations, radio beacons and other features, $75,000 is being appropriated additional to the two other items.

Last Minute News Flashes

PITTSBURGH — John L. Lewis charged today the Ford Motor Company was preventing its men from joining labor unions through a system of intimidation and coercion. "Mr. Ford's River Rouge plant in times past has been an arsenal—still is today," said the chairman of the Committee for Industrial Organization, "all of which, however, will not gain him the end he seeks."

BAYONNE, France — Basque reports from Bilbao front tonight said of the slaughter of a brigade of Spanish Insurgent cavalrymen, mowed down by government machine guns in the Mount Urgabola sector southeast of Bilbao.

McNARY, Ariz. — A new search was started today for four men unreported more than 36 hours since they started a difficult trip toward the scene of a plane crash that killed eight persons. Sheriff John Nunn said he feared the four were lost somewhere on snow-covered Mount Baldy.

Nearly 2,000,000 pounds of coffee was produced in Panama in the last year.

Oshawa Goes Dry While Strike Lasts

Oshawa, April 8—(CP)

ALL beer parlors, brewers' warehouses and government liquor stores were closed here today for the duration of the strike of employees of the General Motors of Canada plants on order of E. G. Odette, Ontario Liquor Commissioner.

Closing came shortly after the strike call this morning of 3,700 employees and was made at the request of Mayor Alex Hall.

In addition, all hotel taverns were closed soon after the strike got underway. It was not even possible for hotel guests to order a bottle of beer sent to their rooms.

Union Moves Reveal Ford In Opposition

Will Never Recognize U.A.W.A. Or Any Other Says Industrial Magnate

STRONG FOR OPEN SHOP

Will Change His Mind As Sloan And Chrysler Did Says Lewis

DETROIT, April 8 (AP). — The United Automobile Workers of America embarked today on a formidable enterprise — the unionization of the 150,000 employees of the great Ford Motor Company.

John L. Lewis, head of the committee for industrial organization, announced this latest objective last night just after Henry Ford had proclaimed his industrial empire would "never recognize" the U.A.W.A. or any other union.

Lewis was a speaker at a mass meeting of union members in the State Fair Grounds Coliseum. The huge throng, overflowing the building, shouted its approval of the agreement between the U.A.W.A. and the Chrysler Corporation ending a strike in its eight Detroit plants.

Ford expressed his stand toward unions at Wyandotte, Mich., in revealing a "brief cessation of activities" in his company's factory at St. Louis. A union leader at the plant said it was due to a "misunderstanding."

Stay Out of Unions is Advice.

Many Others Injured As Tornado Hits Mill Village

TROY, Ala., April 8 (AP)—A tornado killed at least four persons, injured numerous others and levelled houses in a lumber mill village at Brundidge, Ala., to-day.

Highway patrolman Will Tatum, who aped to the storm scene, reported four bodies had been found.

Chief Walter R. McAdory on the Alabama highway patrol, received the report at Montgomery, Ala.

"Tatum told me they knew four were dead," McAdory said, "but didn't know how many more. I've sent 20 patrolmen to Brundidge."

Justice of the Peace L. R. Ray at Troy said he was informed the storm struck the mill village, half a mile from Brundidge first, levelled many houses, then hit the edge of Brundidge's residential section.

Hospitals at Troy filled rapidly with the injured. Early estimates of the injured ranged upward from 30.

Storms have accounted for 12 deaths in the south this week.

Union Head Issues Threat To Halt Deal

Thompson Demands Organization Be Recognized At Once As Only Alternative

WINDSOR PLANT STOPS

Organizer Claims Future Negotiations To Be On Different Basis Than In Past

OSHAWA, Ont., April 8 (C.P.)—Unless General Motors of Canada agrees to recognise the United Automobile Workers' Union at a conference this afternoon, negotiations for settlement of to-day's strike will be halted, Organizer Hugh Thompson of the Committee for Industrial Organization announced.

Company officials and a committee representing striking workers will resume discussions at two o'clock.

"Negotiations will be on a different basis than the company has tried to follow in the last few days," said Thompson.

"They have tried to discuss everything but recognition of the union. That will be the one demand today, and if that is not accepted negotiations will be formally called off."

Windsor Plant Halts.

OSHAWA, Ont., April 8 (C.P.).—Production was ordered stopped at the Windsor plant of General Motors of Canada to-day by James H. Highfield, plant manager of the company's strike-paralyzed major factories here. No strike was called at the Windsor plant, Highfield said.

A POLICE WARNING

OSHAWA, Ont., April 8 (CP)—Oshawa's Police Chief, Owen D. Friend, warned General Motors strikers today he would call in Provincial Police if any violence was employed by pickets.

The chief rushed by car to the front steps of the parts and service factory when he learned two pickets had prevented a man from entering the building by grabbing him and pulling him down the cement steps.

"Your leaders don't want you to do that and if you continue these tactics you are beaten right now," Chief Friend told the pickets. "You will force my hand. I will have to call in Provincial Police to help us."

Pickets asserted, however, they would permit no one to enter the building.

TORONTO, April 8—(C.P.). — Isaac W. D. Solloway head of the brokerage firm of Solloway-Mills Company, Limited, (Dominion company) was ordered to-day in a judgment by Mr. Justice J. A. Makins to pay $3,296,591.36 to G. T. Clarkson, liquidator of the company.

The judgment was given on an appeal by Solloway against a report of C. E. Lennox, Assistant Master of the Ontario Supreme Court and referee in proceedings on a misfeasance summons issued against the former broker under a section of the Winding Up Act.

One Man 33-Job Crime Wave Nets Lad But a Single Year

Sentences Total 98 Years But Run Concurrently For Young Rumanian

MAY BE DEPORTED

LONDON, Ont., April 8.—(CP)—Sixteen-year-old William Hutin, who staged London's biggest one-man crime wave, was sentenced 33 times today. If he served all 33 sentences consecutively he would be behind bars for 98 years. However, as terms run concurrently he will actually serve one year, determinate and two years less a day indeterminate in Ontario reformatory.

Magistrate Menzies announced he would recommend to the department of immigration that Hutin be deported to Rumania when released from the reformatory.

During February and March Hutin robbed stores, barber shops, shoe shops, refreshment booths, service stations and offices. He staged 30 crimes in London and three in Middlesex county.

Magistrate Menzies sentenced Hutin to one year determinate plus two years less a day indeterminate on each of 21 charges of breaking and entering. Then he gave him a similar sentence for stealing a car. On two charges of theft the magistrate gave two sentences of six months determinate plus two years less a day indeterminate.

Then Hutin was taken before Magistrate Hawkshaw who sentenced him to one year determinate plus two years less a day indeterminate on three charges of entering.

SEVEN INSURGENT CHARGES COLLAPSE

Madrid Forces Hold Lines And Prepare For Break Through To Cordoba

MADRID, April 8—(AP). — The eastern flank of Spanish Government's southern army hammered at Villaharta to-day, striving in the face of repeated counter-attacks to break the insurgent barrier protecting the ancient Moorish city of Cordoba.

Seizure of Villaharta and a slightly southerly push from that point would "bottle up" 15,000 of General Francisco Franco's troops, and open the way for a swift motorized advance over 30 miles of improved highway to the southeast against Cordoba.

The encased city, a major seat of European culture in the Middle Ages, is one of the principal southern bases of insurgent strength.

Franco's men fought desperately to dislodge Madrid's troops from advanced positions in proximity to Villaharta but were turned back seven times.

Nests of insurgents cut off from the main body of Franco's force by the drive on Villaharta were being cleaned out.

Villaharta lies just north of the Cordoba-Penarroya road running

FIVE PER CENT. CUT FOR ABLE-BODIED RELIEFERS COMING

Cut Is First Of Series Planned By Relief Committee Of City Council

STARTS ON MAY 1

Able-bodied Peterborough relief recipients 40 years of age and under will be cut 5 per cent in their relief allowances after May 1, the Relief Committee decided last evening. The cut will be the first of a series of gradual reductions made possible with the return of better times, the committee hinted.

Notice was served six weeks ago that relief cuts for the end of April were to be considered but last night's action was the first concrete step toward relieving the heavy burden on the city treasury by the cut procedure. Members of the committee were of the opinion no great hardship will result. Single unemployed have already been removed from the rolls.

Employment Conference

Heads of the city's industries will be called to a conference with the relief committee in an effort to place as many reliefers as possible in the jobs which are opening up rapidly in local factories, it was decided. In notices six weeks ago, relief recipients were warned of impending cuts and were urged to seek work and many have succeeded in doing so, the committee reported. Many names which had been on the relief lists for years disappeared for the first time.

Assurance that no drastic reductions of relief will be effected until the building trades revive here was forthcoming from the committee. Such a revival must come before all recipients can be absorbed in steady employment, members said.

Fuel Contract

The committee decided to accept the offer of local fuel dealers to supply summer needs of slab wood at $4.50 a cord.

"I don't see how we can consider cutting off wood supplies yet," Alderman Dutton said in response to a suggestion that the time had come when relief supply of fuel could be abandoned. The wood requirement should, however, decrease rapidly, he suggested.

Relief Officer Arthur Metheral expressed the opinion most of the city's able-bodied men will be back at work by summer.

INCREASED PRICE ON IMPLEMENTS IS NOT JUSTIFIED

House Committee Also Decides Cost Of Credit To Farmer Is Too High

LITTLE COMPETITION

OTTAWA, April 8 (CP) — Farm implement companies pursue "little effective competition in the matter of prices," although they compete in the matter of sales, the report of the special house committee on farm implement prices tabled in the House of Commons today said.

The committee found no justification for increased prices of agricultural machinery "at the present time."

The report is featured by 28 findings, all relating to prices, the financial achievements of the companies concerned and the effect of their operations upon Canadian farmers.

The committee estimated that during the depression a "backlog" of requirements approximating $300,000,000 had accumulated. (Backlog is the unsatisfied demand, due in this case to lack of purchasing power.)

"This will have to be satisfied by the implement companies during the next few years," said the report, "together with normal annual requirements of agriculture estimated at $51,000,000."

Substantial Profits

Profits made by the companies or invested capital had been "substantial," the report said. Where this was not so, it was due to reasons other than the price level at which agricultural machinery has been sold in Canada.

From 1931 to 1936 inclusive the companies incurred losses due to the farmers' inability to buy new implements, and to pay for those he had already contracted to purchase. The losses were not attributable to prices being lower than justified by manufacturing or distribution costs.

The unfavorable factors responsible for these losses "have been largely eliminated," the report said. "And therefore the companies can look forward to a period of relative prosperity in the industry."

Pickets On Duty Company Refusing C.I.O. Recognition

King's Birthday Changed To June 9

Ottawa, April 8—(CP)

THE birthday of George VI will be celebrated in Canada, as in Britain, on June 9, the Governor-in-Council has decided. Word to that effect was communicated to the Lieutenant-Governors of the Provinces today.

While his Majesty was born December 14, the example of his grandfather, Edward VII, is being followed by celebrating the Monarch's birthday in the summer season, even where it occurs in winter, so that the public may better enjoy the holiday.

The birthdays of the last two Monarchs, George V and Edward VIII, were celebrated on their natal days, June 3 and June 23, respectively.

Only 300 Or So Non-Union Members And Office Workers Allowed In

NO TROUBLE—NO SIT-DOWN

Attempt To Import Cars Will Bring Walk Out In U.S. Says Thompson

OSHAWA, Ont., April 8.—(CP)—More than 3,500 General Motors of Canada workers answered a strike call by the Committee for Industrial Organization today, stopping production of automobiles here in the company's largest plants. Recognition of a C.I.O.-sponsored union was the issue.

"This is just an old-fashioned walkout," said C. H. Millard, chairman of a shop committee which negotiated with company officials three days this week. "Sit-down strikes have been recognized as legal in the United States but both Federal and Provincial governments in Canada hold them illegal."

Millard estimated 3,700 workers, most of them carrying lunch-pails, entered the plants at seven o'clock, punched time-clocks and walked out. Not a policeman was in sight as the strike went into effect and union leaders organized picket lines.

Non-Union Men Stay.

Between 300 and 400 non-union members were left in various departments. Pickets made no attempt to prevent office employees going to work. These workers parked their cars outside the office building and went to their jobs as usual.

The strike was called about three hours before the day shift was scheduled to start work. Hugh Thompson, C. I. O. organizer, received permission from Detroit officials of the International Automobile Workers Union before instructing shop stewards to call out men in their departments.

Thompson said General Motors would not build another car in Canada until an agreement was signed with the international union. If an attempt was made to import cars manufactured in the General Motors plants in the United States, workers in U.S. plants would be called out.

"We cannot help others in the future," Thompson said, speaking with the strike was called in the midst of negotiations. It was understood General Motors officials firmly refused to recognize the international union in line with repeated declarations to this effect by James H. Highfield, plant general manager.

No Parts Allowed To Leave

A few minutes after the thousands of workers left their jobs, company police locked the gates. Three transport trucks drew up to the parts factory a few minutes before seven o'clock. Picketers were instructed not to let them leave with parts.

Six more trucks arrived a few minutes too late. They were not allowed to enter. It was believed only a few finished cars were left on General Motors property here. Expecting the strike at any time the company moved its newly-manufactured cars and trucks from Oshawa by the hundred daily.

More than 1,000 machines were driven to Toronto last week, several hundred being stored in buildings on the Canadian National Exhibition Grounds. More than 400 a day were moved to eastern and western Ontario cities and towns this week.

Orders Pickets Keep Moving.

Oshawa's police chief, Owen D. Friend made a tour of the picket lines, advising pickets to keep within traffic regulations. "Keep moving," he ordered, and the groups of pickets

Italo-French Soccer Game Is Cancelled

Political Tension Blamed As Rome Press Flings New Spanish War Charges

Points To Steady Shipment Of War Materials, And Subs—Cruisers To Come

ROME, April 8.—(AP).—An International football game between France and Italy, scheduled for Sunday, was called off suddenly to-night amid increased Italian press charges of French and Russian intervention in the Spanish civil war.

No reason was given for the cancellation of the match, which was played at Paris, but informed sources said the game was "political."

At the same time the authoritative Giornale D'Italia opened a new attack on Soviet Russia and France to-day, charging Russia is shipping war materials to Spain and sending submarines and cruisers to Spanish waters.

The newspaper's editor, Virginio Gayda, who repeatedly has charged violation of the "hands off Spain" agreement by both Soviet Russia and France, declared a Soviet General Army staff had been organized at Toulouse, France, to superintend arms shipments to Spain.

Duce Checks Up.

Premier Mussolini meanwhile was due to get first-hand information on the Spanish situation from Roberto Cantalupo, Rome's Ambassador to the Spanish insurgent regime.

Cantalupo arrived in Rome yesterday from Spain and talked with Foreign Minister Galeazzo Ciano. He was understood to have made a full report on activities of General Francisco Franco, both as to military and civil aspects.

Gayda published a list of 13 steamers he said had left the Russian ports of Sebastopol and Odessa since the non-intervention agreement became effective Feb. 20 and carried war supplies for Spain. The newspaper asserted cargoes of these vessels approximated 15,769 tons of

Office Equipment In His Car Enables King Work On Road

New Machines Compromise Between Father's High Roof Style, Edward's Canadian Models

MAROON WITH RED STRIPE

LONDON, April 8.—(AP)—Pleasure cars quickly convertible into fully equipped offices will enable King George to catch up with his State duties while motoring between numerous functions attendant on his Coronation May 12.

Central seats between the spacious rear seats will contain a hidden "secretariat" so that the King can work almost as efficiently as at Buckingham Palace. In this respect, the machines resemble the staff cars used by British army commanders in France during the Great War.

The two automobiles recently ordered by the King are a compromise between the old-styled high roof limousines used by his father, King George V, and the slick stream-line Canadian-built models preferred by the Duke of Windsor when he was Edward VIII.

One of the straight eight 32-horsepower cars of British manufacture (Daimler) is an enclosed limousine. The other is a drop-head Lancaulette which can be used as an open carriage in fine weather and enable Their Majesties to be seen when driving to public engagements specially timed road-

Convict Invents Electric Eye To Foil Pals Breaking Prison

New System Cannot Be Shut Off Even If Wires Cut Or Apparatus Wrecked

WARDEN TO USE IT

JACKSON, Mich., April 8 (CP)—To prevent prison breaks, a convict of Jackson Prison has perfected an electric eye, Warden Joel L. Moore announced today. The new system cannot be put out of commission even if wires are severed or apparatus battered.

Installation of the elaborate, yet inexpensive mechanism, will be started in a few days, Warden Moore said, and will be used in place of a proposed system of high-tension wires that had been considered for the top of the prison walls.

"We don't want anyone electrocuted," Deputy Warden J. L. Ryan said.

The electric eyes or beams of light will be placed at points inside the walls where escape would be easiest. Should a prisoner try to gain freedom and break the beam of light, a clamor of alarm will be set up, calling out a special force of guards.

Parents Use 2 Cars, Finally Wagon In 10-Mile Flood Battle To Save Tot

Hawkesbury, Ont., April 8—(CP)

DETAILS of how a father and mother fought flood waters through the night seeking medical aid for their five-year-old daughter critically ill were revealed here today, as the child was recovering after an emergency operation for appendicitis.

Perils of a seven hour struggle over the flooded area to reach their objective only 10 miles from their home were described by the father, Arthur Lalonde.

Mr. and Mrs. Lalonde, farmers near Fournier, Ont., on Wednesday realized their daughter Rachel, youngest of six, was critically ill and started for Alfred, 10 miles distant with the child in their car.

After proceeding a short distance they encountered floods which narrowed their automobile. Carrying the child they went to a nearby farmhouse for aid. There they obtained another automobile but had gone only a short distance when it too was marooned.

With the aid of farmers, the child and her parents were brought to Alfred, Ont., 10 miles distant in a wagon, after seven hours of perilous travel through flood waters. The girl was brought to hospital here, a distance of 15 miles.

Interest Cut Snag To Help For Alberta

Towers Calls Legislation Repudiation And Short-Sighted Policy

REPORTS TO OTTAWA

Believes Province On As Favorable Basis As Two Sister Provinces

OTTAWA, April 8 (C.P.). — Alberta's interest-reduction legislation will block the province from obtaining temporary financial assistance from the Dominion pending the findings of the Royal Commission on taxation, if the Government accepts the advice of Governor Graham Towers of the Bank of Canada.

Finance Minister Dunning tabled in the House of Commons last night a 12,000-word report on Alberta's financial position, fruit of an inquiry requested by Premier Aberhart. It was the third investigation by the bank into the finances of the Prairie Provinces and the first that did not recommend temporary assistance.

The bank found that "Alberta can maintain its governmental services on as favorable a basis as Manitoba or Saskatchewan without receipt of additional assistance and we, therefore, see no basis for recommending that temporary financial aid should be extended by the Dominion Government."

The report declared Alberta, if it paid full interest rates this year, would be in a somewhat worse position than Manitoba and somewhat better than Saskatchewan.

The Bank of Canada in its reports on Manitoba and Saskatchewan, recommended temporary assistance be extended those provinces until the Royal Commission which the Government intends to establish this year probes the whole field of taxation.

Has Own Solution.

The bank found Alberta was almost as badly off financially as Manitoba and Saskatchewan but had put its own solution into effect—reduction of interest on bonds, debentures and guaranteed securities from an average of 4.89 to 2½ per cent. The money saved on debt charges had placed the province in the position of being able to carry

200 MINERS OUST CATHOLIC PRIEST

Ask Him To Leave Settlement Near Rouyn As He Prepares To Say Mass

ROUYN, Que., April 8—(CP)—A Roman Catholic priest charged last night a band of men had forced him to leave Joannes Settlement, near this Northern Quebec mining town today, as he prepared to say Mass in the village general store.

Father Leroux, newly-named missionary-at-large, said the group of about 300 non-Catholics came to the store around midnight last Wednesday and, after telling him to leave at once, waited outside the building until his departure.

The abbe said he had gone to Joannes a few miles east of here in the Ottawa province of his church, to visit Roman Catholic families there. Learning there were 18 families of this religion in Joannes, he said, he arranged to say Mass Thursday morning.

The ceremony was to be in John Andrews' general store, communal gathering place for most of the miners in the settlement.

But at midnight the crowd, who, the abbe said appeared to consist of a "certain fanatical element," came to the store. There would be no Mass there, Father Leroux declared they told him.

The priest asserted they asked him to leave "at once," to "avoid causing a disturbance." They waited outside the store until he had left.

It was the first incident of its kind in Temiscaming county, centre of a rich mining area near the Ontario boundary. Abbe Leroux had been in the district several years, taking an active part in the colonization movement for the last four; but it was only recently he was named missionary-at-large by Bishop L. Rheaume, of Haileybury, Ont.

Mayor, 4 Council Quit, Relief Tiff

MASSEY, Ont., April 8 (CP). — Mayor Otto Bretzlaff and four members of council in this Northern Ontario town resigned yesterday. "We resigned because we could not satisfy the relief people," said Mayor Bretzlaff.

Most able-bodied men were employed in lumber camps during the winter but when these closed 15 or 20 men demanded municipal relief. They are said to have declined to accept work council offered them on public works projects instead of giving them relief.

Councillors J. Gutcher, F. Byers, W. Houle, and H. Charette resigned with Mayor Bretzlaff. Councillor R. Larambois was the only member not to resign.

8 CHARRED BODIES FOUND IN PLANE

Great Airliner Discovered Buried In Snow—Victims Unrecognizable

McNARY, Ariz., April 8 (AP) — Litters of aspen branches were fashioned today for eight charred bodies by shivering men who stood guard all night on the mountainside where a luxurious 21-passenger skyliner crashed into the snow and burned.

Undertakers began the task of placing the victims, two women and six men, on sleds and bringing them down—a tortuous seven-mile journey over steep hills, down snow-clogged ravines and across rushing streams which caused many of a searching party of 40 to drop exhausted.

C. C. Cole, an official of the Douglas Aircraft Corporation which built the plane, said the removal could not be completed before nightfall and may require two days.

The sight of twisted metal and death which greeted the searchers and the ordeals they underwent on the way were described by Jack Lefler, a member of the party.

"Sparkling remnants of that luxurious airliner drew us up the mountainside to the summit of the White Mountains," he said.

"There we stumbled upon fragments of steel scattered over a 50-yard area. The battered nose and burned cabin of the plane were buried six feet deep in the snow—a grave eaten into the frozen mass by fire.

"In the cabin, unburned portions of the pilot's and co-pilot's bodies remained strapped in their seats. The six others, charred beneath recognition, were buried beneath the hull.

A heap of almost unharmed baggage sprawled across the drifts of snow. It was the only thing there that was not debris.

Five Boys Taken In Custody Follow Attempted Windsor Break-In.

WINDSOR, Ont., April 8.—(CP)—Police shook their heads and wondered what the world was coming to today as they looked over five youngsters, ranging in age from 10 to 13 years, who were taken into custody after they attempted to break into a grocery store. The would-be thieves attempted to batter down the rear door of the store.

Oldest lad in the group was 13, another was nine, one seven, and two were but six years young. Each admitted intentions of breaking into the store. The lads were allowed to return to their homes after a lecture and a visit to the probation officer.

OTTAWA ANXIOUS PASS NEW LAWS SOCIAL REFORM

Premier King Promises Considerable Study On Matter Before Next Session

PASS $35,000,000 ESTIMATE

OTTAWA, April 8. —(CP)— The Dominion Government is "most anxious" to get on with unemployment insurance and other forms of social legislation and is giving the question careful consideration. Between now and the next session of Parliament the matter will receive further study in the light of the recent Privy Council decisions holding the legislation of 1935 ultra vires.

Prime Minister Mackenzie King gave this assurance to the House of Commons last night in reply to a question as an item of $50,000 to provide for the employment and social insurance commission was dropped from the estimates. The item was unnecessary as the commission has been disbanded.

More than $35,000,000 of the main estimates were approved last night after members completed a debate on returned soldiers' problems on the estimates for the pensions and national health department.

Recommendations of the war veterans assistance commission regarding allowances to unemployed ex-servicemen who had come to Canada since 1934 would not be adopted.

FRESH DISPUTE BLACK TOM CASE

Claimants Squabble Over Division Of 20 Million Germany Is Paying

WASHINGTON, April 7.—(AP)—Robert W. Bonynge United States' agent on the German-American Mixed Claims Commission, stepped forward to-day to referee a controversy over division of $20,000,000 to be paid by Germany to North American claimants for wartime damages.

Germany, against whom the United States entered the Great War 20 years ago to-day, has no legal interest in the fight.

Final decision on which group will receive the greater share of the money, held in the United States' treasury, will be made by the Claims Commission.

Bonynge said he would not object to the application of 46 American award holders to intervene in a proposed settlement of the Black Tom and Kingsland cases of alleged sabotage. Most of the 194 cases involved in the settlement resulted from explosions at the Black Tom, N.J., terminal of the Lehigh Valley in 1917, and the Kingsland, N.J., plant of the Canadian Car and Foundry Company in 1916, before the United States entered the war.

The United States contended the explosions were the work of German agents.

The German government denied the charges and in offering a final settlement said it admits no liability.

MYSTERY DISEASE FATAL TO NURSE

Girl Dies At Home In Moncton After Contracting Malady In Toronto

MONCTON, April 7—(CP)—Baffling blood disease which brought heartbreaks to families in many parts half across the continent caused the death of Martha LeBlanc, 21-year-old Toronto student nurse and daughter of Mr. Justice A. T. LeBlanc of the New Brunswick Supreme Court.

Miss LeBlanc was a third-year student nurse at St. Michael's Hospital in Toronto when stricken in February with what was at first believed to be influenza. After recurring attacks she was removed to her home here.

When her illness grew more serious blood samples were taken and rushed by Pilot R. T. McCully by airplane to Toronto last week for examination by specialists. Diagnosis confirmed fears of physicians here that the girl had contracted lymphatic leukaemia, a disease which turns the blood to water, and for which no cure has been devised.

PARALYSIS SERUM PROVED ITS WORTH

Checked Epidemic In Manitoba Canadian Doctor Tells U.S. Conference

WASHINGTON, April 7 (CP). — Use of serum from persons recovering from infantile paralysis to treat other victims proved effective, a Canadian physician said today, in checking an epidemic in Manitoba.

Dr. F. W. Jackson, Deputy Minister of Public Health for Manitoba, told the conference of State and Provincial health officers that physicians Considerable difference of opinion exists in medical circles about the value of such serum, Dr. J. P. Leake of the U.S. public health service has pointed out.

Dr. Jackson said, however, most of the Manitoba physicians declared who used the serum, collected by Manitoba health authorities, were unanimous in calling it a valuable part of treatment.

"Its action was entirely similar to infantile paralysis to the action of diphtheria antitoxin in diphtheria."

Shortly after the first two cases broke out last June 22 at widely separated points, it was found persons were not consulting physicians early enough, many cases were treated only after paralysis had set in, he said, so a province-wide system was set up to meet the situation.

Everyone was allowed to call a doctor when symptoms of the disease occurred. Fees for that visit and subsequent ones if the disease was present were paid to the physician by the state.

"When this procedure was brought into effect, we had an immediate improvement in the results of cases," Dr. Jackson said. Altogether 935 cases were reported, of which 93 died and of the remainder only 99 had paralysis after the disease subsided.

Waiting To Capture Black Bear Western Visitor Is Badly Hurt

Carl Oglestone Cuts Foot With Axe Inflicting Severe Gash

THEN BRUIN IS SHOT

RUSH POINT, April 8.— When Carl Oglestone was busy on Saturday afternoon repairing a sap-pan in the woods on the farm of Archie Menzies of Rush Point he discovered a medium size black bear under a log in the near-by swamp. His attention was attracted to the spot by the furious barking of the dog. Although the bear was making no attempt to fight the canine, it was quite apparent that the latter was terrified as he kept at a reasonably safe distance and was trembling noticeably.

The bear, which was evidently about a year or so old, had not denned up very deeply. The hide-out was under the upturned roots and lower trunk of a fallen poplar and the bear was lying about a foot and a half in from the opening. The accumulation of dirt and Wanted It Alive.

Mr. Oglestone, who is from Pendal Saskatchewan, and is here visiting his sister, Mrs. Gordon Hedger of Rush Point, made up his mind to capture the bear alive if possible and secure a permit to keep the animal, for a time at least. So he hastened down to the house, and while Archie Menzies set off for a gun some other neighbors were securing ropes and chains.

In the meantime Mr. Oglestone busied himself splitting some wood for the kitchen range. Unfortunately while thus employed the axe slipped through a block of wood entered the sole of his foot, cut through between his toes and a corner of the axe came through the top of the foot, making a very painful and serious wound.

While Mr. Hedger ran to a neighbor's to send for the doctor, Mrs. Hedger skilfully applied a tourniquet to stop the flow of blood from her brother's wounded foot. A number of stitches were required to close the cut.

Bear Is Shot.

In the meantime Archie Menzies and his brother Bruce went back to the woods and shot the bear. The animal had made no attempt to leave the place. It appeared sleepy and dull, merely raising its head to gaze sleepy-eyed at the men. One shot in the head finished it instantly.

On removing the hide, which was later presented to Mr. Oglestone as a souvenir the boys found the animal had a wounded foot, where it had apparently been shot or in a trap some time previous. It was thought that the wound may have partially caused the bear's state of inactivity though he may not have been entirely aroused from his winter's sleep.

However, judging from his lean condition he was most likely to develop a keen appetite in the near future and Mr. Menzies felt it was not safe to leave him alive to prowl around in the field where there were small children in the neighborhood, and where young calves and lambs would soon be turned out to pasture.

HAVELOCK, April 8.—The Havelock Home and School Association held their inaugural meeting on Tuesday evening in the Havelock Public school the chair being taken by Mr. Percy Yuill. Mrs. Walter Nobes, the newly installed president, then took charge of the meeting and thanked the members for the honour bestowed upon her.

At the last meeting it was decided to hold the regular meetings of the Home and School Association on the first Tuesday of every month, commencing at 8 p.m. The executive will meet at 7.30 p.m. on the same evening.

The membership fee was set at 25c, 10c to go to the federation and the remainder to the general expense fund.

Convenors were appointed as follows: Programme, Mrs. R. E. Lemon; social, Mrs. G. Iles; membership, Mrs. B. B. Puffer.

A very interesting program was presented which included a song entitled "Easter Bells" by the younger members of St. John's Sunday school class in charge of Mrs. D. Holdcroft, a reading by Mrs. M. Poste "Religion Begins At Home" and community singing with Mrs. Holdcroft leading and Mrs. T. W. Quinn presiding at the piano.

Following a few short remarks by Miss Morgan, Mr. Drinkwalter, and Mr. Yuill, the meeting was brought to a close with the singing of the National Anthem.

MRS. A. L. MALCOLM DESCRIBES TRIP

Tells Members Of St. John's Y.P.U. Of Journey To Northern Ontario

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, April 8.—Miss Mae Stotts, Christian Fellowship convenor, was in charge of the meeting of the St. John's Young People's Union held on Monday evening at which Mrs. A. L. Malcolm gave the topic of the evening. Choosing as her subject, "A Trip From Campbellford to Northern Ontario," Mrs. Malcolm outlined the various methods of transport involved, including railway, airplane, and husky's that carried her into the snow-covered regions of the Province.

Miss Stotts took the chair for the program, which included a vocal duet by Miss Alva Mowat and Mr. Albert Hazel, "God's Way is the Best Way", reading, "Moving Day," Miss Nellie Hoover; vocal solo, "Little Old Lady," June Burgess; and piano solo, Miss Evelyn Todd.

Simple Home Treatment For Varicose Veins

Swollen veins may become dangerous and sometimes break. Before resorting to operations or injections sufferers are advised to get an original bottle of Emerald Oil at McDermid & Jury or any pharmacist and start to reduce the veins and bunches at once. A small bottle will last a long time, because it is very concentrated and a little goes a long way. Apply night and morning with a soft brush or the finger tips as directed until the swelling is reduced.

So effective is Emerald Oil that it is highly useful in reducing troublesome simple swellings due to strain and lameness that unsightly.

MARMORA CLUB CHANGES NAME

St. Paul's Group Decides On Switch To Laymen's Association

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MARMORA, April 8.—St. Paul's Men's Club will in future be known as St. Paul's Laymen's Association through a motion passed at the regular meeting held in the White Hall on Wednesday evening.

Other business transacted was the intention to sponsor a play to be put on by a cast from Victoria Avenue Baptist Church, Belleville, at the Town Hall on April 27. The association also decided to attend the evening service at St. Paul's on Sunday, April 25, when the Rev. J. Bradbury, field secretary of the General Board of Religious Education, will be the special preacher.

The highlight of the program was the delivery of an intensely interesting address on some of his experiences as a police officer in Northern Ontario by Inspector B. Gardner of the Ontario Provincial Police.

Others contributing were Glen McCall, with two solos, and Bert Kourt and Don Prentice with instrumental selections. With Fred Izzard at the piano some community singing was also enjoyed. A delicious lunch was served at the close.

RELATIVES RE-UNITED

Publishing of Goderich Man's Picture Leads To Uncle-Nephew Re-union.

GODERICH, Ont., April 8 (CP)—A publication of a picture of Walter R. Henry, octogenarian Goderich motorcyclist, has led to his re-union with his nephew, Joseph B. Henry, Toronto, after 25 years. They became separated at Toronto's old Union Station in March, 1912, when a boat train from Montreal unloaded and they had not seen or heard from each other since although never more than 150 miles apart.

Mr. Henry went to Kincardine where he lived four years, brought his family to Canada and has lived in Goderich 24 years. He did not know his brother Thomas died five years ago.

Council Orders Bylaw Prepared Abolishing Town's Police Commission

EASTVIEW, Ont., April 8 (CP)—Eastview town council last night passed a motion to prepare a bylaw abolishing the local police commission, composed of Judge E. J. Daly, Magistrate Lester Clayton and Mayor Donat Grandmaitre.

The action followed reading of a commission recommendation that no licenses be issued for vending machines, pin games or other devices capable of being used for gambling or gaming purposes.

Judge Daly moved the recommendation and Magistrate Clayton seconded it. Mayor Grandmaitre dissented.

The commission could not force council to adopt such a recommendation but could enforce the law applying to such machines, Grandmaitre said. The public could not hold council responsible if they operated such machines contrary to law, said the mayor and he was not sure if council had power to pass such a bylaw.

The commission had also recommended a cleanup of gambling and gaming houses.

WEED SEED DETECTOR

TORONTO, April 8 (CP)—Dr. D. H. Hamly of the department of Botany, University of Toronto, has perfected an instrument for weed seed detection. Enlarged stereoscopic views are made by photographing through the lens of a microscope. The instrument will detect weed seeds in lots of sowing seeds.

In announcing the completion of the instrument, university officials said when viewed through the stereoscope the photographs stand out in perspective like the landscape pictures so familiar years ago.

A Question Mark In It

Members of the Alberta Legislature may get their full sessional indemnity of $2,000 restored. Five years ago there was a ten per cent. reduction, and that has remained. There is now a notice on the order paper to rescind the resolution which caused the indemnity cut.

Under ordinary circumstances we do not believe folk would have cause for question or objection, but there is a good deal to be said on this particular restoration of income.

Members of the Legislature in Alberta have been cutting the incomes of a great many people all over the Dominion. There are people who put their money in Alberta bonds and they depend on the income from them just as much as any members of the Alberta Legislature did his sessional indemnity, but their income has been cut straight in two, and member of the Alberta Legislature did the cutting. Having done so we do not know whether they can with a clear conscience restore their own salaries to the 100 per cent. mark.

We Don't Know the Answer

When a man gets out of prison or reformatory he finds he is expected to keep on paying the price for having been a prisoner. The thing is not rubbed off when the jail gate opens to let him out. One young man has been making that discovery and his experience is so much like that of others that its recital may be monotonous.

He spent 13 months in Guelph Reformatory as the result of being involved in a motor car accident. When in prison his mother died and his home, which had been in Niagara Falls, was broken up. When he finished his sentence he went to his home city and could find nothing; then he tried London hearing there was farm work available. At the employment office he claims he was told that ex-convicts were not much in demand even in busy seasons. He had nothing to eat during the day and went to the relief office to see if he could get a ticket, but again his claim is he was told to move along. The only place he could find to spend the night was the police station.

This man, and he is still young, is asking the same question as a good many others: When will society consider that he has paid his debt, and when will he be given a second chance? We do not know if there is much use referring to such a case because we do not know the answer.

A Language Of Its Own

The current issue of the official Ontario Gazette publishes a list of 125 bills passed by the Legislature. Royal assent was given to all these bills on March 25. From the Gazette we quote what follows the announcement regarding the bills:

Mr. Speaker then said:—

"We, His Majesty's most dutiful and faithful subjects, the Legislative Assembly of the Province of Ontario, in Session assembled, approach Your Honour with sentiments of unfeigned devotion and loyalty to His Majesty's person and Government, and humbly beg to present for Your Honour's acceptance a Bill intituled "An Act for granting to His Majesty certain sums of money for the public service of the financial year ending the 31st day of March, 1938."

To this Bill the Royal Assent was announced by the Clerk of the Legislative Assembly in the following words:—

"The Honourable the Lieutenant-Governor doth thank His Majesty's dutiful and loyal subjects, accept their benevolence and assent to this Act in His Majesty's name."

We quite well realize that speech used in official and parliamentary formalism is of necessity somewhat different from that employed elsewhere. Just how much loyalty and devotion and humbleness there was in the Assembly we do not know. It is one of those things which cannot be measured with a broom handle or circled around with a piece of twine. And we do not know for certain how much benevolence there was in accepting the money with which to carry on government until a given date in 1938.

The Ontario Gazette does not talk like the rest of the people in the province; it does not speak like the members of the House during their recent session when there was not much devotion or humility in any of them. It all refers to the serious business of digging up hard-earned cash to finance a government, and it does seem that the wordage used in the Gazette arrives at a point where it can be regarded as rather overblown.

West Needs Seed Grain

Apparently it is one of the duties of members of the federal government to inform the farmers of the Western provinces how many bushels they should plant per acre. That point came up in the discussion of a guarantee to secure $6,750,000 for seed grain and supplies to operate tractors. It appears the provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta cannot secure the loan of that amount of money on their own credit and the Dominion has decided to guarantee the backing which is being supplied by the provinces. There was a direct reference to the credit rating of these three provinces made by Hon. R. B. Bennett, who is quoted in Hansard as stating:

"We admit that the credit of three of our western provinces is not good enough to enable them to borrow from the banks $6,500,000."

One way of making a reduction in the size of the loan was to get the farmers to use less seed grain per acre. Mr. Gardiner, Minister of Agriculture, said "There are other sections where the belief is they should seed a bushel and a-half of wheat to the acre. Most of the authorities believe they should not seed more than a bushel to the acre. Many of the best farmers do not seed more than three-quarters of a bushel in dry seasons such as we have been having and as a rule they get a better crop than those who seed the higher quantity per acre."

Mr. Gardiner contended that by reducing the quantity planted from a bushel and a-half per acre to one bushel it would cut the cost to the extent of one-third. That great western area needs careful nursing and financing. The recent years have been hard on it, so hard that the combined credit of the three provinces is not sufficient security for the banks to advance the price of seed grain and supplies. In order to secure the loan it was necessary for the Dominion to pledge its added credit to that of the provinces.

A Good Man Resigns

Alexander Mowat is retiring as school inspector in Peterborough. An inspector for 30 years, and an added 19 years as teacher in public and collegiate work gives him 49 years in the service. To the suggestion that he remain and complete a half-century he refused to respond favorably. When Mr. Mowat makes up his mind it appears it remains made up.

Mr. Mowat has been peculiarly qualified for his position. He would never expect a person under his supervision to do anything unreasonable; he would not ask for more service than should be expected. In his own way there was and is a good deal of the diplomat in him, and he would know in advance that he could anticipate a good hearing and respect in any situation he faced.

Peterborough schools have been well served by Alexander Mowat. If the authorities manage to find another of equal calibre and sweet reasonableness they will do well.

The Plug Hat

Toronto harbor was opened for navigation when Captain R. A. Wright brought the Coelfax over from Oswego, N.Y., and the skipper was presented as usual with a silk hat, something which has been done ever since the year 1850.

By an easy process of reckoning that would indicate Toronto has given away 87 silk hats, but the truth is the harbor master keeps on giving away the same one, and buys it back from the skipper to whom it has been presented.

That is actually a better way than keeping on giving plug hats to captains of lake carriers. There are not many days during the season when the skipper could very well wear a high hat. He might take the thing home, and it would possibly be a good enough place for the family cat to store her kittens, but that would be a poor use for so great a trophy.

There was a time when the high hat was much more commonly worn in this country than is the custom of today. We recall a village where there were three of them. One was owned and worn by the man who had a private bank; the second one belonged to the man who had been elected member of parliament, but he took care not to wear it within six months of a coming election, and the third belonged to the man who drove the hearse for the local undertaker. He worked in the livery barn just three doors down from the printing office. On funeral days he also wore a long Prince Albert coat. The plug hat and the long coat made quite a change in his appearance, but he always seemed to feel more comfortable when he got back to the stable and hung his raiment up in the loft. He always kept it there so it would not smell horsy. We do not believe any person wears a plug hat in that village now, but of course there is no harbor there with freighters making their way in to mark the coming of yet another glad spring season.

When a Fire Breaks Out

City Council discussed that old question of sending the fire department to points outside the city limits, and we doubt if there is a municipality where the same question has not been encountered. Kincardine was having a similar discussion on the same day because its fire fighting equipment had been taken to Dungannon when the latter village was badly burned, and no person had given the authority for the trip.

When there is a serious fire raging, that is considered as sufficient to override every other consideration. The fact that the place in which the fire is burning has no equipment is supposed to be overlooked and those places which are equipped are supposed to come along as quickly as possible and attend to saving the unprotected territory.

Sentiment has so much to do with it that often enough the plain business angle of the situation is overlooked or ignored. It is a present-day application of the Biblical story of the wise and foolish virgins through which we are told of the foolish ones wanting to borrow oil from the wise ones at the hour when it was needed.

The people who live apart from cities rely on sentiment for protection, but that is not sufficient. Also they place a good deal of stress on the false security that if the worst comes to the worst the nearby community which has fire fighting equipment will not refuse assistance.

Nor is there much reason for unpreparedness now. Fire fighting units can be secured in simpler form than previously, and they are to be had for less money than formerly. Any community which depends on some other community on which it has no claim is pursuing a poor policy and in the long run it generally has to pay for it in increased insurance rates or in disastrous fires.

NOTE AND COMMENT

Bacteria that have been asleep in a Mexican structure for 8,000 years have been brought to life by an American scientist. They surely must have been the germs of sleeping sickness.

Evidently W. J. Bragg did not send the Central Ontario Conservatives a copy of his Port Hope speech declaring there would be no election this year. They are busy preparing for a 1937 campaign.

C.C.F. member of parliament claims all the Ottawa House has accomplished this session has been an increase in pay for the members. Perhaps Parliament feels that like charity prosperity should begin at home.

Badminton is an increasingly popular sport in Canada but we cannot help commenting upon the fact that the news photographers did not pay much attention to the game until the women players began wearing shorts.

Port Hope has decided to clap a license fee of $750 a year upon slot machines. What happens to the individual who pays that much money for a license and then finds the machine seized by provincial police has not yet been explained.

From Saskatchewan comes word that action has already begun on the grasshopper front. The snow has not yet disappeared but the government is busy distributing poison bait to the municipalities to prepare for warfare against the hopper pest.

Before the Federal government spends $500,000 upon a Richelieu canal scheme that has not yet been started a lot of folk up this way feel that the money could be used to better advantage upon a waterway that was begun many decades ago.

Over $2,000,000 was borrowed in Canada during the first four months of the Home Improvement scheme. In addition several millions must have been spent on improvements by citizens who did not need loans but caught the infection of the campaign.

There was an impressive ceremony in Toronto this week when 116 newly naturalized Canadians were presented publicly with their certificates. It is a nice gesture that is designed to impress upon these new Canadians the fact that it is a privilege to be a citizen of the Dominion.

The famous Schubert choir of Brantford will be heard at the convention of the Music Educators of the Eastern United States at Buffalo next week. An invitation to such a gathering is a rare distinction for a musical organization from a small city but the Brantford ensemble has richly earned the honor.

We notice in the Brantford Expositor that it was 35 years ago since local barbers were considering raising the price of a hair cut to 25 cents and a shave to 15 cents. And it was shortly after that when Harris Walsh, now of the St. Catharines Standard, decided to leave Brantford.

NOT SURE

(By A. M. K.)

¶ My Cousin Jake has got a son, and he's a likely looking one, at least that's how I thought; he studied hard in days at school, and learned by heart each printed rule, and seemed high up in thought.

¶ The boy decided how he'd preach, for there were thousands he could reach, and Jake was quite agreed; the world was such a wicked place, and folk went at an awful pace, and things were going to seed.

¶ Jake sent for me the other day, and asked if I could come his way, he asked some other men; to him 'twas quite a big affair, his son would take the pulpit there, and I could hear him then.

¶ So I agreed as how I'd come, and listen to his preaching son, it really made me glad; he was just starting on his work, I figured how he'd fill the kirk, I also liked the lad.

¶ But when Jake's son got up to speak, he quoted fifteen words in Greek, he was a learned gent; I listened to each word he said, but now and then they passed my head, I knew not what he meant.

¶ I think he quoted Latin too, before he got his sermon through, to prove that such was such; a doubt camped on me and 'twas tough, for either I don't know enough—or Jake's boy knows too much.

Our Statesmen At Their Labors

MAKING IT PLAIN

From Parliamentary Debates

Mr. POWER: I would move that in line 26 the words "combination, merger, trust or monopoly which promotes or is likely to promote unduly the advantage of manufacturers or dealers at the expense of the public" be struck out and the word "combine" substituted after the word "any."

Mr. BENNETT: Quite so. I do not think it is arguable. I think you should strike out the word "any" and say "a," because "combine" is defined.

Mr. POWER: I agree.

Mr. BENNETT: In view of the new definition contained in section 2 I think you should go further. I think the words that should be stricken out are "any combination, merger, trust or monopoly which promotes or is likely to promote unduly the advantage of manufacturers or dealers at the expense of the public" and substitute therefor the words "a combine," which includes not only all the mergers, trusts and monopolies that you can think of, but also everything else that has operated or is likely to operate to the detriment of or against the interest of the public, whether consumers, producers or others. Those last few words are quoted from the new definition, which is much broader than the words inserted here.

Mr. POWER: I am asked to move that the following words in line 11 of section 31 be stricken out: "any combination, merger, trust or monopoly which promotes or is likely"; and that the words "a combine" be substituted therefor. That does not quite meet the views of my right hon. friend, I am afraid.

Mr. BENNETT: I am only going to suggest to the minister, who is a trained lawyer, that it makes it a bit absurd. In the interpretation section we have defined the word "combine" as covering everything spoken of in section 31 from the word "any" down to the word "public." Now we are going to leave some in and take some out. It certainly makes the whole thing ridiculous, because I believe I could say without giving offence to anyone that it is an elementary rule that when you define a word in the interpretation section at the beginning of a statute, whenever later you desire to cover the matters mentioned in the definition in the interpretation section you use the word thus interpreted. Here we have the word "combine" interpreted to mean much more than is here indicated, and you are going to stop now at the words "likely to promote" which are already part of section 2, the interpretation section. That makes it ridiculous.

The CHAIRMAN: Shall the amendment to section 31 carry?

Mr. BENNETT: I can only say that it goes part of the way, but it does not cover the point, knowing that the word "combine" must have the same meaning wherever it is used in the statute.

Mr. ROGERS: I am quite prepared to accept the suggestion that we shall use here the same wording which has been used in the original section. I take it that that will cover everything we had in contemplation.

Mr. BENNETT: It covers more, because it covers everything involved in the interpretation of the word "combine." I do not think I could be said to be offensive if I were to say that to use different words subsequently in another section, when "combine" has already been defined, gives only a half meaning and is poor draftsmanship. I believe I can go that far without offending anyone.

Mr. ROGERS: I believe we had better accept the suggestion, and we will alter it again.

Mr. POWER: If we were to strike out all the words after the word "exists," namely, "any combination, merger, trust or monopoly which promotes or is likely to promote unduly the advantage of manufacturers or dealers at the expense of the public,"—

Mr. BENNETT: Yes.

Mr. POWER: I can go that far.

Mr. BENNETT: Yes, because "combine" covers it. Then you would suggest the words "a combine."

Mr. POWER: Yes, and I move accordingly.

Mr. TAYLOR (Nanaimo): How would that effect line 15 in the same section?

Mr. BENNETT: It does not touch that at all.

Mr. ROGERS: I do not think there is any necessary protection there. The combine is by definition a disadvantage to the public.

Mr. POWER: It would then read that if there "exists a combine."

Mr. BENNETT: Quite, as defined by the act.

A GOOD SPEECH.

(Saturday Night)

THE House has heard many speeches less worthy of its earnest consideration at the present session than that of A. M. Edwards, South Waterloo. He not only hit the nail on the head but also drove it home on the question of continuing unemployment when he asked how industry could be expected to distribute more in wages when it had to pay out so much in taxation. And when he said that neither members of Parliament nor civil servants, late ever known that a depression existed—the cost of living having fallen to a greater degree than their salary deductions—he spoke the plain truth and shamed the legion of Parliamentarians who pounced their desks in applause when the Finance Minister announced the restoration of their wage cuts. Altogether, it was too good a speech to be wasted. It was one of those which members of the government would do well to read and ponder. A ground for hope in this regard was the careful attention with which Finance Minister Dunning followed it during its delivery.

DEFENCE OF YOUTH AND AMBITION

Editor Examiner.

Sir: I hope the Examiner will be kind enough to allow me space for the following lines.

In Tuesday's Examiner there appeared an objection from the painters in regard to the painting of the Peterborough rest rooms.

Now I happen to know the young man that got the job. In strict fairness he is an honest, ambitious, young man. I have known him for years and he deserves credit for the way he has made ends meet during our depression. There was very little work in any line but he went out and found some of the few jobs there were.

A few years ago this chap painted the outside of my house and I might add he did a first class job. And from what I can see he is making a real job of the rest rooms.

In conclusion I thank you and say "More power to you, Mask".

"SATISFIED."

ARMAMENT

Editor Examiner.

Sir: I had the pleasure and good fortune to hear Mr. Woodsworth's addresses at the George St. Church Open Forum and also in the Collegiate auditorium, in which he dealt with Canada's foreign policy and peace. Personally I disagree with Canada's armament policy, supposedly for defence purposes, but much more so now after hearing Mr. Woodsworth's startling statements. He showed in a convincing manner, giving numerous references, how "ridiculous" of Canada trying to defend herself, both from "maybe" trouble within her borders or an enemy attack.

Has Canada any enemies? Is she likely to have any if she unarms? Has a race for armaments ever preserved peace? Does arming Empires safeguard peace? To these and many other questions in this nature, my answer is an emphatic, No. Undoubtedly many will disagree with me and very likely say that since almost all other countries are arming we must do likewise. To all those who have a warlike attitude, I recommend a little common sense, a study on war and its causes, to change their viewpoint. Most of our members in the House of Commons at Ottawa, in their hearts, are not in favor of this year's armament budget, I feel sure of that. Yet an almost solid Conservative and Liberal vote carried the amendment for an increase in armaments to $37,000,000. To me, therefore, party politics, when it comes to vote on an amendment is the "bunk." Read the House of Commons debates and you will find that party politics plays the major part in voting on practically all important amendments. Some of these pointing to a betterment in conditions for the Canadian people, are defeated while others, dealing with more burdens in taxation, are carried.

There are more than likely quite a few objectors to some of my statements but after all we don't all think alike. This being my first letter to you, Mr. Editor, I sincerely hope that you will give it a space in your paper.

Your very truly,

WALTER DINEEN.

A Radio Death Watch.

(From the New Yorker.)

BROADCASTING studios fret a good deal about death. After all, there is nothing to stop a king from dying in the middle of a Jack Benny program, and this puts a dangerous strain on the studio. When King George V died, many listeners heard the announcement over the air, and the next words they heard were "Ha, ha, ha, this is Singin' Sam, Folks." The Columbia people were not satisfied with this as a pattern of wireless!

When the Pope was very ill, N.B.C. vowed they would forestall any such unseemly occurrence. By December 15 they had worked out a complete program to be used when word came of the Pontiff's demise. It was arranged that any other program, no matter what it was, was to be taken off the air immediately. Three chimes were to be struck, followed by 15 seconds of organ music. Then a brief news despatch was to be read. After this, the organ was to continue softly while a thousand-word obituary was read, the voice droning along piously against the background of religious music.

Everything was prepared in advance: the obituary was composed, the hymns were selected ("O Paradise! O Paradise!" and "My God, My Father!"), the organists were lined up. All that remained was the news despatch, which happily never came.

It was also arranged that if the reading of the obituary terminated before the end of the radio period, the period was to be filled out with other appropriate music—"Adagio Pathetique," by Godard, and "Andante Religioso," by Thome. The plan, of course, meant that an organist must always be on duty. From December 15 to January 25 (with the exception of a day or two when the Pope rallied appreciably), four organists, one announcer, and one engineer kept the death watch from seven-thirty in the morning till past midnight.

The organists were regular staff musicians at N.B.C.—William Meeder, John Winters, George Crook, and Arthur Gutow—and they divided the time up generally in two-hour shifts. Accustomed to filling out programs that fall short of the allotted time, they simply regarded the vigil as a special assignment, and occupied themselves in the usual manner in the musicians' room, talking, reading, playing ping-pong.

Their union wage scale is complicated, but the pay comes to something like five dollars an hour, with three dollars for every fifteen minutes' overtime. Much of the death-watch the overtime.

With the Pope's returning health, the studio has laid aside its gloomy schedule and is resolving brighter matters.

Migrating to the Cities.

(From the Oshawa Times.)

THERE are definite indications of a trek to the cities from the rural areas. The Washington bureau of agricultural economics has figured that last year there was an excess of 600,000 of persons who moved from the farms to the cities over those who left the cities to live in the country. It will be remembered that such a condition prevailed in those years following the war and immediately preceding 1929. When the economic depression period fell upon us this condition was halted to a great extent, and now that the movement is eastward again it is ample proof of the return of normal conditions. Schemes have not yet been evolved which would tend to discourage this migration, which from time immemorial has been prevalent in good times.

It cannot be denied that the manner of living in the country is changing rapidly with the extension of hydro lines to the farm homes. With the installation of electricity on the farm, modern plumbing, the radio, electric lights, and all the conveniences which a city may have are now available in the country. Then there is the convenience of mail delivery, and the auto for fast transportation. Of course not all farms can afford these conveniences, but there is a gradual trend towards this, which when afforded would make life on the farms more attractive.

However the trek to the cities goes on with the result that we are going to be saddled for many years with the the problem of finding hordes of people out of work and penniless as soon as city industries encounter slackness in their business and necessity of discharging many hands.

The business of industry today seems to be that large organizations with plants for production of enormous quantities, were built up to those prosperous years. They can absorb thousands of employees for a few weeks or months, manufacture enough supplies for a year and then discharge their hands. However if trade and commerce expands those large organizations are in a position to meet the demands and give instant employment to thousands who are now idle. This in turn means more work for the farmer to feed the hordes of industrial workers.

It is interesting to note that while 600,000 more people left the farms for the towns and cities than moved from the towns and cities to the farms, there was no decline in farm population. There was an excess of births over deaths. A desirable balance of population between urban and rural with the speeding up of industry to keep everyone busy may yet be the happy solution to what may seem an insoluble problem.

HE DIED AFTER ALL.

(St. Thomas Times-Journal)

IN ORDER to counteract the shortage of raw materials for public use and to make up for the deficiency of foodstuffs such as fats, which have been diverted for military purposes, Germany is making a great deal of "ersats" products. There are artificial substitutes, and artificial substitutes are seldom satisfactory.

A French newspaper is telling this story, which you can believe or not, as you like.

Tired of living under the Nazi regime, a German decided to end his life by poison. He bought a box of rat poison, swallowed it, and lay down to die. But he did not die; the poison was "ersats." Then he bought a rope, tied it to a beam and kicked away a chair. But he did not die because the rope broke; it was "ersatz."

Feeling that he might make the best of his life, his spirits recovered and he hied him to a restaurant and ordered a big meal. He ate it and died. The food was "ersats," too.

TESTING A DRIVER.

(Stratford Beacon-Herald)

HERE is what an applicant for a first-time driving license has to do in Salisbury (Rhodesia):

Drive at fast rate and then pull up suddenly when sack of flour, representing a child, is thrown unexpectedly on the roadway.

Drive off again and be suddenly confronted with a "nursemaid" pushing a baby carriage. Repeat test with two jay-walking pedestrians. (We wonder who risks being the nursemaids and the jay-walkers.)

Change gear, avoid car coming from side turning and stop as quickly as possible with front wheels back of a white line.

Then, whether you are driving a sports model or a heavy truck, drive around point-duty policeman in the smallest possible circle.

Reverse into a narrow parking space.

Give all the statutory signals.

Answer a number of questions taken at random from the Roads and Traffic Act.

One wonders what the traffic accident statistics are in Rhodesia. If tests mean anything the highway toll should be comparatively light. The Ontario examinations are child's play compared to these.

CANADA WATCHES PRICE OF SUGAR

Third Largest Importer And Wants No Unreasonable Increase In Cost

By I. NORMAN SMITH

Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON, April 8—(CP Cable).—Canada is actively participating in the International Sugar Conference. She doesn't export, but she eats and therefore is wary of any unreasonable boost in sugar prices.

Canada is the third largest sugar importer after the United States and the United Kingdom. Hon. Vincent Massey, head of the Canadian delegation, and his aide, L. B. Pearson, are understood to have taken the position that Canada would welcome a scheme stabilizing sugar prices and affording fair conditions to producers, but desires adequate protection for the consumer against high prices.

Canada is pointing out she is one of the few countries in the world not artificially fostering the domestic production of sugar and is thereby doing much toward avoiding a glutted market. Canada produces enough of her requirements of beet sugar to supply about one-fifth of her consumption, but the balance is imported, whereas most countries, though not naturally suited for sugar production are vigorously cultivating the industry.

The conference is meeting several times daily in private, hoping to establish exports quota. Some delegates are talking of the necessity of destroying tremendous surpluses left in their countries. Others caution against wastage, recalling the destruction of wheat in recent years and the present wheat boom and forecast shortage.

The Canadian delegates, it is understood, have no great fear of a harmful price bust for it is pointed out, while the United Kingdom is interested in increasing the price for her colonial sugar exporters, she is unable to increase it greatly, for she is also a big consumer of sugar at home.

Pact With Germany Passes Despite Factor's Opposition.

OTTAWA, April 8 (CP).—Canada's trade agreement with Germany offers a reasonable basis for the expansion of Canadian trade, Hon. W. D. Euler, Minister of Trade and Commerce, told the House of Commons today.

Despite a protest from Sam Factor (Lib., Toronto-Spadina) on the ground of the Nazi Government's persecution of the Jews, the House voted approval of the pact negotiated by Mr. Euler last autumn. After discussion, the resulting bill received third reading.

WINNIPEG GRAIN

WINNIPEG, April 8—(C.P.).—Weakness at Chicago and other North American markets brought out heavy profit-taking on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange Thursday. At the close, wheat futures were 2¾ to 3¼ cents lower, with May at $1.44¾, July $1.39¾ to ¾, and October $1.23¾.

Wheat values climbed more than a cent in early trade when good export buying was encountered. Strong overseas markets and better European demand reported from Liverpool were bullish factors.

However, sales were wiped out as Chicago brokers unloaded their holdings because of excellent prospects in the United States Winter wheat belt and Spring wheat areas.

INCREASED PRICE ON IMPLEMENTS IS NOT JUSTIFIED

Increased freight rates had contributed to price boosts, and, having regard to the fact that the three prairie provinces absorbed at least two-thirds of all farm implements sold in Canada, the committee recommended that these "should receive immediate attention with a view to reasoning lower rates."

The committee urged that cream separators be placed on the free list, at the same time asking simplification of the customs tariff act affecting importation of all farm implements.

The committee found the cost of credit to the farmer purchasing farm implements on time was excessive. "The companies should take immediate steps to reduce these credit charges," said the report.

Quebec Association Questions Eligibility Of Copper Cliff

Further Information Is Furnished Secretary Of C.A.H.A.

OPEN LETTER WRITTEN

MONTREAL, April 8 (CP) — Charges Copper Cliff juniors, Ontario Hockey Association champions who defeated Montreal Victorias in Memorial Cup playdowns, violated the "true ideals of junior eligibility," were made to day to the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association by Alphonse Therein, registrar and secretary-treasurer of the Quebec Amateur Hockey Association.

In an open letter to W. A. Hewitt, Toronto, C.A.H.A. registrar, and Cecil Duncan, Ottawa, C.A.H.A. president, therein asks:

"We wonder if you have any new developments on the ages of the Copper Cliff players?

"Do we have to wait until said team participates in the finals before the information is completed?

"We in Quebec are in a position to satisfy anyone on our junior groups. We have made careful research and are informed that player Shewchuk is using a different name than in Brantford, Ont. Dick Lerry did not arrive up in the north in time to qualify for the residence rule of Oct. 15. What about Hamill who comes from 140 miles north of Copper Cliff, Perry and McReavy, 235 miles from Copper Cliff (Toronto)?

Parents' Consents

"Did they in accordance with the special rule in the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association receive the written consent of their parents or guardians to make such changes?

"Were they in Copper Cliff on or before Oct. 15, 1936?

"We hope that the above information will help you to complete your investigation—if it is not yet completed."

Therein announced today the protest is being made only on behalf of the C.A.H.A.

"We urged Victorias to press the case two weeks ago when they were eliminated by Copper Cliff," he said. "But Victorias took the stand they never win games or championships by protests.

"We are making this protest with a view so fostering the true ideals of junior eligibility in hockey and the obedience to the rules adopted by the C.A.H.A. which the C.A.H.A. has always tried to follow and support most faithfully."

Copper Cliff is scheduled to meet Winnipeg Monarchs in the Memorial Cup final match starting Saturday night in Toronto. After the series with Victorias here, Copper Cliff eliminated Ottawa Rideaus in straight games.

50 P.C. DEBT SLASH IS ALBERTA PLAN

Proposed Law Would Make Settlement Of Remainder In Ten Equal Payments

EDMONTON, April 8—(CP).—New debt legislation calling for a 50 per cent. reduction in principal on all private debts contracted before July 1, 1932, was introduced in the Alberta Legislature yesterday. A bill based on its provisions was given first reading.

Payment will be on the instalment plan. Starting November 15, 1937, settlement would be on the basis of 10 equal payments.

Replacing the Reduction and Settlement of Debts Act, declared ultra vires by the Alberta courts, the new legislation provides:

The debtor to pay off the whole debt at any time desired, a privilege not contained in the old act;

Appeal to the Debt Adjustment Board, where creditors may be caused "undue hardships";

New agreements or judgments secured on old debts before or after July 1, 1932, are not enforcible where they provide for payment of any amount in excess of the amount of the old debt recoverable;

Debt Adjustment Board may grant a permit to allow a creditor to take action if instalments are not properly met on due date.

Interest rates are not touched, though there is an optional plan whereby creditors would surrender stipulated interest since 1933.

Storming And Capture Of Ridge Second Only To Armistice In Calendar Of Remembrance

20 YEARS HAVE PASSED

TORONTO, April 8.—(C.P.).—Canadian war veterans to-morrow will recall once more that achievement which 20 years ago rang through the world as one of the most brilliant of the Great War — the storming and capture of Vimy Ridge. Second only to the armistice in the calendar of remembrance, the battle which transferred that rampart to Canadian hands was fought on April 9, 1917, and succeeding days. Its importance was further emphasized last July 26, when Canada's national memorial atop the ridge was dedicated.

For these and other reasons, Canada's ex-service men will foregather in the city, town and hamlet to relive the only days and recall old comradeships. Vimy banquets are scheduled to take place everywhere.

In many respects the Battle of Vimy Ridge takes precedence over even Ypres and those bitter engagements fought during the last 100 days of the war. It marked the only occasion when the four divisions of the Canadian Corps fought in lines, at the same time and on the same day. The unity of Canada was signalized in that operation.

Canadian Staff Plans.

Vimy Ridge, moreover, was an engagement planned by a Canadian staff, headed by a commander who from the beginning of his leadership of the Canadian corps had noted that not only were Canadian troops unsurpassed in aggressiveness and spirit but among them was a wealth of material competent to arrange the ordering of battles. Sir Julian Byng early encouraged Canadians to quality for staff appointments. The successes which attended his policy amply justified the confidence he had.

For more than two years Vimy Ridge had been a sector which had witnessed bloody fighting. In 1915 the first major attempt to wrest it from the hands of the Germans had been undertaken by the French 33rd corps, commanded by Marshal Petain. This operation was an accompaniment to the British offensive at Loos in September, 1915. The French were temporarily successful; but their efforts so enfeebled them that they were unable to withstand the pressure of vigorous counter-attacks. Not all of the ridge was lost; but when the line became stabilized, honors were with the enemy.

Key to Mine Areas.

Possession of the ridge gave its holder the key to the rich mining areas of Northern France, consequently, it was a piece of great strategic value. Sporadic efforts to improve the position of the Allies along its length were not particularly successful.

Late in 1916, at the Calais conference of war commanders, the storming of Vimy Ridge was projected as part of the first and third army operations which were to take place in Artois. Already the Canadians were emplaced, having spent the winter in that sector. To it they had come from the Somme.

They were entrusted with the task of its capture and zero day was set for April 9, which was Easter Monday in 1917.

Their attack was completely successful. The enemy were driven from Vimy Ridge and not again did it revert to their hands during the remainder of the war.

CLAIMS STUDENT SAVED INDUSTRY

Kentville Paper Says Dalhousie Graduate Did Much For Iceland Fishing

KENTVILLE, N. S., April 8.—(CP).—The "Danske Herald," a Danish paper published here, gives credit to Thordar Thorbjarnarson, graduate from Dalhousie University, Halifax, for saving the Iceland fishing industry.

The redfish was an unwelcome visitor to the trawls of Icelandic fishermen and had become so destructive as to be a menace to the industry until young Thorbjarnarson discovered its value, the Herald says.

The young man, who took his doctor's degree in London after leaving Halifax in 1933, had found the oil of the redfish was one of the most valuable of fish oils, and that its liver supplied the same vitamin as cod and halibut.

Now the catching of redfish has become most important in Iceland, and the gains from it have offset the declining prices and disappointing catches of the usual cod and halibut fishing, the Herald claims.

CATTLE SCARCE WESTERN MARTS BEEF PRICES UP

Farmers Winter Very Few Head Due To Scarcity Of Feed And Its High Cost

HEAVY SNOW HITS HERDS

WINNIPEG, April 8 — (CP). — Western Canada livestock markets are faced with a shortage of cattle and rising beef prices ranchers and market officials said to-day.

With feed scarce and expensive during the past winter, farmers have fed less stock for finishing this spring and a cattle shortage has resulted. Forecasts of rising beef prices were voiced by market operators in Winnipeg and Calgary where receipts have dwindled daily.

Heavy snowfalls in many parts of Alberta hit many fine herds and contributed to the scarcity.

Cattle, grain-fed since the fall and usually moved on the market about this time of year, are at a premium because feed costs forced the hard-pressed western rancher and farmer to curtail his herds when the snow came it was learned.

Until the Canadian supply becomes more adequate with the marketing of grass-fed cattle probably in August, the determining factor in the price level will be the Southern United States' cattle markets, said Dr. C. E. Bain, Winnipeg, senior market superintendent of the Dominion Department of Agriculture.

"Prices will increase but no one knows how much" he said. "High prices will likely persist until grass-fed cattle are marketed. Good quality beef is being handled now but the quantity is scarce."

Very Small Supply.

In Calgary, D. A. MacKenzie, market representative of the Dominion livestock branch, said supply of finished cattle in Alberta was "pretty small." He attributed the shortage to diminishing supplies of cattle being fed on Western farms and ranches this year, along with increased exports and augmented home consumption.

A year ago many cattle were fed at a loss, he said, and this year the farmers were not taking a chance on high prices so they reduced their herds in the fall.

The shortage of supply has become apparent already in Alberta, MacKenzie said. One load of beef was recently shipped from Winnipeg to Calgary.

Jack Byers, manager of the Western Stock Growers' Association at Calgary, said winter losses would not likely be more than normal, taking Alberta as a whole, but they were abnormal in several areas where there had been heavy snow and severe cold.

CANADA IS READY FOR FLYING BOATS

Canadian Terminus Of Atlantic Flights Will Be St. Hubert's Airport

OTTAWA, April 8—(CP).—Canada will be ready when the first of Britain's flying boats cross the Atlantic this summer in experimental flights preparatory to establishment of regular air mail and passenger service across the ocean. In fact, preparations in this country have been completed.

Work is still underway in Newfoundland on two seaplane bases and an airport, officials here said to-day, but landings can be made at two points, Gander Lake, in the northern interior, or Botwood, north of Harbor Grace on the east coast. The airport is being constructed at Hattie's Camp on Gander Lake, leading to belief the northern base will be the final choice.

Canadian terminus of the flights will be at St. Hubert airport, on the southeastern fringe of Montreal's suburban municipalities, but the flying boats will land on the St. Lawrence River close to the airport and not on the field. Their arrival will bring to fruition a 10-year-old dream of an Empire trans-Atlantic air service.

Round-The-World Fliers Crash At Chicago

When the aeroplane in which they were making a world goodwill flight developed engine trouble during a storm near Chicago, these four fliers were forced to make a landing in one of the city's parks. The fliers are, LEFT to RIGHT, Jan Serhast, chief pilot who was slightly injured; Josef English, mechanic; Josef Bacovsky radio operator and Zaviav Brtnik co-pilot who was also injured. The aeroplane in which the four Czechoslovakian aviators were flying is also shown after it had crashed. The fliers were unable to locate the radio beam which would have led them to safety.

EIGHT BELIEVED DEAD

McNARY, Ariz., April 8—(AP)—A posse of 25 picked mountain climbers plunged at daybreak today into the Eastern Arizona "badlands," in search of a wrecked airliner and its eight occupants virtually given up for dead.

Their goal was the rugged western slope of 12,500-ft. Baldy Peak where air searchers yesterday spotted the tangled ruin of the 21-passager Douglas ship which lost its way while being "ferried" from Los Angeles to New York for sale to a Dutch firm.

Seven miles of pathless wilds lies between the searchers and the wreckage, almost hidden in a grove of trees on the mountain-side. Snow is from four to six feet deep on level stretches and fills Box canyons to depths of 20 feet.

Major A. D. Smith, who discovered the wreckage, and other airmen were ready to take off from Albuquerque, N.M., to aid the ground parties by circling over the spot. It is impossible to land an airplane near the peak.

22-PASSENGER PLANE PASSES.

SAN PEDRO, Calif., April 8 (A.P.). — Douglas Aircraft officials said to-day that a 22-passenger airplane, capable of flying 3,500 miles at 180 miles an hour, has passed its tests, but declined comment on reports it will be sold to Soviet Russia.

The story above the present restaurant—at one time used for billiards—is being renovated at present, with a higher ceiling, and will be redecorated and refurnished. A platform for an orchestra, tables and chairs, and possibly some booths, will comprise the new furnishings. J. T. Hornsby is the architect and J. F. Dunnitt the contractor.

"The new part, which will be ready about May 1st," Mr. Yeates said yesterday, "will increase the accomodation by 200. We will be able to take care of 420 patrons. I expect there will be more tourists in Peterborough this summer than ever before. I plan to increase my staff from 16 to 25 in the near future." He added that the new section of the restaurant could be cleared for parties or meetings, and that he would keep his Elite Court intact.

Women's Institute Ceremony In Town Park As Part Of Celebration

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, April 8. — The April meeting of the Hastings Women's Institute was held in the Council Chambers on Tuesday afternoon, the president, Mrs. Clifford Babcock, presiding. The roll-call, Ways of Removing Stains, was well responded to. The secretary, Mrs. J. A. Brown, gave the minutes of the last meeting and Mrs. O. Phillips gave the treasurer's report showing the Institute to be in good financial standing. The correspondence included a letter of appreciation for flowers and fruit received by a member during illness; two "thank you" letters from members who received letters of condolence during bereavement. The Legislation grat of $3.00 was received by the secretary, also five copies of the Co-operative Program in Home Economics for 1937-1938. The president received a sample copy of the magazine "Health" which she recommended for the members of the Institute.

To commemorate the Coronation of King George VI, a red maple will be planted by the Womens Institute on May 12. The Institute will interview the Park Board for permission and help in planting the tree in the park.

The district annual will be held in the Hastings Town Hall on May 27. The members decided to interview the Woman's Association of Trinity United Church in regard to catering for the dinner for the delegates and members who will be present. It was also decided to hire someone to carry the water for each meeting in readiness for making tea.

Annual in May.

The May meeting will be the annual meeting for the submitting of reports, and the election of officers.

After the business was transacted a splendid program prepared by the convenor, Mrs. J. B. Scrivet proved very interesting. Mrs. J. B. Scrivet gave the topic on "Child Training," giving a very helpful paper on obedience, self-control, self-reliance and respect. Mrs. Stewart Whitrod gave a humorous reading, "The Village Oracle," from Maxville Kleiser hits. The guest speaker for the afternoon was the Rev. William Stocks of St. George's Church, who gave as the subject of his discourse, "Social Challenge." Rev. Mr. Stocks highly praised the work of the Women's Institute, and give very encouraging advise to the branch. His talk centered around the crisis of to-day in Russia, Spain, and Great Britain, social reforms for social betterments, the housing improvement movement in Great Britain, the great home improvements in Austria, the indifference to the world's wrong, and the sanctity of home life.

At the close of the meeting a dainty luncheon was served, Mrs. J. Cruikshank, Mrs. H. Fairman, and Mrs. O. Faux being responsible for the dainty cakes, sandwiches, and cup of tea.

What Is Correct?

What should be done with the napkin after Dinner? It should be put on the table at one's place exactly as it is—not folded again, nor thrown on the chair. Napkin rings are never used at any formal meal. They are used only when the size of the family makes it necessary for economy's sake.

Is it necessary for a man to ask his hostess to dance? Yes, unless he does not dance, in which case he may talk to her for a while instead. To ignore one's hostess entirely is an unforgivable rudeness. This also applies to a guest of honor.

May elbows be rested on the table? Yes, but a certain amount of discretion should be used. It is now allowable to put an elbow on the table when leaning forward to talk with someone. However, elbows should not be used as a permanent prop throughout dinner, and one should never lean on an elbow while actually eating.

125 Men Forced To Leap For Lives From Second-Storey Windows

AT MINING CAMP

GERALDTON, Ont., April 8.—(CP)—Victims of a mine camp fire, three men were recovering today in hospital at Geraldton, about 160 miles northeast of Port Arthur.

They were burned and injured when fire destroyed the camp quarters of the Macleod Cockshutt Mine, causing $50,000 damage. In the burning house flames and smoke trapped 125 men, forced to leap for their lives from second-storey windows.

Love broke his arm when he tumbled from a second-storey window of the bunkhouse which caught fire from flames in the cook house. Butar, downstairs, noticed smoke pouring from bunkhouse registers and sped upstairs to warn the sleepers.

The men scrambled through windows. Butar, one of the last to leave, burned his hand as flames spread through the room. Laguna suffered his burns while fleeing. Superficial hurts were received by others.

AGED COMMUTER DIES

Veteran N.Y. Rail Passenger Missed His Train Once In 67 Years.

HACKENSACK, N.J., April 8 (AP).—The Erie Railroad's oldest commuter, who missed his train just once in 67 years, is dead.

Ten days after officials of the Seamen's Bank in New York honored him upon completion of 70 years of service, Mahlon Brewster Smith, 89, died Tuesday.

It was during the famous blizzard of 1888 that he missed his morning train to work.

"I was lucky, too," he recalled. "That train never got to Jersey City. The passengers were snowbound in it for 24 hours."

PIONEER PHYSICIAN DIES.

INDIAN HEAD, Sask., April 8.—(CP)—Dr. C. W. Hunt, 80, native of Listowel, Ont., and pioneer physician of this town 60 miles east of Regina, died last night. He was interested in fruit trees and grew the first apple brought to maturity in Saskatchewan.

DUCE AGGRESSOR IN LOVE AFFAIR

Paris Beauty Claims Dictator Coaxed Her To Stay, Forgot Newspaper Job

PARIS, April 8.—Sultry-eyed Madeleine de Fontanges, who shot Count Charles Pineton de Chambrun because he "shattered my unforgettable hours of love with Benito Mussolini," testified yesterday that Il Duce was the aggressor in their alleged romance.

The 21-year-old beauty, who said she was Premier Mussolini's mistress between April and August of last year and visited him in a "love nest" in a Venice palace, appeared before an examining Magistrate for a third hearing on charges of shooting the 42-year-old Count.

She went to Rome last April, she testified—dashing at her eyes with a lacy handkerchief—with instructions from the editors of the Tribuna des Nations to interview the Italian dictator.

"I was told to return to Paris the day after I obtained the interview, but Mussolini prevailed upon me to remain, she said.

"And how long did you remain?" the Magistrate asked.

Two "Beautiful Months"

"For two months — two of the most beautiful months of my life," the erstwhile actress and journalist said with an ecstatic sigh.

"During that time I saw Mussolini about twenty times."

She said that she had no intention of "vamping" Il Duce and that she remained in Rome only because of his "implaring love."

A week ago Mme. Fontanges, also known as Magda la Perriere, testified that three months ago Mussolini gave her 25,000 lire ($1,250) and told her to get out of Rome.

In November, she admitted, she tried to commit suicide by swallowing a heaping dose of sedative because of "my shattered love."

Blames Former Premier.

She blamed former Premier Joseph Paul-Boncour for the fact that she was jilted by Mussolini.

The Count de Chambrun, she said, was appointed Ambassador to Rome by Paul-Boncour and, as payment of a political debt, he "poisoned" Il Duce against her.

Paul-Boncour was described by Mme. Fontanges as one of her many friends of bygone years.

Later, she said, he turned against her and even went so far as to force her to leave Geneva, where she was League of Nations correspondent for the Paris newspaper La Liberte.

Authorities indicated that Paul-Boncour, the Count de Chambrun and Cassius Garnier, Secretary of the French Embassy in Rome, may be called to testify before conclusion of the hearings.

Three weeks ago police were instructed to make a drive to find poisoners blamed for deaths of more than a dozen pet dogs and cats.

INDIANS ONCE STAGED SIT-DOWN STRIKE IN 1882

Tried To Stop Western Railway Building By Passive Resistance

CLASH WITH POLICE

REGINA, April 8.—(CP).—The first "sit-down" strike is believed to have been staged on the western Canadian plains, but causes have changed with the march of time since Chief Piapo and his Indian braves tried to paralyse railway construction.

C. P. Redskins had no wage or working condition problems to fret about 55 years ago, but they objected strenuously to the "steel-horse" fire-wagons clattering over their hunting grounds. That was back in 1882 when the buffalo roamed the west in thousands.

Piapot called his tribe together in his encampment 40 miles east of the present city of Regina and passive resistance was decided upon. The entire encampment marched overland and sat down in the path of the oncoming railway. Work was halted immediately.

Two Royal North West Mounted Police officers hastened to the scene. They gave Chief Piapot 15 minutes to abandon the strike and leave the vicinity. As it was two against hundreds the Indians laughed.

A sergeant, with watch in hand, stood before Piapot's tent. When time was up he slashed the guy-ropes of the chief's tent and it collapsed on the heads of its occupants.

A howl was raised and for a time serious trouble threatened. Piapot was wise, however, and realized the might of Canada was behind the officers. He quickly ordered his braves to strike camp and leave the railway line.

Piapot's "squat-an-down" had failed.

WOOL AFTER ALL BASIC MATERIAL

But By Other Names Strikes Higher Note In Women's Clothes

OTTAWA, April 8—(C.P.).—Crepe and monotone tweeds, challis and basket weaves, twills and herringbones are merely fashion's names for sheep's wool, for it is that rough-coated animal in Canada and other parts of the world that supplies milady with her smart and attractive spring tailleurs.

"Fewer hairy surfaces" says one leading fashion expert, so perhaps the angora goat, usually to be found in southern European countries, will not be as much in the fashion picture as the sheep, whose coarse wool is suitable for the rough wools associated with spring suits and coats. In Italy a source for artificial wool has been found in casein, obtained from milk. Finely-spun yarns mixed with other yarns makes a novelty material.

The silk worm and the cotton seed supply the material for the vivid print, the spring motif for this year. The gorgeous Coronation lames and royal velvets are derived from the same source, but the silk or cotton in the lame must be combined with ores from the depths of the earth to obtain that metallic effect.

For the richest metallics actual gold or silver is used as a covering for the filling, or lengthwise thread, and silk for the warp or crosswise threads. These are woven together on the loom and a cloth of gold or silver results. For the more commonly-used metallics tinsel is wrapped around the filling thread.

In making velvets, silk is used for the better-quality cloth and cotton for the cheaper, the threads being looped and then cut to form the pile.

Grave Diggers Join Ranks Of Sit-Downers

The ultimate in sit-down strikes was reached at North Arlington, N.J., when grave diggers and other laborers of the cemetery took possession of the tool shed and refused to prepare graves for six scheduled funerals. The men, shown ABOVE in relaxed and contemplative mood, demanded a minimum of $5 a day in addition to other requests.

Lakefield Grannies Honored Guests Of Women's Institute

Enjoyable Program Provided At Novel Gathering In Memorial Hall

INTERESTING CONTESTS

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LAKEFIELD, April 8. — Grandmothers of Lakefield and district were guests of the Women's Institute at a novel meeting held in their honor on Wednesday afternoon, in the Memorial Hall. A general invitation was given to all grandmothers in the vicinity, whether members of the Institute or not, and a fair number of grandmothers were present. The poor condition of country roads made it difficult, and in some cases impossible, for persons at a distance to attend.

Mrs. Howard Bullock, president of the Institute, presided over the meeting, and Miss Margaret Sanderson acted as secretary in the absence of Mrs. J. W. Ridpath. Mrs. S. E. White, treasurer, gave her report, stating the balance on hand to be about $30. A motion to donate the amount of ten dollars to the Junior Institute to help them defray the expenses of sending two delegates to the short course at the Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph, early in May, was adopted. In response to the roll call each member brought forward a photograph of one of her grandparents. Members who failed to procure a photo of a grandparent were fined.

Nominating Committee.

Mrs. Charles Lake and Mrs. Payne were appointed as members of the nominating committee, to select a slate of officers for the coming year. The officers selected will be presented for approval to the annual meeting of the society to be held next month.

Mrs. Lake reported that fifty pairs of mittens had been knitted by the Institute this last year, and that thirty-five pairs had been distributed to children of the village.

Mrs. Charles Lake presented the program, which opened with community singing of appropriate music from the Institute song sheets. Mrs. H. E. Moore provided instrumental accompaniment. Mrs. Hopkins then presented a piano solo, and Mrs. W. B. Walker gave a group of readings, both humorous and otherwise, which had a special appeal for grandmothers. Mrs. T. W. Chaplin rendered a delightful vocal solo, entitled, "Little Old Lady."

A contest, supervised by Mrs. Wellie Garbutt, to which answers must be articles found in the sewing-room, was won by Mrs. T. Borland. A prize, given to the oldest grandmother present, who came from the greatest distance, was won by Mrs. Albert Darling, of Douro. Mrs. Hopkins, of Lakefield, carried off the honors as the youngest grandmother coming the shortest distance.

After a second period of community singing delicious refreshments were served by the committee in charge, which was composed of Mesdames Charles Lake, Bell, Garbutt, Windsor and A. V. Hill.

Entertain Mothers.

The members of the B.B. Club of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Lakefield, entertained their mothers at a mother and daughter banquet held on Thursday evening, April 1, at 6 p.m. About twenty persons sat down to a prettily decorated table laden with good things.

After the banquet toasts were drunk, Miss Winnie Bierwert proposed the toast to the King. Miss Ethel Bullock proposed a toast to the mothers. Mrs. A. Davis replied. A toast to the class was proposed by Miss Jean Clark and responded to by Mrs. J. M. Simpson.

The mothers were then entertained by a short program, including solos, recitations, piano duets, humorous jokes and impromptu speeches.

The remainder of the evening was spent in games and contests.

W.M.S. Holds Meeting.

The regular monthly meeting of the Women's Missionary Society of Lakefield United Church was held in the Sunday School room Tuesday afternoon.

The theme for the day was "Jesus and the Joy of Service." Mrs. E. J. Millage occupied the chair for the devotional period. The theme was emphasized by suitable Bible passages read by Mrs. F. Darling, Mrs. Hopkins, Mrs. MacKercher, and Mrs. Frank Darling.

A pleasing vocal solo was rendered by Mrs. W. J. Charlton, "Jesus took my burden, and left me with a song." The president, Mrs. W. W. Yale, took the chair for the business session, and Mrs. W. W. Leonard acted as secretary in Mrs. Renwick's absence. Mrs. Yale reminded the members of the many valuable items in the missionary monthly, and briefly scanned the pages of the March number. The treasurer, Miss Sanderson, announced that $76 had been taken in as an Easter thankoffering. Appreciation was expressed for Miss Coon's splendid address given Easter Sunday evening. The collection was then taken, and Mrs. G. F. Kelly offered the dedicatory prayer.

The sixth chapter of the study-book, "Men and Women of Par Horizons," was ably presented by Mrs. W. Leonard and Mrs. Leslie Harrison. Mrs. Leonard dealt with missionary stories from the life of the Arab, and began by saying: "There are no finer friends in the world than Arabs; and if approached on the basis of simple democratic friendship, they are easily won as friends." Such methods are used by the missionaries.

The statement, "The way of Love works," was demonstrated by stories from the life of Dr. Walter B. Judd, missionary in China.

BISHOP VISITS MOVIE

Godchild He Explains After Press Comment.

LONDON, April 8—(CP)—After a London newspaper had headlined his visit to a cinema following the Maundy Thursday service at St. Paul's, the Bishop of London, 79-year-old Dr. A. F. Winnington-Ingram, declared:

"I know it is holy week, but it is the end of Lent, and I thought I would have a little relaxation. I did it partly to please my godchild."

He saw the British film "Thunder In the City." He entered the cinema wearing his four-cornered purple velvet hat.

RISE IN PRICE OF GLYCERINE

Supply Dwindles In Trinidad, Merchants Claim No More Available

PRICE DOUBLES

PORT OF SPAIN, Trinidad, April 8 — (C.P.). — At least one commodity on this British island has soared in price since the rearming race in other countries of the world got underway. Glycerine costs twice as much here now as it did two months ago.

Dealers claim the product is scarce because of the increased demand due to its value in the manufacture of war materials.

Percy Philip, manager of one large city store, said: "About two months ago, glycerine was selling at 24 cents a pound in Port of Spain. Now the price has soared to as much as 50 cents a pound. It would not be surprising if glycerine could not be obtained on the island at all soon."

H. O. Innis, manager of another concern, said no more glycerine was available for import into Trinidad. "It is being kept for the manufacture of explosives," he said. "The price is rising because no new supply is coming in, and we have only our reserve supply left for sale. I don't know what we'll do when that is gone; we simply can't get any more at the present time."

SUGGEST GLASGOW GAME

GLASGOW—(CP) — The Scottish Cricket Union is being urged to arrange a match against the Australians in their 1938 English tour to be played during the big exhibition to be held at Bellahouston Park here.

HUMOR VISITORS —CANADIAN URGES

Don't Be Too Heedful Of Criticism, Coronation Hosts Advised

LONDON, April 8—(C.P.)—Under the heading, 'Our Canadian Visitors,' the Morning Post publishes on its editorial page the following observations by an editor in the London Bureau of The Canadian Press:

By I. NORMAN SMITH
(A Canadian Journalist in London).

Much is being said and done to make Coronation visitors from overseas feel at home. The plans vary in scope and method, but to a Canadian "three months green" it seems the fundamental object should be to assure the visitors a peep behind the flags and bunting.

Pomp and ceremony there will be, and rightly, but that's pretty heavy as a steady diet. Let them alone to find your England; and they'll go home wagging their tails behind them.

What will they find? Probably just what they came to see, according to their nature. The rolling downs, the shipyards; the thatched roof, the cenotaphs; the mad Metropolis, the village green; the quaint, the novel and the well-worn.

Let them mingle, let them wander. Tell them, if critical, but don't be too heedful. It seems to be the inalienable right of every visitor to tell England what's the matter with England. They'll damn you for your inconsistencies, and then return home and exclaim with pride that England has retained her personality. They'll mock your tea hours and long week-ends, but jealously confide to their friends that England knows how to live.

Whatever you do, don't be eternally asking them what their country thought of the abdication, or will they go to war for Britain, or do they find times are better? The generalities and stock questions discussed between chance acquaintances are the bane of the thoughtful traveller, though offered for conversation with the host's best intentions.

Why not tell them about your flowers, what you read, where you go for holidays, and why you prefer cheese to sweets? Then, if you find they're serious, and want to talk objectively, meet them half-way.

It would be kinder not to laugh if they go down Pall Mall instead of "Fell Mell," or express surprise that the tide reaches London. One might even confuse Glasgow with Dublin; but before you reply in smug consternation, see that you know the capital of Saskatchewan and the location of Tasmania. Nor would it be wise to introduce your visitor around your club as a Colonial curio, for quite possibly he's not the rube he looks.

On the other hand, they'll exasperate you by everlastingly making comparisons. "At home we do this better . . ." has been worn so ragged as to warrant a poster at all ports advising members of the home lovers' club to stay on board. They may be rude about your coffee, sigh at the sight of another sprout, and shiver in your damp home. And if you retort that the Englishman likes fresh air and cold baths, the visitor may ask you why in the name of English cleanliness and hardiness you don't take a shower bath after a round of golf, as do all self-respecting Canadians.

But enough of this "everlastingly making comparisons."

BANQUET IS GIVEN HASTINGS CHAMPS

Winners Of Kawartha Cup Feted At Very Enjoyable Affair

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, April 8.—At the Clarendon Hotel on Monday evening a very successful banquet was held in honor of the Junior Hockey Club, winners of the Kawartha hockey cup.

The banquet was attended by all the members of the club, the manager, coach, the executive and many invited guests.

The program was opened by the president, W. D. Clapper, and grace said by Mr. V. Findlay, manager of the Royal Bank. After enjoying the sumptuous repast the players and guests were called upon for short speeches. The toast to the players, given by Mr. M. A. O'Shea, was capably responded to by Mr. Jack Coughlan." After the singing of the National Anthem, the guests departed, everybody reporting a pleasant evening.

The juniors have played some real hockey during the season, and the citizens of Hastings are justly proud of their boys, who have done their best and who are worthy of the honor bestowed upon them. Stanley Stevenson, as manager, is to be highly commended on the way he has managed his team, through his untiring efforts the boys have brought fame to their village. Members of the junior team are: Berj. Montgomery, Arthur Turner, Raymond Boyle, Carlos McCoy, J. McCarthy, Jack Coughlan, Harold Edwards, Reg. Scriver, Vernon Phillips, Ed. Faux, York Calberry, Jack Puffer, C. Radford and A. Pettierew.

The juniors have played against Norwood, Havelock and Warsaw, winning six games out of eight.

One-third of the 150,000 radio listeners in South Africa have voted in favor of multilingual programs on separate waves.

EVERY WOMAN FACES THIS QUESTION

How do I look to other people? So many women risk their beauty by neglect of constipation. It often causes loss of pep, sallow skins, dull eyes, poor complexions.

Yet common constipation can be ended so easily. Just eat two tablespoonfuls of Kellogg's ALL-BRAN with milk or fruits every day, three times daily in severe cases. This delicious ready-to-eat cereal supplies the "bulk" needed to exercise the system—and vitamin B to help tone up the intestinal tract.

Within the body, ALL-BRAN absorbs more than twice its weight in water, gently sponging out the intestines. It never causes the artificial action of pills and drugs, that often prove ineffective.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN, you see, is a food—not a medicine. It relieves common constipation the way Nature intended—so its results are safe. Buy it at your grocer's. Made and guaranteed by Kellogg in London.

SWIFT JUSTICE WHEN WHITE MEN PIONEERING WEST

Lethal Chamber Versus Rope Recalls Executions Of Early '80's

RIEL PAID PENALTY

REGINA, April 8—(C.P.)—Recommendation of the House of Commons special committee that the rope instead of the proposed lethal chamber be retained for the death penalty in capital cases recalls historic murder trials and hangings, including a mass execution in the North-West Territories 50 years ago.

Justice was swift in the early days to meet peculiar conditions when the country was being settled by white men. There were difficulties with the Indians who were as yet ignorant of the law and habits of the white man. Murders and hangings were numerous until late 1885 when law and order had secured a firm root.

Public mass execution of eight convicted Indian murderers took place at Battleford, N.W.T., November 27, 1885. The condemned men were found guilty of murder and looting in the Frog Lake district.

A great crowd of whites and Indians were present to witness the unusual event. It was believed it would serve as an object lesson and put to an end marauding activities of redskins.

Those executed were: Bad Arrow, Mistrable Man, Wandering Spirit, Iron Body, Man-Without-Blood, Little Bear, Ikta, and Round-The-Sky.

"They died very gamely, singing and shouting their war or death cry," says an old report of the affair. "All had confessed their guilt. Miserable Man and Wandering Spirit, in short addresses to their executioners before they died, urged them to walk in the ways of peace and righteousness and not follow their own bad examples."

Riel Paid Penalty.

Two years later, on November 16, 1885, Louis Riel was hanged after being convicted of treason as the leader of the Riel Rebellion. Court records of the sensational case, thought to have been burned in the fire which destroyed Regina Court House years ago, were recently found in an old vault here.

In his will Riel forgave all and asked forgiveness. To his children he left "neither silver nor gold," and bequeathed his Testament to his spiritual adviser, Father Alexis Andre.

Father Lacombe in the West was at Calgary on March 29, 1885, when Jean Williams, negro, 42, was executed for the murder of James H. Adams, carpenter, on February 8 of that year.

At Regina on October 3, 1885, Judge Hugh Richardson sentenced to death George and John Stevenson, half-breed brothers, who were convicted of the murder of John McCarthy, farmer, near Troy (now Qu'Appelle, Sask.). Execution date was finally set for April 3, 1886.

Two priests—Father Joseph Hugonard and Father L. N. Larche, who were on hand to give spiritual advice—adjusted the ropes and pulled the caps over the heads of the condemned men at their urgent request. They did not want the masked hangman to come near them. George whispered to Father Hugonard: "Put it on tight; don't be afraid."

In a public statement issued later Father Hugonard referred to the part played by the priests as an "unexpected and painful duty."

The Royal Road To The Coronation

Queen Elizabeth Inspects Nurses at the Middlesex Hospital

YESTERDAY we saw Queen Elizabeth as an ambulance woman and noted her lively interest in nursing during the years of the Great War. That her interest did not fade after 1918 is amply indicated by the picture reproduced above.

Though the world gradually righted itself after the four-year catastrophe, and men and women gradually returned to their normal spheres of life, the call of service remained and still remains for the Duchess of York—now the Queen—and her royal husband. Glamis lost the hospital aspect it assumed when the stately pile became a haven for war-broken men, its youngest daughter swept into the whirl of society, passed through a brilliant wedding to take her place in the royal circle, but sickness and suffering still remain to haunt men and women.

The deep sympathy of the Queen and her ardent interest in every detail that goes to alleviate that suffering is too well-known to need retelling. All England came to know and to love her while she was the third lady of the realm and many of her public appearances were made in aid of hospitals, charitable and service clubs and similar relief organizations.

Today's scene is an example. Her Majesty—still the Duchess of York—is greeting the nurses drawn up outside the edifice when she opened the new Middlesex hospital only a few years ago. That she enjoys the task, if task it can be called, is obvious and that the nurses who are honored by such an important and kindly guest appreciate the visit is also clear.

The Queen shares her interest in hospital work with the King, for surrounded though he is by arduous duties, His Majesty has often been seen, giving generously of time and support, to worthy causes. Perhaps his own war experience, and the war trials that his Queen were called upon to bear, have left something of a mark upon this royal couple which reveals itself in this kindly interest.

Your Crowning Opportunity to Give

April 8th, 1937.

Dear Friends:

Every true Canadian will agree that among the greatest assets of a country is the character of its manhood.

Every citizen of Peterborough is interested in the future of our boys. They are facing another year. Many of them experienced great disappointments in 1936, but they look forward to this year with high hopes and we are quite confident that with your generous support THEY WILL COME THROUGH.

The Peterborough Young Men's Christian Association is not self-supporting. Its very object would be defeated if it were, for many young men and boys who need it most would be unable to join because of the prohibitive cost. The Association cannot be operated on a commercial basis any more than a college or church or a hospital.

To all of us comes this challenge: What are we going to do about the Youth problem of Peterborough? This responsibility to the underprivileged, to the unfortunate, to the young man who has been without a position for some time and cannot secure one. We have an obligation to continue the efforts made on their behalf, in order that the Association, which is recognized world-wide for its unselfish endeavours, may do its part in building a high standard of Canadian manhood.

As Chairman of the Financial Campaign I thank those who contributed to the funds of the Association during the past year, and hope they will renew their valued assistance in the approaching canvass. I trust also that many new contributors will share in this very essential service to the youth of the City of Peterborough.

Yours faithfully,

Chas. J. Shaw

Chairman, Financial Campaign.

Farm Wife's Play Vividly Pictures Farmers Struggle

Writer Plays Leading Roles Supported By Husband, Neighbors' Children

SUFFERING WEST

REGINA, April 8 — (C.P.) — Capturing, by some simple alchemy, the eternal play of hope and despair that fills the life of the Saskatchewan farmer faced with crop failure, the drama "Relief" by Mrs. F. Bicknell of Marshall, Sask., which won the Saskatchewan drama festival, has aroused wide interest.

Undoubtedly some measure of its stark reality can be traced to the method of its writing, and to the long years its author has spent enduring the very heartbreaks that provide the theme for the play. For Mrs. Bicknell having lived her life in the rural districts, wrote the play bit by bit as actual experiences suggested the plot.

"It was easy to write," she said. "I jotted down the plot as it came to me. Then my husband and I used to read the parts over until we felt confident enough to try it out."

The first rough draft was tried out with the help of two neighbors' children. Then when the play was finished to her satisfaction, Mrs. Bicknell took the script to the Alberta Drama School where its possibilities were recognized.

The Saskatchewan Drama League took an interest and lent encouragement to the author and her husband roles. At this point its success was who were chosen to fill the major practically assured if the opinion of amused critics can be considered as a criterion.

"Well, yes, we ought to know what things are like," said Mrs. Bicknell when complimented on "Relief's" obvious sincerity. "We are not in the depths of the drought area, but we know plenty of people that are, and what they have to suffer."

Did Not Want Part

"I really did not want to play the part of Martha Weatherby," Mrs. Bicknell assured. "I would far rather someone else had done it. But then I feel the part and there was no one else to take it on. So here I am, very humble with all the appreciation the people have shown and all the kind words—too kind—that Mr. de Warfaz (the adjudicator) has spoken."

"We like doing this," said Mr. Bicknell. "Yes, it has been a lot of pleasure learning the part and seeing the play develop. But do not forget the children. Archie McArthur and Ann McIntyre live about four miles from our farm and every time we had a rehearsal we had to get in touch with them.

"Our rehearsals were all at night, after the days work on the farm was done; but it was good fun and everybody has been very kind."

Friends in Regina and distant parts of the province gathered about the Bicknells to congratulate them. The chief ladies were not excited. Mr. Bicknell still wore the faded blue shirt he had on when he spoke despairing words on the stage; Mrs. Bicknell's hair had not been dressed again and her dress was not much different from that she wore as the courageous woman of the drought area with eternal faith in her elder children, to whom had been given the savings to provide an education.

It was easy to think of her taking the part in real life—encouraging, faithful. It was not so easy to think of the bald, stalwart Mr. Bicknell, giving way to the agonies of despair, voicing those dreadful words, "What in the hell is there to be happy about?" just before he dashes outside and the boom of a shotgun—"just the backfire of the engine, mother"—cuts through the sound of the screaming wind as his wife and children read the telegram promising them freedom from the dried-out farm.

When the Bicknells go to Ottawa for the regional drama finals, Mr. Bicknell will wear on the stage his faded blue shirt, and tattered overalls he wears on the farm.

TRICK GROUNDHOG PLAYS WITH CAT

With Feline Friend Performs Tricks, Voracious Eater

PORT FRANCES, Ont., April 8. —(CP)— Living the life of pioneers, Charles Petri, his wife, and seven children, keep in touch with the outside world by correspondence, but Charles Jr. seems more interested in making small animals do strange tricks.

At their home, in bushland 30 miles northwest of here, 16-year-old Charles trained a sturdy five-year-old cat, Nuge, to pull a tiny sleigh loaded with wood. With Teddy, a big groundhog, sitting sedately atop.

Nuge and Teddy, best of pals, have been together since Charles brought home the latter when he was just a baby. Teddy, now eight months old, weighs eight pounds. Cow's milk, raw oatmeal and sugar accounted for his rapid growth. "He's never tired eating and appears never to get enough," Charles complained.

Teddy drinks milk from a spoon while sitting on his hind legs, and sits on top of Charles' head at command. He holds a lead pencil like a scholar and directs Nuge who hauls the wood.

HAVELOCK DROPS REUNION SCHEME UNTIL YEAR 1938

Committee Believes Three Months' Preparation Is Not Sufficient

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HAVELOCK, April 8.—The "Old Boys and Girls' reunion," which was being seriously considered for this summer, has been postponed until the summer of 1938 by the "Old Boys' Reunion" committee.

It was the opinion of those on the committee that a properly-organized reunion of erstwhile citizens would require a much longer period of preparation than the three months now remaining. The committee, however will be held intact as far as possible and will meet immediately after the village elections in January. Meanwhile the secretary and officers will collect all available information from towns and villages with previous experience in this work and present a complete report on this at the January meeting.

Several reasons, besides that of time, also strongly contributed to the postponement of the reunion. Chairman P. Lancaster M.P.P., in his opening remarks, stated that in his opinion, next year would be much more suitable, since a great many improvements already planned will not be completed this summer. By 1938, however, Havelock will have a new $12,000 post office, the Masonic Temple will then be completed, and the newly-organized Albion Club Band will be in full swing.

Where Five Died In Flying Boat Crash

When this giant Imperial Airways' flying-boat crashed during a snow storm near Ouroux, France, four of the crew of five and the only passenger were killed. After the aeroplane crashed on a wooded mountainside, the wireless operator, who escaped with injuries, made his way to Ouroux with news of the crash. The above photograph shows the wrecked flying-boat after it had skidded along the ground for 500 yards, shedding its four motors on the way. Holes in the wings where the motors were torn away are plainly visible.

OTTAWA ANXIOUS PASS NEW LAWS SOCIAL REFORM

Workshops Limited.

At the same time the minister announced the government's intention of establishing across Canada "Workshops Limited," voluntary committee work that had been successful in Montreal, to assist the young war veterans in getting re-established in gainful employment.

Workshops Limited, established in Montreal by a voluntary committee organized by the War Veterans' Assistance Commission, had performed useful and successful service in placing veterans on jobs. With money now on hand and more he would ask from parliament, the minister said he proposed "to set up these Workshops Limited across the country, headed by prominent citizens who will interest themselves in obtaining employment for returned soldiers.

"Much can be done by re-enlisting sympathy and there is a large amount of sympathy throughout the country for the ex-soldier—in favor of the man who can work and wants work, of training the man who had no opportunity or possibly wasted his opportunity when he came back from overseas.

"There are in this country roughly 400,000 ex-soldiers. Of these 100,000 are being looked after in some way or other by the government. Of the remaining 300,000 there are about 23,000 who may be assumed to need assistance.

An Invitation to 123,000

"My contention is that you look after these 23,000 you open the door for another 100,000 who will say 'If my friend Bill Smith, who fought alongside me in the trenches, is going to get $30 or $40 a month from the government why the devil shouldn't I?' and I would not blame him."

There are now 73,000 disability pensioners and 14,000 widows or dependents of those who died, while war veteran allowances granted those who are considered to have suffered a disability through service in the front line but are not pensionable are helped to the number of 11,000, he stated.

For the pensions the House is asked to vote $41,500,000 this year, and for war veterans' assistance $4,800,000, while there is a vote of $2,600,000 to be paid in relief to pensions.

On the statutes of Canada there was already, Major Power said, sufficient legislation to permit every man injured in service to Canada to get "that to which he is entitled according to the ordinary rules of common, everyday justice."

With respect to the reference given veterans in civil service appointments Major Power thought this had been of benefit to ex-soldiers in the past. He raised the question of veterans in the civil service giving up their pensions and referred to the fact that as a member of parliament drawing $4,000 a year he had received a pension of $92 a month.

When he became a minister of the Crown, Major Power said, he unfortunately was so subject to outside influence that he abandoned that pension of which he was "so proud when he returned from overseas" and for the abandonment of which he saw no justification today.

"I do not think we should set up as is proposed by different agencies and possibly by some members a new militaristic class in this country."

PILES GO QUICK

With Dr. Leonhardt's Prescription.

Many sufferers from itching, bleeding or protruding piles have found out that quick relief can be had with an internal medicine.

Bad circulation of blood in the lower bowel is the cause of piles. The veins are congested and flabby, the bowel walls weak. That is why an internal medicine like HEM-ROID should be used. HEM-ROID stimulates the circulation, relieves the pressure of blood in the veins of the lower bowel and helps to heal and strengthen the sore, irritated parts.

HEM-ROID is the prescription of Dr. J. S. Leonhardt, who spent several years of his professional life in finding the cause of piles and the medicine that would remove them. His medicine succeeds because it helps to correct the cause.

No matter what kind of piles you have or how long you have had them, if you want to try HEM-ROID, you have our promise to give you back your money if you do not find quick and satisfying relief, after using just one bottle.

workers recently "to stay out of labor unions" for their own good. He always has been a staunch advocate of the open shop in the motor car industry.

"We'll never recognize the United Automobile Workers' Union or any other union," Ford emphasized in revealing the papers' "exclusive" in one of his rare visits a week. The first was a brief sit-down at Kansas City.

"I have no doubt that Mr. Ford will do that as long as his employees permit him to pull that policy and no other," asserted Lewis. "I have no doubt, however, that Mr. Ford will change his mind."

Lewis mentioned the agreements between the U.A.W.A. and General Motors and the Chrysler Corporation and said their respective heads, Alfred P. Sloan, Jr., and Walter P. Chrysler, each "changed his mind."

Two other speakers at the meeting referred to Ford.

"I want to say in answer that if Ford wants to build automobiles, he'll recognize the U.A.W.A.," said Richard T. Frankenstein, union organizational director.

See Ford Men in Line.

"The time is coming when every automobile worker will be carrying a U.A.W.A. membership card," asserted its international president, Homer Martin. "And we imagine that the most willing members will be Ford workers."

Ford's industrial empire is worldwide. It extends to Canada and 28 other countries as well as some 30 cities in the United States where it has approximately 130,000 workers. More than half of these, about 87,000 are in the Detroit area alone. Its present wage scale is reported to be near $7.00 a day. The Ford automotive plants operate on a 5-day 40-hour week.

Further conferences with executives of three automobile companies engaged union negotiators to-day. One of these was a resumption of discussions in the office of Governor Frank Murphy at Lansing to settle the Hudson Motor Car Company strike which has left 11,000 Detroit workers idle for a month. A preliminary session was held last night.

Plant Manager Highfield, also making a tour of inspection, was jeered when he tried to drive his car through. Several dozen strikers stood in front of the gates and Highfield backed away, driving in to his office instead.

In high good-humour after walking out the strikers sent up a cheer when 600 girl workers, most of them employed in cutting upholstering materials, left the buildings in small groups. An apple was thrown at a photographer, missing him, and again the strikers cheered good-naturedly.

Officials of the Coulter Manufacturing Company and the Skinner Company, which make materials for General Motors, said they would not close unless General Motors orders were cancelled.

"There are legal and moral reasons," the report declared, "for the fulfilment of contracts, but, leaving these entirely out of consideration (although we do not minimize their importance) we believe that self-interest alone should have induced Alberta to fulfil its contractual liabilities in respect of interest.

Salvation Army Welcomes General And Mrs. Higgins

Former World Command Of The Salvation Army Visits City

TEMPLE PACKED

"We rejoice and praise God for the accomplishments which I have outlined, declared General Edward J. Higgins speaking on "The Challenge of the Times" on the occasion of his first visit to Peterborough Wednesday evening. "But," he urged, "there are still evils to be overcome and still battles to be fought not only by the Salvation Army, but by every unit of the Christian church."

General Higgins, former world commander of the Salvation Army was accompanied by Mrs. Higgins, and the two distinguished officers were accorded an enthusiastic welcome by officers and members of the local corps.

Temple Packed

The Salvation Army Temple was packed for the occasion, and Mayor George A. Macdonald, the Rev. E. W. Howland, pastor of Mark Street United Church and the Rev. R. T. F. Brain, assistant to the rector of St. John's Church, were among those present to welcome General and Mrs. Higgins on behalf of the city and the Ministerial Association.

The meeting which will probably be remembered as one of the most outstanding in the history of the local corps was opened with prayer by Brigadier L. Ursaki of Orillia. Brigadier F. Riches of Toronto, divisional commander introduced Colonel W. Peacock, chief secretary of the Salvation Army in Canada, who presided as chairman.

Mayor George A. Macdonald in extending a welcome to the noted visitors paid tribute to the work of Adjutant Neil Warrander and Mrs. Warrander and the members of the local Corps. Acknowledging the co-operation which civic officials have received on various occasions from the corps, His Worship said, "It makes the work of city officials so much easier to know they have the backing of such a splendid organization and other bodies of a similar nature."

Acknowledges Welcome

Mrs. Higgins acknowledged the welcome in a few well-chosen words and read the Scripture lesson from the 58th Chapter of Isaiah starting at the fifth verse.

The Temple Band under the baton of Bandmaster R. G. Routley and the Songster Brigade of fifty-five voices under direction of Ben Smith contributed to the success of the occasion with an appropriate program of sacred music, the band playing the Doxology as the closing item.

General Higgins a dynamic personality and a forceful speaker, introduced by Colonel Peacock as "one of the outstanding figures in the Salvation Army" threw out a ringing challenge to his listeners urging them in strongest terms to stand firm in the fight against the evil influences peculiar to the present day.

Reviewing the history of the Salvation Army from the time of its founding in England by the late General William Booth he pointed to the progress that had been made along various lines and particularly in regard to the stand it had taken on great moral issues of the day.

Increased Responsibility

Now that the Army has attained to a position of widespread influence and respect throughout the world, and has completely broken down the prejudice and hostility that it had to fight in its earlier history, General Higgins pointed out had only tended to increase the responsibility which the Salvation Army shares with the Christian churches of various denominations."

While aware of the fact that conditions have changed since the Salvation Army was founded, and stating that many of the problems peculiar to that day and generation had been overcome, General Higgins stressed that the present age has its own set of problems that must also be confronted and surmounted.

"The challenge of today," he declared, "is the challenge of materialism. It is the challenge of lowered moral standards. It is the challenge of broken family life. And it is the challenge of the mad quest for pleasure. But these problems can be met and overcome with the help of the same Divine power that helped us to meet the difficulties of a period of different circumstances."

"The Challenge"

The General exhorted his hearers to meet the challenge of the day and strive to live up to the highest ideals and principles for which Christianity stands. "Be true to all that is good, holy and pure," he pleaded.

"If all people throughout the world on church or Salvation Army rolls would realize their full responsibility as Christian people and march forward against all the evils that beset and threaten," the speaker contended, "much could yet be accomplished and mighty victories could still be won."

During their brief stay in the city, General and Mrs. Higgins were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Braund. In remarks preliminary to his address General Higgins paid tribute to the work of Mr. Braund as sergeant major of the local corps.

THE STARS SAY . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Friday, April 9

The presages for this day, according to the ruling planets, are very promising, with much progress and advancement, increased possessions and property values, especially in connection with old investments or associations.

Those whose birthday it is may expect a year of much opportunity for progress and prosperity, with old matters contributing to this encouraging status. Old investments, stagnant business interests or dormant securities might be given fresh impetus, particularly by approach to influential personages, employers or friends for endorsement or substantial co-operation.

A child born on this day may be profound and studious, attracting friends of power by its depth and dependability. And although not wanting in social characteristics, it may prefer solitude and contemplation.

LIFE INSURANCE HELPED CANADA IN DEPRESSION

Played Part In Development Of Country, Alderman Dutton Tells Underwriters

A GREATER FUTURE

Exhibiting a remarkable insight into the business, Alderman James Dutton discussed with the members of Peterborough Life Underwriters' Association some of the problems in connection with their calling as guest speaker at a luncheon meeting held in Hooper's Palm Rooms this (Thursday) noon.

Introduced by David T. Diptock he reviewed the phenomenal growth of the life insurance business in Canada during the past sixty-two years and stressed the part it has played in the development of the country and in the life of the individual policy-holder.

Alderman Dutton reminded his listeners of the great privileges and opportunities for service which are theirs as life insurance underwriters, and he envisioned a great future ahead of the business with a growing appreciation on the part of the general public of the benefits to be obtained through insurance in all its various forms.

The speaker declared "The record of life insurance in Canada is one of which the people in general and the life insurance men in particular might well be proud." He referred to the fact that through the recent years of depression not one Canadian insurance company had failed to meet its contractual obligations to policy-holders, and he spoke of this as being "an outstanding achievement."

Helped During Depression.

If it had not been for the tremendous stabilizing factor provided by life insurance investments, the speaker believed the story of the past few years might have been very different than it is to-day so far as Canada's commercial life is concerned.

Discussing some of the necessary attributes of a successful life insurance salesman Alderman Dutton believed them to be a good personality plus boundless tact and discretion. He felt that a life insurance man should study the circumstances and the needs of his prospect and should endeavor to sell him the particular type of policy that would best be suited to the case.

He criticised high-pressure methods and said that was a thing that every insurance man should carefully guard against.

E. E. Sackville moved the vote of thanks on behalf of the gathering while Clifford N. Hall who presided extended the thanks of the meeting to the speaker.

Earlier in the program the life underwriters stood in silence for a brief period as a tribute of respect to the late Peter Ferguson of Hamilton, former manager of the Dominion Life agency here, whose burial took place in Peterborough this afternoon.

BURNHAM ASKS PUBLIC PROBE OF BOOTLEGGING

Open Letter Is Addressed To Mayor Macdonald And Ald. Gordon

PUBLIC WANTS ACTION

Demanding a public probe into the charges of bootlegging in Peterborough made by Mayor George A. Macdonald and in a general way denied by Hon. G. N. Gordon, J. H. Burnham, ex-M.P., addressed an open letter to-day to the Mayor and Alderman Gordon.

Mr. Burnham in his letter says: "The public is interested in the charges of illegal liquor selling made by the Mayor and in the general way denied by Mr. Gordon. A probe should at once be held at which witnesses should be examined under oath. It should be held in the Council Chambers and open to the public. These two very prominent gentlemen of known standing and reputation owe it to the public to find out if the charges are well founded.

"Our excellent police force and the limited size of the city should enable them to know exactly what is going on in the city. There is no excuse and no doubt none will be made for anything but a clean up. The Mayor has made the first step and it is up to Mr. Gordon to make the next one. It is so grave an accusation it should not be allowed to drop. I am writing this letter at the request of a large number of citizens who feel that action is necessary immediately."

ORDER PLACED FOR FISH FRY

Fish And Game Association Places Large Order With Department

Officers of Peterborough Fish and Game Association have sent away their requisition to the Ontario Department of Game and Fisheries for lunge, pickerel, lake trout, brown trout and speckled trout fry and fingerlings for the re-stocking of waters in the Kawartha district.

"If the Department supplies the full requisition made as they promised to do", E. A. Outram, secretary of the Association stated, "this district will be better supplied with fry and fingerlings than it has been for many years past".

One of the chief objects of the Association, he declared, is in connection with the re-stocking of local lakes and streams and major expenditures of the organization are incurred in this connection.

The Department transports the fry and fingerlings to Peterborough in cans and the responsibility of transporting them from here to the lakes and streams throughout the district and of "planting" them devolves on the members of the Association.

Shipments of pickerel and speckled trout fry comprising the first part of the requisition will arrive in this district around the end of May or early in June it is expected.

Mr. Outram said no requisition for bass fry was made for the simple reason that bass are not yet artificially stocked. But he expects that Mr. MacKay, chief biologist for the Department will be here in the near future to make a survey and to select a site for the proposed bass rearing ponds which the government has promised to establish in this district.

GRAIN GROWERS TO OPEN PLANT

County's First Seed Cleaning Plant To Be Opened On Friday

Grain growers of Peterborough County will assemble for the official opening of the County's first seed cleaning plant on King Edward street Friday afternoon at 2 p.m.

A movement to obtain the plant was begun early last year and a group of interested grain growers formed the Peterborough District Seed Growers' Association largely for the sake of that objective. The plant was purchased on an understanding with W. J. Hambidge who will operate it as partowner. It is the first modern seed cleaning plant to be installed in Peterborough County. Nearest other plants are at Port Perry, Campbellford, Bobcaygeon, Lindsay, the Boys Training School at Bowmanville to the east and the Boys Training School at Bowmanville to the west.

Howard Quinn, president of the Association, will be in charge of tomorrow's ceremonies. Talks on seed cleaning, treatment of smut and the preparation of seed will be given by W. J. Stephen and J. D. McLeod of the Crops, Seed and Weeds Branch. The plant will be put in operation to demonstrate seed cleaning and grading.

Floods Harass Ontario Towns As Ice Jams Rivers

Blocked by thick floes of ice, Ontario rivers overflowed their banks as melting snow and ice turned normally small streams into swiftly moving rivers. The Rideau River at Ottawa was one of the first to go rampant and citizens in nearby Eastview were forced to move to the second stories of their homes. North Bay, Ontario, also witnessed flood scenes when the Chippewa Creek overflowed its banks. No loss of life was reported though two men were seriously injured while dynamiting the river ice at Eastview. Fire Chief Adelard Lenue of Eastview, though blinded by the blast, reached out and saved the injured workman from possible drowning. Shown in TOP photograph is a portion of the ice jam at Eastview while a home at North Bay, isolated by rising water with its residents forced to seek higher and dryer ground, is pictured BELOW.

BRIDGE WASHED OUT.

The heavy rain on Monday night was responsible for washing out the bridge near the Eldon Creamery and it was necessary for traffic to detour. Temporary repairs are being carried out to serve until a new bridge can be built.

CORONATION DECORATIONS.

The Lindsay council has decided to spend $150 to decorate Kent street with flags and bunting for Coronation Day, May 12. A similar sum has been voted for a like purpose by the Oshawa council.

A year ago this afternoon little Gerald Panter fell into Jackson Park creek just above Sherbrooke street and was drowned. Although an exhaustive search was made for many months afterward the little boy's body has never been found.

FROST DAMAGE LIGHT.

Frost is lifting from country roads with comparatively little damage from heaving. Several bogs, spots that are temporary motor traps have been reported here and there, but on the whole Spring is taking hold of the roads in good shape with easy effects for the repair crews.

SEED GRAIN NOT SCARCE

The scarcity of seed grain is by no means as acute as local farmers seem to think, Representative A. D. Runions reports, commenting on his recent visit to western Ontario. In the western counties, oats seed is plentiful at 70 cents a bushel despite the anticipation of Peterborough farmers that the Spring price would be closer to the 90-cent level.

SECOND CITY ORDER.

Purchase of 4500 feet of fire hose was the second business order the Kingan Hardware Company has received from the city in eight years. Alderman Glover told the Fire, Water and Light Committee the other night in advocating that the Kingan store be given a share of the fire equipment requirement. R. O. Kingan confirmed this statement in conversation with the Examiner today.

TO ADDRESS KIWANIS.

Don Renshaw of radio fame is announced as guest speaker at the Kiwanis Club luncheon meeting at Empress Hotel on Friday. The meeting is to be staged under direction of W. A. Richardson, chairman of the Attendance Committee. Mr. Renshaw, who spoke to the club on a former occasion is heard over the radio regularly on Sunday nights in connection with the "Forgotten Footsteps" program.

FALL WHEAT LOOKS FAIR

Fall wheat in Peterborough County seems in fair condition at the present time, Agricultural Representative A. D. Runions said today. Winter conditions were not ideal but a favourable growing season will result in a good crop, he stated.

ON STREET TODAY.

Walker Bakeries Limited of Ottawa have bought out the bakery business which formerly operated under the name of the Home Bakery. The first of the new firm's wagons made its appearance on the streets of the city today.

ENDORSE PROJECT.

According to announcement in the current issue of the club bulletin, the Kiwanis Club executive have endorsed the idea of a wading pool in King Edward Park. The project will involve an outlay of around $700 and to raise this amount a variety show is being planned in the Collegiate Auditorium for the evening of April 27 and 28.

JUDGMENT RESERVED.

Judgment was reserved by the Court of Appeal at Osgoode Hall after hearing an appeal by the plaintiff in the case of Florence V. Tice against Edward C. Tice in Toronto on Wednesday. The plaintiff's action for annulity of marriage was dismissed by Mr. Justice Hogg at the December sittings of the Supreme Court here. Hon. G. N. Gordon, K.C., acted for the plaintiff, and W. J. Arthur Fair for the defendant.

LAYING NEW FLOOR.

Heavy steel beams which served many years in the old Hunter Street Bridge and then saw service in the Donegal Street Bridge over Jackson Park Creek have now ended up at the Fire Department. They have been installed by the firemen to support the apparatus floor on the north side of the building. The floor was sagging dangerously on the old wooden beams and supports. Firemen are now engaged in laying a concrete floor in the basement under the north portion of the hall to prepare for a bigger and better toy repair department.

MAGISTRATE'S COURT.

Appearing on remand on a charge of vagrancy and begging to which he had previously entered a plea of guilty, George Nolan of Kingston was sentenced to 10-days imprisonment by Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., this (Thursday) morning. Leo Cuddihy, described as a salesman, was given one month imprisonment when he appeared on remand on a plea of guilty to a theft charge. Arrested in Toronto recently the defendant was alleged by police to have stolen a watch from a fellow-boarder at a Lake street rooming house.

APPEAL DISMISSED.

Appeal by the plaintiff for reversal of the judgment of Mr. Justice Hogg by which the suit of Virginia Savage against Benita Doughty and Arthur E. Stevens was dismissed with costs in the Supreme Court here on December 17, 1935, has been dismissed with costs by the Court of Appeal at Osgoode Hall. The plaintiff claimed that the Selby Hotel at Apsley was held by the defendants as trustees for her, and that owing to the circumstances surrounding her connection with the hotel a resulting trust was established. Damages for eviction were claimed by reason of a lease said to have been negotiated with one Cocca, owner of the hotel. Hon. G. N. Gordon, K.C., acted for the plaintiff, and I. Levinter, K.C., for the defendants.

LOANED LOUD SPEAKER.

In anticipation of an overflow meeting at the Salvation Army Temple on the occasion of the visit of General E. J. Higgins and Mrs. Higgins on Wednesday evening, the officers of The Full Gospel Pentecostal Assembly had a loud speaker system installed in one of the large rooms adjacent to the main auditorium. Installed by Lewis R. Parks the public address system was loaned for the occasion by the officers of The Full Gospel Pentecostal Assembly. It is estimated that a crowd of over 300 people heard General Higgins stirring address, but through the facilities of the loud speaker accommodation was provided for an additional 200 or more people.

CASE IS APPEALED.

An appeal by Lloyd Scriver against the judgment of Judge Sheldon H. Smoke in dismissing his action against Thomas Cargwell in the Division Court here in January, is now under way at Osgoode Hall. The action is the aftermath of a collision between the motor vehicles of the plaintiff and defendant at Westwood on June 27, 1936. Judge Smoke dismissed the plaintiff's action and allowed the defendant's counterclaim with costs of action. F. F. Sheehy is acting for the plaintiff and G. N. Gordon, K.C., for the defendant. The appeal was partly heard yesterday.

Five Words Missing In Prayer For King

London, April 8—(CP Cable)—COLLECTORS scoured bookshops today for copies of the new book of common prayer when it became known a limited number of the cheap edition had reached the market with the omission of a complete line of five words from the prayer for the King.

The error appears on page 12 in the section of the prayer which should read: "Most heartily we beseech thee with thy favour to behold our Most Gracious Sovereign Lord, King George."

The phrase omitted is "favour to behold our most."

Board Of Health Decides Engage Public Health Nurse

Applicants Must Be Fully Qualified For Public Health Work

SALARY SET AT $1,200

First step toward organization of a Peterborough public nursing service to combat high infant mortality and a rising tuberculosis rate here was taken by the Board of Health Wednesday evening. At a special meeting the employment of a public health nurse was authorized.

The move had been discussed at various times during the past several months and provision for employment of the first nurse was made by the earmarking of $1,500 in this years Board of Health estimates. Assistant City Clerk E. A. Outram was instructed to advertise for a nurse fully qualified for public health work. It was hoped that a local girl would be found available. Members agreed it would be necessary to obtain a nurse from outside if no nurse with the proper training could be found here.

Alderman Dutton said Peterborough's high infant mortality rate and recent increase in the number of tuberculosis victims here justified an immediate start on the nursing service. He joined with Mayor Macdonald in the hope that the job could be given a local girl.

Medical Officer of Health Dr. Fraser said: "It will be a waste of money if we employ a public health nurse without the proper training." He said he was not in the position to be able to train a regular nurse in public health duties himself. Other medical officers of health have found a nurse from outside the community is more satisfactory than one obtained from the community in which she is to work, he said.

Mayor Macdonald suggested the advantage to be gained by employing a nurse already familiar with the community would offset the disadvantages.

Whether or not a local girl with the full public health service qualifications is available in Peterborough will be learned through the advertisement, Alderman Dutton said. The Board agreed to start the nurse at a salary of $1,200 a year.

Dr. Fraser pointed out the first nurse could be used a senior nurse in charge of the service in the event others are added to the staff in future. Organization of the service might lead local girls to take the public health course and qualify for future employment, Alderman Dutton suggested.

The Rambling REPORTERS

A LITTLE OIL IS INDICATED.

The good-looking and cheerful Archie Menzies, the member of the Police Force who gets a big hand from the ladies and many admiring glances as he pounds his daily beat, lacks a certain amount of finesse, so to speak, in his approach. At the present time, he is sporting a new pair of boots which squeak loudly. That doesn't seem just the proper caper for an officer of the law, who should be able to edge up noiselessly to a suspected criminal. —C. L. M.

RETIRED TURNKEY ROBERT RAE, 83 DIES SUDDENLY

For More Than Half a Century He Was Turnkey Of County Gaol

BORN IN BELMONT

The Union Jack over the Peterborough Court House fluttered at half mast today in token of the death of Robert Rae, more than half a century the turnkey of the County Gaol. He passed away suddenly at his home, 503 Dickson street, at 11 o'clock Wednesday evening after a brief illness.

In his 83rd year, he had been in fair health and had been out for one of his daily walks as recently as last Friday. During the week-end he took to his bed and weakened quickly.

Few figured in public service in Peterborough down through the years have been better known than Mr. Rae. His entire life was centered on the Court House and so familiar was his presence in the Court House corridors and the County Court room that he seemed to have an integral place in the scene of Peterborough's judicial activity. He was possibly the longest-serving jail official in the Dominion of Canada.

"He commenced his duties as turnkey in October, 1883, and retired scarcely three years ago, in November 1934. He was in a position to observe closely the pageant of Peterborough history during the half century and with clear memory to his last days was an authority on local history. Few court sessions did he miss in all those years in his capacity as a court attendant.

He was born in Belmont township, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. William Rae, and spent his entire life in this district. At one time he was color sergeant in the old 57th Regiment here. He was a member of Court Peterborough, Canadian Order of Foresters and a member of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church.

Surviving are one daughter, Ethel M. Rae at home, one son, Allan Rae of Toronto; two brothers, William Rae of this city, and David Rae of Winnipeg, and two sisters, Millie Rae of Peterborough and Mrs. C. S. Mallett of Toronto. His wife predeceased him on July 16, 1932.

The funeral will be held Saturday at 2 p.m. from the family residence to Little Lake Cemetery. Rev. Dr. A. T. Barr of St. Paul's Church will officiate.

FORTY STUDENTS FOOLED BY CLEVER IMPERSONATOR

Attractive "Girl" Lectures Oxford College Group During Hoax

JEWELLED SENORITA

Oxford — Forty undergraduates from St. Peter's Hall, Oxford, are trying to identify another member of the university, who has successfully carried out one of the most astounding hoaxes of recent years.

An announcement was placed on the college notice board recently that Senorita Maria Salneron would give an address on Spain to members of the exclusive Taverners, a debating society.

She looked about 25. Blue eyes glittered from under auburn hair, on which a green Tyrolean hat was perched at a smart angle. Jewels glittered on carefully manicured hands.

With a foreign accent the senorita addressed the college on the facts in favor of General Franco's policy. Question time came after half an hour's speaking, and left wing members of the club fired their questions, which were answered perfectly.

Then the meeting ended and drinks were served. The undergraduates drank beer—sherry was served to the senorita, who bade her adieu.

Then a strange undergraduate in flannel trousers slipped back into the room. The president announced, "This is the senorita."

The Taverners had been hoaxed, but they were too surprised to do anything, and the "senorita" left, chuckling to himself. Taylor, the president, revealed:

"I and another member of the society planned the affair. The club is usually addressed by other members, or occasionally a don, and several requests had been made that we should get an outsider, but none was forthcoming.

"There was no alternative but to create an outsider. So we got hold of a friend who, after we had promised him his name should never be revealed, agreed to play the part.

"His achievement was remarkable, for there were many people present who really had a far greater knowledge of Spain than he had."

It is suspected that the hoaxer may be a member of Merton College.

FIFTY PARENTS FIGHT TEACHERS OVER MEALS

Police Reinforcements Needed as Dispute Creates Holiday for Children

Mayo.—Fifty parents who for 10 weeks kept their children from school on Achill Island, County Mayo, because the teachers refused to prepare meals, finally fought the local police force.

They attacked one of the teachers and "beat him up."

Other teachers hurried for aid and police rushed to the spot.

The parents, in a warlike mood, attacked the police, overpowered them and chased them off. Two constables were severely manhandled.

Police reinforcements were hastily summoned. From many points they converged on the school.

Another battle—and the parents were routed. They fled.

The dispute arose because the teachers refused to administer the free meal scheme to the children.

The local council held it is their duty to do so. The teachers claimed that the scheme should be administered by the council.

Meanwhile hundreds of children had a fine holiday.

WALES' RURAL CRAFTS AGAIN IN DEMAND

Village Blacksmiths Making New Products

Swansea—Old rural crafts of Wales are in demand again, and markets are being found in all parts of the world.

Welsh clogs are being sold in Africa, wooden utensils to New Zealand and U.S.A. Inquiries for textiles have been received from India and Holland.

Village blacksmiths, who were put out of business by the motor age, have turned their attention to wrought-iron craft, and have sufficient orders to keep going practically half the year.

Furniture-making has become a paying industry after starting as a social service.

Expert designers and colorists have helped the old craftsmen to meet modern requirements.

For the first time Welsh rural industries will be represented at the international crafts exhibition in Paris.

Orders booked at the Welsh Rural Industries Exhibition this year totalled nearly £10,000, compared with £1,000 four years ago when the annual fair was launched.

PICNIC SPOT LANDSLIDE

Folkestone.—A landslide and subsidence of a large area of ground occurred in the Warren, a camping and picnic ground, at Folkestone.

For about 200 yards the land fell in a mass, as much as 100 feet in places, into the sea.

SCOTLAND YARD MEN TOLD GROWING STOUT

Detectives To Be Exercised in Quadrangle Mornings

London.—The C.I.D. at Scotland Yard is to be reduced, but only in avoirdupois. The "man with the axe" will be a gymnasium instructor and not an economist.

The national "get fit" movement has found the C.I.D. not too fit physically. In recent years the men have travelled everywhere by motor car, and walking with them has become one of the lost arts. Periodical rounds of golf keep some of the men in fair trim.

The suggestion is that the detectives should be exercised in a quadrangle at Scotland Yard every morning between 9 and 10.

Sir Norman Kendal, chief of the C.I.D., notes more than anyone at Scotland Yard the growing obesity of the C.I.D. "You are growing very fat," is a constant salutation which greets many detectives who parade before him for promotion.

Slimmer C.I.D. members welcome the fitness innovation. The opinion of the fat ones has not been canvassed.

GHOST 'PLANE FLIES ACROSS OCEAN DAILY

Government Air Experts Plot Course As Weather Data Sought

Foynes.—Every day a ghost aeroplane flies across the north Atlantic from Ireland to Newfoundland. No one ever sees the craft; no radio messages are received from it.

Yet, at the air ministry in London, experts plot its course, record what weather it has been forced to fly through, and work out every detail of its trip.

These ghost flights are being made to get details of weather condition over the Atlantic.

The ghost aeroplane is purely imaginary. It starts off from the Imperial Airways new base at Foynes and gathers weather reports from ships on the Atlantic, and from Newfoundland.

Complete technical details of the flight are imagined, and with windspeeds, presence of fog and storm areas that have to be surmounted or missed by the ghost craft, the experts in London can calculate to within a dozen gallons or so the actual amount of petrol that one of the 18-ton air liners would have used on the trip and the precise time taken.

So far none of the ghost aeroplanes has failed! At least, they have never yet encountered weather that would make the trip impossible.

ARDENT LOVER LOSES

Letters, Cables and Flowers Daily Occurrence

London.—Hugo Hirsch, wealthy London leather merchant, used to write twice a day to Miss Henrietta Buchsbaum, 27-year-old girl living in Berlin.

He sent her cables and flowers, gave her a diamond ring. It was a love match. That was two years ago.

In the King's bench division Miss Buchsbaum was awarded £4,000 agreed damages and costs in a breach of promise action against Mr. Hirsch.

Mr. P. Sandlands, K.C., for Miss Buchsbaum, said she brought the action because she felt that by the breach of contract some slur had been cast upon her.

PARADE OF THE IRISH GUARDS

An Irish guardsman hands a sprig of shamrock to a group of children who watch the parade of the Irish Guards at Caterham, Surrey, England, on St. Patrick's day. Apparently, like true Irish, they are more interested in the flower of patriotism than the picturesque guard.

LEGAL FORMALITIES BAR WILL PROBATION

Document That of Vosper Who Recently Disappeared

Plymouth.—Steps are to be taken to prove the will of Frank Vosper, the actor-playwright, who disappeared from the French liner Paris, off Plymouth, recently.

There will probably be a number of legal formalities—including an application to the courts for leave to presume death—before probate can be obtained. It is understood that Vosper was a rich man.

Members of his family and W. L. Pengelly, his London solicitor and sole executor, do not now consider that there will be any further inquiry in France or elsewhere concerning his fate.

There is a possibility, however, that the matter may be taken up by the British authorities in view of statements being made in Le Havre, where the Paris is docked, that at the time of Mr. Vosper's disappearance the liner was in British waters.

UNDERGROUND GARAGE

Birmingham.—To relieve traffic congestion, Birmingham is to construct in the centre of the city an underground garage to accommodate 1,200 cars. The scheme provides over eight acres of parking space, and is to cost $1,725,000. The value of the garage as an air-raid shelter is regarded as important.

POLICE TO PATROL TRAFFIC AS MOBILE CUSTODIANS

London "Bobbies" to Practice More Tact and Courtesy Is Anticipation

DISCOURTESY ERROR

London.—More motor and bicycle police traffic patrols and greater tact and courtesy in police treatment of motorists are advocated in the annual reports of his majesty's inspectors of constabulary, issued recently.

Lieut.-Col. W. D. Allan states: "Each year brings an increase in the demands which traffic control makes on the time of the police, and, in my opinion, if a proper supervision of traffic is to be maintained more personnel is required for the purpose, both for motor patrols and bicycle patrols.

"Bicycle patrols for traffic supervision might be found more useful in city and urban areas functioning on similar lines to the automobile and R.A.C. patrols in our country districts.

"They could act as mobile custodians for purposes of safety in the inner zone, and so relieve the motor patrols to devote their attention to the outer zones, where they are most required."

Referring to motorists' complaints of police discourtesy, he says: "I have noticed in one or two isolated cases that a constable, when hailed by a motorist, adopts an attitude which suggests his complete indifference to the motorist's wants.

"Such an attitude by one constable brings disrepute on the general body of the force to which he belongs and it should be borne in mind that the qualities of courtesy and tact in handling road users are equally as important as is a knowledge of traffic laws.

LADY TENNIS EXPERT TO MARRY DOCTOR

Dudley.—Miss Dorothy Round, Britain's No. 1 woman lawn tennis player, is to marry Dr. Douglas Leigh Little, of Dudley, Staffs—Dorothy's home-town.

Dr. Little, Scottish, 29 years old, was the man who made Wimbledon tennis fans furious last year because of his attentions to Miss Round.

Their engagement was announced recently.

Dr. Little—self-confessed "rabbit" at tennis—is a county hockey player and a golfer. Said he:

"We plan to get married some time next September.

"I met Dorothy at a friend's house two years ago. We found we had many interests in common, and we have since met frequently at dances."

GIVEN-UP FOR DEAD TWO ARE FOUND ALIVE

Were Carried Out to Sea in Rowing Boat During Storm

Stratford-on-Avon.—At a village inn near Shipston-on-Stour a man and a boy who have long been given up for dead, were recently found.

Ronald White, aged 31, a Birmingham chemist, and his friend, Bernard Jones, aged 14, left Birmingham in a car before Christmas for a holiday. The car was found on Ilfracombe pier shortly afterwards; police searched for them in vain, and hope was given up.

"Carried out to sea in a rowing boat from Ilfracombe and picked up exhausted by a steamer which took us to Buenos Aires—that is what has happened to us," Mr. White related.

"We got another boat to Liverpool, and then I remember a long train journey, followed by a bus trip, which landed us near this village.

"If I had not been so ill I could remember all the details of this adventure, but things are very hazy. We went out for a jaunt in a little boat from Ilfracombe, and then it became very rough.

"We were helpless and soaked after a time, and when we thought all was up we were picked up by a steamer."

JEWEL THIEF CLIMBS TWENTY-FOOT PIPE

Escapes With Jewelry Valued at $5,000 in Queen's Acre Raid

Windsor.—A cat burglar climbed a 20-foot drainpipe at Queen's Acre here recently and stole more than $5,000 worth of jewelry belonging to Lady Mary Crichton.

Queen's Acre is the home of Lady Mary and Colonel the Hon. Sir George Crichton, late comptroller to the lord chamberlain's department and uncle of the Earl of Erne.

They left home after dinner, and it is believed that the thief and an accomplice hid in bushes as they went, then committed the burglary and escaped in a car.

Only the jewel case had been touched in Lady Mary's room. Seven diamond and sapphire rings, a number of diamond bracelets, and six brooches, including one shaped like the eight-pointed Coldstream star (the badge of Sir George's old regiment), were taken.

MAN GOES TO WORK SO 300 GIRLS HAPPY

Wellingborough.—Ernest Greasley, "Clark Gable" of the Midland Co-operative Laundry at Irthlingborough, near Wellingborough, has gone back to his job as foreman—and the 300 girl laundry workers he superintends are happy again.

The girls' three-hour strike, when they marched through the town shouting "We want Ernie," has succeeded. They have got Ernie.

The plan to transfer Mr. Greasley to Derby has been scrapped. Half a dozen young blondes rubbed out yesterday's slogan, "We want Ernie," and changed it to "Happy days are here again."

Mr. Greasley's home is alongside the laundry. His wife, pretty, red-haired, said: "Jealous? Good heavens, no. I think it is very nice he should be so popular with the girls. They work hard for him.

"We are very happily married—no, no children. I don't think he is at all like Clark Gable, do you?"

SIX YOUTHS ARE ARRESTED ON JEWEL-THEFT CHARGES

Constable's Suspicions Proved Correct as Crowded Car Used in Robbery

MAJORITY 'TEEN-AGE

Guildford.—A saloon car "somewhat overcrowded with passengers" went slowly down High St., Guildford, early on a recent morning, said P.C. Taylor to the Guildford bench.

A few seconds later it came back and the passengers were peering out of the windows. His suspicions were aroused, and he took the number of the car.

Almost immediately after the car returned and stopped outside the jeweller's shop of Spikins, in High St.

From his concealed position he saw three jump out of the car. One smashed a window and two made a grab at the jewelry.

He ran toward them, but before he had got many yards they had returned to the car and driven off at a fast speed.

He got a police van and gave chase, and at Kingston, with the help of metropolitan police, he arrested James Rae, 17, of Walham Ave., Fulham; Arthur James Whitton, 20, of Dalaford St., Fulham; John Michael Dunning, 19, of Rock Ave., Fulham; and Thomas John George Noakes, 17, of Cathnor Rd., Shepherd's Bush, and two boys of 16.

They were remanded, charged with John Galvin, 20, of Orbain Rd., Munster Rd., Fulham, with breaking into the shop and stealing 30 gold watches, value $750, the property of Walter Flowers.

At Kingston police station, said P.C. Taylor, six gold watches were found in Noakes' socks and two watches in the car, and they were identified as being Spikins' property.

Detective Dyas said Galvin was concerned with six others in an alleged theft of a car at Kensington, garage-breaking at Molesey and shop-breaking at Guildford.

YOUNGEST PERFORMER THOUGHT QUEEN SHIP

Queen Mother Presents Child With Flower as Humor Enjoyed

Streatham—When she heard that Queen Mary was to visit the Albert Hall recently, four-year-old Jean Oxford was puzzled. "How can a great big ship like the Queen Mary get into the Albert Hall?" she asked her parents.

Queen Mary enjoyed this joke so much after it was told to her at a matinee of "The King of Glory" pageant, that she especially asked for Jean, who is the youngest performer, to come and be presented in the royal box.

Jean was brought from the dressing rooms and made her curtsy without any rehearsal.

After talking to Jean for some minutes Queen Mary took a pink carnation from her bouquet and gave it to Jean.

Jean was still clutching the carnation when she declared:

"I shall keep it for ever and ever. The Queen was very, very nice. I was too excited even to hear what she said to me."

OPPOSED TO EXAMS

London.—Proposals of some schools to award scholarships by intelligence test has been accepted as a welcome sign by those desiring something more suitable than "conventional examinations" for boys of 13.

LADS FROM EALING TANNED FOR STEALING

Mothers' Attention Rapt as Judge Orders Strap

Ealing.—A woman fainted in Ealing juvenile court recently as she heard the screams of her son, who was being strapped.

The lad was one of seven who had been ordered three strokes of the strap for stealing hospital collection boxes from shop counters.

A medical report saved one boy—he was sent to a remand home for 14 days—but none of the others was spared.

Their parents were invited to watch the birching but they all refused.

"It was all very distressing," said one of the mothers, "because of the fright of the children at the prospect of being birched and because we could hear the swish of the strap and the cries of some of the boys."

The chairman of the magistrates, Mrs. Chard, said the boys were brought to the court for very mean offences.

Two or three of them had been before the court before and were still on probation.

GETS THREE YEARS FOR KILLING WIFE

'She Deserved It,' Claims Man Admitting Strangling Mate With Pinafore

Balham.—Mr. Justice Finlay at the Old Bailey refused to accept a man's plea of guilty to a charge of murder recently.

The jury found the man guilty only of manslaughter, under strong provocation, and recommended him to mercy. He was sentenced to three years' penal servitude.

Mr. G. B. McClure, for the prosecution, said that early in the morning of Jan. 21, Charles Bird, a 45-year-old Balham laborer, walked into the police station, handed in the key of his flat, and said he had strangled his wife.

"She deserved it," he said. "She drove me to it."

Mr. McClure said the first part of the statement clearly meant that Bird was guilty of murder, but the second part made it possible for the jury to reduce the charge to manslaughter.

Bird said his wife was "rowing" him, as she had done before when in drink. She fought and scratched him for three-quarters of an hour, until he could not stand it any longer.

"So I strangled her with a pinafore and with my hands," he added.

A neighbor said she had been awakened several times by quarrelling in the Birds' flat. She had often seen Mrs. Bird come home the worse for drink.

Mr. Elam, for Bird, said he was an inoffensive little man, whose wife led him a cat-and-dog existence.

CLAIMS POOR PEOPLE NEED LEGAL HELP

Omission of Conciliation Clause From Marriage Bill Dangerous, Says Cadi

South London. — The omission from the marriage bill of the conciliation clause would make it a dangerous measure, because it would make it possible for poor persons to go direct to the divorce court without being brought into the conciliation machinery of the police courts.

So said Claud Mullins, metropolitan magistrate, speaking at the annual meeting of the South London association for the moral welfare of children.

"Six months on a London bench," Mr Mullins went on, "and six years' experience of the matrimonial problems of poorer people, has taught me how desperately they need social as well as legal help. In seven months of the matrimonial court in South London I issued 220 summonses to wives, all for separations. Of those 103 were never heard at all — we were able to satisfy them through social help.

"The serious factor is that, if the marriage bill goes through, about one-third of these cases will be able to go direct to the divorce court."

ASBESTOS CLOTHING

North Shields.—Asbestos clothing, including suits, helmets, sleeves and boots, is now being manufactured in North Shields, Northumberland. It is claimed to be safer than other similar equipment on the market, because only asbestos cloth is exposed to the heat, all straps and fastenings being concealed. Local fire-brigade chiefs are taking an active interest in the clothing as being suitable for use by firemen. It is also being demanded for use by stokers and other workers near exposed flames and considerable heat.

BRIEF STORIES GATHERED FROM ALL CORNERS OF THE WORLD

JAIL MADE LOVE CELL BY SENTIMENTAL KEEPER

Pretty Young Bride Visited Prisoner Daily With Food and Gifts

BRIDEGROOM RICH

Paris.—The story of a sentimental jailer, of the prison cell which he made comfortable for a wealthy prisoner to receive his pretty young bride, and of the bride who contrived her husband's escape, disturbed to-day the judicial solemnity of the Seine assizes.

In the dock stood blonde Christiane Pelissier, charged with helping her ex-banker husband to escape from the cells of the Palais de Justice. Beside her stood Jailer Lionel Vallet, whose heart was softened and pocket enriched by the pleas of a newly-wed couple compelled to snatch their honeymoon hours in jail interviews.

Mme. Pelissier's cousin, Marcel Guichard, was charged with making a skeleton key for an illegal purpose.

Pelissier, awaiting trial for bank escapes, is in a Belgian jail, sentenced for using a false passport.

The story moved the court. The rather pathetic, pale young bride appeared almost to be a badly-treated woman. Then Prosecuting Counsel Mr. Cazeneuve told of the ring by which she had freed her husband.

Pelissier, awaiting trial for bank frauds in the Sante prison, was from time to time taken to the Palais de Justice to help arrangements in their investigations. Then he was under the care of Jailer Vallet.

"I never believed that such amiable, affectionate people could trick me," exclaimed Vallet. Persuaded by the couple, he prepared a special, well-furnished cell for them, where he would look them in together and leave them for whole afternoons. The cell became known as the "love cell". It was never used for ordinary prisoners.

After three months Christiane called one day, bringing secretly $1,000 and a false key to the "love cell." She brought, openly, a roast chicken, salad, wine, sweets. Vallet sighed as he locked them in as usual.

NEW WAR 'PLANES FOR ARGENTINE ARMY

Buenos Aires. — Seven million dollars' worth of new war planes for the Argentine army and navy will be supplied exclusively by United States factories it has been learned.

A fleet of twenty-two Martin bombers represent $2,750,000 U. S. currency worth of the total mentioned and four or five other manufacturers, represented here by Consolidated, have taken the rest of the business.

European competitors for the contracts were eliminated from the flying tests demanded by the government in the earliest stages, due mainly to the circumstances of having offered machines considered out-of-date.

YOUNG MONK LEADER MAKES VITAL THREAT

Group in Monastery Strike Against Abbot Who Faces Charges

Cairo—The 100 monks who are on a "stay-in" strike at the Deir el Moharrak Monastery, near Asciut, are still defiant.

Abdul Messih Ibrahim, their 30-year-old leader, issued this dramatic challenge to the world:

"We are armed and we will fight to the death if necessary. The first soldier will enter the monastery over the body of the last monk."

The monks struck as a protest against their abbot.

When he left the monastery on a visit to Cairo six weeks ago they swore they would not have him back.

All attempts to persuade them to change their minds failed. They refused to allow any one to enter the monastery until the abbot was dismissed.

The chief magistrate of Asciut went to the monastery to give the monks a final warning.

They held a hurried meeting, and then from the top of the monastery's 30-foot wall told the magistrate to return to Asciut.

Three others are in hospital with broken legs and other injuries, and it was stated two of the three might not live.

Smith was buried with naval honors to-day.

GLAMOROUS BEAUTY DECOY IN OWN FIANCE'S DEATH

Unwittingly Betrayed Lover to Ogpu Secret Police, So Suicides

WAS SPY 8 YEARS

Warsaw.—Helene Navorin, dark, glamorous 32-year-old beauty, was employed for eight years as a decoy by Ogpu secret police in Moscow, it has been revealed. Recently she was congratulated by her Ogpu chief for another "catch" of Trotskyists.

Helene had made friends with a number of a secret Trotsky group, obtained from him facts about his organization.

He told her that his group were meeting at his home on Saturday afternoon. Ogpu police, warned by Helene, surrounded the house, arrested the 18 men who came to the meeting place.

Horrified she read the name of the man whom she was to marry next month.

In the hope that a mistake had been made she carried out investigations. They proved that she had betrayed her lover into the hands of the Ogpu.

She went to her chief in the Lubianka headquarters, pleaded with him to release her fiance. He refused.

She drew a pistol and, before he could prevent her, shot herself dead.

FIRE INSPECTION OF CITY'S HOMES

Two Inspectors Are Now Making The Rounds Of Homes In South Ward

A general inspection of all Peterborough homes with the object of a sharp reduction in the city's fire losses by removal of fire hazards was launched this week, Fire Chief George Gimblett revealed to-day. Two inspectors are now making the rounds in the South-end of the city.

"Ninety-five per cent. of fires in dwelling-houses and outbuildings start from hazards which the careful householder would not allow to exist," Chief Gimblett said. "By eliminating the common causes, we can cut down the fire loss. Our trained inspectors will point out the hazards to the tenants."

Inspectors will identify themselves to householders by their badges and uniforms, and will bear with them letters from Chief Gimblett. They will inspect houses from top to bottom. Chief Gimblett states pressure will be brought to bear in accordance with city by-laws in cases where home owners or tenants fail to follow recommendations of the inspectors.

It is expected the entire survey will require more than a year.

CITIZENS MOURN FAITHFUL SERVANT IN WILLIAM GREEN

Funeral Service Of Former City Treasurer Held In Trinity Church

CITY COUNCIL PRESENT

Citizens from many walks of life were present at the final service for the late William J. Green in Trinity United Church Wednesday afternoon. He was laid to rest in Little Lake Cemetery.

Citing the departed nonagenarian as a distinguished public servant, a Christian gentleman and a great churchman, Rev. George S. Eastman voiced a deep tribute. He spoke of him as one of the few last links with early Peterborough and with the old Charlotte Street Methodist Church which Trinity Church.

"He was proud of the fact he was one of the first to be married in the Charlotte Street Church," Rev. Easton said. "His mind, keen, his brain alert, and active in body, he continued to be a devoted, faithful member of his church, attending services and meetings regularly up to his final days."

Kindly Old Gentleman.

Rev. Easton spoke of a last conversation he had with Mr. Green the day before his passing and told of the remarkably clear memory the kindly old gentleman enjoyed and of the reasonable and wise philosophies which guided his active mind to the last. One of Mr. Green's interests was sport and in baseball terms, he said, "Many a game has been won in the last half of the ninth inning. I think I am playing the last half of the ninth inning in the game of life and that the faith in God I've always had will help me to win."

Rev. Easton commented: "When a man has gone through 90 years of life and can face the end with a peace and assurance exemplified in words like that, it helps even a minister who is dealing constantly with these things to realize anew the value of the Christian religion."

City Council Present.

Mayor George A. Macdonald and other members of the city council of the past and present who knew Mr. Green during his long service as tax collector were present at the funeral. The gathering included representatives of the Police and Fire Departments and of the City Hall staff. In attendance from out of the city were relatives and friends from Ottawa, Cananoque, Toronto and Rochester.

During the church service, Mrs. Richard Cowan sang "The 23rd Psalm."

Rev. Easton officiated at the graveside service in Little Lake Cemetery, following which the impressive Odd Fellows' ritual was carried out under the leadership of Mayor Macdonald, a past noble grand, and George Evans, chaplain.

Pallbearers were R. F. Dewery, Frank Adams, A. W. Pratten, A. Morral, William Campbell and H. E. Hoggens.

VETERAN TEACHER IS LAID TO REST

Teachers, Pupils and Ex-Pupils Pay Tribute To Memory Of Miss Thomas

Pupils representing each grade of Queen Mary School in which the late Emily Louisa Thomas served, the greater part of her long teaching career, joined with Peterborough teachers in observing a final tribute when funeral services were held Wednesday. Following a service at Trinity United Church, she was laid to rest in Little Lake Cemetery.

The large number of local citizens who will remember Miss Thomas for her kindly instruction in the primary grades through which they passed in their earlier years was remarked upon by Rev. George S. Easton in an eloquent funeral sermon. He spoke of the departed teacher's life as an exemplary one. Her career of service as a teacher in Trinity Sunday school equalled almost her career in the public schools, he reminded.

Among the pupils and teachers in attendance were representatives of the Board of Education, other prominent citizens and friends and relatives from outside the city. Included in the array of beautiful floral tributes were a number from former pupils of Miss Thomas.

Serving as pall-bearers were Percy Forster, Jaycox Fowler, Harry Forster, Gordon Roach, Bal Wakely and Brydal Hamilton.

OBITUARY

MRS. GEORGE F. PATERSON.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

BETHANY, April 8.—The funeral of the late Mrs. George F. Paterson (nee Margaret Ruth Hamilton) was held on Tuesday afternoon and was very largely attended, not only by friends from the surrounding countryside, but by many from a distance.

Mrs. Paterson died on Wednesday, March 31, at Edmonton Hospital, where she had been rushed by plane from her home at Waterways.

During the funeral service Rector at Bethany gave a very appropriate address based on the text Isaiah in Exodus 33rd chapter, 14th verse: "My presence shall go with you and I will give you peace."

The hymns sung were "Peace, Perfect Peace" and "Abide With Me." The choir was assisted by members of St. Mary's A.Y.P.A., of which the deceased had been a member.

The magnificent floral tributes bore mute testimony to the very high esteem in which Mrs. Paterson was held. The deceased is survived by a sorrowing husband, her parents, Dr. and Mrs. Hamilton, and an only brother, Frank, of the Bank of Toronto staff in Kingston, Ont.

The pall-bearers were: Messrs. Lawrence Lesman, Charles and Thomas Lesman, Ottawa, Archie Shanks, Toronto, Leo Ingram, Peterborough, and Harley Percy, Toronto.

Besides the relatives, those attending from a distance included: Rev. and Mrs. V. Walker, Jamesville, Rev. and Mrs. Harcourt of Blackstock, Walter Stanton, Edmonton, Miss Doris Counton, Toronto, Mrs. George Neale, Toronto, Mr. and Mrs. Archie Shanks, Toronto, Mrs. Stanley, Toronto, and Glenn Haddon, Oakville.

JAMES MARSHALL.

Succumbing to an illness of the past ten months, James Marshall of 243 Harvey Street, a veteran of the Great War, died in Christie Street Hospital, Toronto, Wednesday. He was 59 years of age.

He was born in Thorpe, England, son of the late John Marshall. Twenty-six years ago he came to this city from England. He served in the war in the 26th Railway Battalion. Up to his retirement two years ago he followed his trade as gardener.

Mr. Marshall was a member of St. John's Anglican Church.

Surviving are his wife, two sons, Jack and Alfred of this city; two sisters, Sarah in England and Miss Louisa Archer in Australia.

The funeral will be held under Canadian Legion auspices from St. John's Church at 2 p.m. Saturday. Interment was made in the family plot at St. John's Cemetery, Ida.

'Twas Dangerous Back In Early Eighties To Belong To Lindsay Salvation Army

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LINDSAY, April 8.—The fifty-fourth anniversary of the establishment of the Salvation Army in Lindsay will be observed on Sunday.

At midnight on New Year's eve, 1883 the Army heralded the dawn of a new year with a hallelujah procession with the result that the contingent was placed under arrest and spent the night in the council chamber, Capt. Calhoun, the leader, was later fined two dollars for disturbing the peace.

In the eighties, too, a female lieutenant, native to Lindsay, was court martialled and drummed out of the Army for refusing to discard her bustle.

Still another woman, Captain Bertha Smith, who came to Lindsay from Peterborough, while kneeling in prayer in front of a Kent street hotel, was brutally clubbed over the head by an over-zealous policeman and given fifteen days in the county jail for "loitering on the street."

In spite of these incidents the Army forged ahead and became a great force for good in the community.

Successful Coronation Bridge.

The Coronation bridge party held on Wednesday evening under auspices of the Business and Professional Women's Club of Peterborough, in their George street clubrooms, was a very successful and entertaining event, with over thirty tables playing in the big main auditorium and the smaller card rooms.

The ladies were received by the president, Miss Trurie Pearson, the first vice president, Miss Cathleen McCarthy, and the general convenor of the bridge, Miss Birdie Dawson, to whose energetic efforts much of the success of the affair was due.

The decorations were much admired and were appropriate to the Coronation season. They were arranged very attractively by Mrs. Harold Dunford, who made generous contributions from her stock of national flags, to drape the walls of the large hall, along with several large, beautiful tapestry wall hangings and flag-decorated curtains in gay colors for the windows. Small pictures of Their Majesties, beneath the draped Union Jack, were used as decoration for the smaller rooms.

The Coronation note was carried out also in the flag-embossed tally cards and die red, white and blue wrappings of the pretty prizes, donated by Miss Elsie Bennett and Miss Greta Giles. These were drawn for and went to Mrs. W. S. Merrell (a china pitcher), and Mrs. Dick Simpson (Elizabeth Arden vanity box). The lucky chair remained untenanted during most of the evening and was empty at the close of the games. This prize (a lovely picture), was also drawn for, and was won by Mrs. S. J. Black.

The service of delicious refreshments was supervised by Miss Vera Heyes; Miss Elsie Bennett was in charge of bridge prizes; Miss Greta Giles and Miss Mina Edwards looked after the bridge tables.

Assisting in various ways in the preparation and service of refreshments and decorations were the Misses Violet Walsh, Jessie Martin, Vida Foote, Sara Eastwood, Lois Stewart, Agnes Dixon, Mina Edwards, Greta Giles, Florence Corcoran, May Anderson, Trucie Pearson, Winnie Davis, Alethia Davidson, Helen Lytle. Miss Bess Latimer was treasurer. Mrs. A. R. Anderson, the club hostess, also assisted materially with arrangements for a successful party.

Charges Russians Still Shipping Aid

ROME, April 8—(AP)—Virginio Gayda regarded as the most authoritative of Italian editors, to-day charged Soviet Russia, as he previously had accused France, of violating the Spanish civil war non-intervention agreement by sending aid to the Madrid government.

The Spanish steamer Mar Negro, Gayda declared, was en route to Valencia from Odessa, Russia, with a cargo of munitions for the Spanish government.

Aboard the vessel, he writes, were 25 tanks, 20 airplanes, 30 trucks and 200 tons of other war materials.

April And May Best Times Bird-Banding

Ticket Of Admission To The Bird World Is Food Ottawa Man Says

MALES ARRIVE FIRST

By Margaret Bruce
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA, April 8—(CP)—Spring came to this capital today with a little bronze grackle, the first of Dr. Ralph E. Delury's banded birds to revisit his garden this year, on the annual trip north.

Dr. Delury, a noted astronomer, started his bird-banding in 1921 at his home near the experimental farm here. Since then 120 different species of birds have visited his garden, almost half the Ottawa list which numbers 250, including all water birds which are not on Dr. Delury's list.

"Your ticket admission to the bird world is food," says Dr. DeLury. "Sunflower, hemp and millet, seeds, crushed grains, bread, fruits, nuts and suet and a pond will attract the resident and migratory birds to the banding station. Make the garden attractive to them with marsh plants and dancing water, bathing places, a corner with dead leaves and sticks and wild woods flowers and patches of green lawn."

Special Cages.

Wire cages with openings in the top for capturing the bird for banding, and drop doors that can be lowered by a string when the bird has entered are used by Dr. DeLury in his banding operations.

"April and May are the best time for bird banding. Then you get the migrating birds on their way north. The male birds arrive first in most species and the females follow a few days later.

"The red breasted robins and tawny song sparrows are usually the first guest," said Dr. DeLury. The fox sparrow and the slate colored juncoes with their gently twittering whistle may come next, and later, but not until May, the white-throated sparrows, the chipping sparrows and the white-crowned sparrows. Little bands will stay on into May.

"About the middle of May, after a night flight, the rose-breasted rose-beak will arrive, and that same month will bring an avalanche of warblers, vireos, catbirds, brown thrashers, orioles, nighthawks, flycatchers and thrushes."

Reversible Frock

Anne Shirley, diminutive film player, is wearing a reversible dress which is made of dark blue taffeta, plain on one side, dotted on the other. The seams are so cleverly put in that the dress may be worn on either dotted or plain side. The same is true of the bolero jacket, which comes with the dress. A navy blue straw banded in grosgrain which falls in short streamers in the back, tops the ensemble. Anne's shoes are navy, and suede calf.

80 Canadian Women Will Be Presented To King And Queen

Unselfish Withdrawal Of English Debs Give Canadian Girls Opportunity

DEBUTANTES PARADE

LONDON, April 8 (CP) — More than 80 Canadian women will be presented to Their Majesties at the Coronation year courts May 6 and July 1. The court to be held May 5 is to be reserved for English debutantes—who number about 200—and other English presentees.

Canadians making their bows will outnumber by a wood number those of any previous year and will—in the majority of cases—be girls who are also making their bow to society next season at home.

English Debs Withdraw

Unselfish withdrawal of dozens of English debs who are waiting till next year, has made such a large presentation possible and kept the two later receptions from being overcrowded.

South African presentees are being instructed in the art of making a curtsey by the wife of their high commissioner, Mrs. Vincent Massey, wife of the Canadian High Commissioner, intends giving parties for the Canadian group, but they expect to learn their Buckingham Palace party manners from Jean Macpherson of Toronto and several other dancing and department instructors who specialize in such matters in London. Overseas visitors will have the opportunity of seeing the English debutantes in their parade at a ball April 28.

The largest number of debs ever brought together for such an occasion will enter the ballroom of Grosvenor House in two long lines, simply gowned in white with smart coiffures and make-up.

They will bring with them a great birthday cake lit with 229 candles in memory of Queen Charlotte, wife of George III, and curtsey in turn to the Duke and Duchess of Kent, both direct descendants of that queen. The duchess will cut the cake.

Following the debutante maids-of-honor will be 70 maids-in-waiting, the debutantes, elder sisters. Watching from the sidelines will be the debutantes' mothers, many of whom are acting as hostesses at this spectacular ball.

WEDDINGS

O'TOOLE—DRISCOLL.

At six o'clock this (Thursday) morning the Sacred Heart Church was the scene of a quiet but pretty wedding, when Ruth Annabelle Driscoll, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Denis Driscoll, was married to Claire Michael O'Toole, son of Michael O'Toole and the late Mrs. O'Toole, all of the township of Otonabee. The Nuptial Mass and ceremony were celebrated by the Rev. J. C. Maloney.

Attendants were Miss Lorraine McMahon and Jerome O'Toole, brother of the bridegroom.

The bride was attired in a dainty frock of brown figured sheer with brown straw hat, flower-trimmed, and beige and brown accessories.

Miss McMahon wore navy blue sheer with navy hat and blue and white accessories.

After a wedding breakfast at the Elite Cafe, Mr. and Mrs. O'Toole left for a brief honeymoon trip, to reside on Carlisle avenue, Peterborough, on their return.

The report of the Nominating committee, as given by Miss Florence Gladman, was accepted by the ladies.

This, and other reports, were presented at the meeting which followed dinner, a pleasant repast served at tables tastefully decorated by Mrs. J. A. Robinson. The centerpiece was a large silver bowl filled with a gorgeous bouquet of spring flowers; deep pink sweet peas, mignonette, mauve stocks, pink snapdragon, daffodils and rose tulips, in the central bouquet were placed the tiny long shafted tapers of different pastel shades, which are a fanciful bit of decoration of the moment. Two bon vases held pink sweet peas and a bit of unique nonsense which added to the enjoyment of the occasion was the running about of the letters of names on the place cards, so that each guest puzzled out her own place. Dinner was featured by cutting songs to popular tunes, with Miss Gladman at the piano.

Annual Reports

The president, Miss Munro, was in the chair for the annual meeting which followed, when reports were heard. She spoke briefly, thanking the members for their co-operation.

The report of the year's activities, presented by the secretary, Mrs. R. H. Turner, outlined the results of games played during the season, when the main events, in addition to the regular local games, were the out-of-town visits to the Granite Club, Toronto, for play in the Robertson Trophy games, when each of the competing local players; Mrs. R. H. Turner, Mrs. O. Degraw, Miss Helen Munro and Miss Hazel Fanning, brought home runner-up prizes in the form of handsome cut-glass plates; to the Seigniory Club in Quebec, to play in the Sewell Trophy and Iron competition, and to the Granite Club late in March, where two rinks were entered in the Brereton-Raw Trophy games, one rink losing by one point only the day prize and entry in the final games.

Miss Hazel Fanning presented the financial statement, which was satisfactory, and Miss Mayme Montgomery reported on the trip to the Seigniory Club in Quebec, where the ladies were greeted by the skirl of the bagpipes, old-time sleighs for conveyance, and a torchlight parade, at the opening for an enjoyable five days' stay.

Mrs. R. M. Waddell reported for the Games committee; Mrs. C. B. Westbrook for the Saturday Night Games committee; Mrs. O. Degraw for the Robertson Trophy Games; Miss Munro for the Brereton-Raw Trophy Games.

Waddell, also the prizes presented by her to the individual players. Mrs. Waddell presented the Waddell (Constabine) cup to the team that was comprised of Mesdames Taylor, H. Dunnage, D. S. Clarke and Miss F. Gladman, and the club's individual prizes; Miss F. Gladman presented the Vice Skips' prizes to Mesdames G. E. Matthews, C. B. Westbrook, R. T. Turner, and Miss Hazel Fanning; Mrs. O. Degraw presented the Stutsen Trophy to the winning rink, composed of Mesdames J. A. Robinson and D. S. Clarke, and Messrs. Bacon and Giroux; and Mrs. R. H. Turner presented the Stutsen Consolation awards to the rink comprised of Mesdames Purvis and Degraw and Messrs. J. A. Robinson and McArthur.

Mrs. O. Degraw presented a prize given by her for the greatest number of points in point competitions, won by Miss Helen Munro, and Miss Munro presented her special prize for the lady and gentleman securing the largest number of points in Saturday night games, won by Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Westbrook.

He went to bed early after a hard day's work. Half an hour after he retired, members of the family heard a crash of glass upstairs. When they reached Miller's room he wasn't there.

They found him outside near the barn, barefoot in slush. He said he had been dreaming that the barn was afire and had dashed through the upstairs window.

TWEEDSMUIR UP ON CARNATIONS KNOWS FLOWERS

Rideau Hall Gardener Tells Of Vice-Regal Floral Preferences During Past Ten Years

WIFE ALSO INTERESTED

OTTAWA, April 8—(C.P.) — The last three vice-regal families have been interested in gardening and flowers, says A. P. Challis, head gardener at Government House for the past 10 years, but Lord Tweedsmuir is better informed on inside and outside gardening than either of his predecessors. Lady Tweedsmuir also knows and loves flowers and is exceptionally kind and considerate with them, donating many blooms to hospitals and other organizations.

"The Governors-General were interested in the greenhouses and garden but not nearly as much as their wives. Mr. Challis says. "you could expect a visit to the greenhouse from Lady Willingdon every day when she was at home."

Mr. Challis started his work at Rideau Hall soon after the Willingdons arrived here. "Lady Willingdon came in the fall, and I came in the spring," he said. Although he could not recall that any of the three chatelaines of Rideau Hall had a special preference for any particular flower, Mr. Challis said each had definite color favorites.

Lady Willingdon's preference was for mauve — "mauve carnations, mauve sweet peas and in her boudoir the flowers were always arranged in mauve glass containers." Pink was Lady Bessborough's favorite—"gladioli, snapdragons and carnations. The present mistress of Government House prefers white flowers, lillies, gladioli and gardenias. In fact we never cultivated gardenias at all till her Excellency's arrival. Lady Tweedsmuir likes the plain glass vases for her boudoir."

The three Governors-General during Mr. Challis' time, he said, all favored the boutonniere. "Lord Tweedsmuir comes in every morning for his, usually a dark, crimson carnation. Lord Bessborough was especially fond of boutonnieres, generally a pink bloom, and we were particular to send him one every time he went on a trip. One time while he was in Toronto the two plain clothesmen there felt they should dress the same as the governor general and so both appeared with pink carnations. Lord Willingdon, occasionally, but not as often wore a flower in his lapel.

Planted Trees

"When the Willingdons left they each planted a maple tree," said Mr. Challis. "Stanley Baldwin and his wife during their visit here each planted a spruce tree which we still call Mr. and Mrs. Baldwin. They are now 30 feet high, growing well and doing fine. During their stay a line of spruce trees was also planted to represent the cabinet, but they met the way of all cabinets—they had to go out to make way for improvements—they were moved and replaced elsewhere.

"There are two spruce trees planted by the King and Queen of Siam when they were staying at Government House. The Duke of Windsor on a visit here as Prince of Wales planted a maple tree, quite near the garden house. All these trees have brass plates with their planter's name engraved." From the six greenhouses in the winter and the garden in the summer, Mr. Challis supplies fresh-cut flowers for Government House.

Every morning at 8.30 he consults her Excellency's lady-in-waiting and they decide on the flower requirements for the day. The lady-in-waiting arranges the blooms for the house in bowls and vases. Sometimes as when Lady Willingdon's lady-in-waiting was absent for almost four years, Mr. Challis performed the duty. "I like that almost as much as the actual growing of the flowers," he said. "Lady Willingdon was exceedingly particular. The flowers for lunch never stayed for dinner."

Mr. Challis was born in England and started gardening there when he was 14. "The gardens here cannot compare with those in England but there they have had centuries of producing flowers, while Canada has only started gardening in the last 50 years," he said.

New Afternoon Dresses Slim and Distinguished

Often Combining Two Fabrics

Sheer black wool and white lace afternoon frock worn with white pull-on and high black turban.

By LISBETH

DINING and dancing frocks, especially the former, are wider and shorter. Formal afternoon attire is shorter, but usually not fuller.

Slim, distinguished looking designs are usually the rule where this type of dress is concerned.

A very distinctive costume of this type is pictured. It is in sheer wool, and a highly patterned wide lace is combined with it to make a charming frock for spring luncheons and afternoon affairs. You will notice how intricately the bodice section is cut, effectively showing off its puffed lace sleeves and insert. The white ball buttons, one on each side of the neckline, are another chic touch.

Sheer Wool for Afternoon.

Sheer wool afternoon ensembles are a highlight of the season. Coats in navy cheviot or tweed top printed dresses or two-piece suits, and are much worn for luncheon engagements. Then there are suits mentioned as especially appropriate for wear at the afternoon wedding. These latter are developed in sheer wool, most often in beige, the tops in fashion's favor. Dresses of these suits are soft and simply styled, and have their own fur-trimmed jackets. Sometimes this type of suit shows pulled details on both dress and jacket.

Boxy reefers and swaggers top other suits, and there are a goodly number of cape suits shown, especially in the more formal models.

Tweedy effects in knitwear are another interesting trend of the times.

TROOPS TO TENT IN LONDON PARK

Canada's Contingent Will Have Place In Royal Progress May 12

LONDON, April 8—(CP)—About 32,500 officers and men of home and overseas forces will line the streets of the royal progress Coronation Day, May 12.

The length of the return procession from Westminster Abbey will be approximately 3,500 yards and will take 40 minutes to pass a given point. Composite guards of honor from the three services will be mounted outside Buckingham Palace and Westminster Abbey.

Bands, including a service band from Canada, will take part in the procession and bands will also take posts at salient points on the route. The Grenadier Guards will have the special honor of providing the military detachment in Westminster Abbey.

Camps will be made May 10-13 in Kensington Gardens for the processional army units and R.A.F. and in Regents Park, Primrose Hill and Olympia for the Royal Navy, Dominions' contingents and three Guards battalions. The Colonial contingent will be accommodated in barracks in London.

Detailing the Coronation procession arrangements, Ramsay Macdonald, Lord President of the Council, told Commons:

"In the procession will be detachments from the Royal Navy and naval reserves and from corps and units of the regular and territorial army, and from the Royal Air Force, and the auxiliary air force, the navy providing 4,000 men and the R.A.F. 3,000 respectively, out of the total.

"The Indian army and navy will also be represented. Contingents from the Dominions will take part in the procession, also a contingent representing a permanent and volunteer defence force of the colonial empire. In addition some 6,500 men will be required for reserves and administrative duties in camps."

JUST MANAGES TO SIGN WILL

East Chezzetcook Man Gets Signature On Document Seconds Before Death

DIES OF HEART ATTACK

EAST CHEZZETCOOK, N. S., April 8—(CP). — "You'll have to hurry. It won't be long," urged 62-year-old Irving Warner, as two strangers hurriedly added their names as witnesses to his will. Seconds later he was dead.

Warner had felt a heart attack coming on as he worked in his general store here. Summoning the only other two people in the store at the time, two small boys, he told them to bring in the first two adults they could find.

When the two witnesses appeared Warner told them his will was in the safe all ready for signatures. He managed to affix his own name to the document, then toppled over just as the second witness had finished signing.

The storekeeper, who had lived in this little town 36 miles north-east of Halifax all his life, was dead before a doctor could be summoned.

GUIDE BACTERIA FOR BEST BACON

John Bull Uses The Latest Hygienics For Results In Curing Plants

LONDON, April 8—(C.P.)—Britain's 540 bacon factories are adopting new standards of hygiene. High-powered hoses daily wash down slaughter-house and factory with hot water. Walls and ceiling are sprayed with disinfectant. All workers must wash their hands and arms before beginning and after leaving off work.

A pamphlet issued by the Bacon Development Board explains it is not just a question of cleanliness. It is a matter of dealing correctly with bacteria; and bacteria, have to be handled thoughtfully if flavor is to be preserved.

These micro-organisms must be allowed to do their work; but they cannot be allowed to work too hard. Too short or too long-lived bacteria spoil the bacon's flavor. Denmark discovered that years ago.

Having finished their beneficient career, the bacteria end their riotous little day in a weak solution of sodium hypochlorite. It destroys 6,000,000 to the square inch in five minutes.

LONDON CONTROLS FUR SKINS MARTS

Hitler's Policies Against Jews Turned Millions In Sales To Britain

LONDON, April 8—(C.P.)—Millions change hands at the blink of an eyelash at the London fur sale where half the skins come from Canada, the rest from Russia, Australia, United States, Persia and South America.

Each of the 600 buyers, who attend the Beaver House session, has his own "little idiosyncrasies—a flick of a pencil, the closing of an eye, a snap of the fingers. But the auctioneers, perched on their rostrums, and their attendant watcher clerks, know each method and sometimes up to 30,000 skins may be sold in a single hour without a word from any of the 600 buyers in the huge room.

Every big sale lasts several weeks and each auctioneer sells two lots a minute for seven hours a day. For years London handled $70,000,000 of the world's $250,000,000 annual turnover. Britain's share has increased since Hitler's anti-Jewish campaign began. Before beginning sale after leaving off work. Leipzig has shared importance as a world fur market but a boycott by Jewish merchants following the Nazi regime in Germany, the market at the city nearly vanished. The results have been a loss of $40,000,000 a year to Germany, including an annual loss of German ships for carriage of $250,000. There has been a corresponding profit for England. The biggest fur sales are held four times a year.

More than a score of deputy-sheriffs and members of the American Legion paced back and forth in front of the ivy-clad rome building.

The Orillia "Y" Swimming Club will be guests of the local association in a dual swim meet at 8.15 to-morrow (Friday) evening in the Y.M.C.A. pool. Twenty events are listed and keen competition before a large crowd is anticipated. The local swimmers, tutored by Gordon Minty, are confident of making a good showing against the Lake Couchiching mermen. Local juniors will be led by Dave Rogers, holder of the Hobby Shaw senior diving championship. A number of aquatic experts will be in this class, representing both clubs. The seniors will enter the two medley races, with Gerow and Rennie doing the backstroke competition, Londerville and Feryer in the breast stroke, and Dunlop and Allen in the free style. The 160-yard free style relay of Allen, Janeway, Dunlop and Gerow should be hard to beat by the best of the Orillia plungers. Spectators should come early to assure themselves of good seats for this water meet. The program will be:

85 Speeders Entered For 47th Preakness

BALTIMORE, April 8—(AP).—The pick of the United States three-year-old crop from Shuffly, Texas flash, to Pompoon, the big Eastern bay, appeared to-day among the 85 nominations the Maryland Jockey Club announced for the 47th renewal of the Preakness.

Of the best 3-year-olds, only Two—Count Arthur and Privileged—were missing from the list released by Matt J. Dalzer, Jockey Club secretary.

At the top was Pompoon, which took down $82,250 in prize money last year for J. E. Louchheim of Philadelphia, his owner. The strapping offspring of Pompey-Oonagh failed to win only two of his eight starts and was second in both of them.

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

By CEC. PERDUE

SENIOR BASEBALL executive will hold a meeting on Friday eve at 7.30 in the Chamber of Commerce and all officers are asked to be on hand. A lot of important business will have to be cleared up at this time, the various committees appointed for the summer and the method of raising some dough discussed. We understand a raffle will be run for some big prizes and a scorecard program put out. Fred Collins has received word from his head office that it is okay by them if he wants to manage the ball team this year, so we imagine that end of the club should be settled. All applications for transfers here have not yet been sent in and this should be done as soon as possible in case of any hitch from the O.B.A.A.

* * * * * * *

ALL WE knew is what we hear around and about so we can't say a great deal about the four guys who want transfers here. Joe Jakaffy is a young husky righthand hurler from up Hamilton way and he has a good pitching record in senior company. Ken Long is a large first-sacker about 20 years old who saw duty in Dundas and hit .409 and fielded .985 which speaks for itself. He is a son of Pete Long, formerly here, and went to the local Collegiate. Vic Brown hails from Weybourne (is that how it's spelled?), Saskatchewan. He plays the infield and is also a puckster. Johnston, a young twirler from Edmonton, blew into here on his own and is husky and young.

* * * * * * *

RUNNO HOW good these chaps are but there should be a couple of good seniors in the bunch, anyway. And with what we have from last year—all but Foley and Scriver—and with maybe a few former players ready to return, it looks to us like the only question mark is in centre field. Or will work out in on the catching department, too? It is a little early to do much worrying or predicting about the summer-time Petes, but that the setup so far. There may be a few dark horses we missed and we may be too sure of getting all transfers passed, but that'll all be known later.

* * * * * * *

WELLAND WAILS loudly because Lefty Bishop of Napanee was refused a transfer there whilst Smokey Smith—also something of a tourist—was passed from Barrie to Toronto. But Smith was warned to cut down on his travels. St. Kitts' scribe rhymes thusly: "Sing a song of transfers, players moving 'round; Everybody voted in but Blaine voted down; When the news was mooted Welland began to sing: 'We've still got Zig and Barney Burke—it doesn't mean a thing'." We might add: Now Welland don't be angry, and Lefty don't be cross; remember that a rolling stone gathers little moss!

* * * * * * *

A DISQUIETING note—if it's true—appears in the Belleville paper thusly: "Remaining clubs in the C.O.B.I. seem to still believe the R.C.A.F. Fliers will take over the defunct Belleville franchise. For their information we can assure them that the Fliers will not be represented in the C.O.B.I. this summer. The R.C.A.F. mentors feel they have not baseball players in their midst sufficiently strong to cope with the packed teams from Oshawa et al this season, but may be induced to try intermediate O.B.A.A. ball in a district league as a first-year venture; which means the Central League will have to function as a four-team league and Belleville fans will have to journey to Napanee, Peterborough or Oshawa to enjoy the summer pastime in senior ranks."

* * * * * * *

IT STRIKES us there is foul work afoot in the Belleville lowlands and we have requested Chief Kidd to put a tail on a certain Quinte ball promoter and to curb his activities. It is rumored that, since they will have no senior baseball in Belleville, they plan an intermediate team and wish a good league. And so they figure to unsell the Fliers on the senior proposition and to get them to go intermediate for a season. At the last C.O.B.I. meeting, the R.C.A.F. gang were quite interested in senior ball—and surely they can bring in ball players as well as hockeyists. At a fairly recent date they again informed R. A. Elliott they would like to play in the Central League. It is a most suspicious matter and the ashes of a nickel cigar, found on the floor of Squadron Leader Lawrence's offices, should be examined with care! Anyway, it'll all come out at the next C.O.B.I. session in the near future.

* * * * * * *

IN GIRLS' basketball playoffs Friday e'en at the Y.W.C.A., the C.G.E. Juniors and St. John's tangle at eight, while C.G.E. Seniors and the Westclox crew meet about nine. The Electrics won the first games of these titular series. St. John's may even up the junior playoffs but the Clockmakers will find the senior setto tough enough. With a nod to Bob Service we'll bust loose in a rash of Spring poetry (?) to cheer 'em up: A bunch of the girls were hooping it up in the Y.W. gym, and the cagers in C.G.E. sweaters were dropping a lot of 'em in; when out of the cold some eight baskets down, the Clockmakers rallied, my dearies; and all around tore on the basketball floor—to win and sew up the series! Gosh, another Tennyson.

* * * * * * *

SPEAKING OF lacrosse—oh, weren't we?—the Oshawa scribbler scribbles, re a team in our group: "Oshawa could field a strong intermediate club with the players who are available right here now, and if such were done, no doubt Barron, Daniels and others would stay and play their lacrosse in Oshawa. Along with the veteran Kelly DeGray and others of last year's team. Some of the hockey players have had experience in the gutted-stick game and a well-balanced team could be rounded out—one that would easily hold its own in intermediate company. And one that would win games, thus drawing crowds big enough to make it financially sound, too." They'd be as welcome here as a reduction in taxes.

* * * * * * *

PICKING 'EM off the grapevine: Belleville pucksters, who won an O.H.A. title this winter, have no melon to split; they got the seeds . . . . But if Bill Hume is in good humor on his return from Yurrup he may installed their artificial ice plant again . . . . Lindsay might run a junior lacrosse team this year . . . . Indoor baseball workouts for prospective seniors are possible here shortly . . . . Lou Gehrig with 36 G's is highest paid of the pro ballsters . . . . Dizzy Dean wants to kiss and make up after tangling with a baseball writer . . . . Norycos surprised Barrie very much last p.m. with a decisive win; they start their two-in-three junior "B" playoffs tomorrow in Toronto . . . . Wings ought to take Rangers tonight in Henryfordsville . . . . Swim fans can see an excellent Orillia-Peterborough water meet tomorrow eve in the Y.M.C.A. . . . . Form of criticism: Knock knock. Rangers' Manager Wears Same Suit Refuses To Change, Title Settled

NEW YORK, April 8 (CP)—An old grey suit of clothes, the kind one digs up for a considerable bit of train travel, draped the lean frame of Lester Patrick today.

And the manager of New York Rangers in the National Hockey League said he is going to continue this drapery job until the Broadway Blueshirts lose a hockey game or lift the Stanley Cup and the world championship from Detroit Red Wings.

Not that Patrick is superstitious. "It's just one of those things," he said.

Newspaper men recalled he sported this same grey suit when Rangers beat Montreal Canadiens in their last league engagement. He's been wearing it ever since as his Rangers swept through the Stanley Cup rounds.

"This suit is not going to be pressed, and I'm going to wear it just as long as the boys are in their winning streak," said Patrick.

Those who saw Rangers flying high against Toronto Maple Leafs four years ago remembered Patrick was a one-suit hockey manager at that time also.

Kerr Wanted To Wallop Maroons

Before the Maroons-Ranger play-off series, Goalie Dave Kerr, of New York Rangers is reported to have said, "Nothing would give me greater pleasure than to wallop the Maroons in the play-offs." Mr. Kerr certainly lived up to his statement, because the Rangers beat Maroons in two straight games without the Montreal team scoring a single goal off Dave. He is pictured here puffing his beloved pipe telling of how Maroons got rid of him because Tommy Gorman thought more of Alex Connell. Rangers now engage Detroit Red Wings for the Stanley Cup, emblematic of professional hockey supremacy of the world.

Detroit Red Wings Confident They Can Stop Ranger Attack

'We'll Show Them a Trick Or Two Yet,' Says Pilot Jack Adams

TENSION IS GONE

DETROIT, April 8 (AP).—The injury-ridden Red Wings of Detroit, one game down to New York's Rangers in the five-game Stanley Cup series, came home Wednesday with a feeling that "we'll pull out of the hole."

To retain the cup and the world hockey championship they won last year, the Wings must stop the inspired rush of the "hot" Ranger team and win three games here before Lester Patrick's young men get two more victories.

The Wings think they'll do it. They have pulled out of tight places before, most recently at Montreal in the championship playoffs when after dropping two decisions to the Canadiens following Goalie Norm Smith's injury, they came back to win the overtime deciding game.

"The tension is gone," big Marty Barry, Detroit centre, told Manager Jack Adams last night after the Red Wings left their train and gathered on the home ice. "All the other fellows feel the same way."

Adams agreed. "We'll show them a trick or two yet," he said. "The team that beat the Canadiens is good enough to beat the Rangers."

Detroit's Red Wings, who overcame a series of injuries to win the league title, don't think Dave Kerr, Ranger netminder, who has held the opposition to two goals in 313 minutes of play-off hockey, can continue to hold off the Detroit attack.

Who will be in the net for Detroit when the series resumes tonight (Thursday) remained a question. If Smith is not fully recovered, Earl Robertson, who played two periods of the game at New York Tuesday, will tend goal.

The Detroit strategy for the remainder of the cup series was gone over by Adams in conference with Eddie Goodfellow and Doug Young, defencemen, and Larry Aurie, high-scoring forward. The latter two are out of action with broken legs.

Principal subject of the conference was how to slow down the attack of a young Ranger team that has found its most blazing speed in the important final series.

"I believe in me ol' saying about the 'pen bein' mightier than the sword—yeah!—an' I want you boys to be my friends."

Dean engaged in a brief fight with Jack Miley, New York sports writer, and Irvin Kupcinet of Chicago last Friday, after complaining of stories written by the New Yorker. Other Cardinal players broke it up.

Dodgers Much Better Team Will Be Real Fighting Club

Fighting For Positions On The Team Burleigh Grimes Says

SOME GOOD PITCHERS

By BILL BRAUCHER
Central Press Canadian Sports Writer

CLEARWATER, Fla., April 8 — This is the same pine-board ball park where the late Uncle Wilbert Robinson was wont to put his Brooklyn Dodgers through their dizzy didoes of spring training.

There's the same rocking chair in which Robbie sat reading his mail, telling stories to the scribes while his lackadaisical Flatbush Fusiliers went about their legendary demented foolishness.

There's the same creaking bench where he parked his round, ample avoirdupois and waved signals to Ol' Daisy Vance, Babe Herman, Lefty O'Doul and other Dodgers of an earlier day. The scene is the same, but—

The act is changed.

Boss Burleigh

The chair in which Robbie reclined is occupied now by Battling Burleigh (Squire Stubble-beard) Grimes, non-shaving, stern, forbidding, umpire-baiting fighter, full of a spirit of serious effort.

Grimes smokes a huge pipe with a stem two feet long. The pipe, for all of its comic opera effect, somehow strangely fits the wrestling personality of the Lord of Burleigh. One of the writing fellows about the camp says Boss Burleigh is so dignified he can strut while sitting down, a remark less original than accurate.)

When asked his thought on the matter of improving the Brooklyn ball club, Squire Grimes is very definite.

Team'll Have Fight!

"Think I'll have a better team? I know I'll have a better. This is a 100 per cent. better team right now than last year's, and the reason is the club is fighting. They're fighting for positions out there, and there's going to fight the teams we play—plenty!"

Grimes sustains his reputation for having been a tough manager to please in the Three Eye and American Association. Already he has engaged in verbal warfare with Grapefruit league spires and rival managers. The other day in a practice game he went in fast verbal rounds with Charley Dressen, manager of the Reds, after one of Burleigh's boys had been spiked.

There will be several changes, Squire Grimes is infinite about those, too. He definitely doesn't know about many positions—.

Hassett Is fixture

"I come down here and look at these fellows for a week, and you want my opening day line-up, huh?

"Well, I haven't quite decided. Buddy Hassett, at first base, is a good ball player, wh the right spirit, and I'm going to build my club around young fellows like him. Jack Wisnett, batting champion and home run leaders the association, ought to bring is some more power. We got Lavsetto from the Pirates in a trade, as he has been going good at second but hurt his ankle the other day i a game.

"We have five or a good looking young pitchers at outfielders, and I've been trying sort 'em out. It'll take a little time I can't make over this team in the weeks."

The infield probably will be composed of Hassett, Lavsetto, English and Stripp. English, short, is from the Cubs. One the young infielders Burleigh discovered himself is Tony Malinosi, shortstop with Louisville last yr, and he'll probably be kept aroul.

Dozens of 'Em

There are a lot of field candidates. Heinie Manb, former American leaguer, Mason Grimes with exhibitions of pow drives in the Grapefruit circuit. Eddie Wilson, who came up fro Allentown last summer, is carryi on his clouting where he left o. Jobs are uncertain for some of thold-overs who slumped at the pla last year

Remember When—

Lester Patrick, manager of New York Rangers, then 44 years old, went in goal for more than half a Stanley Cup playoff game with the Maroons at Montreal nine years ago to-night. Lorne Chabot was injured in the second period and Lester donned the pads. He allowed only one goal and Rangers won the game 2-1 in overtime.

'I'LL BE IN NETS TONIGHT'—SMITH

But Jack Adams Isn't Sure Normie Can Keep Mind Off His Arm

DETROIT, April 8.—(CP).— The large question mark in the Detroit Red Wings' camp to-day—besides the best method of winning the second game of their Stanley Cup series against New York Rangers—was just who is going to play goal.

Normie Smith says he'll be between the posts. Czar Jack Adams says he won't and then enlarges on the statement.

"I'd say Earl Robertson will play," Roly-Poly John said, "but that depends on Normie. He has to change his mental attitude.

"He wants to play and he'll do his best but if his mind is on his injured arm, it can't be on the game. If he can convince me he isn't thinking about the arm and that he's OK, I'll let him play.

"But I doubt it," he added, with a sorrowful look and a shake of his head.

—Watkins, Cooney, Moore and Butcher. Eddie Morgan, young outfielder who escaped the Cardinal chain system, has shown merit both afield and at bat.

Babe Phelps, hard-hitting, pianoize catcher, will share the catching duties with Ray Berres. Under stress of rigid training, Phelps has picked up four pounds, weighing only 209, but he says it's all muscle.

Fitting the Pieces

Mungo, Henshaw, Hamlin, Frankhouse, Eisenstat, Clark, Butcher and Birkofer offer Grimes wide selection in pitching. Mungo needs no mention, Henshaw is a promising young left-hander from the Cubs. Hamlin, former Tiger, is up again after a fine comeback at Milwaukee. Frankhouse is lately of the Bees. Eisenstat is a New York Jewish youth who won 19 games for Allentown. Clark and Butcher are figured for possible relief roles. Birdofer, southpaw obtained from Pittsburg in a trade, is highly regarded by Squire Burleigh.

The Squire is just fitting together the pieces, hoping to make over a crazy quilt into a sensible pattern. It's a job, but the way Grimes does it is sure to add color to the league as a whole.

Cochrane Examines Greenberg's Wrist

Tigers is seen examining the reconditioned wrist of Henry "Hank" Greenberg, slugging first baseman of the Tigers. He broke his wrist last season and was out of action for most of the summer. Mickey, too, was on the sideline for many weeks. The two "cripples" hope to make up now for lost time.

Detroit Tigers Stronger Team With Cochrane, Greenberg

Many Rookies Trying Out But Several Question Marks On Team

RECRUITS LOOK GOOD

By Bill Brancher
(Central Press Canadian Sports Writer.)

LAKELAND, Fla., April 8. — Browned by weeks of work in the southern sun, hardened by hunting on a Wyoming ranch, Mickey Cochrane is a different man from the drawn, nerve-shaken manager of the Tigers who was forced to leave the team in the thick of the pennant fight last year.

"I'm as fit as a fiddle," said Cochrane as he sat in the clubhouse here after a seven-inning practice game, perspiring like a wrestler. "I'll catch 100 games this year easy. Did you see me steal that base out there this afternoon?"

Cochrane, indeed, had stolen a base, and seemed to get as much of a kick out of it as though that manoeuvre had won another World Series for the Tigers. "Mike" will be 34 years old before the season opens, but he gets as much fun out of the game as a schoolboy.

Mike Is Question Mark.

Cochrane is one of the principal question marks of the Tiger team. If he catches, the club can win. But there are other riddles to be solved. How about Greenberg, Bridges, Auker? And the rookies?

Cochrane ran his finger down the roster. The first name thereon is that of Elden Auker, pitcher, whose showing was so disappointing last year after brilliant work in 1934 and 1935.

"The only way I can explain Auker's showing last year," said Cochrane, "is by saying he had what often happens to pitchers — an off year. That sounds dumb, but Auker worked just as hard, had just as much stuff as ever, but didn't get the breaks. I look for him to come back.

"Then the other day Tommy Bridges turned up with a pain in his side, and they first said it was a hernia. We'll be handicapped if Tommy can't start the season. But I look for a couple of the new pitchers to come through for us."

Recruits Look Good.

Cochrane has been using Rudy York, hard-hitting infielder from Milwaukee, a third base since Hank Greenberg, first baseman who broke his wrist last season, seems to be in form again and ready for a full year. If Greenberg regains his batting stride after the long layoff, York may have to mark time this year as utility infielder. The Tiger chief indicates that he plans to start the season with an infield composed of Greenberg, Gehringer, Rogell and Owen; the four men who played on the championship teams of 1934 and 1935.

Cochrane praised Frank Croucher, up from Beaumont, and Gilbert English from Toledo. Both are fine infield prospects, and there is not much to choose between them as hitters. Both bring power to the plate.

Another recruit who is expected to add some authority to the Tiger attack is Chester Lasiu, 22-year-old boyish outfielder from Milwaukee, who has a way with that maul. Chester hit .334 for the Brewers last year, and has been hitting the ball to all parts of the Everglades this spring. He faces a tough task attempting to break into an outfield composed of Goose Goslin, Jo Jo White and Gerald Walker, but unless Cochrane changes his mind, Chester still will be wearing the Tiger uniform when the season opens the latter part of April.

Cochrane put down a bottle of pop he had been drinking and took up the matter of Tiger pitching.

"We need new blood in the pitching staff. The holdovers are Auker, Bridges, Rowe, Sorrell, Lawson, Joe Sullivan, and Wade. Sorrell probably will do only relief duty. I've got to find a couple of starting pitchers from the new men.

Trout Again.

"I'm impressed with George Gill, who won 18 games for Beaumont last year. Clyde Shiver is back after a great year at Milwaukee. Hallet is a southpaw. So is Jake Wade, who came up last fall from Montreal and won some games for us before the season closed. Another left-hander from Toledo—Paul Sullivan — reminds you of Fred Marberry in pitching style. I like Bob Logan, a right-hander who had a fine year at Indianapolis. Pat McLaughlin, a tall boy from Texas, has been showing a lot of stuff in camp. Then there's Paul Trout."

Trout has been the life of the training camp. He proudly signs "Paul Dizzy Trout" for autograph hunters, and is equipped with second baseman's glove, a gift from Charley Gehringer, which he uses in practice. Another glove, a catcher's mitt, is attached to his left hand. Trout is a right-hander.

3 FAMOUS SIRES HAVE 9 OFFSPRING RUNNING IN DERBY

Sir Gallahad III. Has Six — Gallant Fox, Man o' War Rest

$50,000 CLASSIC

NEW YORK, April 8. — (AP)— Three of America's outstanding thoroughbred sires—Sir Gallahad III, Gallant Fox, and Man O' War—will not lack for capable representatives in the 63rd running of the Kentucky Derby at Churchill Downs.

Nine of the trio's offspring, six of them by Sir Gallahad, are among the 103 nominees but only three stand out prominently in the pre-race speculation for the May 8 renewal of the $50,000 turf classic. They are: Privileged, son of Sir Gallahad, and Calumn, sired by Gallant Fox, both from Warren Wright's Calumet farm, and Samuel Riddle's War Admiral, lone representative of the famous superhorse, now 20 years old.

Privileged and War Admiral are quoted at 15 to 1 each in the future books, Calumn, 20 to 1. Reports from their training camps, the Calumet Farm at Lexington, and Haire De Grace, where War Admiral is quartered, fairly flow with optimism.

Privileged was the star of the Wright fair as a two-year-old but Calumn is favored now by Trainer Frank Kearns. Barring training mishaps, he plans to start both in the Derby.

"Calumn is not only the best looking Derby prospect I ever conditioned, but best I have ever had the pleasure of laying eyes on," said Kearns.

BARRIE BEATEN BY VOCATIONALS IN 9 TO 5 TUSSLE

Defeat Is First For Colts And Winds Up Last Of Round Robin Games

START PLAYOFF FRIDAY

TORONTO, April 8. — Northern Vocationals handed Barrie Colts a 9-5 trouncing last night in a wide-open Junior battle.

It marked the first defeat of the red and white sweatered Colts led by Gordon Messing, ex-Aura Lee star, but they went down fighting, fighting not only a Northern Vocational machine that was clicking with all its accustomed power, but battling against greater odds still—unfamiliar ice conditions.

There's no doubt, granting the better team won on the night, that the large ice surface of the Gardens chased Messing's boys a lot of the rhythm from the Barrie attack. The Colts gave their all, but when long, lanky Hank Goldup, the compact Johnny Taylor, and the elusive colored flash, Herbie Carnegie, kept pouring speedy attacks at them in the closing period they neared collapse.

They were hard-pressed, but gallantly staved off further goals by a desperate defensive stand. Goaltender Goring and Defenceman Dyte and Jones did their part well.

Colts Fight to Protect Record.

Nothing was at stake except Barrie's unblemished round-robin series record and in defence of this the Colts tore into the Vocational team and made a real game for the customers. In the first period after a momentary nervousness when Goldup and Taylor sifted through for goals, Barrie tightened up and checked the ace line of the winners right back into the goal-crease. Gradually they found their bearings and the contest revolved into a rip snorting give and take exhibition but for all that—clean.

There were few times that referee Dinty Moore had to exercise his thumb in motioning some belligerent to the penalty box. Moore, by the way, made a great job of officiating. He disallowed a goal of Barrie's in the second period when Long beat Finlay from close in after the Toronto netminder had stopped a first shot. In his judgment, Long, he thought, had dragged the puck into the Vocational goal off his skate. To the writer it appeared to be a legitimate score with Long shooting the rubber over Finlay's outstretched leg. But the goal didn't count, much, and after mild argument the Colts were pacified.

Goldup Gets Four Goals.

It's the accepted thing for Goldup to be the leading scorer in practically every game his team plays, and so it's hardly news that the big fellow scored four of Vocational's goals last night. Johnny Taylor, his playmate, collected three goals, and Nicholson accounted for the other two. Herbie Carnegie, the clever centre, contributed four assists. The dogged display of young Billy Mann was a pleasing feature of the winner's game.

Barrie's husky defence duo, Buck Jones and Dyte, much thought of by professional scouts, showed to advantage, while the aggressive Whitey Walker (he's no relation of ours either) we thought played a strong game. The playmaking of Centreman Brock, and the great display of Goaltender Goring were other strong parts of the visitors' play.

The two clubs come back at each other to-morrow night in the finals as our friend the cab driver mentioned. But don't listen to his washout story. An O.H.A. championship is at stake. That speaks for itself, n'est-ce pas?

Capacity Houses Expected In Calgary For First Three Games

CALGARY, April 8.—(CP)—Prospects of one of the greatest Allan Cup finals of hockey history were seen today, with two powerful teams ready to represent the East and West in the best-of-five series starting here tonight.

Western Canada's best, North Battleford Beavers, tapered off their training grind with a 10-minute skate yesterday and were pronounced in fine condition to meet Sudbury Tigers, eastern champions.

Red Stuart's Nickel Belt champions arrive today to complete the stage for the first Dominion final ever to be staged in this foothills city.

Although all tickets for the initial contest have not been sold, arena officials announced capacity houses are assured for the first three games, tonight, Saturday and Monday.

Beavers haven't played a game since March 20.

Three National Hockey League managers will scout the series. Merrvih (Red) Dutton of New York Americans, who has been watching Beavers at Manager Abbott's request in hopes of catching any errors, Clem Loughlin of Chicago Black Hawks and Art Ross of Boston Bruins are here.

Dodgers Much Better Team Will Be Real Fighting Club

Fighting For Positions On The Team Burleigh Grimes Says

SOME GOOD PITCHERS

By BILL BRAUCHER
Central Press Canadian Sports Writer

CLEARWATER, Fla., April 8 — This is the same pile-board ball park where the late Uncle Wilbert Robinson was wont to put his Brooklyn Dodgers through their dizzy didoes of spring training.

There's the same rocking chair in which Robbie sat reading his mail, telling stories to the scribes while his lackadaisical Flatbush Fusiliers went about their legendary diamond foolishness.

There's the same creaking bench where he parked his round, ample avoirdupois and waved signals to Ol' Daizy Vance, Babe Herman, Lefty O'Doul and other Dodgers of an earlier day. The scene is the same, but—

Boss Burleigh

The chair in which Robbie reclined is occupied now by Battling Burleigh (Squire Stubble-beard) Grimes, non-shaving, stern, forbidding, umpire-baiting fighter, full of a spirit of serious effort.

Grimes smokes a huge pipe with a stem two feet long. The pipe, for all of its comic opera effect, somehow strangely fits the bristling personality of the Lord of Burleigh. (One of the writing fellows about the camp says Boss Burleigh is so dignified he can strut while sitting down, a remark less original than accurate.)

When asked his thought on the matter of improving the Brooklyn ball club, Squire Grimes is very definite.

Team'll Have Fight!

"Think I'll have a better team? I know I'll have a better. This is a 100 per cent. better team right now than last year's and the reason is the club is fighting. They're fighting for positions out there, and they're going to fight the teams we play—plenty!"

Grimes sustains his reputation for having been a tough manager to please in the Three Eye and American Association. Already he has engaged in verbal warfare with Grapefruit league umpires and rival managers. The other day in a practice game he went ten fast verbal rounds with Charlie Dressen, manager of the Reds, after one of Burleigh's boys had been spiked.

There will be several changes, Squire Grimes is definite about those, too. He definitely doesn't know about many positions—.

Hassett Is Future

"I come down here and look at these fellows for a week, and you want my opening day line-up, huh? Well, I haven't quite decided. Buddy Hassett, at first base, is a good ball player, with the right spirit, and I'm going to build my club around young fellows like him. Jack Wilsett, batting champion and home run leader in the association, ought to bring some more power. We got Lavsetto from the Pirates in a trade, and he has been going good at second but hurt his ankle the other day in a game.

"We have five or six good looking young pitchers at outfielders, and I've been trying to sort 'em out. It'll take a little time. I can't make over this team in the weeks."

The infield probably will be composed of Hassett, Lavsetto, English and Stripp. English, a short, is from the Cubs. One of the young infielders Burleigh discovered himself is Tony Malligos, shortstop with Louisville last yr. and he'll probably be kept there.

Dozens of 'Em

There are a lot of o'field candidates. Heinie Manch, former American leaguer, has on Grimes with exhibitions of pow drives in the Grapefruit circuit. Eddie Wilson, who came up from Allentown last summer, is carrying on his clouting where he left o. Jobs are uncertain for some of thhold-overs who slumped at the pie last year

Remember When—

Lester Patrick, manager of New York Rangers, then 44 years old, went in goal for more than half a Stanley Cup playoff game with the Maroons at Montreal, nine years ago to-night. Lorne Chabot was injured in the second period and Lester donned the pads. He allowed only one goal and Rangers won the game 2-1 in overtime.

—Watkins, Cooney, Moore and Butcher. Eddie Morgan, young outfielder who escaped the Cardinal chain system, has shown merit both afield and at bat.

Babe Phelps, hard-hitting, plane-ing catcher, will share the catching duties with Ray Berres. Under stress of rigid training, Phelps has picked up four pounds, weighing only 209, but he says it's all muscle.

Fitting the Pieces

Mungo, Henshaw, Hamlin, Frankhouse, Elsenstat, Clark, Butcher and Birkofer offer Grimes wide selection in pitching. Mungo needs no mention. Henshaw is a promising young left-hander from the Cubs. Hamlin, former Tiger, is up again after a fine comeback at Milwaukee. Frankhouse is lately of the Bees. Elsenstat is a New York Jewish youth who won 10 games for Allentown. Clark and Butcher are figured for possible relief roles. Bircofer, southpaw obtained from Pittsburg in a trade, is highly regarded by Squire Burleigh.

The Squire is just fitting together the pieces, hoping to make over a crazy quilt into a sensible pattern. It's a job, but the way Grimes does it is sure to add color to the league as a whole.

'I'LL BE IN NETS TONIGHT'—SMITH

But Jack Adams Isn't Sure Normie Can Keep Mind Off His Arm

DETROIT, April 8.—(CP)— The large question mark in the Detroit Red Wings' camp to-day—besides the best method of winning the second game of their Stanley Cup series against New York Rangers—was just who is going to play goal.

Normie Smith says he'll be between the posts. Czar Jack Adams says he won't and then enlarges on the statement.

"I'd say Earl Robertson will play," Roly-Poly John said, "but that depends on Normie. He has to change his mental attitude.

"He wants to play and he'll do his best but if his mind is on his injured arm, it can't be on the game. If he can convince me he isn't thinking about the arm and that he's OK, I'll let him play.

"But I doubt it," he added, with a sorrowful look and a shake of his head.

Cochrane Examines Greenberg's Wrist

Tigers is seen examining the reconditioned wrist of Henry "Hank" Greenberg, slugging first baseman of the Tigers. He broke his wrist last season and was out of action for most of the summer. Mickey, too, was on the sideline for many weeks. The two "cripples" hope to make up now for lost time.

Detroit Tigers Stronger Team With Cochrane, Greenberg

Many Rookies Trying Out But Several Question Marks On Team

RECRUITS LOOK GOOD

By Bill Braucher
(Central Press Canadian Sports Writer.)

LAKELAND, Fla., April 8. — Browned by weeks of work in the southern sun, hardened by hunting on a Wyoming ranch, Mickey Cochrane is a different man from the drawn, nerve-shaken manager of the Tigers who was forced to leave the team in the thick of the pennant fight last year.

"I'm as fit as a fiddle," said Cochrane as he sat in the clubhouse here after a seven-inning practice game, perspiring like a wrestler. "I'll catch 100 games this year easy. Did you see me steal that base out there this afternoon?"

Cochrane, indeed, had stolen a base, and seemed to get as much of a kick out of it as though that manoeuvre had won another World Series for the Tigers. "Mike" will be 34 years old before the season opens, but he gets as much fun out of the game as a schoolboy.

Mike Is Question Mark.

Cochrane is one of the principal question marks of the Tiger team. If he catches, the club can win. But there are other riddles to be solved. How about Greenberg, Bridges, Auker? And the rookies?

Cochrane ran his finger down the roster. The first name thereon is that of Elden Auker, pitcher whose showing was so disappointing last year (after brilliant work in 1934 and 1935.

"The only way I can explain Auker's showing last year," said Cochrane, "is by saying he had what often happens to pitchers — an off year. That sounds dumb, but Auker worked just as hard, had just as much stuff as ever, but didn't get the breaks. I look for him to come back.

"Then the other day Tommy Bridges turned up with a pain in his side, and they first said it was a hernia. We'd be handicapped if Tommy can't start the season. But I look for a couple of the new pitchers to come through for us."

Recruits Look Good.

Cochrane has been using Rudy York, hard-hitting infielder from Milwaukee, a third base since Hank Greenberg, first baseman who broke his wrist last season, seems to be in form again and ready for a full year. If Greenberg regains his batting stride after the long layoff, York may have to mark time this year as utility infielder. The Tiger chief indicates that he plans to start the season with an infield composed of Greenberg, Gehringer, Rogell and Owen, the four men who played on the champion teams of 1934 and 1935.

Cochrane praised Frank Croucher, up from Beaumont, and Gilbert English from Toledo. Both are fine infield prospects, and there is not much to choose between them as hitters. Both bring power to the plate.

Another recruit who is expected to add some authority to the Tiger attack is Chester Laabs, 22-year-old boyish outfielder from Milwaukee, who has a way with that mace. Chester hit .324 for the Brewers last year, and has been hitting the ball to all parts of the Everglades this spring. He faces a tough task attempting to break into an outfield composed of Goose Goslin, Jo Jo White and Gerald Walker, but unless Cochrane changes his mind, Chester still will be wearing the Tiger uniform when the season opens the latter part of April.

Cochrane put down a bottle of pop he had been drinking and took up the matter of Tiger pitching.

"We need new blood in the pitching staff. The holdovers are Auker, Bridges, Rowe, Sorrell, Lawson, Joe Sullivan, and Wade. Sorrell probably will do only relief duty. I've got to find a couple of starting pitchers from the new men.

Trust Again

"I'm impressed with George Gill, who won 15 games for Beaumont last year. Clyde Hatter is back after a great year at Milwaukee. Hatter is a southpaw. So is Jake Wade, who came up last fall from Montreal and won some games for us before the season closed. Another left-hander from Toledo—Paul Dean — reminds you of Floyd Mayberry in pitching style. I like Bob Logan, a right-hander who had a fine year at Indianapolis. Pat McLaughlin, a tall boy from Texas, has been showing a lot of stuff in camp. Then there's Paul Trout.

"Trout has been the life of the training camp. He genially signs 'Paul Dean Trout' for autographs hunters, and is equipped with sound attachments similar to that with which the Cardinal star broadcasts. Past forgets the static, however, when he begins to pitch, and some of the Tiger observers think he may stick, though a 5.13 earned run average at Indianapolis last year appraises against him.

Cochrane hasn't made up his mind on the pitchers. There are no many promising youngsters in the Tiger camp, and all trying with everything they've got, that his problem is one that cannot be settled in a few weeks. Rookies will keep him to work that one out.

3 FAMOUS SIRES HAVE 9 OFFSPRING RUNNING IN DERBY

Sir Gallahad III. Has Six — Gallant Fox, Man o' War Rest

$50,000 CLASSIC

NEW YORK, April 8 — (AP)— Three of America's outstanding thoroughbred sires—Sir Gallahad III, Gallant Fox, and Man O' War—will not lack for capable representatives in the 63rd running of the Kentucky Derby at Churchill Downs.

Nine of the trio's offspring, six of them by Sir Gallahad, are among the 103 nominees but only three stand out prominently in the pre-race speculation for the May 8 renewal of the $50,000 turf classic. They are: Privileged, son of Sir Gallahad, and Galcan, sired by Gallant Fox, both from Warren Wright's Calumet farm, and Samuel Riddle's War Admiral, lone representative of the famous superhorse, now 20 years old.

Privileged and War Admiral are

BARRIE BEATEN BY VOCATIONALS IN 9 TO 5 TUSSLE

Defeat Is First For Colts And Winds Up Last Of Round Robin Games

START PLAYOFF FRIDAY

TORONTO, April 8. — Northern Vocationals handed Barrie Colts a 9-5 trouncing last night in a wide-open Junior battle.

It marked the first defeat of the red and white sweatered Colts led by Gordon Messing, ex-Aura Lee star, but they went down fighting, fighting not only a Northern Vocational machine that was clicking with all its accustomed power, but battling against greater odds still—unfamiliar ice conditions.

There's no doubt, granting the better team won on the night, that the large ice surface of the Gardens chased better-skater a lot of the rhythm from the Barrie attack. The Colts gave their all, but when sour-faced Referee Dinty Moore had finished his work, the Vocationals had won.

Colts Fight to Protect Record.

Nothing was at stake except Barrie's unblemished round-robin series record and in defence of this the Colts tore into the Vocational team and made a real game for the customers. In the first period after a momentary nervousness when Goldup and Taylor sifted through for goals, Barrie tightened up and checked the ace line of the winners right back into the goal-crease. Gradually they found their bearings and the contest revolved into a rip-snorting give and take exhibition, but for all that—clean.

There were few times that Referee Dinty Moore had to exercise his thumb in motioning some belligerent to the penalty box. Moore, by the way, made a great job of officiating. He disallowed a goal of Barrie's in the second period when Long beat Finlay from close in after the Toronto netminder had stopped a first shot. In his judgment, Long, he thought, had dragged the puck into the Vocational goal off his skate. To the writer it appeared to be a legitimate score with Long shooting the rubber over Finlay's outstretched leg. But the goal didn't count, much, and after mild argument the Colts were pacified.

Goldup Gets Four Goals.

It's the accepted thing for Goldup to be the leading scorer in practically every game his team plays and so it's hardly news that the big fellow scored four of Vocational's goals last night. Johnny Taylor, his playmate, collected three goals, and Nicholson accounted for the other two. Herbie Carnegie, the clever centre, contributed four assists. The dogged display of young Billy Mann was a pleasing feature of the winners' game.

Barrie's husky defence duo, Buck Jones and Dyte, much thought of by professional scouts, showed to advantage, while the aggressive Whitey Walker (he's no relation of ours either) we thought played a strong game. The playmaking of Centreman Brock, and the great display of Goaltender Gorring were other strong parts of the visitors' play.

The two clubs come back at each other to-morrow night in the finals as our friend the cab driver mentioned. But don't listen to his washout story. An O.H.A. championship is at stake. That speaks for itself, n'est-ce pas?

BEAVERS, TIGERS BATTLE TONIGHT

Capacity Houses Expected In Calgary For First Three Games

CALGARY, April 8.—(CP)—Prospects of one of the greatest Allan Cup finals of hockey history were seen today, with two powerful teams ready to represent the East and West in the best-of-five series starting here tonight.

Western Canada's best, North Battleford Beavers, tapered off their training grind with a 10-minute skate yesterday and were pronounced in fine condition to meet Sudbury Tigers, eastern champions.

Although all tickets for the initial contest have not been sold, arena officials announced capacity houses are assured for the first three games, tonight, Saturday and Monday.

Beavers haven't played a game since March 30.

Three National Hockey League managers will scout the series, Mervin (Red) Dutton of New York Americans, who has been watching Beavers at Manager Abbott's request in hopes of catching any errors, Clem Loughlin of Chicago Black Hawks and Art Ross of Boston Bruins are here.

One of the best God could send,
A loving Mother, a faithful friend.
Two little words, not hard to write,
But I'll remember them all my life:
My Mother.

—Lovingly remembered by son Alex. and daughter-in-law, Betty.

COPPERTHWAITE. — Memory's loving tribute to a dearly beloved husband, who passed away on April 8, 1936.

No one knows how much we miss you,
No one knows the bitter pain
We have suffered since we lost you.
Life has never been the same.
In our hearts your memory lingers
Sweetly tender, fond and true.
There is not a day, dear husband,
That we do not think of you.

To those who have a husband:
Treasure him with care.
You will never know his value
Till you see his vacant chair.

—Sadly missed and always remembered by his wife, Mrs. F. Copperthwaite.

PANTER.—In loving memory of our darling little Grandson Gerald, who fell asleep in Jesus, April 8, 1936.

Heavy are our hearts to-day;
Memory brings you back once more
To the time when you were with us,
To the happy days of yore.
However long our lives may ylast.
Whatever lands we view,
Whatever joy or grief be ours
We will always think of you.

—Ever remembered by grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. George H. Panter.

PANTER. — In sad and loving memory of our dear son Gerald, who was drowned April 8, 1936:

In our hearts your memory lingers,
Sweetly tender, fond and true.
There is not a day, dear Gerald,
That we do not think of you.

—Sadly missed by Mother, Father and Sister, June.

CARDS OF THANKS

We wish to thank the sisters and staff of St. Joseph's Hospital, for the care and sympathy extended during our recent and sad bereavement. Also the girls and boys of the King's Hotel for their lovely floral tribute.—Mrs. Lemick, McGowan and family.

Mr. W. E. Stark and family wish to thank the many kind friends, all who loaned cars and for the floral tributes sent during their recent sad bereavement.
